[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—President Roosevelt tonight defended the New Deal's foreign policy program in a strongly worded speech which was featured by a pledge that neither he nor Secretary of State Hull would commit the nation to secret treaties or guarantees in violation of the Constitution.

Mr. Roosevelt struck at his Republican "isolationist" opposition, expressing fear for the nation's future peace if such leaders as Sen. Johnson of California, Sen. Nye of North Dakota, and Representatives Fish of New York or Martin of Massachusetts were the leaders in a Republican controled congress.

Blames Them for Nazi Drive.

He offered the theory that men of such beliefs, specifically the late Sen. Borah of Idaho, by their opposition to revision of the neutrality law in 1939, emboldened Adolf Hitler to start the world war with an invasion of Poland.

The President spoke before the Foreign Policy association at a dinner in the Waldorf Astoria hotel. He preceded this appearance with a 50 mile tour of New York streets in which he braved rain which soaked him to the skin as he sat in an open car.

He declared himself in favor of establishing world security machinery before hostilities cease and of authorizing American participation in the application of force against an aggressor without submitting the question to congress.

Power to Act Swiftly.

The President said the council of the allied nations must have the power to act quickly to keep the peace by force if necessary.

Mr. Roosevelt's words stirred the audience of 1,500 to alternate cheers and boos. He spoke from a seated position at the speakers' table which was placed upon a high stage overlooking the diners. He was wheeled to his place from the curtained wings and shifted to a red damask covered chair. Earlier in the day, at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, he stood for a few minutes while voicing brief remarks.

Prolonged Applause.

The President was greeted with prolonged applause when he first appeared on the dais. He did not respond for a few moments, then smiled and waved his hand.

The President's physical appearance was the subject of comment. Under the artificial lights his face seemed far less haggard and drawn than during his day time tour in a chilling rain. His voice showing weariness and was pitched in a low tone at the beginning.

He was interrupted frequently by applause, particularly when he referred to the New Deal's recognition of soviet Russia in 1933, which "certain politicians, now very prominent in the Republican party, have condemned."

Departs from Text.

The applause apparently encouraged Mr. Roosevelt to depart from his text at numerous points. In his reference to Sen. Johnson, he interpolated that the Californian was "a friend of mine. I believe he has supported me two or three times."

The President's voice grew stronger as he progressed. He chuckled as he mentioned Teapot Dome. His tones dripped with sarcasm as he related how Sen. Borah had predicted in July, 1939, that there would be no war in Europe. The President remarked parenthetically that this incident was included "in my memoirs."

Interrupted by cheers when he remarked he was not picking out phrases from context in his presen-

Sidney Hillman, with the communistic PAC and his blackjack campaign fund, is the real campaign manager for the fourth term. Sidney likes to be called a labor statesman. He put a hack writer on the pay roll of his union a short time ago to write a biography along those lines.

The hired biographer had to make a pretty careful selection of facts. Hillman came to the United States in 1907, after serving a prison term as a revolutionist in Russia. He was an apprentice clothing worker when the 1910 clothing strike opened in Chicago. Part of the Hillman legend is that he was an important leader in that strike. In fact, he was an effective stump speaker. Unions don't entrust the conduct of major strikes to young men who haven't even learned their trade. Hillman is unique among major labor leaders in that he never really learned the trade he bosses.

Hillman organized a rump movement in the garment workers' union in 1914, was kicked out of the AFL, and organized his own union, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. It has been his property, the source of his political and personal bankroll, ever since.

His biographer had to skip lightly over a good many incidents in the history of Hillman's union. No mention will be found there of Louis Buchalter, alias Lepke, and Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro. Lepke and Gurrah died in the electric chair for a long series of killings committed by the underworld organization called Murder, Inc.

It was testified before a United States commissioner in New York that for a considerable period Lepke and Gurrah received monthly payments out of Hillman's treasury. Lepke was executed for the murder of Jacob Rosen, a trucking contractor in the garment trade.

Guido Ferrari, a garment manufacturer, was murdered in Brooklyn in 1931. Ten years later District Atty. O'Dwyer reopened the investigation of the murder, hoping to link Murder, Inc., to it. Mayor La Guardia suddenly demanded that the police captain who had been assigned to O'Dwyer as chief investigator report to the mayor all of the evidence he had gathered in that and other cases. La Guardia was Hillman's lawyer at the time of the murder. The captain resigned rather than meet the mayor's demand. The New York Times said of the case at the time: "It was learned O'Dwyer feels that the requested report would have an effect on a pending investigation that is alleged to involve a high city official, a labor official nationally prominent, and a former police official."

It is also a matter of record

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 21 [Special].—CIO pickets were chased away from the gates of the North American Aviation company's bomber plant here today by a group of 75 service men, many wearing battle ribbons, who descended on the plant after an anti-strike demonstration in downtown Kansas City.

The service men found only three pickets on duty, owing to the fact no work is done at the plant Saturday afternoons, but these three were forced to surrender union placards and leave after questioning. The placards were torn to shreds by the angry soldiers and sailors, and the poles on which they had been carried were broken.

"Look Like a Jap."

"You look like a Jap carrying that sign," one soldier shouted as the group bore down on one picket.

Several off duty pickets who had been loitering near the gate hastily disappeared, leaving a stack of union placards which the soldiers and sailors destroyed. They then surrounded a marching picket and tore the sign from his hands.

"Aren't you getting enough money?" one soldier asked the picket. "Why don't you join the army?"

Urged to Disperse.

At the main gate, Lt. Col. L. G. Schlegel, air force officer at the plant, asked the men to disperse. He explained that no work was being done Saturday afternoon and that a conference was in progress inside the plant at which it was hoped to settle the labor difficulties.

"Let us attend that conference," several of the men shouted.

Col. Schlegel admitted a committee of five inside the gates. This was composed of A. E. Welker of Buhl, Mont., a chief petty officer from the Olathe naval air station, and two soldiers and two sailors. They left after being told that no workers were scheduled to report for duty until Monday.

Promise to Return.

Their announced intention had been to see to it that no workers were kept out of the plant by pickets.

"We'll be back Monday," one soldier shouted as the men left.

The visit to the plant was planned last night by sailors at the Olathe naval station after they had read of the work stoppage at the bomber plant, which employs 16,000 and is now the only plant producing B-25 Mitchell bombers.

Army, company, and union officials met tonight in a futile attempt to end the work stoppage. Trouble began Thursday when 2,000 employes of the company's modification plant quit in protest against being transferred to the main plant.

10,000 TEEN AGERS LEND ENTHUSIASM TO CHRISTIAN RALLY

Ten thousand boys and girls of the bobby sock crowd jammed the Chicago stadium last night and for four hours they appeared to have as good a time as they would have had if Crooner Sinatra had been there.

The army of 'teen age school children was part of an audience of 25,000 on hand for the Chicagoland Youth for Christ rally. The rally was called the largest indoor religious meeting ever held in Chicago.

Its purpose was to show the youngsters that they will find help in Christ in fighting all temptations which confront juvenile delinquents.

The Rev. Torrey Johnson, pastor of the Midwest Bible church, wavy haired ex-football star at Wheaton college, got the audience singing after an opening prayer.

"Only Jesus can save us from our sins and eternal death," preached the Rev. Mr. Johnson to the children, whom he called one of the "finest cross sections of Protestant Christianity in the country."

The bobby sockers, who came fortified with paper bags of lunch, listened in orderly fashion to the prayers and "testimonials" of a group of distinguished visitors including Gil Dodds, a Baptist preacher and a great runner when he was a Boston divinity student.

They sang with great enthusiasm, and there was applause—plenty of it—but no stamping of feet. "Onward Christian Soldiers," "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," and "There's Power in the Blood" were vigorously rendered by the youngsters, with the older folks joining in.

5 DEAD, 100 HURT IN WEST COAST SHIP EXPLOSION

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 21 (AP).—The navy announced tonight that at least five men were killed and more than 100 injured, some critically, when a landing vessel was shattered today by an explosion that set fire to three similar craft and spread to a dock.

Two hours after the blast, which occurred in Los Angeles harbor, the fire was still being battled by city firemen and Coast Guard and naval equipment.

A navy spokesman said it was believed nearly under control, but a considerable quantity of trucks, bull dozers, and other equipment which had been standing on the dock, had been damaged.

More than a dozen ambulances removed the injured to the Long Beach naval hospital and others in the harbor district.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 21 (AP).—The death toll climbed hourly today in the worst conflagration in Cleveland's history, an explosion punctuated blaze that devastated an east side area one-half mile square.

The list of known dead mounted to 83 as scores of emergency crews searched the remnants of hundreds of homes for other victims trapped after a series of blasts destroyed the East Ohio Gas company's 6 million dollar liquid gas storage plant at the foot of E. 62d st. The latest official figure on missing persons was 100.

Fifty-four bodies were received at the county morgue and 29 others were found in the smoldering wreckage of the stricken area.

Chairman Stanley Orr of the Cleveland Red Cross unit expressed the fear that fatalities might reach 200.

Damage of 15 Million.

Fire Chief James E. Granger said insurance adjusters had set the combined estimate of property damage, including plant properties, business establishments, and homes, at 15 million dollars.

Mrs. Viola Moore, 37, office manager of the American Gas association laboratory, located a few yards from the liquid gas storage tanks, told reporters the blaze apparently started in one of the storage tanks.

"I was at work in the office," she said. "I looked out the window just at the moment the first explosion came. The fire apparently started in one of the large liquid gas storage tanks. I don't know what set it off. I did not see any one around the tank at the time."

Estimate 3,600 Homeless.

Seven separate investigations were in progress, being conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, army and navy intelligence, Coroner Samuel R. Gerber, police and fire officials, and the East Ohio Gas company.

An estimated 3,600 persons were made homeless.

Families from the stricken section choked nearby streets, most of them carrying children or lugging what few possessions they could save.

Adjt. Gen. Donald F. Pancoast of Ohio ordered 500 Cleveland state guards and naval militiamen mobilized to patrol the burned area and protect property from looters.

Recall Other Disasters.

The disaster recalled other major Cleveland catastrophies.

The Cleveland clinic fire of May 15, 1929, caused the death of 125 patients and doctors. Poisonous gas from burning X-ray films killed many of the victims.

Two teachers and 172 pupils perished in a fire at Collinwood school March 4, 1908.

YANKS TAKE 2 TOWNS, 2 AIR FIELDS; M'ARTHUR WARNS JAP COMMANDER

Will Take Revenge for Brutalities, Says General.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Oct. 22 [Sunday]—(AP).—Gen. MacArthur warned today that the Japanese government and military lords will be held responsible for the tortures of Bataan and any possible repetitions.

"To the commander in chief of Japanese military forces in the Philippines, Field Marshal Count Terauchi:

"The surrender of American and Filipino forces in previous campaigns in the Philippines was made in full reliance that they would be afforded the dignity, honor and protection provided by the rules and customs of war.

Tells of Brutalities.

"Since then, unimpeachable evidence has been furnished me of degradations and even of brutality to which these gallant soldiers have been subjected, in violation of the most scared code of martial honor.

"For such violations the imperial Japanese government will, of course, be held fully responsible by my government.

"As commander in chief of the allied forces in the field, I shall in addition, during the conduct of the present campaign, hold the Japanese military authorities in the Philippines immediately liable for any harm which may result from failure to accord prisoners of war, civilian internees or civilian noncombatants the proper treatment and due protection to which they of right are entitled."

83 Yank Prisoners Rescued.

William Dickinson, in a pool press release, said it was revealed at headquarters today that 83 American officers and men who had been prisoners of war for two and one-half years were rescued several weeks ago. Two of the men, Lt. Richard L. Cook of Los Angeles, and Staff Sgt. Joseph Cole of Plateau, Ala., elected to stay with the Filipino guerrillas. The others are in hospitals in New Guinea.

They were among American prisoners being shipped north when a Japanese transport was sunk by an American submarine. Other Americans who escaped the sinking craft were hunted down and killed in the water as they swam. Some who got to the beach were picked up by the Japanese and executed.

The 83, escaping Americans were picked up and cared for by Filipino guerrillas.

STALIN ORDERS UNRRA TO KEEP OUT OF RUSSIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—The united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, set up to feed and clothe the needy of war stricken nations, was smarting tonight under a rebuff from Dictator Stalin of Russia.

Stalin has announced he doesn't want any UNRRA workers coming to Russia at present. He didn't say why, and he didn't say when he will.

This is said to be distressing indeed to UNRRA because some of its social workers were getting ready to depart with Director Gen. Herbert H. Lehman to study the needs of eastern Europe.

But the mission is off now.

RECORDS BARE TRUTH ABOUT PEARL HARBOR

Who was responsible for the greatest naval disaster in American history — Pearl Harbor? John T. Flynn, economist, journalist, and author of books on government, has compiled all the available evidence contained in numerous documents, testimony, and public records. The result is his answer— "The Truth About Pearl Harbor," which, with only a few deletions, is presented herewith.

BY JOHN T. FLYNN.

On Dec. 7, 1941, Japan struck our base and fleet in Pearl Harbor, her planes knocked the American Pacific fleet, for all practical purposes, out of the war, and killed 3,000 American sailors and soldiers. Within 24 hours the Japanese struck at the Philippines, Wake, Midway, Guam, and Malay.

Having knocked us out of the war in the Pacific for the time being in a single day, within six months the Japs had conquered the Dutch and British East Indies, Indo-China, and Malaya. Pearl Harbor was the most disastrous defeat ever suffered by American arms.

Results of Pearl Harbor.

Practically all that has happened in the last two years in the Pacific, including the great loss of life, is traceable to that humiliating defeat in Pearl Harbor.

Who was responsible for that disaster?

The President of the United States has pointed his finger at two men as the culprits—Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, commander of the Pacific fleet, and Gen. Walter C. Short, army commander in Hawaii. They were relieved of their commands and ordered to remain silent pending court martial. Then Washington proceeded to create the impression that it would be harmful to the national safety to even discuss the subject during the war.

Damage Is Minimized.

For a long time the actual damage done to our naval and military equipment in Pearl Harbor was hidden from the people.

Under pressure of public opinion that concealment was broken down and the full story of the losses was made known.

Public opinion once again presses for the facts about the official chiefly responsible for Pearl Harbor and the Philippine disaster. The people are entitled to know the name of the culprit. Here I propose to examine this question.

Before Pearl Harbor the country was divided on the issue of entering the war. I do not intend to revive that discussion now, for it is irrelevant. Once this country declared war there was but one objective held essential by all Americans—to win it.

Who Was Responsible?

I shall look into the conduct of the war in the Pacific to determine only one question: Who was responsible for Pearl Harbor, the destruction of our army in the Philippines, and the immense exertions and losses required to recover the vast empire of Pacific islands which fell to the Japanese?

The President has planted in the public mind the following propositions:

1. That on Dec. 7, 1941, the United States being at peace, the Japanese made a sneak attack—stabbing us in the back.

2. That at the very moment the

TWO FEATURES TOMORROW

The Tribune tomorrow will publish two outstanding features on the war in the Philippines and in Europe.

1. On the back page will be a new color map of the Philippine Islands, showing in large, clear detail all the main cities, highways, harbors and strategic objectives of Gen. MacArthur's invasion drive. Save this map to follow the latest news developments.

2. The Tribune will also publish the first photographs of the "portable harbors," made up of pre-fabricated floating docks and piers and sunken ships, which have served the allies on the Normandy beachhead.

Filipinos Overjoyed

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ON THE LEYTE BEACHHEAD, Oct. 21.—The Filipinos are mad with joy at having the Americans back after the years of Japanese occupation and brutality, which drove many of them in Leyte into the mountains. Despite the heavy naval barrage the natives lined the hills.

Troops landing on the beaches saw white flags almost immediately as the Filipinos started at once into our lines to volunteer information. A young Filipino woman on one beach risked her life to get in touch with our soldiers and then aided in directing artillery fire against Japanese positions.

One Filipino, Sylvester D. Bavo, said:

"We knew that Japan could not beat America, but I did not believe my eyes when I saw so many ships. I felt like crying, but I just stood and shook my head. All along the hill everybody just sang."

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Oct. 22 [Sunday]—(AP).—American invasion forces on Leyte in the Philippines, penetrating four miles inland along an 18 mile front, have captured two air fields, the capital city of Tacloban, and the town of Dulag, and won control of a strait leading to inland seas of the archipelago, headquarters announced today.

The air fields, first to fall into Yank hands as potential bases from which army planes can expand the air coverage now provided by carrier aircraft, were overrun near Tacloban and Dulag.

"Strong enemy defenses carefully prepared with concrete pillboxes and prepared artillery positions were skilfully enveloped by infiltration and the enemy was forced to withdraw," said the bulletin. "Direct assaults were thereby avoided. Our casualties consequently remained light.

Win Control of Strait.

"The enemy is already showing signs of a lack of maneuverable cohesion in the face of the skillful attacks of our local commanders."

The first cavalry division, which overran Tacloban air field the first day of fighting, surged into Tacloban last night. Its capture gave the Americans control of San Juanico strait between Leyete and the island of Samar, only a mile wide at some points.

Both the air field and the city were abandoned by the Japanese.

Maj. Gen. John L. Martin, cavalry commander, said the Tacloban field was taken five hours after the first patrol waves hit the Leyte beach. Martin said 67 Japanese were killed in the peninsula four miles southeast of Tacloban. The air strip bisects the peninsula.

A few minutes after landing, Correspondent James Hutcheson reported, cavalrymen had occupied San Ricardo, a barrio [village] on the route to the air strip. Cavalrymen captured several gun positions without meeting any resistance.

Beat Off Jap Tanks.

Elements of the 96th division of the 24th corps captured Dulag, 20 miles south of Tacloban, yesterday without difficulty, then beat off Japanese tanks before beginning a drive up the Leyte valley toward San Pablo. Two strong Jap counterattacks were repulsed.

Headquarters said the Japanese air force has made more scattered attacks against some vessels of the 600 ship convoy which brought the massive force from Dutch New Guinea to the invasion scene. Three bombers were shot down by the ships' guns.

Because of effective attacks by carrier planes of the 7th fleet on enemy air fields in the Visayan and Palawan Islands, the Japanese air efforts against shipping in Pedro bay were restricted to sporadic sneak attacks.

Yank Tanks Damaged.

Six light enemy tanks spearheaded Japanese artillery and infantry in blows aimed at the advance

ing columns which took Dulag. American armor suffered some damage before the foe was driven from gun positions and entrenchments.

South of Tacloban, at Palo, where Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent, earlier reported the Japanese put up heavy mortar fire resistance against landings, the going still was tough.

C. Yates McDaniel, Associated Press correspondent, reported that Tacloban air field was overrun in the first 24 hours of fighting. An army officer on the scene said the air field battle cost the Americans less than a dozen men.

MacArthur at Air Field.

MacArthur, riding in a jeep, approached as closely as he could over muddy roads to Tacloban, where he observed that the city appeared undamaged. The general was accompanied by Lt. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, and Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney, MacArthur's air chief.

At one point on his inspection tour MacArthur's jeep bogged down in the mud and he waited calmly while it was dug out.

MacArthur and Kenney personally inspected the air field. It proved a disappointment and the general decided considerable work would be required on it.

The Japanese have not yet succeeded in staging a counter-attack of any consequence. Their artillery and mortars, however, made the going hard for the Americans in the initial beach fighting at some points.

Planes Act as Artillery.

Pending the seizure and utilization of air bases, American planes from escort carriers swooped as flying artillery on the estimated 20,000 defenders of Leyte, blowing up pill boxes and spewing death among motor convoys.

The ground forces, under command of Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger, apparently encountered their most tenacious opposition just below Cancabato bay at Palo. There Fred Hampson, Associated Press correspondent, saw four of the landing ships and several smaller craft blown up by shore guns and mortars.

On the south end of Cancabato bay, Asahel Bush, Associated Press correspondent, said the town of San Jose was in ruins as a result of the bombardment from warships in Leyte gulf, which included the battleship California, the one the Japanese thought they sank at Pearl Harbor.

Bush said "what once was San Jose" was on the point of falling. It is on the inland road to Tacloban, capital of Leyte.

Total Plane Bag 1,400.

Bush said the invaders' attack was so thoro that the advance to the town's outskirts was accomplished "without encountering a sign of a live Japanese."

Tokyo radio, after considerable silence, came thru with claims that the Japanese on Leyte were "cutting deep into enemy landing points," but in the same breath admitted the Yanks were "heading toward Tacloban."

Presumably referring to the vessel MacArthur said had been hit by aerial torpedo, Tokyo claimed the sinking of one transport.

Announces Commanders.

MacArthur announced the ground commanders helping him fulfill his vow of two years and seven months ago to return and liberate the Philippines.

Under Gen. Krueger are the 10th corps, headed by Maj. Gen. Franklin C. Sebitz, and the 24th corps, commanded by Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge; the 3d Engineers' Amphibious brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. William Seavy; the 1st battery division of Maj. Gen. Verne B. Hart; the 7th infantry division of Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold; the 24th infantry division of Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, and the 9th infantry division of Maj. Gen. James L. Bradley.

The constant air umbrella was supplied by the United States far eastern air force and royal Australian air force, headed by Lt. Gen. George C. Kenny, and the 3d fleet carrier planes of Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher. Rear Adm. Daniel C. Barbey and Rear Adm. Theodore S. Wilkinson commanded the amphibious operations.

Planes Raid Philippines.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Oct. 21 (AP).—Continued American carrier plane attacks on the Philippines, during which 50 Japanese planes were destroyed and three ships sunk, were reported today by Adm. Nimitz.

The admiral said the carrier based planes also sank four patrol torpedo boats and several ammunition barges and damaged two medium cargo ships and two luggers Friday. American losses totaled three planes, one pilot, and one air crewman.

Thirteen planes were shot down by the Yank airmen, while 37 were destroyed aground. Some of the grounded planes had been damaged previously.

Airfield on Luzon Bombed.

At Coron bay, northeast of Culion Island, the naval airmen sank a previously damaged cargo ship, a small coastal cargo vessel, and a small escort ship. Three Japanese PT boats were sunk in Batangas bay, Luzon Island. One was sent down in Cebu harbor, west of Leyte Island.

At Masbate harbor north of Cebu Island, several ammunition barges were destroyed and two medium cargo ships and two luggers were damaged. At Bulan, southern Luzon, ground installations and the air field and a hangar were bombed.

MacArthur Answers F. D. R.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21 (AP).—Gen. MacArthur has informed President Roosevelt that all was going well on the second day of the invasion of the Philippines, the White House disclosed tonight. MacArthur, replying to a message from the President, said:

"Today, Saturday, the day following the landing at Leyte, I have just received your message. All goes well here. This magnificent message will have an electrifying effect and is being given the widest publicity here by all means available."

TWO MIDWESTERN YANKS WIN BRONZE STARS FOR BRAVERY

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY, On The Moselle River, Oct. 21.—For bravery under fire two midwesterners have been awarded bronze stars by order of Maj. Gen. John S. Wood, commander of the 4th armored division.

They are Pvt. Samuel Grossman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grossman, 1438 N. Talman av., Chicago, Ill., and Pvt. Albert J. Garavaglia, 26, whose wife, Tillie, lives at 6118 Rohns av., Detroit, Mich. Both are members of the 22d armored field artillery battalion.

The awards were won Sept. 15 at Crevis, France, when both men, on their own initiative, went forward to locate a suitable observation post. Garavaglia collected firing data from a vantage point reached only by walking down a street under shell fire. Grossman, who is a radio operator, remained in an armored half-track which was subjected to mortar and artillery fire and sent missions back to his battery.

HARRIMAN BACK FROM RUSSIA TO REPORT TO F. D. R.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21 (AP).—Ambassador W. Averell Harriman arrived from Moscow today with a first hand report of the Stalin-Churchill conference for President Roosevelt. He made the trip by plane in 57 hours.

The state department said only that he had been called home for consultation and would report to Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull during his stay.

The conference between Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill in Moscow is believed by officials here to have laid a practical basis for friendly coöperation in post-war Europe between Russia and Great Britain.

PEARL HARBOR SECRET REPORT STIRS CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21 (AP).—The "secret" label attached to a navy court's report on Pearl Harbor added new heat tonight to the political controversy over the disaster with Rep. Maas [R., Minn.] contending this was an "alibi for not giving it to the public."

Chairman Reynolds [D., N. C.] of the senate military committee, a frequent critic of the administration, told reporters he saw no reason why it should be secret.

"There are too damn many secrets," Reynolds said. "It looks to me like it's time for the American people to know how Pearl Harbor happened. The Japanese certainly know and the only reason for keeping anything secret is to keep it from the enemy."

The fact that the report has been completed with part of it marked "top secret"—the navy's highest security classification—and the remainder "secret" was made known last night by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal.

Adm. King to Review Report.

The court, headed by Adm. O. G. Murfin [retired], placed the secrecy designations on its report and on the record of its proceedings. Forrestal made public a letter to Murfin saying he would ask Adm. King, the fleet commander in chief, to review the report and proceedings "with a view to determining how much thereof bears such a relation to present military operations as to require that it be accorded these high security classifications."

Rep. Cole [R., N. Y.], member of the naval affairs committee, one of those who has urged that the facts concerning Pearl Harbor be made public before the election, told reporters he thought Forrestal was following the proper procedure in submitting the report to King but said he did not see how it could have major security importance now unless there was information in it which would shake the morale of navy men and their confidence in their leaders.

Protest from Kimmel.

In Boston, an attorney for Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, navy commander at Pearl Harbor who was recalled from active duty after the disaster, asserted Forrestal's "suggested procedure is a specious pretext to keep the truth of Pearl Harbor hidden" until after the election.

The attorney, Charles B. Rugg, said Kimmel "is entitled to hear the verdict of the report promptly."

Maas and other Republicans have contended a full report on Pearl Harbor would show that responsibility for the Japanese success extended into high places in Washington.

Quiz Asked by Congress.

The naval court was established in response to a congressional resolution, adopted last July, directing the war and navy departments to make investigations "forthwith" into the circumstances of the Pearl Harbor attack. There has been no word as to whether the army inquiry has been completed.

The navy report is merely advisory to Forrestal.

There was no indication at the navy department as to when King might conclude his study.

LINDBERGH SHOT DOWN JAP PLANE, PAPER REPORTS

Passaic, N. J., Oct. 21 (AP).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew on combat missions during his recent trip and is unofficially credited with shooting down a Japanese plane, the Passaic Herald-News said, in a copyrighted article today.

The newspaper said Lindbergh's assignment as a civilian expert for the war and navy departments took him to front bases and on fighter plane flights in which aggressive action had been a matter of necessity.

At one base, the Herald-News said, Lindbergh "awed the young fighter pilots by taking out a Lightning on a flight into Jap territory after only five hours of practice, an unheard of feat."

At the war and navy departments in Washington, D. C., it was said there was no information on such an incident.

Lindbergh resigned his army commission before the war and was not recommissioned when hostilities began. He is now with the United Aircraft corporation, manufacturers of Corsair fighters. Associates at the firm's Hartford, Conn., plant reported Lindbergh asked them to say he had no comment to make on the story.

U. S. WILL FREE ISLES AT ONCE, SAYS OSMENA

Independence After Ouster of Japs.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Oct. 21 (AP).—President Sergio Osmena today issued a stirring call to all Filipinos to rise and fight the Japanese invaders whenever the tide of battle reached their town.

It was the Philippine commonwealth president's second proclamation since he came ashore on Leyte with Gen. MacArthur. It follows:

"My fellow countrymen:

"Forces of victory have landed on Philippine shores. They are led by Gen. MacArthur, trusted, tried, and true friend of the Filipino people.

Independence Assured.

"When he left two years ago he promised to return. That promise has been kept. He is standing now on Philippine soil.

"Your commonwealth government is also on our sacred land once again, but we return not only to take up where we left off. While you were undergoing untold sacrifices opposing Japanese domination your government wasn't stationary. We have advanced.

"We come not merely to restore our commonwealth government. The congress of the United States has recognized Filipino loyalty to America, to our beloved nation, and to the sacred cause of human freedom. Our independence will not be deferred to 1946, but will follow closely on the expulsion of the brutal Japanese invaders. We return to you, therefore, with our early independence assured.

"The freedom for which our heroes fought and fell from Balintawak to Bataan—for which our gallant forces and an unconquerable citizenry are still relentlessly resisting—is ours at last.

Calls on Them to Strike.

"Strike when the tide of battle reaches your town or barrio [village]. On that day strike hard against the enemy—wherever you find him—and fight—fight—without counting the cost. Onward, fellow countrymen, to victory and to freedom!"

Osmena's message followed a statement by Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, resident commissioner to the United States and secretary of information, that he is convinced liberation troops will receive the complete coöperation of the Filipino people. He said he expected his people to volunteer for work on docks and airdromes and even to battle the Japanese.

NICOBAR ISLANDS BOMBARDED BY BRITISH FLEET

ABOARD A BRITISH AIRCRAFT CARRIER IN THE INDIAN OCEAN, Oct. 21 (AP).—The British eastern fleet has bombarded the Nicobar Islands day and night this week with coördinated air strikes and feints as a long range diversion in liaison with the American landings in the Philippines.

Carrier borne planes downed eight Japanese fighter planes in dogfights over the fleet off the island of Car Nicobar, the northernmost of the Nicobars, which lie between Sumatra and the Andaman Islands in the Bay of Bengal.

Three fighters and one bomber were lost during the entire operation. Surface ships were undamaged.

THOUSAND WOUNDED AS REBELS DEPOSE GUATEMALA'S CHIEF

GUATEMALA CITY, Oct. 21 (AP).—Unrest continued today after a 12 hour revolution in this capital city in which more than 1,000 persons were wounded and the government of Gen. Frederico Ponce, acting president, was overthrown yesterday. The number slain was not disclosed. Crowds today sacked the homes of Jorge Ubico, former president, and Jose Bernare Linares, former chief of the secret police. Ubico, who had been accused of continuing control thru his successor, Gen. Ponce, was reported en route to New Orleans, La. Linares took refuge in the Peruvian embassy.

TWO 8TH ARMY COLUMNS PUSH INTO PO VALLEY

ROME, Italy, Oct. 21 (AP).—Eighth army troops advanced into the eastern Po valley in two directions today. They captured the coastal town of Cesenatico, 18 miles below Ravenna, in a drive up the Adriatic coast, and made "considerable progress" northwestward along the Rimini-Bologna highway.

New Zealand armored units smashed thru rearguard German parachute troops in the Adriatic advance, raising hopes that the 8th army might soon bring its armored forces to bear on the plains stretching ahead into the Po valley.

Front in East Prussia Is Widened, Say Nazis.

LONDON, Oct. 21 (AP).—Russian and Romanian troops swept across the Tisza river only 50 miles southeast of Budapest today and also reached the Danube river 87 miles south of the Hungarian capital in an outflanking drive aimed at crossing that waterway into the western half of the tottering axis country.

Moscow's bulletin reported the capture of 140 towns and villages, including Baja, on the east bank of the Danube below Budapest, and a Bucharest bulletin said Romanian and Red army troops were fighting the Germans in fierce battles west of the Tisza near Szolnok, 50 miles from Budapest.

Other soviet units were bearing down on Budapest at points between Szolnok and Baja, Moscow said.

East Prussia Front Widened.

Berlin said in a late broadcast that Russian troops invading German East Prussia had reached the Goldap-Gumbinnen highway at one point in battles "which surpass anything previously seen on the eastern front." This would place the Russians from 10 to 18 miles inside pre-war Germany.

Other Nazi broadcasts said the soviets had widened their invasion front to 100 miles on the eastern and northeastern sides of East Prussia.

Moscow still was silent on the East Prussian drive.

In addition to the soviet offensive in the north, Berlin said, the Russians opened a large scale drive on a 225 mile front extending southward from Warsaw, capital of Poland, to Tarnow and along the eastern Slovakian border.

The drive "apparently is aimed straight at Krakow," Berlin said.

In eastern Hungary, Moscow said, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's units and attached Romanian forces sped 25 miles northeast of fallen Debrecen.

Other Russian gains in Transylvania put the Russians within artillery range of Satu-Mare, last big Transylvanian town still held by the enemy.

Hint Red Drive at Norway.

LONDON, Oct. 21 (AP).—Underground reports received here by the Norwegian government-in-exile said tonight there was utmost confusion along the Finnish-Norwegian border and that a Russian invasion of Norway was expected at any moment.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 21 (AP).—Sodankylae, in central Lapland several miles northeast of Rovaniemi, has been captured from the Germans, a Finnish bulletin said today.

TRIBUNE BEGINS ILLINOIS STRAW POLL TOMORROW

THE TRIBUNE will start tomorrow to take a state-wide straw vote on President, United States senator, and governor in the same manner that produced accurate forecasts in previous years.

The collection of straws for the Nov. 7 election is being started later than usual in the belief that most voters have needed time to consider the issues. Because the time is shorter than usual the staff of workers will be more than doubled and an effort will be made to collect the same large number of straws that THE TRIBUNE has secured in previous tallies.

Late Poll Deemed Best.

In the past it has often been found that straws collected too long before election lose their effectiveness as indicators because of swings in sentiment as the campaign progresses. Experience seems to indicate that the last two weeks period of the vote getting drive is most likely to bring out accurate straw poll results.

Canvassers on Chicago street corners, in Cook county suburban towns, and in cities and rural districts downstate will hand out about 80,000 ballots. This is 2 per cent of 4 million, which is approximately Illinois' total registration.

Accuracy in 1942 Recalled.

In previous samplings 2 per cent has been a safe indicator of results unless they are extremely close. In 1942 THE TRIBUNE's poll on that scale resulted in an indication for United States senator that differed from the votes cast by only seven-tenths of a percentage point.

NEBRASKA MEN AT FRONT FIGHT DRYS AT HOME

Assail Vote While They're Absent.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 21 [Special].—A petition from Nebraska service men overseas asking citizens at home to refrain from voting the state dry in their absence has increased the tension of a bitter wet-dry fight which will come to a head with a referendum in connection with the general election Nov 7.

Full page newspaper advertisments have appeared thruout the state reproducing this petition with the signatures of 312 members of the 134th infantry, a Nebraska regiment which took part in the breakthru at St. Lo.

Signed on French battlefields, the petition states the signers are "dismayed to learn that those of us who survive this war may have to return to the kind of a Nebraska that our fathers returned to in 1919," and asks the people to see to it "that the Nebraska we return to will be the same Nebraska we left."

The proposed law is fully as drastic a prohibition measure as any on the books during the Volstead era. It is worded to prohibit the manufacture, sale, transportation, importation, possession, use, and advertising of intoxicating liquor as a beverage.

The dry forces are well organized and are carrying on an intensive campaign. The state's old Anti-Saloon league has been refurbished under the title of Allied Dry Forces.

The Women's Christian Temperance union is in the thick of the fight. At its state convention this week in Lincoln, Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, national president, urged passage of the referendum as an important step toward the WCTU goal of a return to national prohibition.

Opposition to the measure has centered chiefly around the contention that it is unfair for such a vote to be taken at a time when most of Nebraska's young men are out of the state.

NEW AACHENS FACE YANKS ON ROADS TO RHINE

Area Studded with Homes and Factories.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune War Correspondent.]

The soldiers of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' 1st United States army in their drive for the Rhine river can look forward to much more of the kind of house to house fighting they encountered in Aachen. For the road from Aachen to Cologne is almost one continuous city.

Rich in coal and iron, this area has been heavily industrialized in the last 50 years. While industrial development generally has followed the water course of the Inde, Ruhr, and Erft rivers which lie between Aachen and the Rhine, factories and workers' dwellings have so spread that they form almost a solidly built up area along the 40 mile road from Aachen to Cologne.

Have Excellent Roads.

Between these cities the Germans have constructed an excellent network of primary and secondary roads while the rural districts are intersected with many country roads. All of these can be expected to be used by Hodges' men in their attempts to outflank enemy strongpoints. But from the point of view of military use the principal roads of interest are the ones from Aachen thru Julich to the northeast, and from Aachen thru Eschweiler and Duren. The latter road near Eschweiler has been converted into a four lane highway known as an auto-ban, and is considered the most important.

The Americans got their first real taste of house to house fighting inside Germany in the capture of Stolberg, six miles east of Aachen. Center of an important manufacturing district, Stolberg had a huge chemical factory, zinc and lead works, cable factories, rolling mills, iron foundries, copper and glass works. Many of these factories were strongly defended by the Germans before the city fell.

Eschweiler Is Steel Town.

In the neighborhood of Eschweiler there are scores of blast furnaces, coke ovens, iron works, and coal mines. Near Eschweiler, on the Inde river, are other mines of iron, coal, lead, and cadmium.

Duren is situated in the Ruhr's fertile plain, its roads dotted with homes. Its factories make cloth, paper, and iron products.

For eighteen miles south of Duren, there is hardly a section of the secondary highway which does not have its factory and surrounding dwellings. Near Heimbach is the Urfttal reservoir which generates electric power for the industrial districts of Aachen, Duren, and Schleiden.

Envelopment and double envelopment are the tactics every American commander seeks to use to defeat the enemy while saving American lives. But the terrain may not always permit these maneuvers, and on the 40 mile stretch from Aachen to Cologne, Lt. Gen. Hodges may have to go into weeks of savage fighting against determined Germans, entrenched behind houses, along the main roads of the Rhineland.

Yanks Use 'Spike Bomb' to Rip Railroad Tracks

LONDON, Oct. 21 (AP).—A "spike bomb" is being used by American bombers to rip up railroad tracks inside Germany. It resembles a 500 pound bomb and has a two foot spike attached to the nose. The idea was developed because regular delayed action bombs often ricocheted from the tracks and embankments instead of exploding on the targets. This one sticks where it hits.

EXPECTS PARIS TO SHOW NAZIS' MARK FOR YEARS

[The second chapter of Robert Sage's "Paris Never Gave Up," recounting the entire 50 months of German occupation of Paris, appears in today's graphic section.]

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 21. — Paris will require many years entirely to efface the results of more than four years of occupation by the Germans, in the belief of Mrs. Beulah D'Artsimovitch, American wife of Vladimir D'Artsimovitch, White Russian diplomat, who lived in the French capital during many of its days of German rule.

While she was not disturbed by the Germans, her son was arrested and interned, and only today got back to Paris to rejoin his mother from the internment camp at Vittel.

Mrs. D'Artsimovitch, as the wife of a Russian, had full liberty in Paris during the first year of the war. After the Germans attacked Russia and the United States got into the war conditions became more difficult.

Saw Nazis Rarely.

She said, however, that the Germans seemed to confine themselves to special districts of Paris. In the Passy quarter where she lived at 36 Rue Cortambert, she rarely saw them.

"We do not know yet the extent of the fearful things that went on during the occupation. From all I can learn they must have been appalling," said Mrs. D'Artsimovitch today. "It was apparent from the beginning that the French and the Germans could never get on together or understand each other. The warmth of the welcome which the French people gave the American troops when they entered Paris was something inspiring to see. I am sure it was indicative of the good relations which will prevail between France and the United States."

Tells Brusque Treatment.

Mrs. D'Artsimovitch told of the brusque treatment she encountered at the hands of some of the Germans in Brittany in the first year of the occupation. She was living in Dinard and had the greatest difficulty in prevailing upon a German officer to allow her to visit her son who then was ill in a hospital in Rennes. "In contrast to that type of German, however, there were the Austrians and southern Germans who were entirely different and more gentle," she said.

"Living in Paris during the last three years has, of course, been very hard. To material hardships were added the inability to communicate with friends and relatives. Conditions are improving now.

"What we shall have mostly to contend with this winter will be the problem of keeping warm. There is no coal."

Mrs. D'Artsimovitch's husband was a diplomat in Berlin in the days of the imperial czarist government. He also was chamberlain at the imperial court and undersecretary for foreign affairs.

Marseille Publisher to Die as Collaborator

MARSEILLE, France, Oct. 21 (AP).—Albert Lejeune, director of the Petit Marseillais newspaper at Nice, was sentenced to death today by the Civil court at Marseille for collaboration activities. The Agence Francaise Presse reported that former navy minister Rear Adm. Rene Platon and the Vichy administrator for Jewish affairs, Darwuiet De Pellepoix, had been executed by FFI tribunals after being convicted of dealing with the enemy.

YANKS STRIKE FOR DUREN AS AACHEN FALLS

Gain Mile; Planes Blast Towns on Highway.

LONDON, Oct. 22 [Sunday]—(AP).—American troops struck swiftly last night following the unconditional surrender of Aachen, pushing approximately one mile eastward toward Duren, 24 miles away, from their positions in the Wurselen area four miles north of Aachen.

Thunderbolt fighter-bombers ranged ahead of the American attack, showering leaflets and explosives on towns along the highway that leads from Aachen thru Duren to Cologne, 40 miles away.

To the northwest, the Canadian 1st army, with British aid, advanced nine miles in the Dutch-Belgian border region in a drive to clear the Schelde estuary so the allies can use the great port of Antwerp.

Canadians Bridge Canal.

Two Canadian columns threw bridges across the Roosendaal canal near the Dutch-Belgian border 14 miles north of Antwerp.

A British column under Canadian command kept pace by thrusting thru the road junction town of Wuestwezel and four miles beyond it to the Dutch border 17 miles northwest of Antwerp. The Canadians and British formed a solid front.

These advances strengthened the positions of other Canadians at the neck of the south Beveland causeway leading to the north bank of the Schelde estuary.

American troops near the German border in the Netherlands advanced within 4,000 yards of an unidentified town near the Maas [Meuse] river, and the British consolidated their positions southeast of Venray in secondary actions in this important sector.

Drive Nazis Into Pocket.

Antwerp, one of the few continental ports taken by the allies in usable condition, has been effectively blocked for weeks by Germans on both sides of its approach up the Schelde estuary from the North sea.

The Germans on the south bank of this estuary were being steadily compressed into a smaller pocket. They were withdrawing into a roughly four sided area of about 20 square miles bounded by the North sea and the towns of Dreskens, Oostburg, and Cadzand.

The Canadian force investing the port of Dunkerque had a flurry of action when the German garrison sallied out and overran a forward position, only to be driven back with losses.

On the American 3d army front around Metz and Nancy, there was sporadic shelling, with American artillery particularly seeking to knock out an 11 inch gun with which the Germans have been harassing Lt. Gen. Patton's men for weeks.

There and also on the Vosges mountain front held by the American 7th and French 1st armies, there was little or no change in positions, with some sectors taking on the trenched, barbed wired appearance of World war days, complete with mud.

German Lines Flooded.

Allied planes yesterday broke a hole in the 800 foot earthen dam on Lake Etang de Lindrew, 25 miles northeast of Nancy, and by noon today the waters of the Seille river had spread out for miles across enemy communications lines fronting the 3d army.

Thunderbolt and Lightning fighter-bombers of the United States 9th air force operated in strength from Aachen down the Rhine valley yesterday. One Tunderbolt group was flying over the Ruhr in three waves when it met a formation of about 70 Focke-Wolfes. The top wave of Thunderbolts attacked, and the enemy dived directly into the path of the two other Thunderbolt formations below. The group shot down 21 German fighters and damaged 13, with a loss of two Thunderbolts.

FOUND DEAD; GAS ON.

Peter Hansen, 64, retired Sears, Roebuck & Co. employe, was found dead in the gas filled kitchen of his apartment, 4940 Barry av., yesterday. Neighbors said he had been in ill health.

BRITISH FLEET BEGINS SHIFT TO PACIFIC OCEAN

Navy Chief Reveals Transfer of Ships.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The British already have begun to transfer their sea power to the Pacific in the first stages of a movement which will place a fleet in the Pacific capable in itself of fighting a general action with the Japanese navy, First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander asserted today in a speech at Bromley, Kent.

During the last few weeks he revealed, British submarines on patrol in far eastern waters, had sunk one Japanese cruiser, five large supply ships, nine small supply ships, 60 small supply craft and naval auxiliary vessels.

In addition a 7,000 ton Jap aircraft carrier had been hit by a torpedo and believed sunk while another Jap cruiser also had been torpedoed.

"Largest Convoy of All Time."

At the same time Alexander disclosed that a convoy consisting of 167 ships loaded with more than a million tons of cargo, which he described as the "largest ocean supply convoy of all times," had crossed the Atlantic from America and arrived safely in a British port. The convoy, which took 17 days to make the crossing, was said to be so long that it took an escort vessel five hours traveling at full speed to go up and down the lanes. The ships were spread over almost 26 square miles.

U-Boats Reappear.

"When it is possible for such a mighty fleet carrying the sinews and supplies of war to cross the Atlantic in complete safety," Alexander said, "I think you will realize that we do not generally fear any attempt which the enemy may make to return in strength to that gray battleground across which more than 350,000,000 tons of shipping have been convoyed since the outbreak of the war."

He revealed that U-boats again had appeared in some of the shipping lanes. These U-boats, he said, are perhaps more shy and cautious and nervous than were their predecessors which fought out "that earlier grim and bloody battle of the Atlantic."

BRITISH PATROLS NEAR TOWN OF LAMIA, 95 MILES FROM ATHENS

ROME, Oct. 21 (AP).—British aircraft from Greek airfields are harassing Nazis fleeing northward thru Greece and British land patrols are approaching Lamia, 95 miles northwest of Athens, allied headquarters said today. The Germans are believed to have withdrawn from the town.

Allied war planes from Italy joined the Greek-based craft in pummeling the Germans along the escape route thru Yugoslavia. Unloading of allied troops and supplies for Greek civilians continued at Piraeus and other ports.

The harbor of Naples, wrecked when allied troops entered the city on Oct. 3, 1943, was converted in three months to handle "a daily average of cargo which, from the point of view of volume, made it the greatest port in the world," the allied naval command announced. So far this year 3,700 merchant ships have sailed from Naples.

TELLS HOW LAST 800 OF AACHEN'S NAZIS GAVE UP

Dapper Leader Sobs in Prisoner Cage.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN AACHEN, Oct. 21.—Organized resistance by the German garrison in Aachen ended at noon today with the unconditional surrender of the commander and 800 of his troops.

Fighting night and day thruout the last eight days American infantry men had driven the enemy troops into pockets in the wrecked town's western outskirts from which there was no escape for the men who had been ordered by Hitler to fight to the bitter end.

The white flag of surrender was hung outside the command post of Col. Gerhardt Wilck—a bunker upon which Capt. Seth Botts, a native of Sharpsburg, Ky., was preparing to launch an attack.

300 Men Come Out.

Wilck, a slender, grim faced German, wore polished boots and a dress uniform. Behind him came 300 of his men, their boots also polished and their uniforms apparently freshly brushed. They marched with crisp precision under the orders of their officers to the street in front of Corley's headquarters where an American brigadier general awaited the Nazi commander.

Wilck wrote out one surrender note but the silvery haired American general eyed it coldly and shook his head. Thru an interpreter he told the German commander he had neglected to use that one word, unconditional, and suggested he write another.

After pondering briefly, Wilek picked up the pen and wrote a second surrender note which read:

"Aachen's defending garrison ran out of food and ammunition. I am forced to give up my command and surrender Aachen unconditionally with all its stores to the commanding officer of the victorious Americans."

Wilck explained that the only reason he hesitated was that he feared for the safety of his family in Germany. He said he had been a professional soldier for 28 years.

Leaving the American command post he was granted leave to speak to his troops. He climbed upon the hood of a jeep as his eight staff officers, all immaculately groomed, snapped the German prisoners to attention with a series of commands.

Forced to Surrender.

"Dear German soldiers—I am speaking to you at a painful moment," he said. "I was forced to surrender because we ran out of ammunition, food and water. I saw that further fighting was useless. I have acted against orders. I was supposed to fight to the last man.

"At this time I have to remind you that you are still German soldiers. Please behave as such. I also wish you the best of health in your future travels and a fast return to the fatherland after hostilities have ended. We must all return to Germany to help rebuild our country.

"I was refused by the Americans the authority to give a Sieg Heil or Heil Hitler. But we can still do it in our hearts."

After Wilck saluted and his men replied all were marched out to a detention point.

When he had been put inside the prisoner of war cage, Wilck's stern Prussian facade crumbled and he wept, his shoulders shaking with convulsive sobs.

Later other groups of Nazis climbed up from their bunkers, pillboxes and basement fortresses until there were approximately 800 trudging thru Aachen streets en route to the rear while a scattering of civilians stood along the sidewalks of their rubble littered town watching them go.

1st Amendment Invoked in Plea for Reversal.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21 [Special].—The Tribune company and Col. Robert R. McCormick today filed in the United States Supreme court their separate brief in the appeal of the Associated Press from the summary judgment of a New York federal court which on Oct. 6, 1943, held that the AP, its directors, and its member newspapers are in violation of the anti-trust laws.

The brief, filed by Col. McCormick as an AP director and as president of the Tribune company, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, an AP member, attacked the lower court's decision on three major lines:

1. That the court erred in holding the AP by-laws, under which new members are admitted, to be in violation of the anti-trust statute by reason of the limitations which they impose on membership.
2. That in enjoining the AP from enforcing its by-laws in their present form the court contravened its conclusions of law, and that the judgment is self contradictory.
3. That the judgment violates the 1st amendment to the Constitution of the United States and abridges the freedom of speech and of the press which the amendment is intended specifically to protect.

News Monopoly Original Issue.

The government's action against the AP was launched Aug. 28, 1942, after AP members at their annual meeting voted against granting membership in their news and picture agency to Marshall Field III. for his newspaper, the Chicago Sun. The department of justice, charging that the AP is a monopoly and is unreasonably restraining interstate commerce in news, asked for a court order to force the AP to make available its news reports and news picture services to any newspaper able to pay for them.

The three judge District court granted part of the relief which the government asked for, but based its action upon a finding that AP's by-law membership limitations are opposed to the "paramount public interest" in the full dissemination of news, hence are violative of the Sherman act.

The three judge District court granted the injunction, but based its action upon a finding that the AP's by-law membership limitations are opposed to the "paramount interest in the full dissemination of news," hence are violative of the Sherman act.

Access to News Unhindered.

The Tribune brief comments:

"The court below wholly rejected all charges that the AP is a monopoly or that the AP attempted to monopolize commerce. AP does not monopolize or dominate access to the original sources of news. It does not prevent or hinder nonmember newspapers from obtaining access to domestic or foreign happenings or events.

"AP does not monopolize or dominate the furnishing of news reports, news pictures, or features to newspapers in the United States. AP does not monopolize or dominate transmission facilities for the gathering or distribution of news reports, news pictures, or features.

"There is, therefore, no menace of monopoly in AP's structure or activities. There is no finding that the defendants have unduly or unreasonably restricted, hampered, impeded, or restrained competition.

"The court thus eliminated all questions of monopoly and improper competition, but nevertheless held that certain AP by-laws are unlawful because the court considered them inimical to the public interest."

By-Laws' Effect in Question.

The brief calls attention to the court's finding that only the by-laws imposing membership limitations are illegal in and of themselves and contends that if these by-laws are proved valid, the entire judgment must fall. In support of this the trial court is quoted:

"As we have said, the crucial by-laws of AP are those which deal with the admission of members, for the fate of the others [by-laws] which the plaintiff [government] challenges depends upon them."

In defense of the challenged by-laws, the Tribune brief cites 36 cases decided between 1864 and 1944 in which the courts have expressly held a seller's right to sell exclusively to a purchaser in a particular field is not a violation of the common law, the Sherman act, or the applicable state anti-trust statutes.

In addition, the brief cites 58 cases decided from 1868 to 1943 in which a seller's agreement to sell exclusively to a purchaser in a particular field has been in issue and in which the validity of the restraint was not questioned by the courts.

Law on Ancillary Restraints.

The tribunals deciding the cited cases include state courts, federal district courts, federal circuit courts of appeals in 25 states, and the United States Supreme court.

"In the absence of any question of monopolization or of a scheme to lessen competition," the brief continues, "a large producer of news reports, news pictures, and features may sell the same to its customers and ancillary thereto agree not to sell such services to any other person in the closely limited territory of the customer; or it may agree not to do so unless the customer consents. . . .

"This doctrine of ancillary restraints of trade at common law as incorporated into the Sherman act envisages the protection of the purchaser in the enjoyment or resale of that which he has purchased against the competition of the product for a reasonable length of time in his community.

"His enjoyment is assured by the agreement of the seller not to sell the product to others in that territory, or, which is the same, not to sell therein save with the purchaser's consent.

Legality Repeatedly Recognized.

"The reasonableness and hence the legality of such ancillary agreements as an overall enhancement of competition has been judicially recognized from the earliest common law to the present time; in the earliest Sherman act cases to the most recent ones; in legislative trends; in every species of industry. In no case have such ancillary restraints been outlawed—until this case."

After listing the categories of cases in which the ancillary or attendant agreement has been upheld, the brief adds:

"The agreements in these cases cover every kind of industry: those manufacturing or producing necessities such as food, clothing, heat, pharmaceuticals, agricultural machines, and building materials; industries manufacturing automobiles, their tires and parts, radios and phonographs, washing machines and refrigerators, and industries producing luxuries, such as candies, cosmetics, soft drinks, beer, and whisky. We have found no opposing cases."

Purpose of By-Laws Defined.

Reviewing the history of AP and its by-laws since 1900, the brief asserts the purpose of the by-laws has been and is now to further the objective of a coöperative association for the collection of news and for the sale of that news to its own members for publication.

Without the ancillary covenant the AP never would have been formed; without similar agreements the United Press, International News Service, and AP's other vigorous rivals in the news agency field never would have been able to produce and market their product, the brief states.

"The entire news industry," the argument continues, "is conducted on the sound principle that exclusivity is the heart and core of competition. . . . The evidence clearly shows that AP's restrictive covenants have resulted in an over-all enhancement of competition in the industry. By its very nature the restraint has prevented the AP from becoming the sole occupant or almost the sole occupant of the news agency field.

Gregory's 1915 Opinion Cited.

In support of the argument that AP and the other news agencies are not obligated to furnish their dispatches to every newspaper, The Tribune brief cites the opinion of Atty. Gen. Thomas Watt Gregory, who in 1915 specifically upheld AP by-laws on this point under the Sherman anti-trust act, the very act invoked against the AP now. And this was at a time when the AP was more nearly the sole occupant of the news agency field than it is today. Gregory wrote:

"Assuming that the kind of service in which the Associated Press is engaged is interstate commerce [a question not free from doubt], I am nevertheless of the opinion that it is no violation of the anti-trust act for a group of newspapers to form an association to collect and distribute news for their common benefit, and to that end agree to furnish the news collected by them only to each other or to the association, provided no attempt is made to prevent the members from purchasing or otherwise obtaining news from rival agencies. And if that is true, the corollary must also be true, namely, that newspapers desiring to form and maintain such an association may determine who shall be and who shall not be their associates."

Industry "Sailing Uncharted Sea."

Striking at the court's summary judgment, granted on the government's motion without a trial on the merits, the brief declares the court erred in holding that invalidation of the restricting by-laws would serve the "public interest" by aiding "the dissemination of news from as many different sources and with as many different facets and colors as possible."

To determine the soundness of such a conclusion, complete evidence of its effect on the various news agencies would be necessary, together with expert newspaper opinion, the brief says, adding that conflicting opinion evidence cannot be properly resolved on motion for summary judgment.

"The entire industry is sailing an uncharted sea under this judgment," the brief continues. "Contempt proceedings or new civil or criminal proceedings overhang every course of action. The enforcibility of contracts is doubtful. Such a basic change should be effected only under a comprehensive enactment after thoro legislative investigation; it should not be made by

MISS LYDA FRIEL.

To see the "Queen of New Caledonia" one need go no farther than Elgin. For she is Miss Lyda Friel, a war worker, who resides at 130 Tennyson ct., in that city.

She won the title when a soldier acquaintance from Chicago submitted her photograph in a "Queen of New Caledonia" pin-up competition conducted by the Yanks of the 8th general hospital group, most of them veterans of the invasion of Saipan, on that far-Pacific spot. Her picture was voted tops by the soldiers, who awarded her a war bond as a grand prize.

First Amendment Invoked in Plea for Reversal.

the courts in any event, and obviously not on motion for summary judgment when there can be no decision of the disputed issues."

"Practical Result" of Vagueness.

The court's contravention of the conclusions of law is found in its failure to apprise the AP what it may and may not do under the judgment, the brief asserts, then sums up:

"The net practical result of this vague language will be to force AP, under fear of citation for punishment for contempt, to accept into membership all applicants who can pay the assessments. Apparently the District court felt it was not empowered directly to transform AP wholly from a private calling into a public calling required to serve all on equal terms; else the District court simply would have done so. Yet in practice the judgment will have no other effect.

"It is to be noted that this judgment goes far beyond canceling agreements held to be in unreasonable restraint of trade. AP must solemnly pledge itself that hereafter in determining whether it will or will not serve an applicant it will not weigh the proscribed competitive considerations. Other corporate sellers of products, such as Colgates, Raymond company, and the Goodyear company, may or may not sell their product for any reason or for no reason, providing their determination is unfettered by contract; they may weigh competitive factors in making their single determination. . . .

Pledge Ends Contract Freedom.

"Even if the pledge were meant to be entirely unenforceable — in which case it has no place in the decree of a civil court—nevertheless the exaction of such a pledge deprives AP of its freedom of contract in violation of the due process clause of the 5th amendment."

The Tribune brief then takes up its contention that the judgment is in violation of the 1st amendment which gives constitutionally a "preferred position" to publishers and owners of newspapers, their industry being the only one mentioned in the Constitution of the United States. The Associated Press, as an indispensable agency of the newspaper press, also enjoys this specific protection, it is asserted.

The presence of issues involving the constitutional rights of the press is added reason that the matter should never have been decided summarily, the brief contends. Charging actual violation of the amendment it says:

"The judgment is also erroneous because it violates the 1st amendment: 'Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; . . .' This is a command not only to the legislative, but also to the executive and judicial branches of the federal government.

Jefferson's Words Recalled.

"All powers granted to the three branches of the federal government are curtailed by this limitation. We point out, as did Jefferson, that the 1st amendment guards 'in the same sentence and under the same words, the freedom of religion, of speech, and of the press; insomuch that whatever violates either, throws down the sanctuary which covers the others.'"

In support of its contention that the constitutional rights of the press are violated, the brief states that the judgment "requires the defendant to utter when they wish to remain mute," and continues:

"Whether or not the net practical result of the judgment is to force the AP to serve all equally, as we believe, it is beyond dispute that the judgment was intended to require and will require the AP to serve many applicants whom it wishes not to serve. . . .

Coerced Publication Illegal.

"Coercing any one to speak or publish when he wishes to remain mute violates the 1st amendment; for the right to remain silent is as sacred as the right to speak [citing many cases in proof of this point].

"Compelling AP to utter its dispatches to applicants to whom it wishes not to utter them can only be justified if there is a grave and immediate danger of injuries to interests which the state may lawfully protect [again citing authority]. There must be more than 'a rational basis' for the exercise of the compulsion; it must be essential to the 'maintenance of effective government and orderly society'; there must be clear and present danger to 'society as a whole,' and the danger must be 'grave and pressingly imminent.' No such 'clear and present danger' is revealed in this record.

"What 'clear and present dangers' to the state or to our institutions are so 'grave and pressingly imminent' that these defendants must be compelled to speak when they would remain silent?

"Public 'Illumination' Greater."

"Since 1900 the failure of the AP to speak to all has resulted in the healthy growth of other news agencies and of free competition among newspapers. No newspaper has ceased publication, no potential publisher has failed to publish because of AP's activities, no dangers have arisen since Atty. Gen. Gregory's opinion in 1915. . . . No threat to our institutions has appeared in the scene since both houses of congress received the presentment of The New York Sun on Feb. 4, 1914, and nevertheless took no legislative action respecting news agencies.

"The quantum of competition, actual and potential, is greater now than then. Public 'illumination' is greater now than then. New methods of covering news events and of communicating dispatches have grown up. The public enjoys a new instrumentality of full illumination—the radio. The only new factor is the advent of the Chicago Sun."

Agencies Essential to Press.

The brief calls attention to the District court's findings of fact which hold that news agencies are essential instrumentalities of the press, without which no modern newspaper can exist. This was set forth also in the government complaint.

"The collection of news by these essential instrumentalities is protected by the 5th amendment, just as the circulation of newspapers is protected thereby, and advertising," the argument sums up. "Even if 'the mere fact that a person is engaged in publication does not exempt him from the municipal law,' it nevertheless exempts him from discriminatory interpretation of the law.

"It is discriminatory to deny to news agencies, and to news agencies only, the right to sell their product under an ancillary restraint that it will not be sold to another purchaser in the same community for a limited space of time [absent monopoly, monopolization, or unreasonable restraint of competition].

1st Amendment a "Mandate."

"The 1st amendment was intended to bar every branch of the federal government from encroachments on a free press. It was intended as a shield against governmental encroachments. It was intended to shield the free, private, commercial press, to shield it against the power over interstate commerce granted to the federal government.

"The free press was to be in a 'preferred position' in respect of governmental regulations. Here the prohibition against governmental infringement becomes a mandate for governmental interference. The only industry mentioned in the Constitution, the industry elevated to a 'preferred position' has now become by court decree the only industry abridged in its right to sell its product on the normal, customary, universal, ancillary restraints. The free press has been ordered what to publish and directed to whom to publish it."

The government will file an answer to the Tribune brief by Nov. 6 and THE TRIBUNE may reply to that by the week of Nov. 13. The Associated Press also is filing a brief as are all directors and their newspapers singled out by the government's action. The brief of the Tribune company and Col. McCormick was prepared by the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin & Ellis.

TRIBUNE WRITER WILL DESCRIBE WAR OVER RADIO

An account of his experiences from "D-day to Germany" will be given over W-G-N from 12:15 to 12:45 p. m. tomorrow by John Thompson, CHICAGO TRIBUNE war correspondent.

Thompson, now on several weeks leave in Chicago from his duties at the front, will give a first hand account of the American drive thru France from the landings in Normandy, and subsequent experiences with the 1st army as it slashed across France, thru Belgium, including the battle of Mons, then across the border, and thru the Siegfried forts.

Thompson at the time of the allied landings in North Africa became the world's first parachute reporter. He has been reporting the war against the Nazis ever since.

FRENCH, BELGIAN PLANTS TURN OUT WORK FOR ALLIES

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Oct. 21 (AP).—French and Belgian industries already are working for the allied armies, Brig. Gen. John K. Christmas of the army ordnance organization at Detroit, Mich., said today. Christmas, here on an inspection trip, said the factories were overhauling and rebuilding tank and other engines and turning out small mechanical products. The Germans, he added, more and more are adapting their vehicles to use of gasogene, a gas generated from wood and charcoal. Gasogene usually gives engines only 60 per cent of the efficiency of gasoline.

WORLD FREEDOM OF PRESS URGED AS KEY TO PEACE

Need for Knowledge Told to Editors by Cooper.

Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, yesterday urged that the world seek a way of living peacefully by trying the very method which communities have found valuable—allowing peoples to know one another thru free interchange of news and information.

Cooper asserted the future is too terrible to contemplate if nations continue to breed war by defaming one another thru a government controled or influenced press. He spoke before the National Editorial association and the Newspaper Advertising service in the Morrison hotel.

The advisory council adopted a resolution expressing its "profound appreciation of the great crusade waged" by Cooper "for the right of all men to get, send, and publish the news." The resolution expressed hope for "a sustained effort" toward an international compact for press freedom.

Communications Misuse Told.

"Peace can be attained only by short-circuiting self-seeking, predatory governments thru letting the people of each nation really know the peoples of other nations thru the medium of a world-wide free press and freedom of international news exchange," Cooper said.

He asserted that if governments would only stand aside, and adopt a beneficent attitude toward the idea of an untrammeled press, the principle of community interest and understanding could become ultimately an international factor. "Then," he added, "you will need neither pact nor military power to enforce friendly relations in international society."

The peoples of most nations never have had adequate means of knowing the peoples of other nations, the speaker explained.

"Right up until this war," he added, "most of the principal news agencies outside the United States were controlled by or were subservient to their governments, and what they reported as news, and what they did not report reflected that fact."

Own Early Efforts Related.

It was during the first World war, Cooper recalled, that he concluded there could be no durable peace unless the channels of international news and information were opened wide. He tried, but failed, he related, to interest the Versailles conference in a guaranty of press freedom.

Later he did what he could on a smaller scale, he said, by instructing Associated Press foreign bureau to report human interest stories about people of low as well as of high estate in an effort to make the world better known to America.

Among the encouraging auguries, Cooper declared, are the fact the Reuters, the great British news agency, has heartily embraced the principle of international news freedom and that the American state department, according to indications, has prepared a statement of national policy on the subject.

Too Tired to Smile

Gary Sneahan, Tribune staff artist, today begins a new series of sketches of men who took part in the battle for Brest, France. The first portraits appear above. All are men of the 2d division.

"Some one asked me why they are never smiling," Sheahan said. "Most of them were too tired to smile much and battle fatigue is visible in most of their faces."

U. S. PUTS 330,000 OCD HELMETS UP FOR PUBLIC SALE

Remember how covetous you were two years ago when your block air raid warden—just another guy like yourself—appeared with a glistening, white enameled, steel helmet?

Well, get set. You now can have one of your own. The treasury's office of surplus property announced yesterday that the office of civilian defense has 330,000 helmets left over and the government is eager to sell them. Prospective buyers may view the helmets at the OSP's regional office, 222 W. North Bank dr., or at 10 other regional offices thruout the nation. They are packed 10 to a carton and not less than a carton will be sold.

No need to worry about getting one of the surplus helmets to fit. The head bands are adjustable. And there is a smart, adjustable chin strap, too.

BRITISH ADVANCE 20 MILES, TAKE TOWN IN BURMA

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ. Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 21 (AP).—British forces have occupied Haka, a district center in the southern Chin hills region of western Burma, in a 20 mile advance over rugged country, a southeast Asia bulletin disclosed today.

Haka is 50 miles south of Tiddim, whose capture was announced two days previously, making the gain one of the most rapid of the prolonged Burma campaign. It is 20 miles below Falam, administrative center, capture of which was announced yesterday.

Japanese forces were declared to be withdrawing eastward. On the road directly eastward from Tiddim the British 5th Indian division was reported making progress toward Fort White, 15 miles distant over the crest of the Letha range of hills.

ALSACE SKYLINE 2 MILES AWAY AS FRENCH DRIVE ON

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

To the southeast is the Oderon pass, which leads into the bountiful Alsatian valley—place of sunlight, vineyards, wheat fields—so different from the rocky, forested terrain where the allies now fight thru rain and mist.

German and French guns are in a continual contest this afternoon, their salvos reverberating thru the hills and the torrents of sound bring back memories of the mountain duels in Tunisia and Italy.

Civilians Leave Towns.

The road between Cornimont and Saulxures, and then farther westward, is crowded with French civilians evacuating the two towns. Adults and youths are loaded down with personal effects and push carts containing heavier household furnishings. They move between rows of oncoming tanks and files of infantry.

Youngsters race merrily along calling out to the soldiers and grabbing for bonbons and biscuits. It is a lark for the little French boys and girls but their parents trudge along cheerlessly.

Cornimont has taken a heavy pounding. Firs it was the French artillery which had to level the town to drive out the Germans and now enemy canoneers are sending in their big shells. Nearly every building has been hit and the streets are heaped with rubble.

Watches Shelling.

Saulxures has not taken as much of a beating. Civilians remaining there say they are being shelled only once or twice a day. There was one of those "once or twice a day" affairs today. The nuns in a convent a few hundred yards from a beautiful church dashed out and gathered up their little girl charges, then hurried with them into the comparative safety of a cellar. As the shelling intensified my driver, Pvt. Ray W. Owens of Battle Creek, Mich., and I, took refuge behind a stone wall.

The shelling let up in 15 minutes and the citizens came out into the open again. The little girls frolicked again near the road. The nuns resumed their work.

More Homes Damaged.

There were fresh shell holes in the streets. A few more houses were without walls and roofs. More of the stained glass windows in the church were shattered. There were some dead and wounded. There were some families hastily packing their belongings to join the trek westward.

The drive in the Cornimont sector by the French army in the last week has been an important one, for it has been a phase of a flanking movement above Le Thilot and Belfort. It has been accomplished against bitter resistance and counter-attacks. Farther north the American push thru Bruyeres was achieved against the same scale of opposition. It also represents a notable advance.

PLANES SHOW HOW TO SNATCH GLIDERS FROM BATTLEFIELD

AN ADVANCED U. S. TROOP CARRIER FORCES BASE IN HOLLAND, Oct. 21 (AP).—An army transport swooped over a sugar beet field today and successfully used a new pickup apparatus to snatch from the sodden earth one of the gliders which carried troops for the air borne invasion of Holland.

The demonstration was part of the return home of the first of the many gliders salvaged from battlefields after the invasion.

Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, United States troop carrier forces chief, and Col. Franklin F. Henley of Eastman, Ga., commander of the troop carrier force's service wing, saw a flight of 36 big C-47s take off from this mud-lined air strip and head into the low hanging clouds with the gliders in tow.

The setting for the flying pickup from the beet field resembled one end of a football field. Nylon tow ropes were looped between two uprights similar to goal posts.

A C-47 piloted by Capt. E. L. Stone of Gorman, Tex., with a special underbelly tow mechanism flew down a few feet above the waiting glider, piloted by Flight Officer Don C. Stevens, a former Hollywood, Cal., stunt flyer. The tow rope snapped the nylon hawser and pulled the glider into the air.

OUSTED REGENT OF HUNGARY IN REICH, SAY NAZIS

Radio Declares Horthy Asked for Refuge.

LONDON, Oct. 21 (AP).—The Germans announced tonight that Adm. Nicholas Horthy, who as regent of Hungary tried to pull that Nazi satellite out of the war, had sought and been granted refuge in Germany.

A broadcast by the German Transocean agency said that Horthy, after the failure of his armistice move last Sunday as a result of a coup by Hungarian Nazis with the German aid, "signed his abdication and resigned all privileges as regent," and then informed the German minister in Budapest that he "would like to take up residence in Germany."

Family Goes with Him.

The Germans said he and his family were sent to Germany in a special plane.

The German broadcast did not explain why he would have chosen Germany as a refuge after starting in his broadcast petition for an armistice with the allies that "it is obvious to any sober minded person that Germany has lost the war."

The Moscow radio broadcast a report from Stockholm, Sweden, that an attempt had been made to kill Ferenc Szalasi, pro-Nazi Hungarian premier who supplanted Adm. Horthy.

The Sunday Chronicle, in a dispatch from its correspondents at Bucharest, Romania, said Heinrich Himmler, Nazi Gestapo chief, had been reported assassinated while driving in Budapest, Hungary. The report lacked confirmation.

Revolt, Reds Tell Vienna.

New York, Oct. 21.—The Moscow radio in a broadcast to the people of Vienna, Austria, urged the population of the city to rise against the Germans or face the fate of the people of Aachen, the German city wrecked and captured by American troops, the British Broadcasting corporation said today.

KING HAILS REDS ON CAPTURE OF SERB CAPITAL

LONDON, Oct. 21 (AP). — Young King Peter of Yugoslavia congratulated the Red army and the forces of Marshal Tito today on the capture of Belgrade.

In a speech addressed to the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, broadcast to Yugoslavia, the king predicted the reappearance of a "new, free, democratic, and federal Yugoslavia" in the near future.

"I am inspired by the deepest gratitude," he said, "to the heroic national liberation army and to Marshal Tito, to the fraternal Red army and their great Marshal Stalin, and by reverence for all the heroes and victims who have fallen for our common freedom."

HANGS SELF IN GARAGE.

Theodore F. Marckhoff, 54, hanged himself yesterday in his garage at 456 E. Chicago st., Elgin. A coroner's jury later attributed the suicide to despondency over ill health.

ROMANIA PUZZLED BY ABSENCE OF U. S. ARMISTICE BOARD

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Oct. 20 [Delayed].—The American section of the armistice control commission in Romania has become one of the leading topics of conversation here by reason of its failure to appear on the scene.

The British have been here in strength for the last two weeks. The Russians arrived a few days earlier. Ever since then the first question Americans are asked on all sides is: "When is the American section of the commission arriving and what is delaying it?" They have to reply truthfully that nobody seems to know the answer and Romania being Romania, that answer is usually taken as a cautious effort to cover up something darkly mysterious.

All American authorities here profess complete and genuine ignorance of the reason why the American commission has not arrived.

BRITISH ARMY PAPERS FAIL TO CREDIT YANKS

It's the 'Allies' Who Invade Philippines.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 5TH ARMY in Italy, Oct. 21.—The propaganda campaign launched by Prime Minister Churchill's government with the apparent aim of convincing the world that United Kingdom troops are doing most of the fighting and winning most of the allied victories in this global war, seems to have gained a firm foothold in Italy in the last few weeks. This was evidenced by the manner in which two British newspapers in Italy dealt yesterday with the first news of MacArthur's invasion of the Philippines.

Despite the obvious military importance of this latest American landing in the Pacific, the 8th Army News gave the banner line to the new soviet drive in Czechoslovakia. The Philippine story and the fall of Tiddim, in Burma, were written together in one story and received eight paragraphs under a two column headline in the upper right hand corner of the front page. The headline read: "As Tiddim Is Ours Japs Say Allies in Philippines."

It's an "Allied" Invasion.

The first three paragraphs of the story said:

"As the southeast Asia command communique told of the fall of Tiddim to troops of the 14th army, the Japanese radio reported that the allied invasion of the Philippines had started and that landings were in progress at several points.

"So far there is no official confirmation of this from allied sources. The announcement said the landings, which were on a large scale, began Tuesday on Suluan Island in the central Philippines.

"A later report said an allied fleet of warships and transports had penetrated Leyte gulf and that coastal areas were under intense naval and air bombardment."

Nowhere in the story was there a mention of American forces. The term "allied forces" was used thruout.

Marines Are Allies, Too.

American Beer Mentioned.

The only story which mentioned Americans is a short on the third page stating that Maj. Gen. Alfred Knox took the floor in the house of commons to request the secretary of state for air to inquire into the supply of beer to British units in Italy because he had learned the Americans get six bottles each weekly, while the men in the royal air force do not get more than half a bottle a week.

The newspaper "Union Jack" has no mention at all of the Philippines landing on the front page, giving a two line banner to the soviet drive in Czechoslovakia, and the other stories are on the forming of a German home guard, the Canadian drive over the Pisciatello river, the 2d army push on Venray, the fall of Tiddim, and a discussion of British army pay.

One Paragraph to Philippines.

On the back page of the paper is a double banner line reading:

"War Against Japan Stepped Up. Tiddim Falls. Tokyo Says Philippines Invaded." The first six paragraphs of the story concern Tiddim. The seventh describes the "allied" attack on Nicobar in the Cocoanut Islands. The eighth paragraph deals with the Philippine landings as follows:

"Tokyo also said that allied forces had, since Tuesday, been landing on Suluan Island in the central Philippines. Allied naval units, it was added, had penetrated Leyte gulf and were shelling the coastal areas."

Such treatment of news of American fighting forces is the rule for both newspapers, which circulate among allied forces in Italy. But it is not the system employed by the newspaper "Stars and Stripes," United States army newspaper, written and printed in London, Paris, Oran, Naples, and Rome.

Yanks Give Proper Credit.

"Ever since we started Stars and Stripes we have tried to lean over backwards in giving credit to whatever forces actually accomplished a mission," said a staff sergeant who formerly was managing editor of the Naples edition.

NEW FREEDOM MOVE STARTED BY TEDDY WEBB

Robert [Teddy] Webb, Chicago's pioneer auto bandit, yesterday started another attempt to obtain his release from Joliet penitentiary. In a petition for a writ of mandamus filed in Circuit court he asked that the state division of correction be directed to release him from prison on the ground that he has been deprived of his liberty without due process of law. Members of the parole board and Prison Warden Joseph E. Ragen were named as defendants. Webb is serving a life term for the slaying of a police sergeant in 1913.

THEFT OF 50,000 GALLONS IN GAS COUPONS JAILS 7

Police held seven persons last night in connection with the sale of stolen ration coupons representing 50,000 gallons of gasoline.

The coupons were stolen from an express shipment to office of price administration headquarters here from Mount Pleasant, Ia., by three employes of the American Railway Express company at a dock at Roosevelt rd. and Canal st. They are Morton Chester, 21, of 3518 W. 18th st.; Gus Vanos, 17, of 3807 N. Ashland av., and Carl Hovagimian, 18, of 3718 N. Ashland av. Police said all have admitted their complicity.

5,000 of Them Buried.

Five thousand of the 15,720 C, B, T, R, and coupons taken, good for five gallons each, were burned because they were outdated, the trio said. Vanos and Hovagimian divided the remaining coupons and were to give Chester $300 for his share. He never received the money.

Vanos said he sold his half of the coupons to Milo Jackson, 40, proprietor of a filling station at 3800 N. Ashland av., for $3,650. Hovagimian said he sold his to Matt Blau, 43, proprietor of a filling station at 4116 N. Clark st., for $3,000. Both Jackson and Blau are held.

Bought a New Car.

Vanos bought a new car and a quantity of new clothes with the proceeds from his coupons, and turned the rest of the money over to his father, James Vanos. Hovagimian turned all the money he received over to his father, Hovagin Hovagimian. Police arrested both fathers.

,OPA officials said all seven will appear before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker tomorrow. They said it will be possible to recover part of the coupons,

KELLY 'HUSH-HUSH' ON CHICAGO CRIME DEFIED BY DEMPSEY

Mayor Kelly and his political machine were defied last night by John T. Dempsey, Republican nominee for state's attorney, and Albert E. Jenner, chairman of a lawyers' committee sponsoring Dempsey's candidacy.

Jenner said Mayor Kelly has a strangle hold on local government which is without parallel in the history of Chicago. To protect his vast power, he personally picked a "stand-in" to oppose Dempsey, said Jenner. He is a former secretary of the Chicago Bar association, which indorsed Dempsey.

"The Kelly machine is anxious that the shame it has brought on Chicago be unmentioned," said Dempsey in a radio talk. "Kelly's machine would have us act as ostriches and pretend we do not see what is going on about us.

"But I will continue to speak truthfully and fearlessly about the costly effect of the Kelly machine on our schools, our courts, and our local government. Crime in Chicago is a subject they would rather we hush-hush."

DELAY IN MAILS MAY COST MANY SOLDIER VOTES

Ballots Fail to Catch Up with Men on Move.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Unless APO mailmen perform miracles, many officers and soldiers from Illinois, Wisconsin, New York and other states will be deprived of their votes in the forthcoming Presidential election. Between 35 and 40 per cent of the American soldiers in the Seine basin sector have voted so far. According to Maj. W. G. Greer Jr., of Utica, N. Y., less than one eighth of those who have voted did so on the federal ballot outlawed by 28 of the states but recognized as legal in the other 20.

Greer qualified his estimate of the percentage who have voted so far by adding that this was only a rough guess as there is no official record of those not using the federal ballot. State ballots are addressed to individuals, filled out by them in private, their oath attested by any company sergeant. Then they are just mailed back.

Men on Move Miss Mail.

At one of the army's largest base hospitals commanded by a New Yorker but in which there are many Chicago and Illinois doctors, few so far have received their state ballot because the unit has been on the move ever since Cherbourg and the mail just hasn't caught up with them yet.

There have been cases where the federal ballots have been handed to soldiers from states where this ballot is invalid. A first lieutenant was called up on the carpet before Greer for this very thing today.

The Tribune representative today visited a hospital evacuation unit commanded by Capt. Frank A. Reker of 8131 Vernon av., Chicago. Voting was going on when he arrived. In the voting tent big posters announced the serious penalties for officers attempting to coerce or influence the soldier vote. The voting was done privately. After the ballot is sealed the oath is attested and the sealed ballot is posted back to the United States.

Elmhurst Soldier's Report.

Lt. George C. Brown of Royal Oak, Mich., platoon commander of an ordnance recovery unit composed mostly of Illinois and Wisconsin men, met in an army publication office, said that despite the fact his unit has been on the move continuously from Cherbourg to the vicinity of Metz, 95 per cent already have voted. "The voting officer had one hell of a time chasing them down to give them ballots," he said.

Warrant Officer William B. Martin of Elmhurst, Ill., who is with one of the army units, said about all those eligible to vote in his outfit have done so.

"We have lots of kids who are hardly more than 18 years old, however, and they are fussing at not being allowed to vote. They say 'If we are old enough to fight for our country we ought to be allowed to vote.'"

WILLKIE PLEDGE TO OPPOSE F. D. R. TOLD BY FRIENDS

His Stand Is Disclosed by Gov. Baldwin.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 21 (AP).—Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut said today Wendell Willkie told him emphatically he would not support President Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Baldwin, a political ally and friend of Willkie, said in a statement he was with the 1940 G. O. P. Presidential nominee in New York when word reached them the Chicago convention had nominated Gov. Dewey. Baldwin said Willkie turned to him and said emphatically: "Well, you can rely on one thing. I will not support the President in his campaign for a fourth term."

Baldwin said he had kept Willkie's statement secret but had decided to make it public now "to defend the memory of a great man from political opportunists who seek to use his memory for political capital when he is no longer around to defend himself against misrepresentation."

Law Partner Quotes Him.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 21 (AP).—Carl M. Owen, New York law partner of the late Wendell Willkie, here on a business trip, was quoted by the Chronicle tonight as stating "I can say most emphatically that under no conditions would he have supported the Roosevelt administration" in the Nov. 7 election.

Owen was quoted as saying:

"He [Willkie] earnestly desired that Mr. Dewey should so supplement the Republican platform by explicit and unequivocal statement that there would be no doubt that Mr. Dewey was committed to those international policies to which Mr. Willkie was so ardently devoted. At the time of his death, I think he was still reserving judgment.

"It is my personal belief, based on my talks with him, that he would have found the statement made by Mr. Dewey in his Charleston, W. V., speech to have been sufficiently explicit and to have shown that Mr. Dewey and Mr. Willkie were in accord on international policies."

Mrs. Willkie "Distressed."

Rushville, Ind., Oct. 21 (AP).—Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie made a fervent appeal today that all conjecture be ended as to whether her husband would have supported Gov. Dewey or President Roosevelt.

"I am distressed," Mrs. Willkie said in a formal statement, "because many people are saying that they knew how Wendell Willkie intended to vote. No one could speak for him while he was living; and no one should attempt to speak for him now."

H. Fred Willkie, vice president of the Joseph E. Seagram and Sons Distilling company of Louisville, Ky., said within 24 hours after the death of his brother, that the former presidential candidate would have "come out in favor of Gov. Dewey."

Fred Willkie made his statement after Drew Pearson, Washington columnist, said that Wendell Willkie had told him he was inclined to favor President Roosevelt.

ERICSSON BREAKFAST THIS MORNING HONORS BARRETT AND BENSON

Atty. Gen. Barrett and State Sen. Arnold Benson, Republican nominee for secretary of state, will be guests of honor at the 50th annual herring breakfast of the John Ericsson Republican club of Cook county to be given at the Svithiod Singing club, 624 Wrightwood av., at 10:30 a. m. today.

Gov. Green, Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for senator, and John T. Dempsey, candidate for state's attorney, will be among the speakers on the program.

The breakfast is in keeping with an old Viking tradition that a herring breakfast be held each time the Viking warriors prepared to leave for the wars and was symbolic of the certain victory to follow.

LYONS RIDICULES F. D. R. 'BOGEYS' ON U. S. FUTURE

Fear of the future is part of the Roosevelt fourth term psychology, Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for senator, charged last night in a radio forum program broadcast by station W-G-N.

"None of us need fear for the future," Lyons reassured four women appearing with him on the program. "That is more Roosevelt psychology. He attempts to make us afraid of the very processes that have made America great.

"He frightens the timid with our great American industry which has built the very weapons that fight this war," Lyons continued. "He tries to turn racial and national groups within this country against one another. Any school child can tell you that the blending of these many foreign elements has been one of our country's greatest achievements.

Failure to Gain Cited.

"But, worst of all, he attempts to scare us into thinking that one man and one man only can be chief executive of this country. America pointed out to George III. that even a king isn't indispensable when he rules against the interest of the people. The hopeless decade under Roosevelt was the only period in which we failed to move ahead. With Dewey, America will again have hope in the hearts of the people."

With Lyons on the program were Mrs. Louise W. Jackson of 4163 South Park way, Mrs. Veronica Ambrozewski of 3426 N. Harding av., Mrs. Lillina Weinstein of 5602 Maryland av., and Miss Vivian Rankin of 4063 N. Keystone av. Lyons answered questions previously put to him by the four women.

Answering Mrs. Weinstein on involvement in future wars, Lyons declared that "our first concern must be the protection of America."

Pledges to Guard America.

"We must make ourselves strong and keep ourselves strong," he added. "We must have bases in the Atlantic and Pacific to prevent sneak attacks on our shores. Can we get that kind of protection out of a back room in Teheran?

"Dare we trust the making of such a treaty to the men who shipped oil and scrap iron to Japan, and then failed to warn Pearl Harbor against the weapons they had placed in the Japs' hands?

"The peace treaty must be made and can only be made, under our Constitution, with the consent of the senate. As your senator, I will devote every fiber of my body to seeing that we get a treaty negotiated by Americans to protect America."

SURVEY GIVES BIG DOWNSTATE LEAD TO DEWEY

Find His Margin Will Pass That of 1940.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Republican claims of a powerful and solid victory trend in downstate Illinois are sustained with only occasional modifications in a survey made by regular correspondents of THE TRIBUNE. They reside in the areas covered by their reports.

Given written instructions requesting unbiased opinion based upon the best information available, judged by their own experience, the correspondents' reports combined to produce these conclusions:

1. The downstate vote will be the largest ever cast there.

Dewey Margin to Beat Willkie's.

2. Dewey will carry downstate by a much greater margin than Willkie, who had 127,000 advantage there, with 73 out of 101 counties giving him an edge. The Presidential candidate should run neck and neck with the state ticket instead of trailing, as Willkie did in 1940.

Excerpts from the correspondents' reports follow:

NORTHERN SECTION.

GALESBURG: "In 1944 Knox county is more Republican than usual. Republicans are gaining because farmers and business men are alarmed over New Deal regimentation, and because white collar workers are irritated over difficulty in meeting higher living costs on salaries the New Deal has kept at old levels. CIO activity is slight. Indications are that the Republicans will come close to doubling their 1940 majorities of 5,000 for President and 6,000 for governor."

Under CIO-PAC Pressure.

ROCKFORD: "With a record vote anticipated, the recent Republican trend in Winnebago county may be disturbed somewhat by the large number of voters employed in industrial and war plants where they admittedly have been subjected to pressure of the CIO political action committee. Sen. Brooks had a majority of 23,057 in 1942."

PEORIA: "With possibly one or two exceptions the Republican ticket should carry Peoria county. Four years ago Roosevelt had a majority of 7,000 but Dewey may get a slight edge. The CIO leaders have been extremely active unloading propaganda onto workers at the big Caterpillar and LeTourneau plants as well as others where war work is being carried on. Workers, at least a good portion of them, seem to resent being delivered by their leaders, however, and there is little doubt that many will vote Republican."

DIXON: "Relative strength is now Republican in Lee county, 2 to 1. Democrats have gained, with Green River ordnance plant [5,000 employes] no doubt a large factor."

Good-sized Majorities.

FREEPORT: "For the counties of Jo Daviess, Stephenson, Carroll, Lee, Ogle, and Whiteside, it can be safely predicted all will give the usual good-sized majorities to the Republican candidates."

MOLINE: "In 1940 Roosevelt had nearly 10,000 majority over Willkie. With factories still paying high wages in Rock Island county it doesn't appear he has lost much strength. The CIO has been particularly active. Most of the 10,000 new people registered Oct. 10 were factory workers from farther south."

WOODSTOCK: "There seems to be little question but what McHenry county will go Republican for the entire ticket by 11,000 margin and upwards. Willkie had a 10,000 lead in 1940. Democratic sentiment is at low ebb."

OTTAWA: "Safely Republican, with G. O. P. conducting an active campaign while there is little activity in La Salle county among the Democrats."

KANKAKEE: "Political observers here are confident that Republicans will sweep Kankakee county by the largest majorities of recent years. A poll showed G. O. P. strength upward of 70 per cent, compared with 52 per cent for Willkie in 1940."

CENTRAL SECTION.

SPRINGFIELD: "Sangamon county is expected to give Republicans a more comfortable majority in all races than in recent elections. Surveys have shown that labor will not be as strong for Roosevelt as in previous campaigns."

MACOMB: "The Republican party, which polled 68 per cent in 1942 in McDonough county, will make an important additional gain Nov. 7. In Warren, Henderson, and Mercer counties the political situation is comparable. In Hancock county, which was traditionally Democratic until reaction against the New Deal began, Republicans will increase their margin of strength."

Democrat Strength Wanes.

BEARDSTOWN: "A substantially reduced majority is being forecast for this normally Democratic county [Cass], birthplace of Sen. Lucas."

DANVILLE: "There has been a decided Republican trend in recent weeks. Vermillion county should have a heavier G. O. P. vote than in 1940, when Willkie carried it by 208 votes."

MATTOON: "This year Republicans apparently will carry Coles county, with a larger majority than 1940. Generally similar results are expected in other counties in this area."

DECATUR: "Macon county appears to be returning to Republican column after nearly solid Democratic support for 10 years."

G. O. P. Lead May Grow.

BLOOMINGTON: "Nonpartisan observers believe that 1944 will see an even more appreciable advantage for the G. O. P., which has always had a big lead in McLean, Ford, Mason, Tazewell, Logan, Livingston, Dewitt, Woodford, Menard, and Marshall counties."

CHAMPAIGN: "Republicans are apparently gaining ground daily because of Dewey's speeches and the desire for a change. At the present time the ratio is placed at 60 per cent Republican. Dewey will double Willkie's plurality of 2,700."

SOUTHERN SECTION.

EAST ST. LOUIS: "For the first time since 1930 Republicans have a fighting chance to take every office, from coroner up to St. Clair county majorities for President."

Dewey Gains Every Week.

CARMI: "In eastern 'Egypt' the G. O. P. is still riding the victory tide which set in four years ago. Even in acknowledged Democratic counties in the 23d and 24th congressional districts Dewey is making gains every week."

MURPHYSBORO: "Republicans will poll 60 per cent in Jackson, Perry, Randolph, and Williamson counties."

OLNEY: "This area of northeast 'Egypt,' normally Democratic, is emphatically far more Republican than it was in the 1942 G. O. P. landslide."

CENTRALIA: "A Bricker rally and torchlight parade which attracted nearly 25,000 people here, and on-the-surface inactivity of Democrats lead many observers to believe that a Republican victory in the 23d congressional district is assured, barring unforeseen developments."

ALTON: "Madison county, which has been Democratic since 1930, is claimed by the New Dealers but observers predict a close vote. A heavy union vote in Alton, Wood River, Granite City, Madison, and Venice, is counted on by the Democrats."

SANITARY BOARD WITHOUT PLANS —BLUMENTHAL

Louis N. Blumenthal, Republican nominee for sanitary district trustee, charged last night the present sanitary board, completely Democratic, "not only has failed to make post-war plans for Chicago's sanitation, but is groping along without pre-war plans, post-war plans, or any other kind of long range plans, past, present, or future."

Speaking at a business and professional men's dinner in the Sovereign hotel, 6200 Kenmore av., Blumenthal declared that "all we find are schemes for adding the politically faithful to the district pay roll."

"We look in vain," he continued, "for any basic understanding of the long range needs of this great community, for orderly development of the intercepting sewer system, sewage treatment and other sanitation measures to protect the health of Chicago's families."

ISLAND DEFENSE IS CURTAILED BY CAPITAL ORDERS

Whole Course of War Affected by Errors.

JOHN T. FLYNN WELL KNOWN FOR YEARS AS WRITER, OBSERVER

John T. Flynn has been well known for years as an economist, author, lecturer, newspaper man, magazine writer, and competent observer of congress. Among his widely read books are "Country Squire in the White House," "Men of Wealth," and, recently, "Meet Your Congress."

Flynn formerly was city editor of the New York Globe, was at times a magazine editor and columnist, and for more than 20 years has been a magazine writer. Of particular note have been his financial writings. A biography of John D. Rockefeller entitled "God's Gold" is one of his books.

Before America entered the war, Flynn was a leader of organizations combating hysteria propaganda. He has been an advisor to senate committees on banking, currency, and munitions. In New York, where he lives, he is a member of the board of higher education.

United States was earnestly striving for peace.

Reported Warnings Given.

3. That in ample time, when peace hopes faded, the state department warned the war and navy departments and these in turn warned the commanders in Pearl Harbor that the Japanese might attack that base.

4. That these commanders ignored the warnings, failed to take the proper measures of alert or defense and thus exposed the Pacific fleet to destruction.

Based on these propositions, a commission headed by Justice Owen J. Roberts, after a brief investigation at Pearl Harbor, held Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short responsible. But the war and navy departments have since refused resolutely to bring these two men to trial. Why? Danger of revealing important defense information to the enemy cannot be claimed now. Is it not rather for the purpose of withholding information essential to the defense of the real culprits? Let us examine all the facts to determine where the guilt lies.

WERE WE AT PEACE?

Was It an Unexpected Stab in Back?

I.

The first proposition is that on December 7, 1941, this country was at peace. Being at peace our guard was down. Out of a clear sky Japan, without warning, struck us at Pearl Harbor—stabbed us in the back.

Before Pearl Harbor there had been much debate about whether we were at war and whether or not we should go to war. But surely no man, now looking honestly at the picture of those days, will say we were at peace.

When Germany invaded Poland and Britain and France declared war on Germany, our sympathy went out with equal fullness to Poland, France and Britain. We sold arms to Britain and France, which we had a right to do. We refused under our neutrality law, however, to deliver these arms to them. While we thus aided them greatly no one could call that war.

Question of How Much Aid.

Then came the fall of France in May, 1940, and the plight of England after Dunkerque. At this point the President made available to the British 500,000 Enfield rifles which were the property of the American army, some planes and some 75s, together with a great deal of ammunition. The question of how far we should go to aid the allies became a national issue. The country approved ever-increasing aid, but opposed a shooting war.

Late in 1940 the President proposed to give the British, hard-pressed in the Atlantic, 50 American destroyers, in return for the right to lease certain naval bases in Bermuda and other places. At this point we were getting close to committing an act of war, tho this construction on our act was denied.

LENDING OF MUNITIONS

Aid Extended to Britain and to China

In February, 1941, the President proposed that the government purchase guns and tanks and planes and munitions from American manufacturers, pay for them and lend them to Britain, China, and other countries to use against the Germans. This was not a declaration of war. But to say it was not making war on Germany is to juggle words.

The President then decided on a step which put us finally in actual war against Germany. Britain had occupied Iceland—a few hundred miles off the shores of England—in the summer of 1940. In July, 1941, the President decided to join Britain in the occupation of Iceland. Before this the President had established a naval patrol.

Eyes for the British.

That is, American destroyers and planes were sent out into the Atlantic into combat zones to hunt submarines and report the presence of these submarines to the British, who would then send destroyers or planes to drop depth bombs on them.

To say we were not at war with Germany when our navy was acting as a scout for the British navy is to close our eyes to the truth. But when we reënforced the British army in Iceland and proceeded to use Iceland as a base for this naval patrol in the very heart of the European combat waters we were in the war beyond all dispute. Mr. Churchill hailed the occupation of Iceland as "a new coöperation between the British and American armed forces."

Hailed as Active Participation.

Coöperation in what? In the war against Germany. Charles Hurd, in the New York Times, wrote Nov. 9, 1941: "The establishment of a naval base in Iceland marked a change by which American international policy stepped from one of passive aid to Great Britain and her allies into active participation in the battle of the Atlantic." Against whom was the battle of the Atlantic being fought? Against Germany.

If we were "actively participating" in that battle we were actively participating in a war against Germany. The New York Times, defending these acts, said: "The Nazis made war on us in the Atlantic. We are making war on them in return."

I do not raise the question whether the President should or should not have done this. I merely say that as we, however justifiedly, were making war on Germany, we are bound to recognize the fact and concede it as a fact.

The occupation of Iceland had immediate repercussions. The President decided to convoy British vessels sailing into Iceland. He knew this meant war.

Shooting Is Involved.

Secretary of the Navy Knox had said to a senate committee not long before, "Convoys mean shooting and shooting means war."

Obviously if an American warship convoyed a British vessel carrying war material to England or Iceland and a German submarine came near, the American warship would shoot. That is precisely what it would be there for.

When a newspaper writer reported the navy was convoying British ships, the President publicly called him "a liar." When the President said that, of course, he knew that the navy was convoying ships and that the reporter was telling the truth.

SOME BELATED AWARDS

Recognition of Combat Is Made in 1943

The truth came out later, only last year, when the navy by order No. 190, directed the issuing of awards of ribbons to men in the navy, marine, and Coast Guard who had been in "actual combat" with German submarines "before Dec. 7, 1941." Moreover on April 29, 1944, W. A. Crumley, famous naval reporter of the London Express, writing of the death of Frank Knox, said: "The full extent of our debt to Col. Knox has not yet been disclosed but it can be said that American warships were assisting Atlantic convoys as early as March, 1941, eight months before Pearl Harbor."

The inevitable result of this, of course, was that several American ships, including naval vessels, were torpedoed or sunk. One of these was the Greer.

Averell Harriman's Report.

W. Averell Harriman, in London, said Nov. 23: "The United States navy is shooting Germans—German submarines and aircraft at sea."

The President was waging a foreign war while assuring the people he was not, and would not take them into war. Yet we were in fact at war and it was not until long after Pearl Harbor that the people began to hear and realize the truth. We had been at war—shooting war—for many months before Pearl Harbor.

Arthur Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times, devoted to the President's war policy, said in a speech last year: "I am not one of those who believed that we entered the war because we are attacked at Pearl Harbor, but that we were attacked at Pearl Harbor because we were already in the war."

The Myth Vanishes.

Indeed in Washington today the man who would say in informed circles that we did not enter the war until Pearl Harbor would be roundly laughed at. One might question whether we were in a real shooting war after lend-lease or after the occupation of Iceland. No one will say that after the latter event this country was not at war.

The assumption, therefore, that on Dec. 7 this country was in a state of peace and was therefore in a condition where it could plead surprise at an attack is utterly without foundation. Nothing was lacking save a formal declaration.

'AT PEACE WITH JAPAN'

Facts Are Cleared Up About Pacific War

II.

But what of Japan? The President, addressing the congress the day after Pearl Harbor, said, referring to Japan: "The United States was at peace with that nation, and at the solicitation of Japan, was still in conversation with its government and its emperor, looking toward the maintenance of peace in the Pacific." The veil has not yet been wholly lifted from the diplomatic and military prolog to the Japanese-American war. But enough is now known to make the picture reasonably clear.

Japan attacked China July 7, 1937. Up to January, 1940, this government refrained from any hostile intrusion into that war. The state department had properly protested against Japan's aggression. But it did nothing to aid China. On the contrary, it pursued a policy of aid to Japan.

Under our neutrality law, when war began between Japan and China, it became the duty of the President to proclaim a state of war and stop all shipments of munitions to either country.

The President, however, refused to do this. He was gravely criticized for violating the law. He has suggested that he did not proclaim our neutrality because it would then have been impossible for us to send any aid to China. Actually we were giving far more aid to Japan than to China.

In 1939 we sent China goods to the value of $55,600,000 while we exported to Japan goods valued at $232,000,000. We did practically the same in 1940. We sold Japan immense quantities of iron and scrap and oil and other materials with which she fought China and prepared for war with us.

Sympathy and Iron.

The government sent its sympathy to China and its scrap iron to Japan. It was not until China and Japan became inextricably entangled in the European war that our government manifested its dynamic interest in China's "democracy."

In 1940, after the fall of France, the United States began to move ever more deeply into the European war. The interests of Britain in Asia brought China and Japan within the orbit of the Anglo-German struggle. Japan saw the United States looming as an immediate enemy. Japan became interested in one overmastering objective by the fall of 1940. She wanted to keep the United States out of the war in Asia. It looked then as if Britain might be defeated, thus cutting her vast Asiatic empire adrift. The fall of France had weakened France's hold upon Indo-China.

PROBLEM OF JAPAN

Entered Axis and Won a Pact with Russia

If the United States were to end trade with Japan, Japan would have to go to the Dutch East Indies for oil and other essential materials. If the Dutch joined in the embargo, Japan would have to seize the Indies and this would mean war with Britain, and probably, the United States. In the face of such prospects Japan entered the Rome-Berlin-Tokio axis.

Thru this alliance she got an agreement from Germany to declare war on the United States if Japan and the United States went to war, thus giving the United States a new reason not to attack Japan. She induced Germany to exert pressure upon Vichy to allow Japan to enter Indo-China, which Japan could do if she found it necessary to attack the Indies. By this means she hoped to get a nonaggression pact with Russia, which she did.

Looked Like Good Bargain.

Germany was winning the war and the bargain looked good to Japan and the militarists who then ruled her affairs. Actually this program sealed Japan's doom.

The circumstances by which this came about are scarcely realized by the American people. They are almost unbelievable. I would not dare to describe them if they were not attested beyond cavil by the official documents recently made public for all to read. Here are the facts.

In January, 1941, after Japan had gotten an agreement from Vichy to enter Indo-China, Ambassador Joseph C. Grew in Tokyo wrote a long letter to President Roosevelt. Being an old Groton and Harvard man he felt privileged to write him over the head of the secretary of state. He addressed him as "Dear Frank." In a letter of great clarity and tact he outlined the picture of affairs in the east.

"Our Work Swept Away."

He told the President frankly that after eight years "diplomacy has been defeated by trends and forces utterly beyond its control." He said, "Our work has been swept away as if by a typhoon, with little or nothing remaining to show for it." No Japanese leader, he said, could reverse the expansionist policy and hope to survive. The Germans are working overtime to push Japan into war with us. "It, therefore, appears that sooner or later, unless we are prepared to withdraw bag and baggage from the entire sphere of greater East Asia, including the South seas [which, God forbid], we are bound eventually to come to a head-on collision with Japan.

FACES A SHOWDOWN

Grew Urged President to Have It Soon

The meaning of all this he summed up as follows: "It seems to me to be increasingly clear that we are bound to have a showdown with Japan some day, and the principal question at issue is whether it is to our advantage to have that showdown sooner or to have it later.

Ambassador Grew wanted a positive and vigorous action against Japan to halt her. But we cannot afford to take measures "short of war," he said, because Japan will detect it and that will be futile. But if we convince her that "we mean to fight if compelled to do so" then perhaps our measures may prove effective to avert war.

Mr. Roosevelt's Reply.

To that letter the President made a fateful and historic answer, an answer which the people of the United States knew nothing about. He began his letter: "Dear Joe: I find myself in decided agreement with your conclusions." But Roosevelt went much further than Grew.

The ambassador had suggested that perhaps the interests of England might dictate that we avoid war with Japan now because it might handicap Britain. Roosevelt brushed that aside. He was much more impressed with the fear that an attack by Japan on the East Indies and Malay might deprive England of supplies needed against Germany.

He was clear that Japan must be kept within bounds. He felt we could not lay down hard and fast plans but he left no doubt that he adopted fully Mr. Grew's "war now" policy.

From the moment—Jan. 21, 1941—when the President wrote that letter, the die was cast. The President had decided, with Grew, that war with Japan was inevitable, that we must pick the time and the President considered that time was now, subject to the exigencies of the whole world situation; that we must proceed with vigorous measures against Japan and that we must not fool ourselves with the expectation of moving "short of war."

This decision seemed to quicken the whole tempo of the President's war plans. A few weeks later he asked congress to pass the lend-lease bill. Having decided on war with Japan all of the President's acts after that become easily understandable.

Tells of Attack

John T. Flynn, author of story discussing blame for attack upon Pearl Harbor.

New Pressure on Japan.

This government began at once to increase its pressure on Japan. Japan seemed to perceive this. She now had to make up her mind either to appease Mr. Roosevelt or face war. War with America would mean that she would be cut off from the supplies of scrap iron, oil and other materials she had been getting from us to fight China.

She must look for these materials elsewhere—in the Dutch East Indies. In July, therefore Japan took complete military control of Indo-China. President Roosevelt immediately retaliated by freezing all Japanese assets — $130,000,000 of them—in the United States and thus ending trade with Japan.

Walter Lippman commented:

"This was a declaration of economic war. Along with the other economic and military measures taken at the time by Australia, the Netherlands, and Great Britain, it was what the Japanese called it: 'An anti-Japanese encirclement policy'."

CHENNAULT IN ACTION

Re-enforcements in China Aid Gen. Chiang

The preceding month — June — an American political advisor was named by Chiang Kai-shek. Americans were sent to reorganize the traffic on the Burma road. Most serious of all, Gen. Chennault, of the United States army, took to China a number of American army aviators who were allowed to resign from the United States army to volunteer with the Chinese army. The President was actually sending American reënforcements into China.

In August, immediately following all this, Roosevelt and Churchill met in the Atlantic at the conference from which emerged the Atlantic Charter. What happened there has been revealed in a White House inspired volume called "How War Came" by Ernest Lindley and Forrest Davis.

Churchill wished to meet the issue head-on. He asked the President "to join in an ultimative declaration to Japan," an admitted provocation of war.

The President asked Churchill—"Wouldn't we be better off in three months?" Churchill agreed reluctantly. "Leave it to me," said the President, "I think I can baby them along for three months."

Churchill thought an ultimatum might force Japan to halt. Roosevelt did not.

When Churchill left the Atlantic conference he felt he had completely won his point. In a speech in parliament Jan. 28, 1942, he said: "It has been the policy of the cabinet at all costs to avoid embroilment with Japan until we were sure the United States would also be engaged. . . . On the other hand the probability, since the Atlantic conference at which I discussed these matters with President Roosevelt, that the United States, even if not herself attacked, would come into the war in the Far East and thus make the final victory assured, seemed to allay some of the anxieties and that expectation has not been falsified by events."

NEW BLOW TO JAPAN

Cabinet Upset After Nazis Open War on Reds

But something else had happened in the world. Hitler had declared war on the soviet union and invaded Russia. This was a blow of the first magnitude to Tokyo.

Matsuoka, the foreign minister responsible for Tokyo's entry into the axis, found himself in disgrace. The cabinet of Prime Minister Konoe was dissolved to get rid of Matsuoka and those who had supported him. The advantages which Tokyo had sought from the axis alliance were now lost. Germany, as a partner in Asia, engaged in the vast enterprise of defeating Russia was enormously reduced in value. With America practically committed to the war in an alliance with Britain and Russia, Japan's whole strategic structure fell about her ears. The settlement of the "China incident" now became more distant. Japan's supplies of steel, iron, oil, chemicals and a whole catalog of essential materials were cut off. Her foreign trade was ruined. Japan faced bankruptcy, as Ambassador Grew recorded in his diary.

An Invitation to Grew.

The American policy of vigorous action which had so little chance of avoiding war, now, due to the folly of Hitler in attacking Russia, became suddenly almost successful. On Sept. 6, occurred another incident, then hidden from the American people and revealed only recently. It was as important as Roosevelt's decision in January to make war.

The Japanese prime minister, Konoe, on that day invited the American ambassador, Grew, to dinner at the house of a friend. There, with a frankness which astonished the American ambassador, he revealed the plight of his country and his ministry. The whole story is told in the state department publication entitled "War and Peace," containing all the documents covering the negotiations between the United States and Japan, and in Ambassador Grew's "Ten Years in Japan."

They are open to the student who wishes to check on this account. Out of that conversation and several subsequent ones between Konoe's secretary and the counselor of the American embassy, the following situation grew.

JAPAN'S DILEMMA

Tokyo Sought Chance to End War in China

The Japanese cabinet had decided that, in the presence of its mounting difficulties, it must find some means of liquidating the China affair. The army wished to get out of China. The prime minister wanted to work out some plan by which Japan could do this without loss of face.

Konoe begged the American ambassador to recommend to the President that he, Mr. Roosevelt, and the Japanese premier meet in the Pacific at Hawaii, as Roosevelt and Churchill had done in the Atlantic. There, Konoe assured Grew, he was prepared to give assurances of such far-reaching character that they were certain to be accepted.

Overtures to China.

Japan had just made peace overtures to China. They seemed satisfactory save for one clause which provided that all those Japanese forces would retire from China which had been sent in 1937, reverting to the status quo as of that time, save certain troops to garrison certain strategic points in order to maintain order and suppress communism. With the exception of this clause the proposals seemed feasible to Grew.

The prime minister's secretary, Ushiba, assured him that even on that point satisfactory assurances would be given. He pleaded that the existence of the Konoe cabinet was bound up in the success of such a conference of Roosevelt and Konoe and that if Konoe went to Hawaii he would not dare return without an agreement, however drastic.

Ambassador Grew Hopeful.

Konoe himself declared to Grew that he was determined to bring about a rehabilitation of American-Japanese relations no matter what the cost. Grew was profoundly impressed. He felt that circumstances had made the American policy finally successful. He, therefore, wrote a long letter to the state department urging the acceptance of Konoe's offer.

In Washington, Nomura also pressed the plan. The official reports printed by Mr. Grew and his own diary reveal the Japanese authorities asking for this opportunity to get out of the mess they had made without war and with the loss of almost everything they supposed they had gained by the ill-fated China incident.

The Japanese premier kept a warship ready and held it for instant departure whenever the word should come from Roosevelt.

He, his associates, and his secretary, kept pressing for an answer, pointing out that if this failed, the Konoe cabinet would fall and the hope of peace would never return. Grew added his importunities. But in Washington Secretary of State Hull continued to evade an answer. On Oct. 16, the Konoe cabinet fell.

ONE MORE CHANCE

Tojo Given Command by Emperor Hirohito

Even at this point the fat was not wholly in the fire. Ambassador Grew records in his diary an account of the fall of Konoe. The emperor summoned a conference of the privy council and the leaders of the armed forces. He asked if they were prepared to pursue a policy that would guarantee peace with the United States.

The army and navy conferees present remained silent. Whereupon Hirohito "ordered the armed forces to obey his wishes." It was for this reason that Tojo was chosen Prime Minister, because, being a general in active service in the army, he was in a position to control, and he was committed to the success of the conversations in Washington.

Even after Tojo's appointment Mr. Grew reported it was the current belief among Japanese leaders that the question of stationing armed forces at certain strategic points in China could be gotten over.

Why did the President refuse to do anything toward even testing the possibilities of peace in the Konoe proposal? In view of the fact that the United States and Great Britain were in a pathetic state of unpreparedness, why, when an offer, strongly urged by the American ambassador, was made by Konoe, was it allowed to drag along unanswered? The President might have made this last attempt to avoid war, even tho the attempt failed. But he did not and we are bound to ask, why not?

Kurusu Comes to U. S.

The negotiations with Nomura in Washington were rapidly getting nowhere when Kurusu was dispatched to Washington to support Nomura. Nobody knew better than the Japanese the desperate game which lay ahead of them. No one knew better than they that any hope of success in the event of war must come almost entirely from the success of one desperate throw of the dice. They were anxious to find a way to crawl out of the meshes of the evil net which they had woven around themselves.

But by this time the negotiations were being shaped by the President. He had made up his mind to get from Japan a complete and abject surrender or to make war on her. The abject surrender he wanted was not humanly possible, when we take account, as we must, of the character of the Japanese.

Ambassador Grew seemed filled with apprehension that the government would miscalculate on this subject. Obviously he feared the President had made two mistakes: one, that the China war and our embargo had hopelessly weakened the Japanese and, second, that they would not fight if we put on the pressure. On Nov. 3 he wrote to the state department the following ominous statement:

Envoy to Tokyo

Joseph C. Grew, U. S. ambassador to Japan, who warned President Roosevelt against Japs.

"The primary point to be decided apparently involves the question whether war with Japan is justified by American national objectives, policies, and needs in the case of failure of the first line of national defense—namely, diplomacy, since it would be possible only on the basis of such a decision for the Roosevelt administration to follow a course which would be divested as much as possible of elements of uncertainty, speculation, and opinion.

"The ambassador does not doubt that such a decision, irrevocable as it might well prove to be, has been debated fully and adopted, for the sands are running fast."

"President Must Decide."

This somewhat obscure paragraph, breathing the spirit of diplomatic circumlocution, means, simply stated, that: "Our first means of avoiding war is diplomacy. If that fails the President must decide whether or not American objectives justify war, and the ambassador believes that the government has made the irrevocable, the fateful decision that war on Japan is justified by American national objectives."

But he goes on to add that his "purpose is only to insure against the United States becoming involved in war with Japan because of any possible misconception of Japan's capacity to rush headlong into a suicidal struggle with the United States." He warned that the idea "that war would be probably averted, tho there might be some risk of war, by progressively imposing drastic economic measures, is an uncertain and dangerous hypothesis upon which to base considered United States policy and measures."

But the President rejected this counsel. It is unnecessary to follow the last scenes of the negotiations in Washington. It is clear that Japan was confronted with the alternative of making peace with us or going to war against the Dutch and the British and probably bringing us in, or of finding a formula for a settlement of the China affair satisfactory to us. She offered a formula which would leave her a few shreds of her tattered garments of honor and prestige and this she was willing to yield if the United States would resume trade with her. On our part we refused to make any specific demands on her until finally, on Nov. 26, 1941, Mr. Hull handed to Nomura and Kurusu the last document to pass between these ill fated negotiators before the attack.

It was an ultimatum—an absolute and unequivocal ultimatum. It demanded withdrawal of all Japanese forces from Indo-China, the withdrawal of all military forces from China, the outright recognition of the Chungking government, the renunciation of all extraterritorial rights in China and Japan's renunciation of her treaty of alliance with the axis powers.

The Japanese accepted it as an ultimatum, as they reported to Mr. Grew. It can be considered as nothing else. It meant war. It meant the next move, as Mr. Hull put it, must come from Japan, and that move might be an attack.

Here let me say this: That a supporter of Mr. Roosevelt can make a defense of his course.

A POSSIBLE DEFENSE

Friends Might Argue It's a Matter of Time

He might say Mr. Roosevelt was right in supposing that sooner or later the United States would have to fight Japan; and that he was right in concluding that it would be unwise to let Japan get away with any illusion that she had not lost in China so that she had not been forced to her knees by America. If he did, it would be only a question of time when Japan would renew her program of aggression in Asia whenever the situation seemed favorable.

"The time to crush her and to make her see irrevocably the folly of such a course in the future and to discredit the military party for a generation, if not forever, was now.

Not a Peace Formula.

Now I say a supporter of Mr. Roosevelt can make this argument with some show of reason—tho I could not join in it. But he cannot say that Mr. Roosevelt had not decided on an all-out war.

Mr. Roosevelt cannot claim he was stabbed in the back, without asking us to believe that after giving an ultimatum to a prospective enemy he turned his back to provide a target for the blow. He cannot plead surprise as an excuse for not being fully on guard against a war which he entered with his eyes wide open.

The simple fact is that after Mr. Hull handed the Japanese ambassador his ulitmatum on Nov. 26, that episode was ended. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull sat back and waited for Japan to attack. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull believed they had just carried off a masterpiece of diplomacy. Mr. Roosevelt believed we were ready for that war. Mr. Knox announced, "The navy is ready." He believed our navy would wipe the Japanese navy from the ocean in short order.

About three weeks before Pearl Harbor, a distinguished senator called on him to ask, in view of the withdrawal of so many warships from the Pacific to the Atlantic, whether or not Mr. Knox could assure him that the navy had sufficient strength to tackle Japan.

Mr. Knox assured him that all was well, that the navy would clean up the Japanese navy in a few weeks, that the only thing he feared was that it would hide so that we could not get at it and, if that happened, it would take a little longer.

Senator Draws a Line.

This represented the attitude of the administration. The strange notion that the job was one for a few planes and a few swift blows by our navy permeated the thinking of the administration. In the midst of the negotiations, which ended so disastrously, the same Sen. Pepper told reporters that he would "draw a line and warn them [the Japs] that if they cross it there will be shooting." [N. Y. Times, Oct. 19, 1941.]

American aviators did resign from the American army and did go to China under an American colonel. They were actually shooting at the Japs. The shooting had begun, but under the pretense that these American pilots were Chinese soldiers serving under Col. [now general] Chennault—also a Chinese soldier.

AN INVITATION TO WAR

President Wished Attack to Come from Japs

The President was stepping into war but he had no notion he was stepping into so terrible a war. He had assured Americans that he would not take American boys into a foreign war.

He wished the attack to come from Japan. Germany was not inviting further action by America. As long ago as June, 1941, Alsop and Kintner, White House-favored columnists, wrote:

"In the last week, he [the President] has been repeatedly urged to order immediate action. He has been warned that to delay has been to court disaster. He has been able to act, for all the preparations for meeting the Germans' threat in the battle of the Atlantic have at last been completed.

"Yet he has not acted because he hopes to drive the Germans to shoot first. Perhaps, instead of depending on one simple question, the future depends on two. The men around the President are united in urging him to order action out of hand, without waiting for a pretext. If they fail, if the President's determination is not weakened by the remorseless logic of events, then a second question will have to be answered. Will the President's plan succeed?

Hope for an Incident.

"The problem was mentioned in this space in a recent discussion of the Atlantic patrol, in which it was pointed out that the President and the men around him privately hope the patrol will produce an incident. No man can doubt the German high command will do everything possible to avoid shooting first."

The writers explained that the President felt himself checked by his many promises to stay out of war. "He does not feel he can openly violate them. But he can get around them the 'smart way.'" This, they explain, is to try to provoke the Germans to shoot at us. Then the President can start "shooting back."

READY FOR ACCIDENT

F. D. R. Takes Vacation and Awaits Developments

The President had now steered the negotiations with Japan to such a point where he would get his incident. The army and navy had a plan which was to be put into execution the moment Japan attacked—but not before. Of course, it was never supposed that Japan would attack as she did.

After the unacceptable and impossible ultimatum was handed to Kurusu, which was to force Japan into an overt act, Mr. Roosevelt went to Warm Springs, Ga., for a holiday. The news of Japanese naval and troop movements later on compelled him to return.

But from this moment on the White House and the state department were spots of intense expectancy for the blow on Malay or Siam or Singapore or the Dutch East Indies or perhaps Guam or better still the Philippines, which would be the consummation of the great game of diplomacy of Messrs. Roosevelt and Hull.

They sat around and waited for the great surprise. . . . It certainly is not too much to say that the surprise they waited for surprised them very much.

The President's supporters weaken and complicate his case by denying the obvious truth. Those among them who are more candid say that of course Mr. Roosevelt wanted the Japanese to strike first.

Peril Was Misunderstood.

He wanted to provoke Japan to attack. But he utterly and pitifully misunderstood the variety of attacks to which he exposed the country. He certainly never looked for an attack which would knock the American navy and army out of the war in a day, and force us to the long and terrible march back over the innumerable island stepping stones of the Pacific and at the loss of so many men and so much material and prestige. We are discussing here not the shrewdness of Mr. Roosevelt's diplomacy but the responsibility for Pearl Harbor.

III.

We have now seen that the President in Washington was conducting a war against Germany, tho no declaration or war had been made and that he had, as Mr. Lippman put it, declared "economic war on Japan" while American army flyers disguised in Chinese uniforms were bombing Japanese troops, and American ships were ferrying armaments to the Chinese armies. These were skirmishes preceding the grand scale attack.

We have seen that the President had decided on all-out war with Japan but that he was maneuvering Japan into a position to attack first and that he succeeded in this. We have seen that the President after Pearl Harbor went before the American people and declared we had been "surprised."

The government blamed the appalling disaster upon Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short, on the theory that they were not on guard against an attack about which they had received ample warning.

We must now examine the question whether or not Kimmel and Short received adequate warning and whether or not they complied with the requirements of the army and navy strategy laid down for the expected war.

A RUSH OF ALIBIS

Hull Tells of His Reports to Army and Navy

First of all it must be understood that as soon as the astounding nature of the defeat was known in Washington, there was a hustling by every one in authority from the President down to provide themselves with appropriate alibis. One of the first to come up with one was Mr. Hull.

The Roberts report declared that for months Mr. Hull repeatedly discussed the American-Japanese negotiations with the secretaries of war and navy and the council of war at which the army chief of staff and the naval chief of operations were present. Mr. Hull insists that he constantly kept the secretary of the navy informed of the progress of the negotiations. Then on Nov. 24 Mr. Hull reported to them that "a surprise aggressive movement in any direction by the Japanese was a possibility."

His warning is supposed to reveal in Mr. Hull a profound insight into the course of things to come. What Mr. Hull told the army and naval chiefs we can only surmise. It was understood by the army and navy that these negotiations had been initiated by Japan, not by us.

But Mr. Hull never until the last gave to the Japanese any specific conditions. Around the last half of November it was generally understood in army and navy circles that the negotiations would probably "break down." "Breaking down" meant to every one, including the high command, that Japan would fail to get any concessions from us.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT?

U. S. Was Expected to Have Time to Prepare

What would she do then? That seemed clear enough. She would seize the Dutch East Indies for essential materials. She had occupied Indo-China for that purpose as a base from which to move on the Dutch East Indies. The general assumption, then, was that when negotiations broke down Japan would then go first into Thailand and then to the Dutch East Indies.

Such an attack would mean war with Britain and perhaps the United States. It would not be a direct attack on them, but only on the Dutch. If Japan went into Thailand and then attacked the Dutch East Indies, Britain and the United States could then choose the time and the manner to strike. For this purpose Malay and Singapore for the British, and the Philippines for the United States, were bases of supreme importance.

Two Courses Possible.

Japan might take one of two courses. She might go into Thailand and against the Dutch East Indies directly, hoping on a faint chance that the United States and Britain would stay out of the war. Or she might assume that they would come in and attempt to knock them out of their great two bases at the outset. This meant that Japan might begin with an attack on Singapore or northern Malaya or on the Philippines. This is what ending the negotiations meant.

What the army did not know until the last minute, if at all, was that we had not merely refused to yield to Japan's pleas for a resumption of relations, but that the President by Nov. 24 had decided to issue an ultimatum to Japan, to lay down imperious conditions to her—conditions which meant peace or war.

Did Gen. Marshall Know?

This changed the whole picture. Now we have been informed that Mr. Hull told the war council on Nov. 24 that negotiations were about to break down. He knew he was going to issue an ultimatum in two days—Nov. 26. It was perhaps already written. But did he tell the chief of staff of the army and the chief of naval operations—Gen. Marshall and Adm. Stark—that he was about to hand an ultimatum to Japan? Or did he tell them merely that negotiations were about to suffer a break? In either case it would mean war. But in the former case it would mean war instantly, with the United States as the chief mark.

A VAGUE WARNING

Chiefs Cautioned to Watch Out for Japs

What did Hull tell the army chiefs? And what did they tell him? They knew, they must have known, that the United States was pathetically unprepared then for war in the east. They knew that if Japan attacked us directly that Germany and Italy would immediately declare war on us under the terms of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo pact.

They knew they could not get any reënforcements from the Atlantic into the Pacific in time to be of avail. Did they tell the President, thru Mr. Hull, that we were unprepared? Did they protest? Certainly we are entitled to have the facts on that.

In any case Mr. Hull's warning was not the result of any special information he had but was based entirely on the general understanding of the Japanese method of making war. The army and navy chiefs knew that as well as he. What the army and navy would have liked to know was when the attack would come and where.

Of course Mr. Hull did not know any more about that than the man in the moon and his surmise would be valueless.

When he or any one else in the administration talked about an attack coming "anywhere" they meant anywhere in Asia—Malay, Thailand, Singapore itself, the Dutch East Indies, maybe the Philippines or even Guam—anywhere in the Pacific except Hawaii.

It is very doubtful that Mr. Hull admitted to the army and navy chiefs that what he was delivering to the Japanese was an ultimatum.

Facts Are Withheld.

Mr. Hull's information about the ultimatum, even if it was given to the secretaries of war and navy, was withheld from the people.

Whatever the secretaries of war and navy knew, what, we must ask, in all fairness, did they communicate to Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short in Hawaii? What were Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short told about the nature of the crisis? What were they told about the possibility of attack on Hawaii? What were they told to do, and what did they do that was in violation of their orders? Let us see.

WARNINGS ON CRISIS

Details Offered in Report of Roberts Commission

The contents of the warnings given to Kimmel and Short are all outlined in the report of the Roberts commission. According to that report, on Oct. 16, 1941, the war and navy departments advised Kimmel and Short that changes had taken place in the Japanese cabinet—the fall of Konoe—and that there was a possibility of war.

Nov. 24, 1941, the chief of naval operations wired Kimmel, expressing doubt of a favorable outcome of the negotiations in Washington. The army chief of staff concurred in the dispatch. This followed Hull's announcement of this fact to the cabinet members just before he issued his ultimatum.

Nov. 27 the army chief of staff informed the commanding general at Hawaii "that the negotiations with Japan seemed to be ended with little likelihood of their resumption." The same day the intelligence department sent a similar message to Short's intelligence officer. Not a word about the United States having issued an ultimatum.

"Ending of negotiations" might mean that the United States had failed to find means of dissuading Japan from further movements in China and Indo-China. This might mean a movement against Malay or Thailand or, perhaps, the Indies.

No one in our armed forces in authority believed Japan wanted war with us. Never once were they given the information that Mr. Hull had told the Japanese to crawl back into their own island or face war. That, in the involved language of diplomacy, is what he told them.

POSSIBILITY OF ATTACK

Knox Tells of a Warning to Secretary of War

I have said that immediately after Pearl Harbor all the Washington authorities got busy with their alibis. Mr. Hull was the first. Mr. Knox was next. He made it known that on Jan. 21, 1941, he had written a letter to the secretary of war saying that "if war eventuates with Japan it is believed easily possible that hostilities would be initiated by a surprise attack on the naval base at Pearl Harbor."

He said the danger warranted speedy action to increase the joint readiness of the army and navy to resist such an attack, that the navy was re-studying the situation and that the defenses were satisfactory against every form of attack save air bombing and air torpedo attack.

This is handed out as evidence of great vigilance and perspicacity on the part of Mr. Knox. That was nearly a year before Pearl Harbor. Actually this letter was written as a result of a letter from Ambassador Grew to the state department just before.

What Mr. Grew Wrote.

Mr. Grew wrote "there was a lot of talk around town to the effect that the Japanese, in case of a break with the United States, are planning to go all-out in a surprise attack on Pearl Harbor." The state department of course passed this town gossip along to Knox who promptly wrote to Stimson as if he, Knox, were in possession of some very secret information.

Think what Mr. Knox was asking the American people to believe, that before Jan. 21, 1941, the possibility of an attack on Pearl Harbor was not considered serious enough to provide the necessary defenses and that the navy did not become alarmed about this until a report of street rumors about town in Tokyo suddenly made the navy aware of the danger.

Passed Over by Navy.

No more of that is heard and, as we shall see, the navy gave little or no thought to a possible attack on Pearl Harbor as the crisis approached.

Now let us follow just what the army and navy passed on to Kimmel and Short as to the kind of attack that was coming. One very important thing must be kept in mind—and the American reader is apt to overlook it. Hawaii, while far out in the Pacific, was in no position to get its own information about the coming attack.

Pearl Harbor is 3,600 miles from Japan and 4,000 and more miles from some of the points where the Japanese were preparing the attack.

It was no part of either Kimmel's or Short's duty to do scouting or reconnaissance or secret intelligence work.

That was the duty of agents of this government and of Britain and the Dutch over on and near the scene of the Japanese mobilization points. We had a naval unit there—the Asiatic navy, as distinguished from the Pacific navy, which was in Hawaii.

DUTY OF WASHINGTON

Officials Had Access to Best Information

The navy and war departments in Washington were supposed to collect from every source information as to the possible movements of Japanese naval and aircraft and army units and form their opinions as to what the Japanese were up to. Kimmel and Short had no means of doing this. They depended on getting bulletins from Washington where all the intelligence material was gathered and communicated. There seems to be a notion that Kimmel and Short were supposed to have in action a naval and air and military intelligence service that would keep them advised of what the Japanese were doing. This is wholly false.

Duties of Leaders.

The duties of Kimmel and Short are clearly defined in the Roberts report. The defense of Hawaii was the responsibility of the army. The army was charged with defense against sabotage and all internal subversive activities. The report says: "The responsibility of the army included the installation and the operation of an aircraft warning system for the detection of water borne craft at a distance from the coast."

The army was supposed to "conduct an in-shore airplane patrol, covering the circumference of the island of Oahu to a distance of about 20 miles." The navy was to "conduct distant air reconnaissance radiating from Oahu to a distance of from 700 to 800 miles."

The duty of keeping an eye on the activities of the Japanese fleet and Japanese troop movements beyond that was the responsibility of far eastern units and intelligence services, which would report to Washington, which in turn would keep Kimmel and Short informed of hostile preparations that had to begin thousands of miles away from Hawaii.

What They Were Told.

Now what information was being sent to the admiral and general at Hawaii from Washington as to the possible intentions of the Japanese in the Pacific?

Nov. 24, the navy advised Adm. Kimmel of the possibility of a "surprise aggressive movement in any direction by the Japanese." This was after getting Hull's notice that negotiations were probably at an end. The message contained a very important modification. It warned that "surprise aggressive movement in any direction by the Japanese, including an attack on the Philippines or Guam, was a possibility."

Nov. 27, the army notified Gen. Short "that Japanese action was unpredictable, that hostilities on the part of Japan were momentarily expected."

A WAR WARNING

Attack Expected, but Not at Pearl Harbor

The same day the chief of naval operations wired Kimmel that the "dispatch was to be considered a war warning: that negotiations were ended; that Japan was expected to make an aggressive move within the next few days; that an amphibious expedition against the Philippines, Thailand or the Kra peninsula [Malaya], or possibly Borneo was indicated by the number and equipment of Japanese troops and the organization of the naval task forces." All these indicated possible attacks were thousands of miles from Hawaii.

Nov. 30 the chief of naval operations wired to the commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet—in the far east, at least 3,600 miles from Hawaii—that Japan was about to launch an attack on the Kra isthmus, and directing the chief of the Asiatic fleet to do certain scouting but to avoid the appearance of attacking. A copy of this dispatch was sent to Kimmel at Hawaii.

Southward Move Noted.

Dec. 1—On this day the division of naval intelligence issued a general bulletin entitled "Japanese Naval Situation," saying:

"Deployment of naval forces to the southward has indicated clearly that extensive preparations are under way for hostilities. At the same time troop transports and freighters are pouring continuously down from Japan and northern China coast ports headed south for French Indo-China and Formosan ports.

"Present movements to the south appear to be carried out by small individual units, but the organization of an extensive task force, now definitely indicated, will probably take sharper form in the next few days. To date this task force under the command of the commander in chief, second fleet, appears to be subdivided into two major task forces, one concentrating off the southeast Asiatic coast, the other in the mandates.

"Each constitutes a strong striking force of heavy and light cruisers, units of the combined air force, destroyers and submarine squadrons. Altho one division of battleships also may be assigned, the major capital ship strength remains in home waters, as well as the greatest portion of the carriers."

NO EYE ON HAWAII

Attacks Expected at Many Other Points

Here was unmistakable evidence that the only Japanese movement which the naval and army intelligence service had observed was thousands of miles from Pearl Harbor.

The simple truth is—and it is abundantly clear from a variety of sources—that neither the army nor navy high commands, nor the President, nor any responsible authority in Washington had the slightest notion that there would be an attack of any kind, save internal sabotage, on Hawaii.

Army Chieftain

The general impression in Washington was that Japan would strike into Thailand or at some point other than American territory and that when this happened the United States would put into effect in its own way its strategy. What that would be has not been disclosed.

INTERVIEW WITH HULL

Secretary Tells Where Japs Might Strike

On Dec. 4, Arthur Krock, a discriminating and reliable chronicler of events in Washington and enjoying very friendly relations with Mr. Hull, reported the following conversation with a high administrative official:

Q.—How would you state the prospect now?

A.—It is conceivable that the Japanese will move aggressively at any time.

Q.—In what direction?

A.—South and west thru Indo-China, possibly to the Indies and Burma.

Q.—Won't they need a million men for such an enterprise?

A.—I fear that with 250,000 they can overrun Indo-China and Burma.

A week or so earlier an unnamed official was reported as saying: "War is expected, but war aimed only obliquely at us in southeastern Asia, in Siam, or Malaya and not directed toward the heart of our power in the Pacific."

Opinion of Sumner Welles.

This "unnamed official" was later identified as Sumner Welles, the under secretary of state and much closer to the White House than even Mr. Hull at that time. The same notions were nursed in Singapore and Australia. A dispatch to the New York Times from Singapore Dec. 5, said:

"The next Japanese move is likely to be in Thailand, well informed sources here believe. An attack on Malay or the Philippines is not ruled out entirely. Competent observers here maintain that logic is against Japanese attack on British, Netherlands, or American territory."

And from Melbourne on Dec. 7, the Day of Pearl Harbor, came a dispatch saying the official view is that Japan is just feeling around to see how far she can go without provoking war with Britain, the Netherlands, the United States, and Australia.

To sum it all up, the wise men in Washington felt that Japan was going to attack somewhere. But that there would be an attack of any kind on Hawaii did not enter their heads.

Of this there cannot be the slightest doubt. All of the messages sent to Kimmel and Short were sent by high administration chiefs in Washington who were convinced there was not the slightest danger of an attack on Pearl Harbor.

Their messages necessarily carried that conviction to Kimmel and Short themselves. The messages sent were for the purpose of advising these men, commanders of an important outpost in the Pacific, that war was imminent, but war aimed only obliquely at the United States. They were the warnings sent to every commander everywhere in the world—that war was in the offing and to be on their guard. Against what?

SUNDAY IN WHITE HOUSE

What Happened on Day of the Jap Attack

We will see what Washington had in mind in a moment. But here we must observe that there cannot be the slightest doubt that, from the President down, an attack an Hawaii was not considered a remote possibility.

The best evidence of this is the authentic and semi-official account of how the news of the Pearl Harbor attack came to the White House. The story is told by Ernest L. Lindley, a White House pipeline columnist, and Forrest Davis in their book "How War Came."

A Philatelist at Play.

On Sunday, Dec. 7, the President was in his study eating his dinner from a tray. He had worked hard all week. On Sunday he secluded himself to play with his stamp collection. "The President," said the report "might have been any one of a million Americans putting in a loafing Sunday afternoon with a crony and a hobby." The crony was Harry Hopkins.

Of course the war situation was tense. The overnight cables had reported a large movement of Japanese transports to the Gulf of Siam. But the President felt the emperor would restrain the war party. "In any case," say the authors, "there had been no warning."

That is, as late as Sunday, Dec. 7, the Day of Pearl Harbor, the President felt there had been no warning of an imminent attack save the approach of transports toward the Gulf of Siam, at least 4,000 miles from Pearl Harbor.

"The White House, therefore, was, like the country, at peace," the authors tell us. The President's staff was scattered. But most incredible of all: "A do-not-disturb sign had been confidently placed on the President's switchboard."

The President had literally isolated himself, leaving orders that he was not to be disturbed, that his telephone was not to be rung. At 1:45 Secretary Knox, who had just received the news of the attack, attempted to reach the President by phone. He had difficulty inducing the operator to call the President. When Knox got to the President, he told him: "Mr. President, it looks like the Japanese have attacked Pearl Harbor. . . ."

The President's answer, as Lindley and Davis describe it, was a startled: "No!" they record that the President expected war, but not that week-end. He never supposed the attack when it came would be at "the heart of United States sea power." If war did come, he assumed, along with 132 million other Americans, it would break first in Siam, the East Indies, or the Malay peninsula.

132 Million Misled.

The statement is extraordinarily revealing. The President thought the war would come in the far east 4,000 miles from Pearl Harbor and 132 million other Americans thought the same thing. If they did it was because the President and his subordinates had led them to believe that. And among the 132 million other Americans who thought that were Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short and that impression they too got from the President and his subordinates.

The sum of all this is that the President and his army and navy chiefs completely miscalculated the problem which faced them. They were wrong on the time and on the place and misled everybody connected with them, including their commanders in Hawaii. They went wrong in the violence of the attack and its character.

Wrong on Everything.

And they went wrong utterly on the strength of the Japanese navy and army. They went wrong—from beginning to the end.

And having gone wrong, having given an ultimatum to Japan which precipitated the attack before they were ready to meet it, they went to work immediately to shoulder the blame upon men who, after being indicted, were silenced, while the President, his columnists, his stooges, his cabinet chiefs went to work to alibi themselves and load upon these two helpless officers the odium of their guilt.

Not only did the President and his advisers go wrong on all this, but they were directly responsible for the arrangements in Pearl Harbor which made it literally impossible for Kimmel or Short to properly defend their positions. In other words, both Kimmel and Short, in practically all that they did, obeyed to the letter the orders from Washington. This we shall now see.

NO NEGLECT SEEN

What Kimmel and Short Did in Hawaii

IV.

We have seen what Washington told Kimmel and Short about the nature of the crisis and what Washington looked for as to the time and place of attack. Let us now see what Kimmel and Short did about all this, and whether or not they obeyed any orders or neglected anything that Washington expected them to do which might have averted the disaster.

Early in 1941 Kimmel and Short made a survey of the situation with reference to the defense of Pearl Harbor and made a plan of defense. This plan the Roberts report held to be adequate had it been put into execution.

Under this plan Gen. Short was responsible for the defense of the island and for reconnaissance on the Island of Oahu and for patroling the coast to a distance of twenty miles from the shore.

Duty to Detect Planes.

If planes penetrated an area 20 miles from the shore it was his duty to detect them. Of course a plane arriving at a point 20 miles from the shore of the island would be over Pearl Harbor in a few minutes, so that Short could not be held responsible on this score.

Adm. Kimmel was not responsible for the defense of the island from attack except that if the fleet were present it would aid with its equipment to whatever extent necessary.

But Adm. Kimmel was responsible for distance reconnaissance covering an area around the island of seven or eight hundred miles.

In the event of danger the plans called for three types of readiness, known as alert No. 1, alert No. 2, and alert No. 3.

Alert No. 2 is "applicable to a condition more serious than condition No. 1. Security against attacks from hostile subsurface, surface, and aircraft, in addition to defense against acts of sabotage and uprising is provided."

Alert No. 3 "requires occupation of all field positions by all units, prepared for maximum defense at Oahu and the army installations on outlying islands."

ALERT NO. 1 IN EFFECT

Gen. Short Considered This the Correct Order

When Short received his first warning of coming danger, Nov. 24, he put into effect alert No. 1 "against sabotage and uprising within the island with no threat from without." Since all the messages, as we have already seen, related to possible movements against places in Asia from three to four thousand miles away from Hawaii, Gen. Short considered that the emergency called for alert No. 1.

Hawaii had a very large Japanese population and the possibility of sabotage against American installations in the event of war with Japan even on some distant scene was a serious one. Gen. Short notified his superiors in Washington that he had set into effect alert No. 1.

On Nov. 27 Adm. Kimmel got a message from the navy warning him, as well as commanders at other bases, to take appropriate measures against sabotage. This was shown to Gen. Short. The same day Gen. Short, who had been ordered to report what measures he was taking, wired Washington describing everything he had done, including the ordering of alert No. 1.

He specifically stated that he had "alerted his command against sabotage" and that he was maintaining liaison with the navy. He got no reply to this, and at the Roberts commission he testified he considered the failure of his superiors in Washington to order a change constituted an approval of what he was doing. They understood thoroly what that was.

While the army did not specifically reply to his report on his disposition, Gen. Short the next day [Nov. 28] got a message from the adjutant general in Washington.

Situation Is "Critical."

This warned that the situation was critical and requiring him to take "at once every precaution against subversive activities, within the scope of the army's responsibilities; that all necessary measures be taken to protect military establishments, property, and equipment against sabotage, against propaganda affecting army personnel, and against all espionage."

The following day, Nov. 29, Gen. Short replied to the foregoing message outlining at length and in detail all the measures taken to prevent sabotage of military property and installations, etc. No reply to this was sent from Washington and the general testified that he believed this series of messages indicated clearly to him that he was doing precisely what his superiors wanted.

Referring to all this, the Roberts report says: The messages from Washington—warnings about attacks on Siam, the Kra peninsula, Malay, and perhaps Guam or the Philippines, along with the orders to alert against sabotage and the failure to reply to or criticize the measures adopted by Short and fully reported to Washington "did not create in the minds of the responsible officers in the Hawaii area apprehension as to probable imminence of air raids.

"On the contrary, they only served to emphasize in their minds the danger from sabotage and surprise submarine attack. The necessity for taking a state of war readiness which would have been required to avert or meet an air raid attack was not considered."

From all this the following is perfectly clear:

1. That while Gen. Short and Adm. Kimmel believed there was no possibility of an air or any other kind of attack on Pearl Harbor, that belief was created in their minds by the advices they received from their superiors in Washington, who believed precisely the same thing. For some strange reason the Roberts report holds that Kimmel and Short did not properly evaluate the seriousness of the situation. If that is true of them, was it not equally true of their superiors from whom they received all their information? The responsibility begins in Washington, which was the source of all the information Kimmel and Short got.

Only Internal Attack Seen.

2. Gen. Short ordered alert No. 1 which set in motion a variety of precautions against sabotage, internal propaganda, and damage to military and government installations on the Island of Oahu. He did this 13 days before Pearl Harbor. Twice he wired to his superiors a complete and detailed report of what he was doing. At no time in those 13 days did they reply ordering anything more serious. On the contrary, all of the dispatches to him and to Adm. Kimmel directed them to take precautions against sabotage and never once against external attack.

CONCLUSION OF REPORT

Two Commanders Revealed Sense of Security.

The Roberts report practically sustains this opinion. Paragraph 16 of its conclusions, referring to the alleged failure of Kimmel and Short to confer with respect to the meaning of the warnings received, said that this resulted "largely from a sense of security due to the opinion prevalent in diplomatic, military, and naval circles and in the public press that any immediate attack by Japan would be in the far east."

However, the Roberts report added this sentence: "The existence of such a view, however prevalent, did not relieve the commanders of the responsibility for the security of the Pacific fleet and our most important outpost."

This brings us to the most important feature of the whole situation. The question arises: Even tho Kimmel and Short did not expect an attack, why did they not, in view of the imminence of war, take the necessary measures to meet it upon the assumption that they might be wrong in their estimate of the situation? The answer to that helps us to fix finally the true responsibility for the whole tragic episode.

The President's Problem.

The President expected an attack, but he believed it would be on Thailand or Malay or possibly the Philippines, thousands of miles away from Hawaii. This is the way he had played his cards. He wanted an overt act by Japan.

He was at the moment head over heels in a foreign war, but would not admit it to the people. An attack somewhere in Asia, on Guam, or the Philippines, would change the situation. That would be an attack on the United States. Japan would be making war on us and we, of course, would have to make war on Japan.

In all that happened, he warned continuously that nothing must be done that could by any stretch of the imagination be construed as an overt or aggressive or hostile act by us.

Besides this, the army and navy necessarily had a plan in the event that war should actually come. That plan was based on the assumption that the attack would begin in the far east. We must assume that the position of our planes, our troops, and our ships at that moment was in accordance with the plans in Washington.

Navy Leader

Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, commander of Pacific fleet at time of attack on Pearl Harbor.

The battle fleet was in Pearl Harbor. The question has been asked why Kimmel did not move the battle fleet. No order can be found anywhere to move the battle fleet out of Pearl Harbor. It must be assumed that the position of the fleet there was in accordance with the plans of the Washington government.

A CLEAR RECORD

Hostile Action Not to Be Started by U. S.

None of this is a matter of surmise. Fortunately the records make it all perfectly clear. These messages imposed upon Gen. Short and Adm. Kimmel repeated injunctions to do nothing, to make no move that could possibly be construed as the beginning of a hostile action. On Nov. 24 a message was sent advising of a possible attack on the Philippines or Guam and that message, according to the Roberts report "enjoined secrecy to prevent complication of the tense existing situation."

On Nov. 27 Gen. Short was informed of the possible end of negotiations in Washington and the message added "that in the event hostilities could not be avoided the United States desired that this nation should not commit the first overt act."

So keen was Washington about this that the message directed him "even prior to hostile action, to undertake such reconnaissance and other measures as he deemed necessary, but to carry them out in such a way as not to alarm the civil population or disclose his intent.

Few Officers Informed.

"He was directed to restrict the information in the message to the minimum of essential officers and to report to the chief of staff the measures taken." Short communicated this message to Kimmel. Whatever Short did and whatever Kimmel did they were to do in such a way that not even their own officers, save the inner circle, would have any suspicion that they were preparing for hostile operations.

ALARM TO BE AVOIDED

Secrecy Demanded in All Steps Taken.

On Nov. 29 Short got another message warning him to take measures against sabotage and espionage and destruction of government property. Appended to that message were a few brief sentences which have been the subject of a great deal of curiosity and comment in military and naval circles. The precise words are not given in the Roberts report for some undisclosed reason.

The report summarizes it this way: "The message [to Short] disclaimed ordering any illegal measures [meaning war-like measures] and warned that protective measures should be confined to those essential to security so as to avoid unnecessary publicity and alarm." It is generally believed that these many directions about caution and secrecy came from the civil authorities in Washington, either the President or the secretary of state.

Here is the key to the whole behavior of the military and naval authorities in Hawaii. The President had been maneuvering for an overt act by Japan for many months. He now felt he had played his hand with skill and that it was about to come.

If it struck Malay, then the question would arise whether he should seek a declaration of war or limit himself to tightening sanctions and to blockading the far eastern ports with the American and British navies.

If the Philippines or Guam were hit it meant that the Japanese navy would be out at sea and the American and British navies would then engage it.

Must Avoid Provocation.

But under no circumstances should there be any move by the American navy or air force or army anywhere that could be construed as a provocative act or the first stage in an aggressive move by the United States. The political significance of this was essential to the President. And thus he and he alone, upon political considerations, was responsible for holding the military and naval proceedings in Hawaii and in the Philippines to such precautions as they could carry out with reasonable secrecy and without exciting any publicity or alarm.

Will any one suppose that the huge naval force assembled in Pearl Harbor could have been set in action and moved away without exciting "publicity or alarm?" Kimmel and Short were told even in their reconnaissance to be careful, to be prudent, to be secret. And that is why alert No. 1 was instituted and that is why Washington approved alert No. 1.

That is why, had Gen. Short gone further than Alert No. 1, he would have exceeded his orders from Washington and would undoubtedly have been reprimanded. And that is why, had Adm. Kimmel taken his naval force outside of Pearl Harbor, he would probably have been court-martialed for violating the orders of the government.

All that was done was done in complete compliance with the arrangements of the Washington government and of the President.

We must now face a very obvious and a very ugly fact. It is that the President made up his mind that now was the time for the showdown with Japan. And he led the country into a war in the Pacific against Japan unprepared.

What is even worse, he did not realize how pathetically unprepared we were and believed that he would wipe Japan out in a short war. He miscalculated on his diplomacy and he miscalculated on practically every aspect of the military and naval problem and he, not the army and navy, was responsible for this miscalculation.

Tragedy in Philippines.

We must keep in mind the fact that this Pacific war was not just a question of Pearl Harbor, but of the Philippines as well. The Philippine Islands certainly had no lack of warning. The attack there did not come until 12 hours after the attack on Pearl Harbor. The disaster there was just as great and far more tragic.

Let us look at the facts. The Roberts report had to admit: "It is true that we have found that due to the enormous demand on the nation's capacity to produce munitions and war supplies there was a deficiency in the provision of material for the Hawaii area."

The President had been pressing deeper and deeper into the war since June, 1940. Yet here, a year and a half later, Hawaii had not yet been adequately provided with means of defense.

The Roberts report records that Gen. Short "made numerous recommendations to the war and navy departments for additional forces, equipment, and funds which were deemed necessary to insure the defense of the Hawaii coastal frontier under any eventuality."

BIAS IN REPORT

Plenty of Defenses, but Not for Hawaii

These requests were ignored. A certain bias in the Roberts report is revealed when it gratuitously undertakes to pass on a matter it did not investigate, namely that these requests were not complied with because "there was a deficiency in the nation's capacity to produce," because of the "enormous demand on it." The nation produced plenty to defend Hawaii and, perhaps, the Philippines, but the supplies were shipped elsewhere.

It is difficult to believe now that the President, his secretaries of war and navy could believe that they were adequately prepared for war in the Pacific. But they clearly did.

Knox Was Confident.

Secretary Knox proclaimed loudly—and the boast appeared in the Sunday morning papers of Dec. 7, 1941—that the navy was ready, and he told a senator that in the event of war the United States navy would wipe out the Japanese navy in a few weeks.

On Nov. 24, Mr. Hull conveyed to the army and navy chiefs—the chief of staff and the chief of naval operations—that negotiations with Japan were at the breaking point and that they must expect war. Nowhere has the answer of the chief of staff or the chief of naval operations to Mr. Hull been reported.

What did these gentlemen say? It is pretty well known that these high-flown ideas of our preparedness to meet a Japanese attack were held by the President and his cabinet warriors and his palace guard. The army and the navy officially did not hold this view.

What Gen. Marshall and Adm. Stark told the President and the secretary of state ought to be inquired into and established to determine whether or not they shared the foolish sense of security held by the President.

PHILIPPINES' STATUS

Officials Told of Weak Defense of Islands.

It is unnecessary to discuss at any length the utter unpreparedness of the Philippines. Capt. Charles Darvell, arriving in the Philippines a few months before the attack, told the officials there: "You will understand, I am sure, if I say it is my belief that a sudden determined enemy attack would reduce the effectiveness of our present air force practically to zero." That is what happened.

Col. Allison Ind, in his book "Bataan, the Judgment Seat," has eloquently recorded the "pathetic nature" of the military and naval defense of the Philippine Islands. He spoke of "our pathetic little force against the armed might of Japan."

When Gen. Brereton was criticized for his handling of the planes in the Philippines, Gen. MacArthur said: "Gen. Brereton had only a token force which, excluding trainers and hopelessly obsolete planes, comprised but 30 bombers and 72 fighters."

Frazier Hunt, in "MacArthur and the War Against Japan," says:

"The adequate defense of this island sea [in the Philippines] was one of the vital parts of the whole defense plan. But it took proper equipment, big guns, trained forces, supplies, planes, boats—and plenty of money—to put it into being. All these were automatically shut off from MacArthur when the great decision was made to throw the full weight of America into the European war."

The airplane equipment of the Philippines was so pitifully small as to defy belief. There were 5 pursuit squadrons with 90 P-40s in commission. Col. Ind informs us there were 14 P-26s, obsolete, and 8 A-27s, but only two could fly off the ground.

At Clark field there were 35 P-17s and 11 B-18s poorly gunned and with very little armor. Col. Ind says: "We had no dive bombers. At best we had a few old A-27s, which might be used for this purpose. But repairs and replacements had been practically impossible to obtain ever since April. Every so often it was necessary to decommission one in order to secure the necessary replacement parts for the others.

"However, he had anxiously traced the reported progress of a vessel upon which 50 of the A-24 type, suitable for strafing and dive bombing, were en route. It would be a race to see which would arrive first—the A-24s or the Japanese. The Japanese won.

"Just a few days off its course this vessel, with its all-important and vitally needed cargo, was directed by radio orders to Australia."

PHILIPPINES NOT READY

Lack of Shelters Told by Manuel Quezon

A dispatch to the New York Times from Manila Nov. 29, 1941, said:

"Should war strike the Philippines now, it would find the civilian population unprepared and unprotected and thousands might be killed for lack of air raid shelters; President Manuel Quezon told students of the University of the Philippines in an address last night."

What happened in the Philippines is of a piece with what happened in Hawaii. In the summer of 1941 there were more than 200 consular agents attached to the Japanese embassy in Honolulu. Kimmel's intelligence officer objected to this to the army intelligence department and the federal bureau of investigation, suggesting that these agents be arrested for failing to register as agents of a foreign principal under the statute.

Criticized in Report.

Gen. Short objected to this until they had been given notice and an opportunity to register. For this the Roberts report criticizes him.

To cap this incredible record of blundering, the President literally opened the doors to the attacks on the Philippines and Hawaii by sending half of the Pacific fleet out of the Pacific into the Atlantic. In pursuance of his policy in Europe he had joined Britain in the occupation of Iceland and began to convoy British and Canadian and later American ships with United States naval vessels.

The task of supplying the army in Iceland, along with the convoys, imposed a heavy tax upon our naval facilities and just about the time when he had definitely made up his mind that we would have war in the Pacific he took away half of the fleet.

NEED TWO OCEAN NAVY

Captain Warned of Peril with One Fleet.

Capt. W. D. Paulson, retired and called back to active duty, is the author of a book entitled "The Armed Forces in the Pacific." He said that our fleet was stronger, more aggressive and better trained than the Japanese. But, he wrote, "until the two ocean navy is completed the navy should concentrate in one fleet and keep it in one ocean. At their present strength the Atlantic and Pacific fleet would need to be brought together before undertaking a major campaign in either ocean."

He urged keeping the American navy at full strength in one ocean. He said that to divide the fleet and attempt to unite them after hostilities would be pure folly with Japan as a political enemy, for she took full advantage of a similar mistake by Russia in 1904.

Now with war looming as a practical certainty in the Pacific and "a major campaign" facing us in that ocean, the President not only ignored the importance of uniting the Atlantic and Pacific fleets but actually took half of the Pacific fleet out of the Pacific ocean and sent it to the Atlantic.

Ultimatum and Vacation.

Having done that, he proceeded to "baby" Japan for three months and then sent her an ultimatum which meant war, and war at once. And then he went off on a vacation.

Thus we see that every shred of the thesis upon which Kimmel and Short have been indicted and damned without a hearing or a trial or even the right to make a statement is swept away. The assumption that we were at peace, everybody knows now to be false.

The assumption that we were seeking to establish peace in the Pacific, offering Japan everything she could wish in the midst of which efforts we suffered a "surprise" attack—a stab in the back—is a pure invention and everybody knows it.

FALSE ASSUMPTION

All as Blind to Danger as Kimmel and Short

The assumption that Kimmel and Short were adequately warned of a surprise attack on Hawaii is shown to be completely false, since none of the men who were supposed to have warned them, from the President down, believed there would be such an attack.

And finally, the assumption that our misfortunes in the Pacific were the result of Kimmel's and Short's failure to obey orders is equally a fraud, since they not only did not disobey orders but complied explicitly with the requirements of the government in Washington and were bound hand and foot from any effective action by the precautions imposed on them by the President himself in pursuance of his political policy.

Finally, the true source of all the disasters in the Pacific—the crippling of the fleet at Pearl Harbor, the loss of 3,000 men in a morning, the shocking disaster in the Philippines and the long, agonized suffering of our defenseless army on Bataan and Corregidor with the subsequent conquests of the whole Southwest Pacific by the Japanese—are to be traced to the blundering diplomacy and the equally blundering military policy of the President in the east.

And not the least disgraceful feature of this episode is the manner in which the high commanding officers of the United States army and navy have been crucified in order to shield the guilt of the President.

tation of the "record," he stopped and said, grinning:

"I have another half-sentence in my printed copy but you got the point and I'm not going to use it!"

Names Bring Boos.

The President's mention of the names of Sen. Nye and Rep. Fish was greeted with loud boos and his blast at the "isolationist press" also drew hisses and boos as he read the names of McCormick, Patterson, Hearst, and Gannett.

Another of the President's interpolations was that he occupied the "curious position of being President of the United States and candidate for President at the same time." He was buoyant at the finish, smiling broadly as he was again shifted to the wheel chair and departed amidst cheers.

The President in his speech preceded his denunciations of isolationists by asserting that he was going to speak without losing his temper or his head.

Sen. Johnson, who "killed international coöperation" in 1920, would be chairman of the senate foreign relations committee in the event of Republican victory in the senate this year, he noted, and hoped the voters would bear that in mind.

World Court Ignored.

Isolationists "scuttled" the strength of the navy, he continued, and handed over some of the navy's resources to private industry in "the unforgettable case of Teapot Dome." There was "snarling" at our former allies and the world court was "rejected or ignored."

Mentioning Nye, Martin, and Fish, he asked if any one supposed such men had changed their minds about world affairs. He interjected at this point that he was proud of the opposition of the "isolationist press—and I mean specifically the McCormick-Patterson-Hearst-Gannett press."

TEXT OF SPEECH

"Tonight I am speaking as a guest of the Foreign Policy association—a distinguished organization composed of Americans of all shades of political opinion.

"I am going to talk about our American policy.

"I am talking without rancor or snap judgment.

"I am speaking without losing my temper or losing my head.

"When the first World war was ended, I believed—I believe now—that enduring peace in the world has not a chance unless this nation is willing to coöperate in winning it and maintaining it. I thought then—I know now—that we have to back our words with deeds.

Opportunity Knocks Again.

"A quarter of a century ago we helped to save our freedom but we failed to organize the kind of world in which future generations could live in freedom. Opportunity knocks again. There is no guarantee that it will knock a third time.

"Today, Hitler and the Nazis continue the fight—desperately, inch by inch, and may continue to do so all the way to Berlin.

A Texas Storm

Gale Storm, Houston, Tex., beauty, who proved that a contest winner could rise to stardom in pictures.

"And we have another important engagement in Tokyo. No matter how long or hard the road we must travel, our forces will fight their way there under the leadership of MacArthur and Nimitz.

"All of our thinking about foreign policy in this war must be conditioned by the fact that millions of our American boys are today fighting, many thousands of miles from home, for the defense of our country and the perpetuation of our American ideals. And there are still many hard and bitter battles to be fought.

Principle Hasn't Changed.

"The leaders of this nation have always held that concern for our national security does not end at our borders. President Monroe and every American President following him were prepared to use force, if necessary, to assure the independence of other American nations threatened by aggressors from across the seas.

"The principle has not changed, tho the world has. Wars are no longer fought from horseback, or from the decks of sailing ships.

"It was with recognition of that fact that in 1933 we took, as the basis for our foreign relations the good neighbor policy—the principle of the neighbor who, resolutely respecting himself, equally respects the rights of others.

"We and the other American republics have made the good neighbor policy real in this hemisphere. It is my conviction that this policy can be, and should be, made universal.

Practice What We Preach.

"At inter-American conferences, beginning at Montevideo in 1933, and continuing down to date, we have made it clear to this hemisphere that we pratice what we preach.

"Our action in 1934 with respect to Philippine independence was another step in making good the same philosophy which animated the good neighbor policy.

"As I said two years ago: 'I like to think that the history of the Philippine Islands in the last 44 years provides in a very real sense a pattern for the future of other small nations and peoples of the world. It is a pattern of what men of good will look forward to in the future.'

"I cite another early action in the field of foreign policy of which I am proud. That was the recognition in 1933 of soviet Russia.

Means of Communication.

"For 16 years before then the American people and the Russian people had no practical means of communicating with each other. We reëstablished those means. And today we are fighting with the Russians against common foes—and we know that the Russian contribution to victory has been, and will continue to be, gigantic.

"However, certain politicians, now very prominent in the Republican party, have condemned our recognition.

"I am impelled to wonder how Russia would have survived against German attack if these same people had had their way.

"After the last war—in the political campaign of 1920—the isolationist old guard professed to be enthusiastic about international coöperation.

"While campaigning for votes in 1920, Sen. Harding said that he favored with all his heart an association of nations 'so organized and so participated in as to make the actual attainment of peace a reasonable possibility.'

Never Heard of Again.

"However, after President Harding's election, the association of nations was never heard of again.

"One of the leading isolationists who killed international coöperation in 1920 was Sen. Hiram Johnson. In the event of Republican victory in the senate this year—1944—that same Sen. Johnson would be chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. I know the American voters will bear that in mind.

"During the years which followed 1920, the foreign policy of the Republican administrations was dominated by the heavy hand of isolationism.

"Much of the strength of our navy was scuttled—and some of the navy's resources were handed over to friends in private industry—as in the unforgettable case of Teapot Dome.

"Tariff walls went higher and higher—blocking international trade.

"There was snarling at our former allies and at the same time encouragement was given to American finance to invest two and one-half billion dollars in Germany, our former enemy.

"All petitions that this nation join in the world court were rejected or ignored.

"After this administration took office, Secretary Hull and I replaced high tariffs with a series of reciprocal trade agreements under a statute of the congress. The Republicans opposed these agreements—and tried to stop the extension of the law every three years.

Oppose World Court.

"In 1935 I asked the congress to join the world court. The Democrats in the senate voted for it 43 to 20. The Republicans voted against it 14 to 9. Thus we were prevented from obtaining the necessary two-thirds majority.

"In 1937 I asked that aggressor nations be quarantined—and for this I was branded by isolationists in and out of public office as an 'alarmist' and 'war monger.'

"From that time on, as you well know, I made clear by repeated messages to the American congress and by repeated statements to the American people the danger threatening from abroad—and the need of rearming to meet it.

"In July, 1939, I tried to obtain a repeal of the arms embargo provisions in the neutrality law which tied our hands against selling arms to the European democracies for defense against Hitler.

Cites Borah Remark.

"The late Sen. Borah told a group, which I called together in the White House, that his own private information from abroad was better than that of the state department—and that there would be no war in Europe.

"And it was made plain to Mr. Hull and me that, because of the isolationist vote, we could not possibly hope to attain the desired revision of the neutrality law.

"This fact was also made plain to Adolf Hitler. A few weeks later he brutally attacked Poland—and the second World war had begun.

"In 1941, this administration proposed and the congress passed, in spite of isolationist opposition, the lend-lease law—a practical and dramatic notice to the world that we intended to help those nations resisting aggression.

"These days—and I am now speaking of October, 1944—I hear voices on the air attacking me for my 'failure' to prepare this nation for this war and to warn the

Denies He Has Committed U. S. to Secret Deals.

Vision and Courage.

"These same voices were not so very audible five years ago — or even four years ago—giving warning of the grave peril which we then faced.

"There have been, and there still are, in the Republican party distinguished men and women of vision and courage, both in and out of public office, who have vigorously supported our aid to our allies and all the measures that we took to build up our national defense. And many of these Republicans have rendered magnificent services to our country in this war as members of this administration. I am happy that one of these distinguished Americans is our great secretary of war—Henry Stimson.

"Let us remember that this very war might have been averted if Mr. Stimson's views had prevailed when, in 1931, the Japanese ruthlessly attacked Manchuria.

"The majority of the Republican members of the congress voted against the selective service law in 1940; they voted against repeal of the arms embargo in 1939; they voted against the lend-lease law in 1941 and they voted in August, 1941, against extension of selective service—which meant voting against keeping our army together—four months before Pearl Harbor.

Going by the Record.

"I am quoting history to you. I am going by the record. And I am giving you the whole story and not merely a phrase here and half a phrase there picked out of context in such a way that they distort the facts.

"I happen to believe that, even in a political campaign, we should all obey that ancient injunction—thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.

"The question of the men who will formulate and carry out the foreign policy of this country is in issue in this election—very much in issue. It is in issue not in terms of partisan application but in terms of sober, solemn facts—the facts that are on the record.

Positions of Influence.

"If the Republicans were to win control of the congress in this election, inveterate isolationists would occupy positions of commanding influence and power.

"I have already spoken of the ranking Republican member of the senate foreign relations committee, Sen. Hiram Johnson.

"One of the most influential members of the senate foreign relations committee—a man who also would be the chairman of the powerful senate committee on appropriations—is Sen. Gerald P. Nye.

"In the house of representatives the man who is the present leader of the Republicans there, and who undoubtedly would be speaker is Joseph W. Martin. He voted against the repeal of the arms embargo, against the lend-lease bill, against the extension of the selective service law, against the arming of merchant ships, and against the reciprocal trade agreements act, and their extensions.

"The chairman of the powerful committee on rules would be none other than Hamilton Fish.

Campaigning for G. O. P.

"There are many others like them in the congress of the United States—and every one of them is now actively campaigning for the national Republican ticket this year.

"Can any one really suppose that these isolationists have changed their minds about world affairs? Politicians who embraced the policy of isolationism—or who never raised their voices against it in our days of peril—are not reliable custodians of the future of America.

"There have been Democrats in the isolationist camp but they have been few and far between, and they have not attained positions of leadership.

"And I am proud of the fact that this administration does not have the support of the isolationist press—and I mean specifically the McCormick - Patterson - Hearst-Gannett press.

Great National Debates.

"The American people have gone thru great national debates in the recent critical years. They were soul searching debates. They reached from every city to every village and to every home.

"We debated our principles and our determination to aid those fighting for freedom.

"Obviously, we could have come to terms with Hitler, and accepted a minor role in his totalitarian world. We rejected that!

"We could have compromised with Japan, and bargained for a place in a Japanese-dominated Asia by selling out the heart's blood of the Chinese people. And we rejected that!

World Leadership.

"The decision not to bargain with the tyrants rose from the hearts and souls and sinews of the American people. They faced reality; they appraised reality; and they knew what freedom meant.

"The power which this nation has attained—the moral, the political, the economic, and the military power—has brought to us the responsibility, and with it the opportunity, for leadership in the community of nations. In our own best interest, and in the name of peace and humanity, this nation cannot, must not, and will not shirk that responsibility.

"There are some who hope to see a structure of peace, completely set up immediately, with all the apartments assigned to every one's satisfaction, with the telephones in, the plumbing complete, the heating system, and the electric ice boxes functioning perfectly, all furnished with linen and silver—and with the rent prepaid.

"The united nations have not yet produced such a comfortable dwelling place. But we have achieved a very practical expression of a common purpose on the part of four great nations, who are now united to wage this war, that they will embark together after the war on a greater and more difficult enterprise—that of waging peace. We will embark on it with all the peace loving nations of the world—large and small.

Organize Without Delay.

"Our objective, as I stated 10 days ago, is to complete the organization of the united nations without delay and before hostilities actually cease.

"Peace, like war, can succeed only where there is a will to enforce it, and where there is available power to enforce it.

"The council of the united nations must have the power to act quickly and decisively to keep the peace by force, if necessary. A policeman would not be a very effective policeman if, when he saw a felon break into a house, he had to go to the town hall and call a town meeting to issue a warrant before the felon could be arrested.

"It is clear that, if the world organization is to have any reality at all, our representative must be endowed in advance by the people themselves, by constitutional means thru their representatives in the congress, with authority to act.

"If we do not catch the international felon when we have our hands on him, if we let him get away with his loot because the town council has not passed an ordinance authorizing his arrest, then we are not doing our share to prevent another world war. The people of the nation want their government to act, and not merely to talk, whenever and wherever there is a threat to world peace.

Wash Our Hands.

"We cannot attain our great objectives by ourselves. Never again, after coöperating with other nations in a world war to save our way of life, can we wash our hands of maintaining the peace for which we fought.

"The Dumbarton Oaks conference did not spring up overnight. It was called by Secretary Hull and me after years of thought, discussion, preparation and consultation with our allies. Our state department did a splendid job in preparing for the conference and leading it to a successful termination. It was another chapter in the long process of coöperation with other peace loving nations—beginning with the Atlantic Charter conference, and continuing thru conferences at Casablanca, Moscow, Cairo, Teheran, Quebec, and Washington.

"It is my profound conviction that the American people as a whole have a very real understanding of these things.

"The American people know that Cordell Hull and I are thoroly conversant with the Constitution of the United States and know that we cannot commit this nation to any secret treaties or any secret guarantees which are in violation of that Constitution.

"After my return from Teheran, I stated officially that no secret commitments had been made. The issue then is between my veracity and the continuing assertions of those who have no responsibility in the foreign field — or, perhaps I should say, a field foreign to them.

Collaboration of People.

"No President of the United States can make the American contribution to preserve the peace without the constant, alert, and conscious collaboration of the American people.

"Only the determination of the people to use the machinery gives worth to the machinery.

"We believe that the American people have already made up their minds on this great issue; and this administration has been able to press forward confidently with its plans.

"The very fact that we are now at work on the organization of the peace proves that the great nations are committed to trust in each other. Put this proposition any way you will, it is bound to come out the same way; we either work with the other great nations, or we might some day have to fight them and I am against that.

Friendly Human Relations.

"The kind of world order we the peace loving nations must achieve, must depend essentially on friendly human relations, on acquaintance, on tolerance, on unassailable sincerity and good will and good faith. We have achieved that relationship to a remarkable degree in our dealings with our allies in this war—as the events of the war have proved.

"It is a new thing in human history for allies to work together, as we have done—so closely, so harmoniously and effectively in the fighting of a war, and—at the same time—in the building of the peace.

"If we fail to maintain that relationship in the peace—if we fail to expand it and strengthen it—then there will be no lasting peace.

"As for Germany, that tragic nation which has sown the wind and is now reaping the whirlwind—we and our allies are entirely agreed that we shall not bargain with the Nazi conspirators, or leave them a shred of control—open or secret—of the instruments of government.

No Military Power.

"We shall not leave them a single element of military power—or of potential military power.

"But I should be false to the very foundations of my religious and political convictions, if I should ever relinquish the hope—and even the faith—that in all peoples, without exception, there live some instinct for truth, some attraction toward justice, and some passion for peace—buried as they may be in the German case under a brutal regime.

"We bring no charge against the German race, as such, for we cannot believe that God has eternally condemned any race of humanity. For we know in our own land how many good men and women of German ancestry have proved loyal, freedom loving, peace loving citizens.

"There is going to be stern punishment for all those in Germany directly responsible for this agony of mankind.

"The German people are not going to be enslaved—because the united nations do not traffic in human salvery. But it will be necessary for them to earn their way back into the fellowship of peace loving and law abiding nations. And, in their climb up that steep road, we shall certainly see to it that they are not encumbered by having to carry guns. They will be relieved of that burden—we hope, forever.

Task Won't Be Easy.

"The task ahead of us will not be easy. Indeed it will be as difficult and complex as any task which has ever faced an American administration.

"I will not say to you now, or ever, that we of my party know all the answers. I am certain, for myself, that I do not know how all the unforseeable difficulties can be met. What I can say to you is this—that I have unlimited faith that the job can be done. And that faith is based on knowledge gained in the arduous, practical and continuing experience of these past eventful years.

"I speak to the present generation of Americans with reverent participation in its sorrows and in its hopes. No generation has undergone a greater test, or has met that test with greater heroism and greater wisdom, and no generation has had a more exalted mission.

"For this generation must act not only for itself, but as a trustee for all those who fell in the last war—a part of their mission unfulfilled.

The Supreme Price.

"It must act also for all who have paid the supreme price in this war—lest their mission, too, be betrayed.

"And finally it must act for the generations to come—which must be granted a heritage of peace.

"I do not exaggerate that mission. We are not fighting for, and we shall not achieve, utopia. Indeed, in our own land, the work to be done is never finished. We have yet to realize the full and equal enjoyment of our freedom. So, in embarking on the building of a world fellowship, we have set ourselves to a long and arduous task, which will challenge our patience, our intelligence, our imagination, as well as our faith.

"That task requires the judgment of a seasoned and a mature people. And this the American people have become. We shall not again be thwarted in our will to live as a mature nation, confronting limitless horizons. We shall bear our full responsibility, exercise our full influence, and bring our full help and encouragement to all who aspire to peace and freedom.

"We now are, and we shall continue to be, strong brothers in the family of mankind—the family of the children of God."

RAIN DAMPENS ROOSEVELT BID FOR N. Y. VOTES

Crowd in Ball Park Falls Below Expectations.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—Braving a cold, pelting rain which soaked him to the skin, President Roosevelt today drove thru 50 miles of streets in an open car, presenting himself to the public in his first vote seeking expedition of the fourth term campaign.

Mr. Roosevelt was said to have flouted the advice of Rear Adm. Ross T. McIntyre, his personal physician, who counseled a closed car in view of the miserable weather conditions. The chief executive huddled himself in a navy cape, donned a pearl gray fedora, and sat hunched under the downpour in the rear seat of a big touring car with his pet scottie, Fala, perched near him.

Complete Change of Clothing.

The tour was stopped after the President had spoken a few words before a comparatively sparse attendance at Ebbets field, the Brooklyn baseball stadium, to enable him to make a complete change of clothing. The drive then continued in the open car.

Mr. Roosevelt was apparently determined to challenge all doubts about his health which have been raised during the campaign. At the baseball park, he left his car to stand before a microphone and voice a tribute to Sen. Wagner [D., N. Y.], who is seeking reëlection. In his sole previous speech outside the White House, before the teamsters union in the Statler hotel, Washington, he had remained seated in a wheelchair while he spoke.

The President's defiance of the elements was not matched by New Yorkers. The crowds along the lengthy itinerary were disappointing to Democratic leaders. The audience at Ebbets field did not reach 20,000 where a capacity crowd of more than 30,000 had been expected.

Rooted for Dodgers.

"I wanted to come here for two reasons," Mr. Roosevelt told this gathering. "I've never before been in Ebbets field. I've rooted for the Dodgers. I hope to come back and see them play sometime.

"The chief reason was to pay a little tribute to my old friend, Bob Wagner. We were together in the legislature 30 some years ago. We've been close friends ever since, largely because we have the same ideals of being of service to our fellow men."

Mr. Roosevelt delivered these words with his thin locks bared to the rain after he had left his car to stand before a microphone erected upon a stand specially built for the purpose. His voice was strong except at one point where a quaver was noted. His face appeared pinched and drawn.

Extraordinary precautions were taken to safeguard the President on this, his first public expedition since Pearl Harbor when the route has been announced in advance. His special railroad train was parked upon its arrival at 7 a. m. from Washington in the army base in Brooklyn. Carloads of secret service men preceded and followed him.

30 Cars in Procession.

About 30 limousines were in the motorcade which went first to the huge Brooklyn navy yard where 47,000 workers on the day shift paused momentarily to cheer the President.

Mrs. Roosevelt joined the President at the navy yard and sat beside him during the remainder of the trip. She wore a purple topcoat, a purple hat, was soon drenched, and appeared unhappy except when she put on a smile for photographers.

The parade of automobiles proceeded the borough of Queens, where those who lined the way were noticeably apathetic. Polls show a heavy Dewey majority in this area.

In the Bronx, the next borough visited, the crowds were bigger and more enthusiastic. The Presidential car stopped at the women's reserve naval training school at Hunter college, which has turned out 65,000 WAVES since Feb. 8, 1943.

Moves Thru Harlem.

The parade wound its way thru Harlem, the Negro district, where the watchers were loudly cordial in their greetings, and down Broadway, thru the heart of Manhattan, where the Saturday afternoon crowds applauded.

Since the tour was for avowedly political purposes, speculation arose among reporters following the President whether he was doffing the role of candidate for reëlection and assuming that of commander in chief when he visited the Brooklyn navy yard and inspected the WAVEs.

3 MOVIE STARS TO BE HERE FOR DEWEY SPEECH

Hollywood stars will be included in the entertainment program that will precede the address of Gov. Dewey of New York, Republican nominee for President, and other candidates in the Chicago Stadium massmeeting next Wednesday evening.

Barbara Stanwyck, Adolphe Menjou, and Eddie Bracken, movie comedian, will be among the entertainers in the program that will start soon after the Stadium doors are opened at 6:45 p. m. Billy Carr will be master of ceremonies and introduce the Morgan park glee club; Enrico Clausi, of the Boston and St. Louis opera; Jessie Rosella, musical comedy star, and Tom Brennan, Irish tenor.

Mrs. Irene B. Reidy, Cook county Republican chairwoman, said the three Hollywood stars will arrive in Chicago on the Santa Fe Chief at 1:25 p. m. Tuesday.

Photos to Be Handed Out.

Autographed photographs of Gov. Dewey will be given to every person in the Stadium audience, Cook County Chairman George Fisher announced. The Stadium will be decorated with Dewey-Bricker banners and pictures of state and county candidates. Fisher said tickets had been issued thru party leaders but that, with the exception of a few seats reserved for officials, the Stadium will be filled on a "first come, first served" basis.

Gov. Dewey's Stadium address will be part of a final drive by the Republican state and county organizations that has stepped up ward and township meetings to nearly a score daily and will utilize radio time with headline candidates alternating in nightly broadcasts.

Women's Rally on Oct. 27.

Following close on Gov. Dewey's appearance here will be a huge women's rally to be held at 10:30 a. m. Oct. 27 in the grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel. Gov. Green will attend the rally, at which Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for United States senator, will speak on behalf of state candidates, and John T. Dempsey, state's attorney nominee, will represent county and municipal court candidates. Also appearing on the program will be three Illinois women legislators, Lottie Holman O'Neill, Bernice T. Vander Vries, and Maud Peffers.

Part of the rally program, entitled "Women's Political Viewpoint," will be a broadcast over the Blue network. Participating will be Mrs. Katherine Brown, national committeewoman for Ohio; Mrs. Horace H. Sayre, national committeewoman for Oklahoma; Mrs. A. F. Rohlfing, past president of the Illinois Home bureau, and Mrs. Ada Muckleston, chairman of the Veterans' Women's division of Chicago. Zasu Pitts, stage and screen star, will be mistress of ceremonies for the broadcast.

DEWEY PREPARES FOR INVASION OF MIDWEST CITIES

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 21. — Gov. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, returned here from Pittsburgh this morning and this afternoon was conferring with his researchers in preparation for departure on Monday for a stumping tour of the midwest. He will speak Tuesday night in Minneapolis, Minn., and Wednesday night in Chicago. Dewey on Wednesday morning will spend three hours in Milwaukee with Wisconsin leaders.

The subjects for next week's speeches have not been announced but one of them, probably in Minneapolis, is expected to cover the agricultural program proposed for a Republican administration, including the liberation of the American farmer from regimentation and burocratic red tape.

In addition to the Minneapolis and Chicago meetings, Dewey's other commitments for the final two weeks of the campaign are Oct. 31 in Buffalo, N. Y.; Nov. 1 in Boston; Nov. 4 in New York City's Madison Square Garden, and Nov. 6, the night before election, in a radio studio.

BRICKER WOULD HELP NEEDY TO HELP AMERICA

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 21 (AP).—Neither the Democratic nor the Republican party, Gov. Bricker said tonight, can claim "exclusive credit" for the progress of social legislation. Rather, the Republican candidate for Vice President said, the credit is due to "the faith and the charity of the American people."

"The New Deal," he added, "would have us believe that until it came to power no interest was ever shown in social legislation or the welfare of the common man." He said both parties had helped.

He urged a program which would help the needy without perpetuating the causes of need. He said he hoped to "discourage intolerance" and "press forward toward an ideal more precious than security—American opportunity."

Tomorrow Bricker and Mrs. Bricker will attend a broadcast of the choir in Mormon tabernacle, Salt Lake City.

that Hillman asked and procured from "Pardon Me" Poletti, the acting governor of New York, a pardon for the arsonist, Alexander Hoffman, despite the fact that Hoffman had three previous convictions. Hoffman was an official of one of Hillman's locals, convicted of placing incendiary pellets in garments sent to a nonunion cleaner and dyer.

Hillman's connection with Communists have been even more notorious than his connections with gangsters. He was an early pilgrim to Lenin's Moscow, where he concoted schemes for a chain of Russian garment factories financed by Americans, and for kidnaping American labor unions from the AFL for the Communists. Both flopped. Hillman knew the Communists too well ever to let them into his own union. His coöperation was in other fields.

In 1940, when the Communists were accusing Mr. Roosevelt of trying to put the United States into an "imperialist" war, Hillman tried to run them out of the CIO. This year, when they were demanding that American lives be sacrificed on a second front to ease the pressure on his native Russia, he combined forces with them to grab control of the American Labor party in New York.

That brings Sidney up to date. Of his collaborators, the record of Earl Browder, draft dodger, twice a convict, is well known. So is that of Harry Bridges, the alien Communist who runs the PAC on the Pacific coast, whose deportation has been made a political football for years by Atty. Gen. Biddle.

Less well known is Ferdinand Smith. He is a Jamaican who came to this country 25 years ago and has been active since in Communist party affairs and the Communist controled National Maritime union. Altho Smith was never naturalized, and thus cannot vote, he is the man the PAC and the NMU have picked to tell Negroes that they should vote for Roosevelt.

These are some of the men you must vote for if you vote for Roosevelt. He is the indispensable man to them, but they are equally indispensable to him. When Hillman, Browder & Co. got control of the American Labor party Mr. Roosevelt became their political prisoner.

Mr. Roosevelt is also, as Gov. Dewey has said, indispensable to others. He is indispensable to the administrative incompetents like Morgenthau, Ickes, Hopkins, and Madame Perkins, and to the junior tyrant, Biddle. He is indispensable to the slot machine Democrats. The Hannegan, Guffey, Kelly, Hague, Crump, and Pendergast machines of gamblers and vote stealers need his indulgence in the matter of investigations by the justice and treasury departments. He is indispensable to Dan Tobin, to coattail riders like Sen. Green of Rhode Island, who used force to purge the Supreme court of his state and is now using a congressional committee to harass foes of the fourth term, and to blatherskites like La Guardia and Pepper.

But Mr. Roosevelt and Hillman, Browder & Co. are mutually indispensable. Mr. Roosevelt is a slick enough politician to recognize that the communist taint damns him with the majority of voters, hence his soft denial, which stopped well short of repudiation, of their support. His press has sought to cloud the issue by talking about the puny number of avowed Communists. That is a favorite argument also with Dan Tobin, who told an AFL convention a few years ago, in the course of one of his cyclical orations, that there were not enough Communists in the United States to break up a Sunday school picnic.

There weren't enough Communists in Russia in the spring of 1917 to break up a Sunday school picnic either, when a group of old-fashioned liberals and Socialists deposed the czar. But before the end of that year the Communists had taken over Russia. They have ruled it for a generation, and there still are only about 3 million Communist party members among 180 million Russians.

The Communist party, even when it gets on top, is a minority. It is a hard, fanatical, unscrupulous, rigidly disciplined political machine. Until it succeeds in destroying representative government it participates in representative elections. It plays for the sucker vote, but it doesn't let the suckers into the party. If it sees that it can make no headway under its own name it changes its name, as it did recently in the United States. The Communists are not concerned with numbers. They have their eyes on power and positions from which power can be exerted.

It thus is wholly immaterial that the proportion of Communists in the United States is even smaller than the proportion in Russia. What counts is the positions from which they can exert power. The keystone of communist power in this campaign is the American Labor party.

New York has the biggest bloc of electoral votes—47. Mr. Roosevelt cannot reasonably hope to be reëlected without them. There have not been enough Democratic voters in New York state to win an election by themselves since 1936. In 1938 Dewey got more Republican votes for governor than Lehman got Democratic votes. In 1940 Willkie got more Republican votes than Roosevelt got Democratic votes. What saved Lehman and Roosevelt was the ALP. It holds the balance of power.

When the Communists and Hillman grabbed control of the ALP early this year, controling as it did the balance of power in New York state, and possibly in the nation as well, they made themselves the political jailers of Mr. Roosevelt. Like their boss, Stalin, the Communists don't support candidates or causes out of friendship or admiration. There must be a quid pro quo. The pay-off began when Sen. Truman had to be cleared with Sidney at Chicago.

The Communists can get what they are working for only in a weak and confused America. It must be weaker and more confused than it was in 1932. They tried then and didn't get to first base. That experience taught them that they can never get anywhere in this country under their own name. They must have a front. Mr. Roosevelt is indispensable.

To achieve a communist America power and more power must be concentrated in the central government, to be wielded by themselves and their fellow travelers. It is not necessary, for the present, that this power be lodged in competent hands. Rather the contrary. Such administrators as Ickes and Madame Perkins endear themselves to the plotters, regardless of ideology, merely because of their inimitable talent for getting things fouled up.

The controls will not work, but they are not supposed to work. The Communists' purpose is served if they prevent industry and business from functioning efficiently. The pattern is simple. Employers' profits are to be taken from them and their capital impaired by heavy taxation, so that they will be unable to develop new products and make new jobs. They will be required to run their businesses, not as their own wisdom and experience tell them they should be run, but as the Washington incompetents tell them to run them. When chaos and mass unemployment occur, as they must under such interference, the cry will be raised that private enterprise has failed and that the government must take over to protect the people. The Communists will be inside the government when it takes over. Many of them are there now, and Sidney will clear the way for others if the fourth term is won.

Hillman, Browder & Co. can be callous about taxing the broken strength of the President with the rigors of the campaign and can even look forward to his possible breakdown. The weaker he becomes, the less efficiently government will be operated, since he has jealously centered all lines of command in himself. If there is a total breakdown, the palace guard is ready to act in his name in the interregnum. If he should die, Truman has already been cleared with Sidney.

ELECTION BETS.

In a story from St. Louis last week it was stated that a betting broker with a midwestern trade has made Roosevelt a 1 to 3 favorite to win the election. That means that the man who thinks Roosevelt is going to win has to put up $3 to win $1 if the President gets a fourth term.

Betting on Presidential elections is an old story. When the feeling is high, the race is close, and money is plentiful, the betting is heaviest. Thus, the election in the past that attracted the heaviest betting was the exceedingly close contest between Wilson and Hughes in 1916, with the Wilson backers declaring that "he kept us out of war," Teddy Roosevelt lambasting the President for failure to prepare the country for war, and the country drunk with the prosperity of a war in which we weren't fighting.

The betting odds have not always correctly foretold the winner. Cleveland, The Tribune files show, was the favorite at 8 to 10 on election eve in 1888, but Harrison beat him by 233 electoral votes to 168. Harrison was backed at 9 to 10 in the following election, but this time Cleveland won an even more decisive victory. McKinley was a sure thing over Bryan, both in 1896 and 1900, as the 1 to 10 bets indicated. The odds correctly indicated the outcome in 1904, 1908, and 1912, but in 1916 Hughes lost, altho the consensus of the bettors, as reflected in the odds of 8 to 10, was that he would win.

Harding got 61 per cent of the vote and 404 electors to 127 for Cox, but he was only a 1 to 5 cinch when the polls opened. Coolidge was at 1 to 50 the night before the balloting, tho he got only 54 per cent of the votes and only 382 votes in the electoral college, against 136 for John W. Davis.

In 1928 Hoover closed at 1 to 10 against Al Smith, but THE TRIBUNE told of bets being placed a few days before election at 8 to 1 that Hoover would not get 351 electoral votes and at 15 to 1 that he would get fewer than 400. He actually got 444, so that some long shot bettors collected plenty.

Roosevelt was backed at 1 to 5 to beat Hoover in 1932 and did—472 to 59. In 1936, Roosevelt swept the country in a whirlwind, with 523 votes in the electoral college to Landon's 8, but was only worth 1 to 2 in the election betting. In 1940 the winners had to place $3 on Roosevelt's nose to make a profit of $1.

What all of this adds up to is that election bets sometimes have and sometimes have not shown who the winner was going to be. In elections which were close, the odds have sometimes backed the wrong candidate. In elections which were not close the odds were frequently not a fair measure of the outcome. The betting odds are determined by the amount of money offered on each candidate in a sort of informal mutuel system. One important reason why the odds today favor Roosevelt is that he is the candidate of the corrupt city machines and the gambling fraternity they protect. The bettors don't know any more about it than the pollers. What do the gamblers have that the Literary Digest did not have?

WASHINGTON SQUIRRELS.

[Memphis Commercial Appeal.]

Dodging in and out of the news for the last few weeks have been accounts of the unprecedented increase in the number of squirrels in Washington, our nation's capital as the radio boys say, and of the inability of the authorities to run them away. It seems that the squirrel population of Washington began to grow some years ago and has mounted steadily since, along with the increase in the number of federal employes. It is frankly a puzzle, and there is no explanation from any impartial, unbiased source, altho there is a Republican who dismisses it all with the curt statement that "squirrels know best."

THE ORIGIN OF NEWS

[Following is the address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

The word "news" is one of the oldest in our language, altho it did not have the meaning that was attached to it—not far from where I am speaking—some 50 years ago.

It would be a waste of your time to discuss news under primitive conditions or in the classic ages. Our interest begins in the dark ages from which our present civilization has evolved. At that time the rulers were the only gatherers and disseminators of news. Of the various ways in which they gathered news we know little, but we do know that they disseminated what they thought to their advantage for others to believe.

This concept has never died, and altho the coercions which were used to force conformity upon the spreaders of news have been greatly modified, they and their corollary, bribery, still persist. The effort of the government to influence the election of directors of the Associated Press three years ago and the present move to control it by court injunction are continuations of the medieval conception of news controled by the government, the 1st amendment to the Constitution notwithstanding.

News was older than literacy—far older than the press, which made possible the wide dissemination of news. Governmental power was older than either and seized upon writing and printing as weapons with which to perpetuate and extend itself.

Shakespeare, the greatest writer of all time, had to prove to Queen Elizabeth that he was a gentleman, a term which at that time denoted a man of Norman or French ancestry. If you will look behind his construction and his diction, you will perceive the propaganda speech, for instance, Anthony's speech, deriding the populace, and the historical plays exalting the side of Elizabeth's great grandfather, Edward IV., in the Wars of the Roses.

Steele and Addison and other early writers, for the most part, worked for rulers or for noble patrons whom they addressed in the most groveling terms.

That relation also has been modified, but not terminated, abroad; certainly the aristocracy still looks with contempt upon newspaper writers and requires of them a certain servility which is readily yielded.

To a lesser extent it is yielded by American writers in England whose dispatches too often bear the taint of propaganda.

Military censorship, even with us, is used as much or more to create a favorable impression of those who control it as it is to deceive the enemy, and it is not unusual that in their efforts to deceive others the general staffs deceive themselves.

When the aristocracy is joined with the military, we have news coercion and falsification at its worst. A prominent publisher said to an Associated Press directors' meeting that British officers treated newspaper correspondents as batmen. Batmen, I understand, are Indian servants. Which brings to mind that one time I was lunching with a prominent Englishman, when the head of our London bureau called for me—and the head of the London bureau, in our eyes, is a big shot. He was conducted to the dining room by the back stairs, known in England as the servant's stairs.

With the extension of commerce, merchants became interested in news to enable them to calculate their risks, issue false reports to delude their competitors, and impress customers. The Fugger News Letters are illustrations of medieval merchant news gathering. The same kind of news is gathered and published by modern merchants.

When commercial news gathering organizations came into being, they were operated in imitation of the royal and mercantile principles to extol their own country and its activities and to belittle and criticize other countries than their own.

It has been correctly said that the London Times was "the voice of the British ruling class." The Times was recently bought by a titled American ex-patriate, endowed, and given to trustees to keep it representing the ruling class.

In England success consists of getting into the nobility. With the exception of generals and admirals, who generally belong to it, titles are obtained by putting acquired wealth to the service of the ruling class. Practically all the rich men who have bought newspapers have acquired their titles in this way. In consequence, the Englishman is told only what his betters think is good for them for him to read.

In England, therefore, there has never arisen the conception of a newspaper devoted to the information and instruction of the people as a whole.

The European conception of the use of news, of course, came to this continent with the great companies, which became colonies and then states.

Many writers have insisted that the best people of the colonies were the Tories, and this altho they did not produce a single outstanding individual in any walk of life, as contrasted with the great statesmen, soldiers, and sailors produced by the Revolutionary party. Successors of those Tories who were not expelled or did not migrate still continue to talk as the governors would wish.

It is not generally published that it took the march of Washington's army across New York to Boston to bring that area into the Revolution. The great landed proprietors, the growing merchants and shipping companies were all thoroly established before the newspapers, and they have continued to maintain an ascendancy over them.

The 1st amendment freed news from governmental control, not from undue influence. That was not to come for another hundred years.

Newspaper history speaks highly of Bennett and Greeley, but contemporary New York did not think much of them.

Have you ever considered that since these two men, not a single distinguished editor has arisen in New York? Pulitzer went there from St. Louis; Hearst from San Francisco; Ochs, born in Ohio, from Chattanooga; Patterson [J. M.] from Chicago. I have not made any effort to check up the origin of other editors in the east, but I do happen to know that Patterson [Paul] and Mark Watson of the Baltimore Sun, Sevellon Brown of the Providence Journal, and Mrs. Patterson of the Washington Times-Herald went from Chicago; Melville Stone of the Associated Press from Chicago; Kent Cooper of the Associated Press, and Roy Howard of the United Press from Indiana. Conversely, no eastern newspaper man has ever made a success in the west.

All these facts cannot be coincidences. There must be a common reason and it is not the climate.

The explanation is that the states west of the Alleghanies were not settled as colonies. They never had royal governors to set the tone of their society, nor beneficiaries of royal land grants to emulate aristocrats.

Western newspapers did not begin with the tradition of kings, aristocrats, governors, land owners, and commercial companies to overawe them. Nobody looked down their noses at them, and they never had to suffer from or resent a sense of inferiority.

They became not followers of the upper classes, but leaders of the people.

Because of this point of view, westerners have gone east to dominate the New York field time after time, in the face of established interests and local prejudice.

Oliver Gramling, in his book, "The Associated Press," has pointed out that the old New York Associated Press, owned by the newspapers of New York until its collapse, was a dishonest news service. This was only natural as that was the only kind of news that had existed.

The western newspapers, at that time much smaller and comparatively much more poorly financed than they are today, resented this conception of news.

They had a novel theory—that news should be factual, that the whole people should be correctly informed. They organized a Western Associated Press, then the Illinois Associated Press to furnish such factual, unbiased news to its members. After a spirited contest, they drew newspaper after newspaper in the east into their organization until the New York Associated Press went into bankruptcy.

It is gratifying to me to read in Gramling's book the conspicuous part THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE took in establishing the Illinois Associated Press.

In the year 1900 the Illinois Associated Press was dissolved and a new Associated Press organized in New York. In its infancy the new organization made a humiliating contract with the foreign, privately owned news services of Reuters, Wolf, and Havas that they should furnish it with all the news of the outside world, and in turn disseminate American news outside of the United States.

These arrangements continued 27 years without amendment until the year 1927 when, owing to certain events that transpired in Japan, the metamorphosis began. Of this Kent Cooper writes in his book, "Barriers Down":

"Adolph Ochs spoke: 'I hope that the management may be able so to adjust its arrangements with Reuters that it will enable us to go ahead and serve American news to foreign countries where it is desirable.'

"Col. McCormick of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE then expressed himself: 'I agree thoroly with Mr. Ochs on that.'

"'Reuters is a national propaganda news service. I have had many letters from people in China, complaining of the quality of news that gets over there—nothing about America except lynchings in Alabama, gang murders in Chicago, and the financial and critical news about New York—about the kind of things I used to read about America when I lived in England 30 years ago.

"'I would like to have them get a good American service abroad, whatever it may be—political news, economic news, fashion news, if you will—anything that is American and represents the real country, instead of having it strained thru the poisoned filter it goes thru now.

"'I had a friend recently come back from Australia who said the Australians were personally friendly to Americans, but always had a sneer in their attitude. That may have been hereditary, it may have been due to rivalry, but it also is constantly being fed by the fact that the news which gets out there is always colored against us.'"

From that day the Associated Press has continued, at first timidly, and then with more courage, to extend its service into the foreign field.

In 1934, 10 years ago, it severed its contract with the foreign news agency and began organizing service abroad. Within the last fortnight the board of directors gave orders to the managing director to spread the Associated Press news service, including news coming from abroad to the United States, news going abroad from the United States, and even news going from one foreign country to another, so that at last the conception of factual news, undominated by foreign or financial motives, will be made available to a candid world.

BE ALERT TO PNEUMONIA.

THE pneumonia season will soon be upon us. All too often the malady strikes because the victim has allowed resistance to drop too abruptly. We fail to pay sufficient attention to a cold, particularly if a slight fever develops. We assume unwisely that symptoms will pass away within a day or two. But the illness may surprise us, as it has a well filled bag of tricks. An early manifestation, "a stitch in the side" [pain on breathing], may come as a distinct shock.

This ailment is especially fond of attacking the very young and those who have passed middle life. The more robust the individual, the more violent the onset. Whenever a chill or discomfort in the chest is followed by a rise in temperature we must suspect a respiratory infection. But the disorder will creep on so insidiously that its signs are not recognized. The other day I saw a patient who was so weary that he came to the hospital just for a rest. The lower lobes of both lungs were involved. He had pneumonia and didn't know it.

There was a time when we looked upon this disease with real apprehension. While it is no joking matter even today, we are far safer than we were before the advent of the sulfonamide drugs. Most persons can take them satisfactorily altho we must watch for toxic effects. There are so many derivatives available that the physician has a wide choice in an effort to fit the remedy to the patient. We also have penicillin, and interval injections may transform a seemingly desperate case into one that is easy to manage. Should the pneumococcus be at fault, its type can be determined and a specific serum administered. It is now possible to so control the temperature that tissue damage will be lessened. In consequence, the recovery period will be relatively brief. No longer need we look forward to months of convalescence, which usually included a trip to some southern clime.

Real comfort is provided by oxygen. We must recall that a sizable portion of the breathing space has been put out of commission. The remainder must function for the entire body and the air sacs which have not been attacked can furnish the blood with oxygen if this vital substance can be inhaled. It is interesting to note the calm which comes to the sufferer who ceases to struggle for air as soon as this gas is supplied. It is a simple procedure to introduce a catheter into one of the nostrils so that the tip will rest on the back wall of the throat. Thru this tube the flow can be regulated. In addition, we have oxygen tents and specially constructed rooms where nurses and attendants can care for the invalid with perfect ease.

Every victim will require fluids and plenty of them. We may rely upon water, lemonade, fruit juices, and soft drinks. Now and then the heart will demand support. When the blood pressure falls and the pulse rate increases, help is essential. There are many stimulants which will tide over these anxious moments.

Good food is as necessary as skilled nursing. We must recall that the proteins of the patient's body are undergoing destruction. The lungs are congested and huge quantities of serum and cells are lost. If the victim can take nourishment in adequate amounts, there is no clear cut indication for the administration of blood plasma. On the other hand, this maneuver will sometimes turn the tide in favor of recovery.

Let's watch the common cold and not let it get ahead of us. The air sacs are extremely delicate structures and they merit protection.

FEELS BEAT.

C. R. writes: I am 20 years old. When I lie down, I observe a beating in my head; when walking about, in my legs; when I comb my hair, I feel it against the comb. My blood pressure is normal. What does all this indicate?

REPLY.

You are probably keenly sensitive to the contractions of your heart. Impulses are transmitted to all the arteries of the body. If your pumping organ is functioning at par, and your blood pressure normal, there is nothing to worry about. Try to ignore the sensation.

"THE WOMAN WHO PAYS."

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Many cases of the service man's "faithless wife" have appeared in newspapers these last two years of war. Educators, clerics, social workers, justices, and others have voiced opinions and in nearly all cases the woman gets the dirty deal. Her husband, whether he likes it or not, must be in the service, risking his life and all for the future happiness of his wife and the rest of us. The public fully realizes this and has gone a long way to make the breaks for him, but just what, if anything, has been done in considering the plight of the girl left behind? As comparison of the two the following may be considered:

1. The entire day of a service man is planned. He is rarely alone, the exceptions being passes, furloughs, etc.

His wife at home is left to an entirely new world which she must make for herself 24 hours per day.

2. The necessities of life, food, clothing, and shelter, are supplied to the service man without his even having to think about them.

His wife must adjust herself to different living conditions, usually based on much reduced income and obviously higher prices, and in many cases with no previous business experience.

3. Periodic entertainment, free movies, etc., are available to the service man in the states and to accessible overseas locations.

His wife must seek out her own entertainment, with her husband no longer to go with her. Other girls, of course; or who? And the expense!

4. The public generally, many service agencies, U. S. O., church groups, etc., greet service men with open arms here and abroad.

Who, or what, if anything, considers his wife? Dance halls? Taverns? Other men?

5. Very little opportunity is given the service man to spend much time with any one of the opposite sex. Hence, the problem of remaining true is not too severely tested.

His wife, if she works, may come in continual contact with other men; or across the hall where she lives, or at church, or at homes of others, or on public carriers, etc.

6. Continual excellent conduct training of the service man thru movies, lectures, etc., plus military police who are doing such an excellent job of maintaining a high standard in military personnel, keep him straight.

No instructions, counsel, or advice are even available to his wife unless she goes seeking it, and you can hardly seek something you don't know. Instead, the suspicious glances and wagging tongues of evil-minded neighbors may hang like a Damoclean sword.

There are many more comparisons, few or none favoring the girl left behind. Add to this the hasty marriages, the marriages existing without love or companionship at time of induction.

This is not for the purpose of justifying unfaithfulness, but more for the purpose of showing the failure of a society to meet a problem all the way, and the willingness of that same public to enjoy the scandal resulting from its own failure. And it's always the woman who pays.

NORRIS, V. PK.

THE FIRST NEW DEALER.

Springfield, Tenn., Oct. 15.—The New Deal is as old as the Caesars and as putrid as an egg laid in Noah's ark. There is nothing in the New Deal's planned economy that was not tried out by Caesars except Harry Hopkins' privy building project.

Diocletian was the world's superduper New Dealer. He became emperor of Rome in 284 A. D. Under him the Roman senate became impotent and republican institutions were discarded. Diocletian was vested with absolute authority. He was of the opinion that the economy of the empire could be stabilized forever by the creation of imperial bureaus and commissions. He fixed by decree, he thought for all time, the problems of the human race. The prices of all commodities, wages, and other activities were engraved on tablets of stone even down to the "rent for a laden ass per mile." The law of supply and demand was repealed.

What happened? The scheme collapsed. Black markets flourished. Merchants closed their marts. Farmers quit growing crops. Individual freedom was destroyed. There followed the period known as the Dark Ages.

The New Deal has been with us 12 years. Give it four more years and it will out-do Diocletian.

W. B. CHILTON.

HE COULDN'T BE BOTHERED.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—This evening made me wonder why American boys should give their lives to help make this world a better place to live in when we have such selfish people in our midst.

A south side druggist received permission from postal authorities to accept boxes for overseas shipment. He very happily assisted many people [gratis, of course] with their boxes, as reweighing them, making sure they were tied properly, etc. When the postman arrived with his half empty truck he flatly refused to take the packages. [The druggist even offered to load them in his truck.] The druggist called postal authorities and was informed that the postman was acting within his rights and if he cared to be a good fellow he could haul the packages or refuse to haul them and still be within his rights.

Of course, the half empty truck of the postman, who couldn't inconvenience himself for those who are giving their lives and enabling him to live comfortably, leisurely pulled away and the postoffice had to send another truck to pick up the packages. Isn't it too bad that these people can't be shipped to Saipan, Berlin, or to Tokyo?

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—A letter, dated Sept. 25, from a brother that's a staff sergeant in the marine corps, located somewhere in the Southwest Pacific, described the method employed in his unit to vote an absentee ballot: "I received the ballot and I'll fill it out in the morning in the presence of an officer. I'm voting a split ballot. You know I'm playing the field in case I have to get a job and politics might be involved."

WHY HOLD BACK THE STORY?

Chicago, Oct. 14.—In today's editorial you deride the administration for postponing the trial of Kimmel and Short, for their negligence at Pearl Harbor, till after the November elections. Do they need a public trial to tell the truth about that disaster? Why cannot they publish what they know, in a periodical of national scope, and give their story? Insofar as they claim possession of documents that will vindicate them, they should incorporate this evidence in their story and let the people be the judges on Nov. 7.

SHOULD PRESENT DEFENSE.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—We had a year's lease on an apartment but two months before it expired my husband lost his job and we were unable to pay the rent. The agent of the building said we could be released from our obligation because he had a tenant ready to take the premises. We moved out March 31 and the new tenant came in April 1; therefore, there was no loss to the owners. 1. We are now being sued for two months' rent. 2. Can they collect from us after they have received rent from the other party?

W. A.

1. The landlord is not entitled to collect twice for the same period. In other words, if your statement that he lost no rent is accurate, then there is no basis to collect from you.

2. No, but you should present your defense. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

Yes, if your education and experience would fall into the category of "clinical psychologist," you can apply for direct appointment in a commissioned status. Clinical psychology is defined by the war department letter as "psychological work involving direct contact with individuals or investigation of individual behavior, such as psychological testing, mental hygiene work, counseling and guidance, assembling and analyzing case histories, college psychology teaching, or care of the mentally or physically handicapped. Minimum education requirements are a bachelor's degree in psychology, sociology, or industrial psychology. ARMY CAPTAIN FROM CHICAGO DIES IN ACTION

Killed in France; Entered Service in 1941.

CAPT. WILBER NOYES EARL, husband of Mrs. Charlotte Earl, 8950 Blackstone av., was killed in action Oct. 1 in France, it has been learned by his wife. He entered the service on April 1, 1941, and served with an infantry outfit. Capt. Earl was 29, and a graduate of Amherst college. WORKERS COMB POLL LISTS FOR PHONY NAMES

Speed Check to Meet Tuesday Deadline.

WILL YOU HELP?

If you wish to work for your country election day, communicate with:

The Business Men's committee, 58 W. Jackson blvd., which wants volunteers to eliminate fraudulent registration by checking precinct lists. Telephone Harrison 6515 or 6516. Or

The Joint Civic Committee on Elections, 105 S. La Salle st., which is seeking 5,000 watchers to man the poles Nov. 7. Telephone Franklin 8440.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Poll lists were made available yesterday to hundreds of volunteer workers of the business men's committee who started a drive to erase the names of thousands of ineligible persons from the lists of registered voters. It was anticipated that great numbers of suspect notices would be in the mails before Tuesday night's deadline.

The pre-election activity for an honest election was undertaken by the business men's committee in conjunction with the joint civic committee on elections, the honest ballot committee, and the Republican county central committee. The Democrats, having control of the election machinery and with the Kelly organization for a steam roller, were not participating.

46 Groups Offer Observers.

It was announced that 46 of the city's leading business and educational organizations have agreed to rally their employes and members as observers on election day under the sponsorship of the joint committee. The canvass of precincts, however, was being conducted by the business men's committee under the leadership of Frank Durham.

"I can't imagine any election being more important than that to be held two weeks from Tuesday," said Durham. "Any one who steals a vote is a traitor to his country."

The volunteers planned a house to house canvass in wards where vote frauds have been notorious in the past. As many precincts will be covered as the supply of volunteer labor permits.

"Independent canvassers have until Tuesday evening to act against suspects," said John Rusch, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners. "Those who receive cards stating their right to vote has been challenged must appear at the election offices before Saturday or lose their votes. The precincts were convassed earlier by the duly appointed clerks of election."

Women Swell Vote Lists.

"We are investigating only those names added to the poll lists at the election board's offices," said George Fisher, chairman of the Republican county central committee. "Our workers checked all whose names were enrolled at the precinct polling places.

"We find that much of the new registration is due to changed addresses by wives of service men. A large proportion of the new registrants is feminine. Women in tremendous numbers have decided to vote. County Commissioner William Busse reports the registration of 25 women farm workers who never before have voted."

Chief Clerk Rusch said the election board's fraud department also is checking the heavy registration. All complaints are investigated, he said. He called attention to one precinct, the 55th of the 13th ward, where 1,038 men and women are registered, making it the largest in the city. He said 56 suspect notices have been sent in this precinct.

RACKET BUSTING SHOWS COURAGE OF TOM DEWEY

Determined in All Service for the Public.

[This is the second of three articles on Gov. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, by the Tribune reporter who has been with him since his nomination last June.]

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Those who get a glimpse of Gov. Dewey when he is in Chicago on Wednesday will see a well groomed young man with neatly trimmed and precisely combed wavy black hair and a black mustache. In crowds, he'll probably be smiling, showing strong, white teeth, and waving his Homburg hat.

Beside him, much of the time, will be Mrs. Dewey, slender, pleasant—really pretty. They're a good looking couple, handsome enough to incite belittling jeers about their appearance from New Dealers.

The good looks and ready smiles shouldn't be misrepresented as indications of easygoing, happy-go-lucky dispositions. They are an earnest and strong team. She is a devoted wife and mother of two sons. And it must be remembered that he is the gang buster who successfully prosecuted New York racketeers and their political associates.

His rise to fame on his own merits is by itself an indorsement of the American system of free enterprise.

Dewey is a trifle more than 5 feet 8 inches tall, almost precisely the average for men measured for the draft. He's three inches taller than Stalin and two inches taller than Churchill. He weighs 160 pounds, with only a trace of the midrift thickness that comes with a sedentary occupation and an age of 42 years.

Mind Clear and Orderly.

In private conversations as in public speeches, Dewey's words and thoughts aren't the startling brilliance of genius. Instead, they are distinguished by common sense. He thinks clearly, simplifying problems in an orderly mind.

Dewey's outstanding characteristic, as judged from 16 weeks of constant association, is not unusual talent, but a more than ordinary self-discipline. He has a more than average endowment of what is vaguely described as character. He is a man of purpose. He accomplishes objectives. And he's fearless.

If there is any luck involved in the rise of Tom Dewey it was his meeting George Z. Medalie, New York trial lawyer, in December of 1930. They were associated in the trial of a civil suit when Medalie received an appointment as United States attorney for the southern district of New York. Dewey became his chief assistant on March 15, 1931, nine days after his 29th birthday, the youngest man ever to hold the post.

Attracted Wide Attention.

Under Medalie's supervision Dewey ousted deadwood and assembled 60 assistants, mostly young lawyers, all hand-picked for zeal and ability. In this district, from the southern tip of Manhattan northward to include 11 counties, there were cases involving international trade, interpretation of treaties, taxes, tariff, immigration, and a wide variety of civil actions, but it was the criminal cases that attracted nation-wide attention.

Tom Dewey, in August of 1931, tangled with Jack [Legs] Diamond, underworld killer, and sent him to prison for a four year term. This was followed by more newspaper headlines when Patrick Commerford, head of a hoisting engineers' union, was indicted and sent to prison on an income case based on revenue shaken down from employers.

The third Tammany boss to feel the Dewey bite was James J. McCormick, deputy city clerk. He was convicted on an income tax case, based on an income of $222,388 taken from bridegrooms as tips.

Charles E. Mitchell, banker and one time millionaire, was acquitted in a criminal income tax case but in a civil suit Dewey got a judgment of a million dollars for the government against the defendant.

Got Waxey Gordon.

Dewey took after Dutch Schultz and Waxey Gordon, two of America's most infamous criminals. The guns of gangland got Schultz before the government case was completed but Waxey was convicted after evidence had been compiled that his income from illegal enterprises had netted him 4½ million dollars in two years.

The Waxey Gordon conviction established Dewey as a nemesis of big shot gangsters. Gordon's mob was notorious, blamed by the police for 20 to 100 murders. It established Dewey's fearlessness. And in the middle of the trial, in November, 1933, Medalie resigned and the nine federal judges elected Dewey as the successor, the youngest United States district attorney ever to serve in New York. He was 31.

Dewey, a Republican appointee, five weeks later was replaced by a Democrat, Martin Conboy, under President Roosevelt's new administration. Dewey went back to private practice.

Recalled to Public Service.

A popular flare for reform swept crime ridden New York and called Dewey back into public service as a special prosecutor.

There followed a roundup of higherups in organized prostitution. Lucky Luciano got a sentence of from 39 to 50 years. Sensational newspapers had called him "the greatest criminal in the world." His lieutenants were convicted with him.

But the most spectacular case handled by the racket buster was against Jimmy Hines, a Tammany leader with a voice in national politics.

Hines was arrested on May 25, 1938. It was charged he was a member of the Schultz mob with various illicit operations including the lucrative policy lotteries. The first trial, before Justice Ferdinand Pecora, was called a mistrial based on Dewey having asked a witness if he knew anything about the relations of Hines to the poultry racket.

Dewey, while cleaning up New York, had been picked by the Republicans as their candidate for governor. The election came after this first trial of the Tammany leader. Dewey was defeated. This was in 1938, it will be recalled.

A second Hines trial opened in January of 1939, before a different judge. The closing argument for the defense was that Hines was being persecuted for political purposes. Dewey's rebuttal is considered one of his masterpieces of this stage of his career.

Hines Gets 4-8 Years.

"The important thing," he told the jury, "is that you declare to the people of New York, the police of New York, that they are free; that they will no longer be betrayed by a corrupt alliance between crime and politics; that that alliance is going to be smashed by this jury and branded as something we won't stand for, because we want to keep the kind of system we have in this country and we don't want it polluted by a betrayer. We don't want protection of gangsters by political leaders."

Hines, 63 years old, received a sentence of four to eight years in Sing Sing.

That's the kind of a racket buster who is the Republican candidate for President of the United States. Don't let any one think he is soft or a sissy just because his clothes are always immaculate, his hair always combed, and his tie always straight. Just because he grins a lot — a lot like the old roughrider Theodore Roosevelt—doesn't mean he won't fight.

This brings us, chronologically, to another chapter in the career of Thomas E. Dewey, his conduct of the 1944 Presidential campaign. This will be discussed in the third and last article of this series, with some of the intimate incidents of the last 16 weeks.

EDITOR, A 'BORN DEMOCRAT,' WILL VOTE FOR DEWEY

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 21 [Special].—Will Southern Jr., 80, an old line Missouri Democrat and widely known thruout the state as editor of the Independence Examiner, has announced he will cast his vote for Gov. Dewey on Nov. 7.

Southern, whose daily column, "In Missouri Language," has for several weeks reflected the editor's dilemma as "a man without a party," announced this week that he has decided to vote for the Republican Presidential candidate.

"Born a Tennessee Democrat, with an ex-Confederate background, remembering how the Republican party treated the south in the so-called reconstruction days, I find it difficult to vote for a Republican for President," he wrote.

"Yet, as a Democrat, I have no national ticket. I have seen the party betrayed, taken for a ride by the New Deal, all respect for promised word and integrity dragged in the dust."

Southern said the party was taken over by CIO-Communist forces, who branded all opponents as "helpers of Hitler and fascism."

"To be taken over is bad enough," he commented, "but to be accused of disloyalty and ordered to vote the ticket or else is unbearable."

REP. LUCE SAYS F.D.R. WALKS INTO AN ALIEN TRAP

Boston, Mass., Oct. 21 [Special].—Rep. Clare Boothe Luce tonight said the country faced the "amazing situation" of a President of the United States "walking right into a trap set for him by an international pressure group."

"There is only one way to rescue the President from this trap and that is retire Mr. Roosevelt to Hyde Park," she told a rally for Gov. Dewey.

"Communism, thru Sidney Hillman, has bought, paid for and acquired the biggest single interest in a great American institution, the Democratic party," she said.

"Hillman's PAC is doing for communism exactly what communist strategy calls for, and doing it, of course, far better and far more dangerously than [Earl] Browder could do it himself."

EMPLOYER BEATEN BY THREE.

Otto Bauer, 38, of 617 South blvd., Oak Park, was beaten on the face yesterday by three men who entered his machine shop at 152 W. Erie st., and quarreled with him because he had hired a workman away from a competitor.

ELECTION DRIVE ROARS TOWARD A CLOSE FINISH

Two States in East May Decide Result.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—With the Presidential election only two weeks away, Gov. Dewey stands an excellent chance of defeating President Roosevelt by a majority of 65 electoral votes.

The Republican managers are confident the Dewey majority will be larger than that. The Democratic leaders, while professing confidence of victory, are exhibiting signs of uneasiness, as evidenced by an eleventh hour radical change in campaign tactics.

As measures deemed imperative to save the President from defeat the Democratic campaign directors have prevailed upon Mr. Roosevelt to show himself to the people in an effort to dispel the public impression that he is a sick man and to make a series of campaign speeches in the big states in the remaining days of the canvass.

Tour in Open Car.

The President, after considering the crisis in his candidacy for a fourth term as presented by the Democratic chieftains, acceded to the representations and made his first public appearance today in a tour of New York City in an open car as a prelude to his speech at the Foreign Policy association dinner tonight.

The President, who is a shrewd politician and resourceful campaigner, is credited with having plucked victory from impending defeat in the 1940 election by his promise "again and again and again" not to send our "boys into any foreign war." The Democratic managers are confident that he can do it again.

What alarmed the Democrats was a national political survey indicating that unless the President can turn the tide running against the fourth term and the New Deal the division of the 531 votes in the electoral college is not unlikely to be about as follows:

For Dewey	298
For Roosevelt	233
Dewey majority	65

In this survey the electoral votes are distributed by states as follows:

FOR DEWEY.

Colorado	6	New York	47
Idaho	4	North Dakota	4
Illinois	28	Ohio	25
Indiana	13	Oklahoma	10
Iowa	10	Oregon	6
Kansas	8	Pennsylvania	35
Maine	5	South Dakota	4
Maryland	8	Vermont	3
Michigan	19	Wisconsin	12
Minnesota	11	Wyoming	3
Missouri	15
Nebraska	6
New Jersey	16	Total	298

FOR ROOSEVELT.

Alabama	11	New Hampshire	4
Arizona	4	New Mexico	4
Arkansas	9	North Carolina	14
California	25	Rhode Island	4
Connecticut	8	South Carolina	8
Delaware	3	Tennessee	12
Florida	8	Texas	23
Georgia	12	Utah	4
Kentucky	11	Virginia	11
Louisiana	10	Washington	8
Massachusetts	16	West Virginia	8
Mississippi	9
Montana	4
Nevada	3	Total	233

Pennsylvania is assigned to Dewey and Massachusetts to Roosevelt tho both states are doubtful. If Roosevelt were to carry Pennsylvania in addition to Massachusetts he would win with two votes to spare over the required 266. If Roosevelt should take Pennsylvania but lose Massachusetts Dewey would still win by a majority of 27, provided he carried all the other states assigned to him.

Dewey Narrows Issues.

The alarm at Democratic headquarters was occasioned not only by the survey of the political situation state by state but by the character and success of the Republican campaign. Dewey had taken the postwar peace program out of the contest by agreeing to the fundamentals of the new league of nations projected by the President. He also narrowed the issue on domestic questions by accepting such items of the New Deal program as the Wagner labor relations act and social security legislation.

Dewey has kept pounding away on the distinction between New Deal collectivism, which visualizes a "mature economy," public ownership of production, and doles for the unemployed, and the Republican program of individualism with full employment provided by the limitless production of free, private enterprise for profit. He has illuminated this distinction with the constant reminder that the socialistic New Deal produced the "Roosevelt depression" with 10 million still unemployed after nine years in office.

Quarrelsome Old Man.

He has kept pounding away at the folly of retaining for a fourth term the "tired, quarrelsome old men" of the Roosevelt regime with Earl Browder's Communists and Sidney Hillman's Communist controlled CIO political action committee exercising the power behind the throne. He has kept to the fore his documented contention that Mr. Roosevelt does not intend to bring our troops home from Europe as soon as Germany is defeated but intends to keep them there to police Germany indefinitely.

What has made it particularly difficult for the Democrats to refute the latter contention is the fact that the Republican platform pledges the speedy return of our troops from Europe while the Democratic platform, adopted later, deliberately omitted to match the Republican pledge and even to mention the matter at all. The surmised reason was that Mr. Roosevelt had agreed to the retention of American troops abroad indefinitely to help police the partition of Europe between Russian and British spheres of influence.

Hammers at Inefficiency.

Gov. Dewey also has kept hammering away at the inefficiency of the Roosevelt regime, which is a weak point in the Democratic armor, for the friends of the President, and even Mr. Roosevelt himself, have admitted that he is a failure as an administrator. The result of this line of attack has been to contrast the inefficiency of Mr. Roosevelt with the genius of Dewey in public administration, as demonstrated by Dewey's conduct of the office of public prosecutor and of the governorship at Albany.

The Dewey campaign forced the President upon the defensive and the President's efforts to answer his adversary proved unfortunate in the judgment of his own campaign managers, who, for example, vetoed the broadcast overseas of his speech at the teamsters' dinner from fear of the possible effect on the soldiers of his levity and wisecracking on tragic matters.

Altogether the Democratic leaders came to the conclusion that perhaps Mr. Roosevelt had met his match at last in political astuteness. Their deepening concern was increased by reports from the field that the farmers and business men were greatly wrought up by visions of a fourth term in which Browder and Hillman would be able to fasten the totalitarianism of Moscow upon the American government, reducing agriculture and business to the regimentation already far advanced in the case of American labor.

Nor was the anxiety of the Democratic managers allayed by reports that perhaps 40 per cent of the AFL, alarmed by the ascendency of the CIO in the Democratic party, will support Dewey, not to mention John Lewis' following among the coal miners and even recalcitrant elements in the CIO itself.

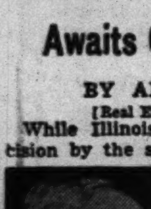
NEW YORK GOES AHEAD WITH ITS SLUM CLEARING

Uses New Law as Illinois Awaits Court Test.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]



F. H. Ecker.

While Illinois is awaiting a decision by the state Supreme court on the constitutionality of the neighborhood redevelopment corporation act, legislation planned to aid in reclaiming slum areas, two giant housing projects with homes for approximately 30,000 persons are being planned in New York City under the New York state neighborhood redevelopment companies law which is much like the Illinois measure.

These two projects, to be built by Metropolitan Life Insurance company, represent the first use of private capital for rebuilding blighted districts in New York under the new slum reclamation law. Unlike federal housing projects both will pay full taxes. For 25 years the company will pay taxes based upon the present tax valuation of land and buildings. Thereafter taxes will be paid upon the assessed valuation of the new projects.

Will Cover 18 City Blocks.

The larger of the two, Stuyvesant Town, will cover 18 city blocks, with a gross area of about 75 acres, on the lower east side between 14th and 20th sts. and First av. and Avenue C, close to the East river. About 550 old buildings will be torn down and replaced with 35 residential structures, 13 stories high, with living space for 8,842 families.

Riverton, a Harlem post-war counterpart of Stuyvesant Town, will be a parklike residential community occupying 12 acres between 135th and 138th sts., Fifth av. and the Harlem river. It will accommodate about 1,200 families, or approximately 3,400 persons. The average basic rental will be $12.50 per room.

Initial Use of New Law.

"Riverton and Stuyvesant Town represent the first use of private capital for the rebuilding of obsolete city areas under the redevelopment companies law which has been described by the Court of Appeals as 'an effort by the legislature to promote coöperation between municipal government and private capital to the end that substandard, insanitary areas in our urban communities may be rehabilitated,'" said Frederick H. Ecker, chairman of Metropolitan Life.

The New York law permits municipalities to condemn sites and then turn them over to neighborhood redevelopment corporations for the building of housing projects, under public supervision. The Illinois law, which is being studied by the Supreme court, provides for direct condemnation by the corporation which is to develop the project.

Metropolitan Life's biggest housing development is Parkchester in New York City where 35,000 persons now live. It has large projects in Alexandria, near Washington, D. C., with 1,684 homes; another in Los Angeles with 1,316 homes, and San Francisco, 1,687 homes.

Convert Lodge Temple

Pythian Temple, housing lodgerooms and offices at the southeast corner of State st. and 37th pl., is being converted into 103 small flats for war workers. Carroll Construction company has the general contract. Frank A. McNally and associates are architects.

Pythian Hall Being Rebuilt as War Flats

The eight story Pythian temple, at the southeast corner of State st., and 37th pl., is being remodeled at a cost of $287,000 into 103 small apartments for war workers, Leonard R. McDonald, director of war housing center, 39 S. La Salle st., announced yesterday. The federal government is furnishing $187,000 and Pythian Building corporation, George Lawrence, president, the $100,000 balance. Dovenmuehle, Inc. has arranged a $100,000 loan to the corporation.

The Pythian temple was built 20 years ago at a reported cost of 1½ million dollars from plans by H. J. Bailey, of Chicago. Remodeling plans by Frank A. McNally and associates, architect, call for one, two and three room flats. They are to be rented at $32 to $55, including gas, light, and heat, to war workers who have been certified by WHC.

The building was leased by Home Owners Loan corporation, Charles W. Collins, regional director, for 12 years at $1 annually. The lease was negotiated by Ralph J. Gutgsell, attorney for the owning corporation. When completed, the building will be managed by F. M. Sandera of the federal public housing authority.

The government also has leased from Dr. M. W. K. Byrne the building at 64-66 E. 36th pl. and remodeled it into 18 small flats for war workers.

Cottage Grove and 51st Corner Sold for $65,000

The store and office building at the northwest corner of Cottage Grove av. and 51st st. was sold by Kidder & Lewis, druggists, to the Trust Company of Chicago, as trustee, for $65,000. Carl B. Aplon, attorney for the buyer, said the property will be remodeled. James A. Lewis, one of Chicago's oldest druggists, who managed the drug store in the building for many years, is retiring from business. The drug business was acquired by the buyer.

CONRAD BECKER IS G.O.P. CHOICE AS TREASURER

E.W. Merritt Makes Race on Democratic Side.

BY GUY GENTRY.

Neophytes in state campaigning are the nominees of both parties in the campaign for state treasurer, an office that has been held by the Democrats only seven terms out of 40 since the Civil war. Conrad F. Becker of Red Bud, the Republican nominee, and Earl W. Merritt of Salem, the Democratic standard bearer, are seeking their first state elective office.

The state treasurer is paid $9,000 annually and is the only state official limited to one term of two years.

Mayor Three Times.

Becker, a bulky man with a quiet manner, is an effective mixer who possesses a wide acquaintance thruout southern Illinois. He has lived all his 38 years in Randolph county, where he is now Republican county chairman. He served three terms as mayor of Red Bud. He resigned as warden of the southern Illinois state prison at Menard to make the race for treasurer.

He has been associated with his father in the C. Becker Milling company. Becker was twice elected president of the Southern Illinois Millers' association and is active in other business men's organizations.

An outstanding athlete at Sparta High school, Becker later worked out as a pitcher with the St. Louis Cardinals but a severe knee injury ended his sports career and also kept him from service in the present war.

Active in Legion.

Merritt was born in Salem in 1888, educated in the schools there and in St. Louis, Mo., and served in the army in World War I. He is an active Legionnaire, a past commander, and chairman of the board of the all-veterans state commission of the Legion. As chairman and general manager of Marion county's annual soldiers' and sailors' reunion he has built this event into the largest of its kind in the country.

While business manager of Salem he uncovered and collected thousands of dollars in unpaid utility accounts. Recognition of his business ability came in his selection by the state auditor to liquidate three Southern Illinois state banks, one of which paid 100 per cent on its deposits, plus interest.

AIRCRAFT PLANT WORKERS WILL HEAR BUSBEY

Rep. Busbey [R., 3d.], a leader in the fight against Communism, will address a group of Studebaker aircraft plant workers in the Madison Athletic club, 4715 Madison st., at 2 p. m. today. The meeting will be the second for the group, which has expressed its opposition to the CIO political action committee's activities and Communism. At its previous meeting, Oct. 11, the group condemned the CIO-PAC for dealing in power politics, and urged the membership of local 998 of the United Automobile Workers union [CIO], employed at the Studebaker plant, to refuse the PAC's request for political contributions.

DIAGNOSIS GIVEN IN N. C. DOUGLAS MARITAL CASE

Like Vesuvius, the not so extinct volcano, the Norval C. Douglas marital enigma yesterday had another of its periodic eruptions, this time before Judge William J. Lindsay in the Superior court.

The judge denied Mrs. Douglas' bill, which asked a divorce on the ground of cruelty, but told the couple how they could get a decree, then gave them publicly some private advice in which he mingled homely wisdom and amateur psychiatry.

The Douglas marital saga—to bring you up to date—goes something like this: Douglas, now a wealthy cosmetics manufacturer, and Mary Campbell, then a Follies beauty, were married first in August, 1924. She divorced him in 1928 and they remarried in 1943 after weathering six months together without a serious quarrel. Last January she filed for divorce, but allowed the case to be dismissed in February. She filed the present bill last month.

Police Kept Busy.

Meanwhile, they have kept the Wilmette police pretty busy, what with her charges of gun and knife threats and his counter-accusations of one sort and another. Last month he spent some time in the county jail for violating a court order to keep away from her home, 1502 E. Elmwood av., Wilmette. Judge Lindsay lost no time yesterday in getting down to business.

"The divorce bill is denied," he said. "There is no evidence of cruelty. There is no evidence that the gun Mr. Douglas pointed at his wife was loaded. Nor is the charge of his threats with the butter knife supported.

Has a Word for It.

"A word that aptly describes you both is egocentric — just one step from dementia praecox. Excessive use of alcohol or sexual overindulgence could have brought this about."

The court then said that if one of the attorneys would care to file an amended bill, charging drunkenness, a divorce would be granted next Saturday. He also ordered Douglas to prepare within five days a quit claim of all interest he might hold thru marriage in his wife's home. Then the court warned Douglas against violating a previous injunction to stay away from the home.

Concerned About Books.

"But how about my library?" asked Douglas, who spends his spare time rewriting Shakespeare's works into simple English.

"Brother," said Judge Lindsay, "my advice to you is that you send some one after the books and stay away yourself, unless you want to go back to jail."

"That's very clever of you, judge," Douglas murmured.

"Hey? What's that?" asked the judge.

"I say you are a very learned and clever man," repeated Douglas. His wife declined to look at him as he left the court. Outside, some one asked Douglas what he thought of the ruling.

"The Quality of Mercy."

"What?" he demanded, "don't you reporter chaps know Shakespeare? There really is only one applicable quotation." He then lifted his eyes and recited: "The quality of mercy is not strained—it droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven. . . ."

Research discloses this is the celebrated "mercy speech" from the Merchant of Venice, act IV., scene I.

Woman Learning to Drive Fatally Injured by Train

Mrs. Mildred Pender, 38, of Hobart, Ind., was fatally injured yesterday when her car, which police said she was just learning to drive, was struck by an east bound Pennsylvania railroad passenger train on a crossing near her home.

MAIL YULE GIFTS EARLY, ODT ASKS; DEC. 1 DEADLINE

Support for the annual advice to shop early for Christmas is coming to Chicago merchants this year from the office of defense transportation. In a campaign keyed to the theme, "Send Christmas Gifts Before Dec. 1," the ODT is spearheading a "Shop-Early Send-Early" drive to relieve transportation facilities of last minute crowding.

The date, Dec. 1, is the final one set by the government for mailing gifts if delivery by Christmas is expected, the ODT announcement states. The drive stems from a predicted 25 per cent increase over 1943 in gift mailing.

In Chicago yesterday State st. stores were reported ready to meet the Christmas shoppers and urged that shopping be done early in the day as well as in the season. Stocks in general will be as large and varied as a year ago, merchants say, and everything is on display now.

ROBOT CAMERA TAKES PICTURES OF THE INVISIBLE

Photographs of Air Made by New Device.

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—A new robot which photographs the invisible and makes a picture of such things as the wave of heat rising from a human hand, and which the makers say would photograph a ghost, was announced to the Optical Society of America here today.

The report was made by Norman F. Barnes and S. Lawrence Bellinger of the General Electric company.

The new thing which makes the photographic miracles possible is an electronic timing tube. Air itself becomes visible if the photo flash is brief enough.

One Millionth of Second.

This tube takes a picture in one millionth of a second. It produces the flash and at the same time regulates the exposure time.

The pictures of invisible air in motion are taken in two ways. If a lot of air is photographed, the method is shadowgraph. This air will cast a faint shadow, which the fast camera photographs.

But if the amount of air is slight, such as the breath from human nostrils, a different system must be used. There isn't enough shadow. But there is a difference in the density and temperature of the air coming from the nostrils.

A method called the Schlieren system will make such air changes visible to a photographic plate. This method requires a special optical system.

Has a Military Use.

The result is a peculiar-looking blur on the photo, a blur which on close examination is seen to be a tangle of the differing air currents moving in the nostril breath.

The new robot is of military use in analyzing the shock and turbulence around a gun muzzle. It probably will be useful in solving problems of airplane design and in other industrial fields.

SEEK NEW GRANT OF $650,000 FOR WAR NURSERIES

The Chicago board of education has applied for a new federal grant of $650,000 to operate nurseries and child-care centers for mothers in war work until next June 30, it was learned yesterday. The grant would bring total cost of the centers here for a two year period to approximately 1 million dollars.

The first centers were started in May, 1943. The school board sponsors the program and furnishes school space for most of the centers. Other costs are paid from federal funds.

A supplemental grant of $123,642 from the federal works agency last July boosted the total grant to $371,000 which was to carry the program thru the rest of the year. As of Sept. 30, however, expenditures totaled $324,000 and the fund is now nearly exhausted.

There are now 33 centers for care of children 6 to 14 years old outside of school hours, and 20 nurseries for pre-school children of working mothers compared with five school age centers and 14 nursery schools last fall. Average daily attendance early last fall was 286, compared with 1,148 this fall. Total cost last September was $13,700, against $43,000 this September, Vernon Bowyer, director of the centers for the school board, reported.

Pleads Guilty to Charge of Posing as Army Officer

William James Warren, 52, of 6414 Cottage Grove av., a war worker, was held to the federal grand jury in $1,000 bond yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker before whom he pleaded guilty to a charge of impersonating an army officer. Warren had been arrested Friday by Woodlawn police in the uniform of a lieutenant colonel in the army engineer corps.

Grid Player Shot

Park Policeman Leo Bronstein, who fired to halt fleeing youths.

Jack Byrnes, 17, of 2459 Wilson av., a football player at Amundsen High school and the son of Capt. William Byrnes of the fire department, was shot in the abdomen and seriously wounded early yesterday when a park district police squad overtook the speeding automobile in which Byrnes and two companions were riding.

The car was overtaken at Wilson av. and the Outer dr. by Park Policemen Leo Bronstein and George Constable after a half-mile race. The three occupants started to flee on foot.

Commands of the police to halt were ignored and Bronstein fired three times. Byrnes' companions then surrendered.

They are John Theobold, 17, of 2268 Leland av., and Gordon Nelson, 17, of 4339 Lincoln av., both half backs on the Amundsen eleven. They were being held yesterday by Summerdale police. Byrnes is in Bridewell hospital.

Police said Theobold and Nelson told them they had seen the automobile, owned by Carson Pirie Scott & Co., parked with its ignition keys left in the dashboard at Wolcott av. near Foster av. The temptation to take a joy ride was irresistible, police said the two told them.

OPERA COMPANY HAILED FOR ITS GLOWING 'AIDA'

"AIDA."

Opera by Verdi, libretto by Ghislanzoni. Presented in Italian by the Chicago Opera company at the Civic Opera house Saturday afternoon, Oct. 21, 1944.

THE CAST.

Aida	Zinka Milanov
Amneris	Kerstin Thorborg
Rhadames	Kurt Baum
Amonasro	Alexander Sved
Ramfis	Nicola Moscona
The King of Egypt	Alexander Kulpak
Ballet with Leon Fokine
Conductor	Fausto Cleva
Stage Director	Lothar Wallerstein

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Thumbs up from this corner on the reorganized Chicago Opera company, which looks increasingly like a musical asset. Yesterday's "Aida" was in many ways one of the best the town has heard in years, and the performances of Zinka Milanov in the title role and of Kerstin Thorborg as Amneris would hold their own in a treasured gallery of the great. Add Fausto Cleva's sensitive flair for Verdi's glowing score, a good orchestra, the not yet tattered splendors of settings held over from more luxurious days, and you had reason to rejoice that the recurrent report of opera's death is still an exaggeration.

Voice Bewitches the Ear.

Not, you understand, that all was perfection. But it seemed so when Milanov sang "Ritorna vincitor" and there was no argument about it when she climaxed the Nile Scene with an "O Patria Mia" so exquisitely pure in tone, so warm in feeling and so silkily radiant in technical style that I shall know no peace until she sings "La Traviata."

Since her Chicago début in 1940, Mme. Milanov has traveled in seven league artistic boots. Her voice is all of a piece now, a lovely instrument capable of passionate utterance or of spinning a gossamer filament that bewitches the ear.

There was no news, of course, about Mme. Thorborg's performance to any one who heard her sing Amneris three seasons ago. Her Amneris is queenly, authoritative, imperious, superbly sung in a voice whose first concern is not beauty, but character. When you see her, you see the grand manner in opera.

Brings Drama Into Focus.

Most illustrious of yesterday's male contingent was Nicola Moscona, the handsome young bass whose rich voice could use more depth but has exceptional beauty and expressiveness. His high priest was no figurehead, but a characterization that brought music drama into focus.

And now we come to the ballet. I can't think of a single thing to say about it that would be less than libelous. Mr. Romanoff, how could you?

9 DEFENDANTS, 16 TO 18, GIVEN PRISON TERMS

4 Tried to Free Rest from Gary Jail.

Judge William J. Murray in Lake county Criminal court in Crown Point, Ind., yesterday sentenced nine defendants, 16 to 18 years old, to prison terms. Five of the defendants, who had pleaded guilty to charges of burglary and armed robbery, were sentenced to terms of 10 to 25 years. The four others, who were caught attempting to liberate the first five from the Gary city jail, received sentences of 1 to 14 years as accessories to the crimes of the five.

The sentencing terminated a four hour court session during which more than a score of persons, including ministers, social workers, and mothers of the defendants, pleaded for leniency.

Caught in Alley.

The five who received the heavier sentences are Ralph C. Welbourne, 18; Richard T. Schulz, 18; James R. Wagoner, 18, all of Hobart; George Humeau, 18, of 2611 Floyd st., Gary, and Earl Conley, 17, of 377 Madison st., Gary.

Welbourne, Schulz, Wagoner, and Humeau had been arrested for robbing James Ballis of 3000 E. Dunes highway, Gary, of $300 in a holdup last July. Wagoner Welbourne, and Conley were also charged with the burglary of the home of Milton Evans Sr., at 4365 Carolina st., Gary, in which clothes, jewelry and money were taken. Schultz and Humeau originally were charged with participation in the burglary, but the charges against them were dropped.

Armed with 2 Rifles.

On Aug. 7, the four other defendants were caught in an alley by police who surprised them attempting to saw thru the bars of a jail window.

They are Charles Coleman, 16, of Wheeler, Ind.; Donald Finley, 17, of Hobart; Thomas A. Tucker, 17, of 367 Polk st., Gary, and Robert Surman, 17, of 322 Fillmore st., Gary.

When seized by police, the four were armed with two rifles, which they did not have an opportunity to use. They told Gary police that one of the five inside the jail had promised them $50 to help them escape.

Court attaches said that Surman would be returned to the national boys' school at Washington, D. C., from which he was paroled after serving time on conviction in 1942 of transporting stolen goods across a state border. Police said Humeau was a parole violator and would be turned over to Indiana parole authorities.

BURGLARS TAKE TYPEWRITER.

Burglars entered the Western Fuel company, 2627 Adams st., Friday night, and took a typewriter and clothing valued at $220, Howard C. Redifer, manager of the office, reported yesterday to police.

Columbus, O., Oct. 21.—A crowd of 73,477 this afternoon watched Ohio State's powerful, rapid, and razor sharp civilian Buckeyes defeat a startled group of Bluejackets from Great Lakes, 26 to 6. It was the fourth straight victory for Ohio State and Great Lakes' first defeat, tho Illinois previously had tied the Sailors.

Because of earlier touchdowns by Dick Flanagan of Ohio State and Chuck Avery of Great Lakes, the score was 6 to 6 going into the final period and many in the great crowd, largest to see a college game this year, perhaps thought the Sailors were poised for a dramatic finish, such as those which have characterized other Bluejacket victories. Obviously it didn't turn out that way. Les Horvath broke the tie with a touchdown after 6½ minutes of the final period and Tom Keane added the extra point. Ollie Cline pulled the Buckeyes farther ahead with a touchdown 2½ minutes later, and with one second of the game remaining, Horvath again went over and Bob Dove kicked the final point.

Buckeyes Dominate Game.

Ohio State, save for a tendency to fumble at unfortunate moments, dominated the play, except in the third period. In the first half, for instance the Bluejackets got no closer to the Buckeye goal than the 29 yard line, altho late in the second period Jim Mello, Sailor full back, jammed over three successive first downs and then went to the Ohio State 8 yard line, only to see the ball called back to the 29 because the Bluejacket back field was in motion.

That was the lone splurge of the Sailors until the productive one in the fourth minute of the third period, when a 30 yard pass play, Jim Youel, former Iowa back, to Avery, formerly of Minnesota, produced the service men's only points.

Exciting All the Way.

The game played in a perfect sunswept setting, despite yesterday's forecasts of rain, was exciting thruout—the thrill business starting on the fourth play of the first period when Flanagan intercepted a long pass on his 30 yard line and on the next play ran 62 yards to the Great Lakes 8. The sparkler failed to beam into a touchdown, however, stopping on the 1 foot line. It was not until nine seconds before the end of the first period that Flanagan scored after a series which began after Russ Thomas had recovered a fumble on the Bluejackets' 17 yard line.

The statistics reflected the doings on the field, tho perhaps they were not a full commentary on the line play of the two teams. Despite the hard tilting, the game was a marvel of clean play. Ohio State was penalized only 5 yards and the losers only 25.

Gives Fans Title Hopes.

The passing was far below the standards expected. Ohio State tried only eight passes, completing two for 34 yards. The Bluejackets tried 22 and completed only six for 86 yards. Tho of course the contest did not figure in the Big Nine conference records, it gave Buckeye fans national title notions—certainly civilian championship ideas.

Illinois Wins, 39-5, in Romp at Pittsburgh

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 21.—Illinois' Fighting Illini, as swift a set of football players as you will gaze upon any Saturday this autumn, today prepared for their important rendezvous with Notre Dame in Champaign come next Saturday by defeating Pittsburgh's young Panthers, 39 to 5. The game, played before 15,000 in bright, brisk weather, produced everything in football's scoring book, including the safety and field goal whereby the Panthers registered their points.

The victors' total ran Illinois scoring for six games to 229 points, thereby outdoing the all-time modenr season record of 227, established by the 1942 eleven, and topping the season's 204 made by the Red Grange team of 1924. In the six 1944 contests to date, which consist of triumphs over Illinois Normal, Indiana, Iowa, and Pittsburgh, a loss to Purdue, and tie with Great Lakes, Illini backs have crossed enemy goal lines for 35 touchdowns.

Young Gets Two More.

Claude [Buddy] Young, the fleet Chicago Negro, ran his touchdown record for the season to 10 with a brace of them today, the first off one of his copyrighted sprints, this time for 92 yards. Don Greenwood, Illini quarter back, contributed 14 points, giving him 40 points in six games. Donald opened the scoring for Illinois with an 80 yard return from a kick-off, following the 23 yard field goal with which Tackle

PURDUE, TRAILING 7-6 AT HALF, RALLIES TO CRUSH IOWA, 26-7

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 21.—For 30 minutes on this bright autumnal afternoon Iowa's youthful freshmen football players were cast in the roles of Davids as they led Purdue, 7 to 6. But as soon as the 17,000 jubilant homecomers had finished cheering the surprising status of the contest at the intermission, the burly Boilermakers loosed their heaviest armament, scored three times in the final periods to win, 26 to 7, and to continue in a tie with Ohio State for the Western conference leadership.

Iowans had every reason to be proud of their youngsters today as they outplayed Purdue in the first half. They had verve and spirit and convincingly carried the battle to the Boilermakers before and after Ed Cody had sprinted 52 yards for Purdue's first touchdown of the game. The Hawkeyes' counter-attack in the closing two minutes matched this score and Johnny Stewart's kick for the 7 to 6 lead touched off the enthusiastic between-halves pageantry.

Purdue Finally Takes Charge.

Iowans also could be proud of the determined resistance their boys exhibited in defeat as the Boilermakers steadily gained momentum necessary to win a contest all had conceded in advance they should win.

Purdue marshaled its power, improved the timing between the ball carriers and the blockers, and firmly took charge as the Hawkeyes weakened under the impost of their own exertions and lack of stamina.

Purdue received the kickoff to start the second half play and drove 58 yards for what proved to be the winning touchdown with Cody again capping the assault with a 38 yard dash. The next time the Boilermakers had possession in the third period they moved 81 yards to the Iowa goal, bridging a gap in the scrimmage plays with recovery of a fumbled punt. Then, in the last period, after Ken Rose had kicked only 12 yards and out of bounds on his own 18 yard line, Purdue counted a fourth touchdown. Stan Dubicki kicked the points after the third and fourth scores.

Hawkeye Errors Help Purdue.

To the usual list of statistics of this game, it should be added that Purdue did not make required distance on any occasion in the fourth period save the 18 yard touchdown drive. Such notation, however, does not reflect on Purdue's performance for the Boilermakers left no doubt of their superiority as they capitalized on Iowa errors and faulty tackling by the secondary.

The Hawkeyes actually had only one presentable eleven and their most serious misfortune was the injury received early in the third period by Bill Benskin, 195 pound right tackle. Benskin limped from

GEORGE CARTIER, 1ST NOTRE DAME CAPTAIN, DIES

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 21 [Special]. —George R. Cartier, captain of the first Notre Dame football team in 1887, died here today. He was a brother of Warren Cartier, former University of Notre Dame trustee, who before the turn of the century donated Cartier field to Notre Dame.

Cartier field was used as Notre Dame's home grounds, with the exception of contests played in Soldiers field in Chicago, until the dedication of Notre Dame stadium in 1930. George Gipp, Notre Dame's immortal All-American full back and the Notre Dame Four Horsemen played there in the 1920s and Knute Rockne coached three national championship teams on the field.

Cartier is survived by two brothers, Charles E. Cartier, an employe at Notre Dame, and D. E. Cartier of Ludington, Mich., and a sister, Mrs. W. S. Taylor of Seattle, Wash. Warren Cartier died in 1934.

Oklahoma Aggies Win Over Denver, 33 to 21

Denver, Colo., Oct. 21 (AP).—Sparked by Bob Fenimore, who scored three touchdowns, unbeaten Oklahoma A. & M. turned in a 33 to 21 triumph over Denver university today. Fenimore's speed netted two touchdowns in the first period, and in the fourth, after Denver had narrowed the scoring gap to 27 to 21, Denver kicked. Half Back Cecil Hankins took the kick on the Aggie 10 and passed to Fenimore, who ran 80 yards for the final touchdown.

Georgia Tech Upsets Navy Eleven, 17-15

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 21 (AP).—Powerful Navy floored a lighter Georgia Tech team three times today, but each time the engineers fought back and came thru with a 17 to 15 victory. The lead changed hands six times.

A 20 yard field goal by Allen Bowen, Greenville, Miss., freshman half back, supplied the margin after the Middies had gone out front with a safety, 15 to 14. The Navy was stopped twice in the shadow of the Tech goal, once by the clock to end the first half on the 2 yard line, and the other time at the Tech 1, with less than a minute to play.

Navy Scores on Kick-off.

The Middies lost no time getting started as Bobby Jenkins, former University of Alabama star, ran 83 yards with the opening kick-off and the try for extra point was missed. The Engineers, with Frank Broyles throwing strikes to Phil Tinsley, moved 40 yards to the Navy 15, but the drive stalled. Bruce Smith kicked out and Broyles quick-kicked in return and Tech got the ball at the Navy 9 as James Carrington, Middie guard, clipped Tinsley with the ball in play. Broyles plunged over in three tries and A. Bowen made it 7 to 6 with a perfect placement.

A. Bowen Decides Issue.

Navy scored on six plays in the third quarter driving 45 yards with Ralph Ellsworth, ex-Texas star, going over from the 9. Vitor Finos' placement made it 13 to 7. Tech's turn came next and they scored later in the quarter, as Billy Williams plowed over guard from the 1.

INDIANA SCORES EARLY TO WIN 14-7 DECISION FROM WILDCATS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Indiana university's Hoosiers tossed the best they had, and it was pretty good, at Northwestern's Wildcats yesterday in Dyche stadium, but the latter, instead of playing the role of meek underdog, answered with snarls sufficiently effective to hold their guest enemy to a 14 to 7 victory.

Kicked and pushed around almost helplessly in the first two periods, the Wildcats bounced back after the half way pause and with an attack unlooked for by 25,000 spectators, put on a spectacular touchdown demonstration to give a zip to a 60 minute struggle that otherwise was drab because of the Hoosiers' superiority.

Briefly it was a case of too much Indiana line and too much back field for the less experienced Wildcats to handle altho they were right handy at holding down the leg work of the noted Bob Hoernschemeyer.

Bob's Passing Is Noteworthy.

Before the Wildcats stirred into action with their scoring spree, in which two long passes figured, the Hoosiers had made two visits across the Northwestern goal. They checked in there for the first time midway in the opening period after twice being rebuffed with 5 yards or less to go and repeated the stunt in the second period when Abe Addams, after catching one of Hoernschemeyer's passes, galloped 32 yards for the longest run of the game.

Altho the Wildcats kept the Hoernschemeyer legs from accumulating an excess of yards they didn't have similar luck with his pitching skill. The youngster threw 19 passes and 10 of them found receivers for a net advance of 133 yards. Against this the Wildcats matched with 15 passes, the best of three pitchers who took part in this attack being John Yungwirth who hooked up four out of eight for 48 yards.

N. U. Holds for 8 Minutes.

The Wildcats were in difficulties at the very outset but despite the strain, staved off the touchdown threat for eight minutes. After taking the initial kick-off they tried a pass, but it fell into the hands of Addams who lateralled to Hoernschemeyer, the latter being dropped on Northwestern's 23 yard line. The Hoosiers carried this drive up to the 3 yard line where they were saddled with a 13 yard setback as the result of a bad pass from center, Hoernschemeyer recovering.

To regain the lost ground Hoernschemeyer pitched to Bob Ravensburg, bringing the ball back to the Wildcats' 5 yard line where the latter braced long enough to get a chance to kick out of danger. The Hoosiers returned the punting compliment, Henry Altepeter bringing the kick back to his 30 yard line. A fumble by Yungwirth was captured by Frank Cioili on the Wildcats' 33 yard line and the Hoosiers went on from there, the first advance being a 22 yard sprint over his left end by Addams. After a series of smashes George Sundheim went over and John Tavener kicked the extra point.

Hoosiers Strike Again.

The second period opened with the Wildcats on the offensive on their own 23 yard line but it was only a matter of moments before the situation had changed into another seven points. Yungwirth quick kicked but the ball went out of bounds on the Wildcats' 32, which so far as the Hoosiers were concerned, was just a step from the enemy goal. Addams reeled it off in one play by grabbing a screen pass from Hoernschemeyer and scooting over his right end behind armor plate for a touchdown. Hoernschemeyer's toe made it 14 to 0.

The Wildcats' unexpected splurge in the first few minutes of the third quarter began when Hoernschemeyer punted to Bill Roper on the latter's 29 yard line. In two plays Yungwirth worked up to the 40 for the Purple's first down of the game, after which a 5 yard penalty was handed the Wildcats. Two more plays did the rest. Yungwirth cut loose a long pass intended for Ben

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 21.—Notre Dame gained its fourth consecutive victory of the season today by whipping Wisconsin, 28 to 13, but it came off the field convinced it is not the rip-roaring, high scoring unit its overwhelming triumphs over Pittsburgh and Dartmouth had indicated.

The Badgers' bobby sox brigade was stunned by the fury of the Notre Dame attack in the first seven minutes of play. Once over their jitters, they matched the nation's No. 1 eleven almost point for point. Today's two touchdowns by Wisconsin were the first scored against the Irish this season.

The crowd of 40,000 thought it was in for another one sided ball game when Bob Kelly raced 52 yards for a touchdown on Notre Dame's second play from scrimmage. It was certain of it when Kelly again crossed the Badger goal five minutes later after a Wisconsin fumble gave Notre Dame the ball on the visitors' 9 yard line. But Wisconsin conceded nothing. It held an Irish reserve team scoreless in the second quarter and was within five yards of a touchdown when the gun ended the half.

Badgers Finish Strong.

The final tally probably could have been higher had Notre Dame's regulars not been replaced by second and third string talent thru much of the second and fourth periods. There is a marked difference in the work of the No. 1 and No. 2 Irish lineups, but Wisconsin was getting stronger the further the game progressed. The confidence in themselves which the Badgers must have gained today will make them dangerous opponents for Western conference teams on its schedule.

We never cared much for arithmetic, but the figures of the contest will give you a clearer picture of the fight Wisconsin put up against the squad which in newspaper polls leads America's gridiron parade. The Irish made 13 first downs and Wisconsin 12. Eleven of Notre Dame's were earned by rushing and two by passing. Wisconsin had eight on the ground, three thru the air, and one by penalty.

Each Tight on Pass Defense.

The Irish rolled up 281 yards from scrimmage against the Badgers' 132, but the Madison boys had an edge in yards gained by passing, 97 to 90. Frank Dancewicz and Joe Gasparella, who had completed more than half of their passing attempts in the first three games of the season, clicked with only six in 15 efforts today. Dancewicz found his target four times in 10 and Gasparella two in four.

Earl Girard, who for the fourth straight game played the full 60 minutes, threw all of Wisconsin's passes. He connected with five in 15 attempts, a record which will reduce the average of .500 he possessed prior to today's encounter.

Kelly again was the big ground gainer for the Irish. The Flossmoor flyer averaged better than 7 yards in his 11 trips with the ball. He accounted for 80 yards, but he was by no means the only Irish back who helped to give the Badgers a bad case of jitters.

Irish Divide Running Chores.

Achille Maggioli picked up 22 yards in five tries and Elmer Angsman, from Chicago's Mount Carmel High school, gained 70 in ten. Dancewicz traveled 39 yards in five ball carrying efforts and Nunzio Marino got 25 in five. John Corbisiero added 22 yards in his five efforts, which gives you an idea of the problem confronting the Badger defense.

Jerry Thompson, Wisconsin full back who is built along the lines of a naval projectile and travels approximately as fast, led the Badger ball carriers with 78 yards in 16 trips. Girard, whose contributions to his team's splendid showing were lim-

A. Bowen's kick made the score 14 to 13 for Tech.

Again the Middies swept up field, 70 yards this time, with Jenkins leading the way. Jenkins fumbled at the 5 and Tinsley recovered. Leon Bramlett, Navy end, dropped Williams in the end zone for a safety, giving Navy the lead again, 15 to 14.

Tech then came back 45 yards to a first down on the Navy 9, where two plays failed and A. Bowen stepped in to decide the issue with his field goal.

Middies' Drive Fails.

The game reached a climax with a minute to play as Navy pounded to the Tech 4 for a first down. Paul Duke, Tech center, stopped Jenkins for a 2 yard loss, Ellsworth dived to the 2, Smith was stopped at the 1, and on fourth down, the whole Tech line swarmed on Smith at the goal, and the ball went over to Tech with just seconds to play.

Navy led in first downs, 21 to 10, and had 221 yards rushing and 136 yards passing, completing 9 of 17 tosses. Tech completed 10 of 22 passes for 172 yards.

VILLANOVA WINS, 7 TO 0.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 21 (AP).—Three navy trainees playing their last football game for Villanova college combined their efforts in a scoring thrust late in the second period today to give the Wildcats a 7 to 0 victory over Muhlenberg in Shibe park today.

The pay-off play was a 40 yard pass from Quarter Back Dick Hoot to End Bob Forrest, and the extra point was kicked by Bob David.

PENN STATE 6-0 VICTOR.

Hamilton, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP).—John Chuckran, 18, a freshman from Lansford, Pa., speared a punt out of the air with two minutes to go and raced 50 yards down a rain soaked field to give Penn State a 6 to 0 victory over Colgate today. Colgate piled up 12 first downs to six and netted 196 yards from scrimmage against 79 for the Lions, but lacked scoring punch.

CORNELL PASS DOES IT.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP).—Despite a wet field and slippery ball, Cornell used the forward pass to defeat Sampson naval training center, 13 to 6, before fewer than 2,000 spectators today.

As the game ended, the ball was in the air, launched by Al Dekdebrun from Sampson's 20 yard line. Ed Sharafanowich, a reserve end, caught it in the end zone to break a 6 to 6 tie and give Cornell its third victory in five games. Alex Drogin's successful place kick was an anti-climax.

ARMY ROUTS GUARDSMEN, 76-0.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP).—Army, retaining its position as the east's finest football team, scored a lopsided 76 to 0 victory over Coast Guard academy in Michie stadium today.

The Cadets' attack functioned with near perfection from start to finish and their defense limited Coast Guard to 53 net yards gained from rushing, piling up 18 first downs to six for the the visitors.

The Guardsmen played most of the game without their captain and star back, Herbert [Rocky] Lynch, who was injured and carried off the field midway in the opening quarter.

BASEBALL PLANS GLOBAL TOURNEY FOR 33 NATIONS

The National Baseball congress yesterday announced plans for an international association of leagues, predicting that within a decade it will have 20,000 amateur baseball clubs organized outside the United States.

Ray Dumont, head of the congress' global program, in Chicago said his group planned immediate organization of baseball leagues in each of the united nations and that 32 foreign champions will come to the United States annually to compete for the world's nonprofessional title.

In 1945, Dumont said, only eight countries will be invited to send representatives to the world series which will be held at New York. The congress will publish baseball guides in Spanish as part of the program, he said.

Less seriously injured were Doyle Jones, 17, half back, who scored two touchdowns against West High, Francis T. Carney Jr., 16, driver of the car, and Robert Bales, 18. The Carney car collided with a machine driven by Clarence Meck of Freeport who escaped injury.

Deranek Steals Pass.

The Wildcats worked up another head of steam at the start of the final period but their plans were shattered by Hoosier larceny. At the close of the third session Hoernschemeyer's punt lost 2 yards, wind and a reverse roll doing the job. Two passes thrown by Yungwirth and 13 yards on a reverse by Altepeter moved the Wildcats from Indiana's 47 to 20 yard line, where Yungwirth attempted another pass. Dick Deranek stole it and raced it out to the 31 yard mark, after which neither side threatened altho the Hoosiers, as the result of a pass interception, were on the Wildcats' 24 when the fighting stopped.

Coach's Cry of Gaming Peril Draws Rebuke

Lawrence, Kas., Oct. 21 (AP).—Sharp issue with Dr. Forrest C. [Phog] Allen's prediction that big time gamblers are going to ruin amateur collegiate sports unless college presidents intercede was taken today by a fellow Kansan.

In a statement Emil S. Liston, athletic director of Baker university at Baldwin, Kas., and executive secretary of the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball, deplored what he termed Allen's lack of faith in American youth and meager confidence in the integrity of the coaches of intercollegiate basketball.

Wires Name to Irish.

"It is unfortunate," Liston said, "that any coach should feel that gamblers would eventually get to the boys on the team if a czar of basketball is not chosen."

Allen, University of Kansas basketball coach, today wired Ned Irish, president of New York's Madison Square Garden, the name of a college player who was said to have sold out to gamblers during an eastern basketball tournament last year.

Allen refused to make public the player's name, but in his telegram to Irish he said the athlete had been dismissed by his college for alleged connections with gamblers.

He's After Gamblers.

"I'm not a prosecutor," the Kansas coach commented, "and I'm not out to indict any one except the professional gambler. If Mr. Irish wishes to investigate the matter it is up to him."

Allen's telegram, sent in reply to one from Irish asking for the names of players influenced by gamblers, said: "It is very difficult to get proof" and added:

"I have obtained much information from coaches who told me things honestly and frankly, but who now refuse to take responsibility for their statements."

At Salt Lake City Coach Vadal Peterson of Utah university, 1944 N. C. A. A. basketball champions, confirmed tonight he had been approached by a gambler during the play-offs last March in New York City, but said he closed his hotel room door in the man's face and that ended the incident.

"My opinion is that the betting by fans in New York is no different than the betting by fans in Kansas or Utah," Peterson said.

Irish Whip Badgers, 28 to 13; Kelly Gets First 2 Touchdowns

ited mainly to passing and kicking, had only 20 yards to show for his 15 attempts to advance the leather.

And There Goes Kelly!

Wisconsin kicked off to Notre Dame to start the game and Kelly sped back 15 yards to Notre Dame's 34 yard line. Dancewicz streaked around his right end for 14 and on the next play Kelly bolted thru his right tackle, sidestepped a defensive back and raced 52 yards to the goal. He missed the try for point, an old 1944 custom with the Irish, but nobody worried.

The Badgers gave further evidence of their nervousness when they had trouble retrieving the ball on Notre Dame's kick-off, Thompson finally touching it down on the 13. There was no excitement for the next three minutes, but the crowd came to its feet when Girard, trying to pass, was smothered by the green shirted Irish linemen. He fumbled the ball when tackled and Bill O'Connor recovered for Notre Dame on Wisconsin's 9 yard line.

Two line thrusts by Maggioli and one by Dancewicz netted only five yards, but on fourth down Kelly darted over his right guard for a touchdown. It looked for a moment as if he were going to run right thru the stadium behind the goal and set out for Niles, Mich. Kelly again missed the kick from placement, but Irish eyes were smiling, for the score was 12 to 0.

Gasparella Stops Threat.

Operating against a second string Notre Dame lineup, the Badgers settled down in the second quarter and soon after the period began advanced across midfield to the home team's 31, where a fourth down forward pass went for naught. A few minutes later Gasparella cut down another Wisconsin scoring threat when he intercepted a pass from Girard on Notre Dame's 25 yard stripe.

Just before the end of the second quarter the Badgers put on an offensive that carried from their 31 to Notre Dame's 5, where it was halted by the clock. The downfield parade was more or less a one man show by Thompson. He opened with a gain of 7 yards, then fumbled and recovered for 2 more. He slammed thru his right tackle and went 18 yards before he was invited to sit down by Mr. O'Connor. He banged thru center for 5, Campbell added 3, and Thompson made it a first down on Notre Dame's 33. Girard's pass to Roger Laubenheimer was knocked down, so on the next play the battle array was given to Thompson, who all but got away for a touchdown. He was caught from behind on the 16, but he still was full of steam, despite his exercise. He broke thru his left guard for 13, but then ran into trouble. He fumbled for a 6 yard loss. A pass, Girard to John Mead, was completed on the 5 yard line as the gun ended the half.

Badgers Yield Safety.

Every one thought the Badgers had settled down and would come back with a burst of power in the third quarter, but this period began much like the first. Kelly kicked off to Thompson. He fumbled the ball, picked it up on the 5 yard line and then carried it intentionally behind his goal line where he was downed for a safety, giving the Irish two points.

Wisconsin's kickoff from its 20 went only to its 40, from where the Irish in two plays scored another touchdown. Maggioli went thru the left side of his line for five and then Angsman, deploying behind a line that was outcharging the Badgers decisively, scooted off his right tackle and all the way to the goal before a Wisconsin player touched him. Kelly kicked goal and the score was Notre Dame, 21; Wisconsin, 0.

The Irish counted again before the Badgers made their first touchdown. Art Mergenthal, left tackle, blocked Girard's punt and the ball went to Notre Dame on Wisconsin's 41. On the first play Dancewicz threw a long pass to Maggioli, who had maneuvered his way behind the Badger secondary, and the former Mishawaka High school star crossed the goal unmolested. Kelly again kicked goal to boost the score to 28 to 0.

This One Doesn't.

Angsman soon thereafter ran 75 yards for what appeared to be another Notre Dame touchdown, but the run was nullified by an offside penalty against the Irish.

The Badgers scored shortly before the end of the third quarter. The touchdown drive was set up by Girard's return of a punt to Notre Dame's 48. Back to pass, Girard was trapped far behind the scrimmage line but he managed to squirm out of the host of attackers and got away to toss to Mead on the 23. Girard then whirled around his right end to the Notre Dame 12. Thompson was stopped twice attempting to find a spot in the Notre Dame line but on third down Girard passed to Mead for a touchdown. Girard kicked the point.

Badgers Score Another One.

Wisconsin got a break near the close of the last quarter and capitalized on it. Corbisiero, Irish second string full back, fumbled and Girard recovered on the Badgers' 31. Thompson gained 9 yards and then took a lateral from Holmes for a first down on Notre Dame's 42.

Then came Wisconsin's best play of the day. Holmes lateraled to Girard. He faded back and fired a pass to Campbell who was uncovered near the east side line. It was good for a first down on the Irish 5 yard line.

BOYS' FOOTBALL TEAMS RECEIVE NEW UNIFORMS

Six football teams, togged in new uniforms and representing the coaching schools sponsored by the Chicago Sports association and the Chicago Park district, will make their first public appearance this afternoon in Wrigley field during the intermission of the Chicago Bears-Detroit Lions game.

The boys, 90 in all, were presented with their outfits yesterday in the Chicago Stadium after being selected from a field of 1,200 boys who took part in the course which ran for five weeks and was designed to teach them the fundamentals and technique of the sport. Coaches at the schools in addition to the Park district directors were members of the Chicago Bears team.

Starting next week the teams will play a complete schedule with the winners being crowned coaching school champions and will be presented with appropriate medals and trophies emblematic of the title. Charles W. Bidwill, president of the Chicago Sports association, who presented the boys with their uniforms yesterday, will be out looking over the boys this afternoon. The schools represented by teams are Tuley park, Washington park, Douglas park, Columbus park, Portage park, and Welles park.

the gridiron and did not return. Thereafter, Purdue's astute quarter backs sent at least 70 per cent of all rushes inside or outside of this defensive position.

Boilermaker Attack Stalls.

Purdue received to open the game and after making an initial first down, relinquished possession with Frank Bauman's fourth down punt which Stewart fielded on his own 19 and returned to the Iowa 31 yard line. The Hawkeyes advanced to Purdue's 24 where the attack stalled. A minute later Cody's fumble was recovered by Bill Kersten on Purdue's 37 yard line, but again Iowa reached Purdue's 22 yard line. Dick Woodward's 11 yard loss prompted an Iowa fourth down kick which resulted in a touchback.

On the last play of the quarter Cody plunged 4 yards. Bumps Elliott lost this distance but Babe Dimancheff then went around Iowa's right flank for a first down on Purdue's 40. Cody plunged 8 yards and on the next play shot inside defensive left tackle, stiff armed one defender, and outran Stewart down the east side line to score.

Dick Woodward immediately passed to his right end, Russ McLaughlin, for 10 yards and repeated the performance for 9 yards on the next play. Kersten plunged for 4 yards and then Jim Hansen ripped over for the touchdown. Stewart's placement gave Iowa its 7 to 6 lead.

Cody Runs 38 Yards.

Purdue received the second half kickoff and at once sobered the exuberant Hawkeyes. Elliott plunged for 6 yards on two tries and then, from a flanking position on his left, went down field to stop in front of the defensive half back and catch Ray Schultz's pass on Iowa's 39 yard line. Dimancheff was held to a yard gain, but Cody plunged outside of the defensive right tackle in Iowa's six man line and ran 38 yards to the goal. Tom Hughes missed the kick for the point and the Boilermakers led, 12 to 7.

Purdue began another assault on its own 19 yard line, moved to Iowa's 49, and then Bauman was forced to kick on fourth down. His high, short punt was fumbled by McLaughlin and Jack Morton recovered for Purdue. Cody, Dimancheff, and Elliott carried in succession for a total of 8 yards and Dimancheff got a first down, but Purdue was penalized for backfield in motion. Schultz passed to Dimancheff, another hook pass in front of Woodard, defensive back, for a first down on the Hawkeye 8. Cody plunged for 2 yards and Dimancheff shot inside the vulnerable right tackle position for the touchdown.

Dimancheff Scores Final Touchdown.

With seven minutes to play in the last period Rose punted badly and out of bounds on Iowa's 18 yard line. Elliott and Dimancheff got 4 yards between them and Dimanchef went 14 for the last touchdown on a quick opening play inside of the defensive left tackle.

PACIFIC COAST BOOSTS PLAYING SEASON 2 WEEKS

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 21 (AP).—The Pacific Coast league will open its 1945 season on March 31 and close Sept. 23, the directors decided today. This lengthens the new season two weeks over 1944.

The directors, composed of the club owners, also voted to submit to the National Baseball association at its annual meeting in Buffalo a proposal to increase the players' draft price for all classifications of circuits. The price for AA leagues, of which the Coast league is one, would be boosted from $7,500 to $25,000.

Horseshoe Lake Bird Hotel Menu Draws Geese Tourists

BY BOB BECKER.

Every fall flocks of geese come down from the north to enjoy one of the most popular bird "hotels" in the United States. This is the Horseshoe lake refuge maintained by the Illinois department of conservation. The honkers like the meals served on this sanctuary, which is near Cairo, Ill., and they congregate there by the thousands during the autumn and winter months.

The shooting of Canada geese around the Horseshoe lake refuge is known all over the middle west. In fact, it's been too well known as far as the geese are concerned, because, as game authorities point out, the kill in the past was larger than the flock could stand.

Kill Off Too Many.

It's reported that in the last five years at least 55,000 geese have been killed in the Cairo, Ill., area near which Horseshoe lake is located. This total amounts to from 10 to 25 per cent of the resident flock, depending on the year.

But this year the story will be different. Livingston Osborne, director of the department of conservation, and other game authorities met with the landowners around the refuge several weeks ago to get the shooting on a reasonable basis. This fall only 6,000 geese will be taken around the refuge, blinds will be occupied just once each day [according to the promise of the day shooting operators], and cripples [which Director Osborne hopes to retrieve each afternoon of the season] are going to be counted against the daily kill.

Geese Like Horseshoe Lake.

The Illinois Natural History Survey has been banding and studying the Horseshoe lake goose concentration since 1941 and now has considerable information about this flock which comes to Illinois every year. It is known that the honkers meeting at Horseshoe nest chiefly along the west coast of Hudson Bay. Decreases in Canada goose numbers on the gulf coast have coincided with increases at the Illinois sanctuary which tells the scientists of the Survey that many honkers refuse to fly to Louisiana each winter. Instead, they are staying at Horseshoe.

The fact that few of the geese banded by the Survey workers are killed south of the Cairo region offers substantial evidence that the honkers are picking Horseshoe lake for their winter quarters. Last year the Survey trapped 4,700 geese at the sanctuary of which 2,440 were new banded birds, the remainder repeats and returns from other years.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 21 (AP).—Julius Davis, 18, an aviation cadet without any college football experience, led St. Mary's Pre-Flight to a 21 to 12 upset victory over the U. C. L. A. Bruins today. Davis, a 175 pounder from Clarksdale, Miss., was practically the whole show for the first three periods while the Navy team was scoring three times on straight football.

Three touchdowns behind going into the fourth quarter, Johnny Roesch of U. C. L. A. came thru with two touchdowns.

CALIFORNIA LOSES.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 21 (AP).—The Fleet City Bluejackets, rated a two to one underdog, scored a comparatively easy 19 to 2 victory over the University of California Bears today.

Led by Joe Stydahar, the former Chicago Bears tackle, the Bluejackets dominated the game thruout, California having a net gain of only five yards.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 21 [AP].—A crowd of 30,000 at the Hipodromo de las Americas racetrack stood in silence today to honor Capt. Patrick Irving O'Hay, actor, soldier of fortune, and racing enthusiast who died Wednesday at Taos, New Mexico.

KANSAS DEFEATS NEBRASKA, 20-0; 1ST IN 48 YEARS

Lawrence, Kas., Oct. 21 (AP).—Ever since 1896 Kansas has been taking it on the chin when the Nebraska Cornhuskers came to Lawrence. Today the Jayhawkers turned and wound up the 48 year long string of defeats with a 20 to 0 victory over the Nebraskans.

Two end zone passes and a blocked punt produced the tallies. Kansas kept the ball in the air much of the afternoon, completing 10 of 20 passes.

Charles Moffett, Kansas quarter back, and Don Barrington, 195 pound half back, alternated at tearing thru the Nebraska line and tossing aerials that had the Cornhuskers on the defense all afternoon. So thoroly outclassed were the Cornhuskers that they failed to threaten seriously until the final two minutes of the game, when a 45 yard pass from Bill Betz to Charles Knight put the ball on the K. U. 10.

On four consecutive plays, the hard charging Kansas line threw the Cornhuskers for losses, and the game ended with the ball resting on the 20 in possession of the Jayhawkers.

IOWA STATE, MISSOURI TIE.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 21 (AP).—Iowa State and the University of Missouri treated 6,500 fans to a spectacular exhibition of football today, only to wind up in a 21 to 21 tie. The result—and the power they displayed—marked both teams as contenders for the Big Six football crown.

Bill Dellastatious, fleet half back, sparked the Missouri Tigers both with his passing and his ball carrying. It looked for a while in the fourth quarter like he had earned the Tigers a victory when he led his mates to two touchdowns in less than three minutes to put them ahead for the first time. But Iowa State, which started strong only to sag midway, came back with a rush to tie the score with two and a half minutes to play.

OKLAHOMA TRIUMPHS, 68-0.

Norman, Okla., Oct. 21 (AP).—Using virtually every man on the squad and every type of scoring play, the University of Oklahoma walloped Kansas State 68 to 0 today in opening defense of its Big Six conference football title.

RUNNING ILLINI ATTACK BEATS PITTSBURGH U.

Westerners Pile Up Score in Long Dashes.

Mike Roussus gave Pittsburgh a brief lead. The other long run of the afternoon was a 62 yard dash by Paul Patterson, late of Aurora's West High.

Pitt Starts It.

The Panthers had the solace of leading in first downs, 15 to 10, and controling the ball most of the afternoon. The Illini line may have been baffled by the 4-5-2 defense which the Panthers sent against them. But the winners seemed content to let their opponents have fun playing with the ball in midfield, and then dispatching Young, Greenwood, and Patterson on their scoring missions.

Pitt traveled from its own 31 yard line to the Illinois 15 yard stripe after the opening kick-off to set the stage for Roussus' field goal. Freshman Lou Yakopec returned the kick-off to his 31, then collaborated with George Freese in toting the ball to the Illinois 44 yard line. Don Matthews, right half, shot thru the Illinois left tackle for 28 yards. Freese and Yakopec could gain only a yard and after Paul Rickards' pass went awry Roussus stepped back to the Illini 23 yard line and booted his placement.

Then Illini Strike.

Greenwood took the ensuing kick-off on the 20 yard stripe and went the route for a touchdown, moving into the clear on the Pitt 33 yard line. His try for the extra point was low. The Panthers then drove from their 5 to their 40 before Yakopec finally punted out of bounds on the Illinois 21 yard mark. Patterson picked up a yard, then Greenwood flipped a lateral to Full Back Jerry Cies, who moved on to the Panther 44 yard line. Young, in three successive plays, two on end sweeps and one into the line, toted it to the 28 yard line. Patterson then pitched one of his southpaw passes to Right End Lou Agase for a touchdown, but the play was called back when the Illini backs were ruled in motion. Paul and Lou tried it over again on the next play, and this was ruled complete on the Pittsburgh 9 when Half Back Vic Pepper of Pitt was charged with interference. Greenwood added 4 at the line, and after Patterson was stopped, went over his right guard for a touchdown. His placement attempt struck the left upright and bounced back into the field.

A quick kick by Greenwood wandered out of bounds on the Pittsburgh 45 yard mark, and the Panthers threatened with a drive to the Illinois 23 yard line before surrendering possession. Illinois lost the ball on downs on its own 48, and when Pitt couldn't gain, Yakopec punted out of bounds on the Illinois 6 yard stripe. Patterson got 2 and then the customers were regaled with Young's speed. He swept to his right, apparently headed for out of bounds, then found a hole and a couple of blockers, moved in to follow them, and was off and alone by the time he crossed the Panther 40 yard line. Greenwood delivered the point to make the half time score 19 to 3.

Buddy Fills Blocking Role.

Illinois accepted the third quarter kick-off, Greenwood returning 22 yards to his own 33 yard line. Here Patterson made his entrance. He picked up 1 at left end, got 4 more at the defensive right tackle, and on third down, burst thru the right side of the Pitt line for a 62 yard touchdown romp. And who do you think put on the decisive block at the Panther 20 yard line, just when he appeared to be overhauled? None other than Master Young.

Yakopec got away a tremendous punt from his own 35 yard line in the third period, the ball bounding into the end zone. Illinois was set back to its own 5 yard line on a holding penalty. Greenwood picked up 9 yards in two plays, then the Illini were penalized for excessive times out. Greenwood was rushed while attempting a pass on the next play, Al Phillips 219 pound Panther freshman tackle, dropping him in the end zone for a safety.

Illinois redeemed this error with another touchdown before the third quarter expired, thanks to a recovery of a Pitt fumble on the Panther 37 by Les Bingaman, 255 pound Illini tackle. Greenwood flung a pass to Ray Ciszek, right end, on which the latter made a neat catch before stepping out of bounds at the Pittsburgh 9 yard mark. Young and Greenwood teamed for 5 yards in two line smashes, then Buddy scampered around the defensive left end for a touchdown, Greenwood delivering the point to make the score 32 to 5.

Guard Rudy Macchione, formerly of Chicago's Steinmetz High, set up the final score of the day by retrieving a Pitt fumble on the Panthers' 13 yard line. The home boys were assessed 5 yards for too many times out, and Don Johnson, Young's running mate at Wendell Phillips High, completed the job with a 5 yard touchdown drive. Bill Butkovich added the extra point.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 21 (AP).—Buell St. John, a veteran of the war in the Pacific, kicked a field goal from the 8 yard line with seven seconds left in the game to give the North Carolina Navy Pre-flight eleven a 3 to 0 decision over Georgia Pre-flight today.

St. John, a half back from the University of Alabama who returned to the United States in February after winning decorations with Carlson's raiders in the Pacific, made his placement kick on fourth down.

After the unbeaten Cloudbusters had threatened once in the final quarter, only to lose the ball on a fumble, Otto Graham and Stan Koslowski, who gained 122 yards for the day, drove 35 yards to the Georgia 8 yard mark to set up the score.

KENTUCKY WINS, 26-2.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 21 (AP).—Kentucky's Wildcats today defeated Virginia Military institute, 26 to 2.

Long runs by Kenton [Dutch] Campbell and Norman Klein accounted for three of the Wildcats' touchdowns and the passing combination of Klein to Campbell accounted for the fourth Kentucky score.

The cadets, who featured a passing duet of Elmer Kozzora to Clyde Grimenstein, turned in a safety in the third period when Klein fumbled a high pass from center.

Both teams threatened to score on several occasions but frequent fumbles, especially in the third period, ruined their chances.

TULSA ROUTS MISSISSIPPI.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 21 (AP).—A big, tough Tulsa team with a potent pre-war punch rolled over the University of Mississippi's "juveniles" here today, 47 to 0, to keep alive its hopes for a fourth straight bowl invitation. It was triumph No. 4 for Henry Frnka's Hurricanes, unbeaten in regular reason play since 1941.

The sharp passing arm of Maurice [Red] Wade, the blasting drives of Gamp Wilson, and the running of first year Bobby Jack Stuart kept the Rebels in almost constant retreat.

TULANE, 16; AUBURN, 13.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 21 (AP).—Billy Jones' field goal from the 7 yard line in the closing minutes gave the Tulane Green Wave a 16 to 13 victory over Auburn here today.

Jones' kick barely skimmed over the cross bars and came after a sensational 56 yard run by Curtis Kuykendall that tied the score at 13 to 13 with less than five minutes remaining in the game. Jim Randall, Tulane back, ran 50 yards on a reverse to set up the fourth down scoring play.

ALABAMA, TENNESSEE TIE.

Baseball Cuts $309,590.91 Series Melon

The office of Baseball Commissioner Landis yesterday announced the split-up among players of their share of world series receipts. The total amount divided—$309,590.91—was the smallest in years.

The victorious St. Louis Cardinals took $130,028.18 and the losing Browns shared $86,685.46, leaving $92,877.27 to be distributed among second, third, and fourth place winners in both leagues.

The Chicago Cubs, who finished fourth in the National league, got $7,739.77 to pass around. The White Sox, who finished seventh in the American league, received nothing.

The Cardinals' full shares amounted to an even $4,626 for eight players, but 18 others got an extra penny each, making the odd cents come out even. Even with the extra pennies, the shares were far below average. Each full share winner bought $600 worth of war bonds. Nine men received fractional shares ranging from $500 to $2,313.

Thirteen Brownies received $2,743.78 each, and 16 luckier ones got the extra pennies, making $2,743.79. But they all bought war bonds with maturity values of $350 for each man. Part share takers among the Browns totaled nine, their shares ranging from $500 to $1,371.89.

WHITES DEFEAT BLACKS, 7-6, IN HAWK WORKOUT

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 21 [Special]. —Two Blackhawk squads, one called Whites and other Blacks, played a regulation game this afternoon and because body checking was not allowed, the scoring was high, as the final results show.

The White aggregation, consisting of Goalie Doug Stevenson, Defensemen Joe Bretto, Earl Siebert, and Tony Dorn, with forward lines made up of Pete Horeck, Clint Smith, and Bill Mosienko and Joe Papike, Johnny Gottselig, and Mush March, triumphed, 7 to 6, over a squad which had Mike Karakas in the nets, Joe Cooper, Virgil Johnson, and Red Mitchell on defense, and wings composed of Bus Brayshaw, Bill Thomas, and Johnny Hams, and Fido Purpur, Harvey Fraser, and George Beach.

Every player in the game showed himself to be in good physical condition and aside from the game which the Hawks will put on for the populace of Hibbing this afternoon with the same two teams participating, all of the remaining workouts will be light affairs.

Coach Thompson declared today that he may give them one stiff workout in Chicago next week but added that they really do not need it.

The Hawks wind up their long 25 day training grind Tuesday. They'll be in Chicago Wednesday for daily drills until next Sunday when they open the season at home against the Tornado Maple Leafs.

Indiana State Teachers Top Normal, 13 to 6

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 21 [Special].—Thirty-five hundred saw Indiana State Teachers whip the State Normal eleven, 13 to 6, in a homecoming game today. The defeat was the Cardinal eleven's first on homecoming day in 14 years. Indiana struck with its aerial game attack in the second half to gain the decision.

Bob Carpenter, Normal naval trainee, scored in the second quarter when Leslie McIntyre passed to the Lansing, Mich., lad for 25 yards on a fake punt, Carpenter scooting the remaining 10 yards for the touchdown. McIntyre's attempt to convert by placement was wide.

Jerry Mullens, a graduate of Trinity High school here, was a major factor in Indiana's tieing the score a few minutes later. Mullens faded back for a pass and finding his receivers covered, eluded a half dozen Normal tacklers, and carried the ball to the Normal 5 in a 25 yard sprint. Dick Schwankel plunged thru the line for the touchdown. Stevens, Normal center, blocked the kick for goal.

In the third period Bill Aspy hurled a 35 yard pass to Mullens who got behind the Normal safety man and raced all the way for the six points that meant victory. Schwankel plunged for the conversion.

BEARS TO CLASH WITH LIONS AND SINKWICH TODAY

Bears Eye No. 2

DETROIT.		CHICAGO.

Wojciechowicz	C.	Turner
Kaporch	R.G.	Zorich

Sinkwich	L.H.	Margarita
Van Tone	R.H.	McLean

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The Bears, who last week embarked on their steepest climb in many seasons, will try to take another laborious step this afternoon in Wrigley field with the help of the Detroit Lions. By winning today the defending champions could reach the respectable percentage figure of .500 in the National Football league race, which still would keep them far off the pace unless something awful happens to the unbeaten Green Bay Packers today in their meeting with the also undefeated Cleveland Rams.

A late report from the Bears' counting room indicated that today's crowd may go above the 25,000 mark, especially if good weather holds. The Bears' main problem is to keep the busy Frank Sinkwich at least partly under control. Sinkwich, one of the league's highest salaried ball players, earns his money by running, passing, and kicking. The suspicion is growing that Frankie, by all this activity, wears himself out early in the game. But the fellow usually is devastating long enough to give the Lions an early lead.

Pitches to Westfall.

Fans who watched Bob Westfall during his great days with Michigan's Wolverines will see the young man make his professional debut in Chicago. Bob, who seldom caught a football in college, is Sinkwich's main target. He has snatched nine pitches for 134 yards and ranks next to Frankie in yardage on ground plays among the Lions.

Gene Ronzani, the Bears' venerable quarter back who played with the enthusiasm of a rookie in last week's 34 to 7 rout of the Card-Pitts, will be throwing footballs again, spelled by Johnny Long, who once was his half back when Gene was coaching the Newark Bears.

Bears Show New Spirit.

Confidence after the smashing victory over the Card-Pitts, granting that this combined team has been weakened by dissension which started in training camp at Waukesha, has been reflected in the Bears' workouts all week. Their goal is an undefeated season from here on out, with supplications on the side that the Green Bays will lose one game in addition to the one on Nov. 5 when they play the champions in Wrigley field. At least, the Bears think they'll win the Green Bay encore.

The Lions, like the Bears, have been whipped by the Packers and Rams. The Detroits' victory was scored over the Brooklyn Tigers.

No relief is in sight for the Card-Pitts, who meet the undefeated Giants in New York. The merged eleven will get along without Johnny Butler, the half back from Tennessee who has been suspended for failing to hustle.

Green Bay and Rams Battle for 1st Place

BY HARRY WARREN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 21.—Exclusive ownership of the lead in the western division of the National Football league will be at stake tomorrow when the unbeaten Cleveland Rams and Green Bay Packers meet in City stadium before a crowd of 25,000.

Barring a tie game, which is just about as probable as a major Jap sea battle, either Green Bay or Cleveland is going to be perched on top of the Western division ladder while the loser will be catapulted among the also-runs and at the same time see its perfect record sullied.

Packers on Spot.

On the basis of years of play in the National league the leadership at best may only be a temporary situation as can be attested by the upsets that have dropped the Chicago Bears into a tie with the Detroit Lions for third place in the circuit.

To anybody else in the league the remark that "uneasy is the head that wears the crown" may mean something, but Green Bay scoffs at any such uneasiness. The Packers are definitely on the spot and have a fair idea of how the Bears ordinarily feel about this time of the year what with every team in the league pointing for them.

Predict a Passing Duel.

At all events Green Bay fans who like their football whether it is played in mild autumnal weather or in the frigid blasts that pay frequent visits to these regions are due to see one of the best passing duels of the season. Irv Comp and Don Hutson have been announced as the battery for Green Bay while Albie Reisz and Steve Pritko will fill a similar role for the Rams.

NORWEGIAN AIR FORCE TEAM TO BATTLE VIKINGS

Soccer Match Today Heads Winnemac Park Card.

BY OFFSIDE.

Chicagoland soccer fans have an unusual treat in store this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Winnemac park stadium when the Vikings, recent winners of the Kelly Cup finals and the National Soccer league's cup eliminations, clash with the Norwegian Royal Air Force Flyers from Toronto, Canada. It will be the third meeting of the two with the Vikings holding one victory and the second ending in a 3 goal tie.

The Flyers arrived shortly before noon yesterday and spent most of the afternoon and evening visiting points of interest around the city, including the Tribune Tower and the Auditorium Service Men's center.

The Norwegians boast two of soccer's tallest full backs in Enok and Olaf, each of whom towers several inches over six feet. Enok is six feet six inches tall and Olaf only one inch shorter.

Have Lost One Game.

Yngar at goal and Asmund, inside forward who played for the Vikings against the Hakoach-Centers a week ago, are two of the team's outstanding stars. The latter played for Norway in international competition against Sweden before the outbreak of the war. The left wing combination of Stanley and Per and Half Back Frittjov were members of the team that played the Vikings a year ago.

The Flyers have lost only one game in Canadian competition, dropping a close decision to a team from a camp near Jarvis that was made up entirely of former star players from England.

The Vikings, who are unbeaten in competition this fall, have held several workouts during the past week in order to be in the best of condition for today's game. Manager Jocke Johanasen indicated yesterday that he will have his strongest lineup on the field for the opening face-off.

Spartas Face Cleveland.

The Spartas, who have run into considerably hard luck in the fall campaign, battle the Cleveland Americans in an inter-city match at Sparta stadium this afternoon at 3. The Clevelanders have appeared in Chicago before under the banner of the Slavias and hold several victories over the Spartas. Lineups:

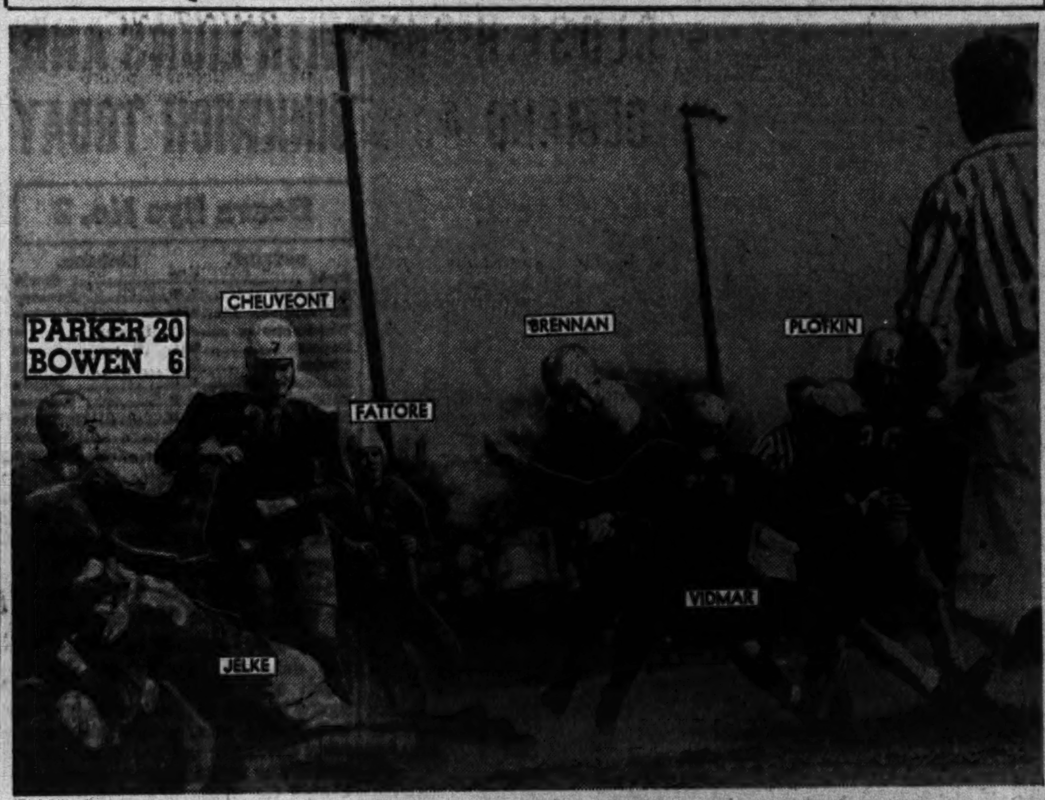
Wake Forest Clinches Share in Southern Title

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 21 (AP).—Wake Forest's Southern conference pace setters defeated North Carolina State's scrappy Wolfpack, 21 to 7, tonight to keep their unbeaten record clean and assure themselves at least a share in the conference title. The Deacons came from behind to achieve their fifth straight triumph, their fourth against conference foes.

NOT QUITE A PARKER TOUCHDOWN



Don Brennan of Parker High school plowing thru center to the 1 yard line in yesterday's south section Public School league game in Shewbridge field, at 74th st. and Aberdeen av. J. Vidmar stopped Brennan on this gain. Parker is tied with Fenger for leadership in the south section.

TILDEN DEFEATS PHILLIPS, 20-13; LEADS CENTRAL

Tilden Tech went into first place in the central section of the Public High School Football league last night by dealing Phillips High school its first defeat of the season, 20 to 13, in Shewbridge field. Quarter back Bill Gay scored twice for Tilden. Phillips has won three games.

Phillips took the lead when Horace Chandler ran 83 yards for a touchdown shortly after the game started, but Tilden tied the score in the first period. A second touchdown gave Phillips a 13 to 7 half time lead, but Tilden finished strong and scored in the third and fourth quarters for its third league victory in four games. The other one was a tie.

Parker, Fenger Triumph.

Parker and Fenger continued undefeated in a complicated south section title race. Parker defeated Bowen, 20 to 6, on Shewbridge field, while Fenger routed Hirsch, 39 to 0, at Pullman Tech.

Galen Cheuvront paced the Parker attack, passing for two touchdowns in the first half and running 20 yards for the final Parker score. Ray Madura plunged over from the 3 yard line for the Bowen score.

Pete Konyar, Bob Carlson, and Tim Madden teamed up for Fenger's 39 points, which represented a fourth south section victory.

In the west section, Harrison and Marshall both won to stay in a second place tie. Harrison scored in the first and third periods to beat Crane, 12 to 0, in Key Branch stadium, for its third victory in four starts. Bob Wencel scored on a 10 yard plunge in the first quarter and John Knebl added the second touchdown with a 3 yard plunge.

Marshall Rallies to Win.

Marshall rallied after trailing Kelvyn Park, 14 to 0, at the half, and won, 21 to 14, in Hanson Park. Bob Sperlin started the rally by scoring a touchdown, then Gene Siegel passed to Laurie Novak in the end zone for a second score. Siegel passed to Bill Moio in the end zone for the winning touchdown.

Harold Canadeo scored three times to lead Steinmetz to a 25 to 0 west section victory over Tuley. The game was played in Hanson Park.

Fred Reif of Roosevelt made one of the longest runs of the season in a north section game against Lake View, but his efforts were to no avail as Lake View won, 19 to 6. The game, in Lane Tech stadium, was scoreless in the first half, but Lake View scored three times while Roosevelt was held to Rief's lone touchdown dash.

Gallagher Sparks Amundsen.

Elsewhere in the north section, Jerry Gallagher ran 75 yards in the third quarter for a score and in the final period dashed 85 yards for another touchdown as Amundsen routed Waller, 42 to 0, in Winnemac Park.

Schurz won its fourth game in five starts in the north by defeating Taft, 20 to 0, in Lane Tech stadium. Schurz led at the half, 14 to 0, on touchdowns by John Miller and Dick Redman. In the third quarter Clayton Kvavil plunged over from the 3 yard line.

In other central section games Englewood won its first game in four starts by upsetting Gage Park, 6 to 0, Herb Saunders scoring on a reverse in the second period. The game was played in Shewbridge field. Farragut and Du Sable met in a central section game in Yates Avenue stadium, with Farragut winning, 18 to 12.

LADY IN RED HITS JACKPOT AGAIN AT ROCKINGHAM

Salem, N. H., Oct. 21 (AP).—The mysterious lady in red who has been plunging on favorites to show at New England race tracks today returned to Rockingham Park. The woman, who has created several minus pools by her transactions, showed up just as track officials believed that publicity had scared her away.

Today she added to her earnings by wagering $7,000 that Pete's Bet would show in the second race. Picking up a quick profit of $700 she departed as quietly as she arrived.

Pete's Bet had been installed an even money favorite to win because of his mud running qualities. Lauren and Wagner's Amazed upset him, but he slithered home in second place.

The $5,000 added Springsteel handicap, feature event, was won by No Wrinkles. The 4 year old son of Wise Counsellor sloshed the mile and an eighth in 1:56 3-5 and defeated the odds on favorite, Texas Sandman, by a length and a half. Mixer was third.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

A brilliant eight race program which included three handicap events drew a crowd of 15,489 active followers of the thorobreds to Sportsman's Park yesterday and betting records tumbled along with the favorites in the headlined events.

Yesterday's pari-mutuel play, which reached its high mark of $130,657 with the running of the second division of the Cicero handicap, the sixth race, totaled $891,371. This was $19,665 more than the track's record set on Oct. 23 last year when $871,706 was bet on a nine race card. The previous high for eight races was recorded April 29 this year when $824,054 was wagered on the inaugural card which drew 22,229 spectators, the largest crowd in the history of the Cicero half miler.

Chipamink Wins Easily.

The $2,500 Cicero handicap was split into two divisions when 16 horses were named to start. The first section was won by the Silver Stock farm's Chipamink, a 4 year old son of Peanuts. It scored by eight lengths over G. T. Peter's Hard Twist, the 2 to 1 favorite on the strength of a record which included a victory in the $10,000 Longacres mile late in August.

Chipamink, ridden by Willie Hawksworth, was rated well, hanging right on Hard Twist's tail until they hit the far turn the last time in the seven furlong affair. Leo Nehring's Take Away was third. The winner paid $10.40, $4.80, and $3.

Final Glory Scores Upset.

Ruth Sidell's Burgo Maid, winner of the $10,000 Illinois owners' handicap at Hawthorne last Saturday, went postward an even money choice in the second division of the Cicero, but had to be content with second money as W. H. Bishop's Final Glory, with Bruno Pucci up, came up with a rush in the last sixteenth to win by half a length.

Burgoo Maid, ridden by Eddie Franklin, finished well ahead of the Happy Hour farm's Happy Pilot, which took the show from C. F. Martin's Bring Me Home. Final Glory paid $14.40, $5, and $3.40.

The John A. Brown Memorial handicap was taken by S. D. Sidell's St. Jock, winner of five of his last six starts and a 2 to 1 choice in an eight horse field. Mrs. Clyde Troutt's Take Wing was second and Silver Stock Farm's Volcano saved the show from F. J. Demary's Selma May. Eddie Franklin rode the winner, which paid $6.80, $3.60, and $3.

TWILIGHT TEAR RUNS OUT FIRST TIME IN CAREER

Laurel, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—The combination of a 130 pound impost and a muddy track proved too much for Twilight Tear today, and the Calumet farm filly finished out of the money for the first time in her career as Dare Me splashed to victory in the 30th running of the Maryland handicap.

Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's 3 year old daughter of Challenger II. matched strides with Twilight Tear in the early stages of the race and then, as approximately 10,000 unbelieving fans watched, pulled away on the final turn and went on to win easily.

Miss Keeneland, Twilight Tear's stablemate, improved on her recent form to finish second, six lengths back of Dare Me. William Helis' Aera was third, two and a half lengths back and another five in front of the Calumet farm filly, who appeared to tire badly in the final stages.

The Illinois Industrial and Commercial Recreation association, a newly chartered organization in the industrial sports field, will hold an organization meeting in Peoria next Sunday, to be followed by a Chicago session Tuesday, Oct. 31. It is intended primarily to sponsor sectional and state tournaments for outstanding industrial teams in all branches of sport, with a strong likelihood that its first efforts will be in basketball this winter.

The organization has been granted a state charter as a nonprofit organization and James E. Skinner of the Howard Foundry, magnesium division, one of the organizers, reports some 35 industrial concerns already have shown interest in the setup. In addition, officials of the recreation section of the Chicago park district have promised to coöperate in the preliminaries and the first Chicago meeting a week from Tuesday will be held in the park district administration building at the north end of Soldiers' field.

Booklet Gives Details on Organizing Teen Age Night Clubs.

"Soldiers and WACs have the U. S. O. War workers have swing shift dances. Children have playgrounds. But nobody seems to worry about YOUR social life! Mom is busy with her war job. Dad works so hard nowadays you hardly ever see him. And YOU may feel like an outcast."

Thus opens the introduction to "Planning for Fun," a booklet on how to organize a teen age night club which last week found its way to this department. Its 34 pages are crammed with interesting details on that subject, written and illustrated in a manner which should appeal to teen age youngsters. In fact, so directly is it beamed to this group that at least one industrial recreation writer [guess who!] found it necessary to call on a bobby socks enthusiast to find out just what it was all about. The booklet is published by the Nehi corporation, Columbus, Ga., and is well worth looking over by any industrial recreation group interested in the youth problem.

Members of the Hallicrafters Radio company glee club may not be able to tell you how many shopping days there are before Christmas, but it's a safe bet they know how many rehearsals they'll have before their appearance at the company's Christmas party. The appearance of the glee club will be one of the features of that event and special rehearsals will start soon.

Until last Tuesday night the Thordarson Flashtrons, defending champions in the Division Street Y. M. C. A. Industrial Bowling league, had lost only two games while winning 13 and were rolling along smoothly in first place. Then came their meeting with the Ekco Products boys, who were struggling valiantly to boost their rating to .500 and were just short of that mark with a record of seven games won and eight lost.

All the Ekcos did was take three straight from the leaders, wiping out their three game lead and forcing them to share first place with Chicago Rawhide, which won three from Guyer Metal Products. Ekco moved up to the first division, being one of seven teams now tied for fourth place in the 16 team league. The two leaders, Rawhide and Flashtrons, will meet Tuesday in a battle for the lead, tho Bodine Electric, in third place, is only a game behind and might gain a share of the top spot this week.

Revere Copper Holds Lead in Industrial Traveling League.

Revere Copper & Brass continues to roll merrily along in the Industrial Traveling Bowling league with a record of 19 games won and two lost, a margin of five over Motorola Radio and Quality Hardware, which are tied for second. Others in the 10 team league lineup in this order: Minneapolis-Honeywell, Buick Aviation, Lindberg Steel, Bell & Howell, General Engineering, Douglas Aircraft, and Central Scientific.

Ties are the rule in the women's division of the Radio Industries bowling circuit, nine of the 12 teams being involved in deadlocks for first, fifth, and seventh places. Motorola Radio, Belmont Radio, and Chicago Transformer are tied for top position, with Crowe Name Plate sole holder of fourth place. Crescent Tool and American Phenolic share fifth, while the seventh spot is even more crowded with four co-tenants, Cinch Manufacturing, Admiral Radio, Majestic Radio, and S-W Inductor claiming a share. National Fabricated is 11th and Standard Coil brings up the rear.

Eddy Ryan, who during his years of service at the North Avenue-Larrabee Y. M. C. A. has helped organize any number of gatherings in honor of various individuals and groups, will himself be the guest of honor at a dinner there Thursday evening. Eddy literally has grown up with the North av. association, his most recent connection being as men's program director and head of the physical training department. He has transferred his activities to Northwestern university as director of intramural athletics and the dinner is the idea of a group of men with whom he has worked in the different leagues and classes. It will not be a farewell party, since he is to retain a connection with the North Av. "Y" as industrial secretary.

LADIES' NIGHT IN GYM.

Women workers in the Owens-Illinois Glass company plant in Alton have their own special night in the employes' club gymnasium each Tuesday. At present volleyball is the No. 1 group activity with a five week schedule to be followed by a tournament. Then basketball will take the center of the stage. Badminton and table tennis also are on the program.

St. Ignatius vs. Fenwick in Hanson park, 2 p. m.; De Paul vs. St. Mel in Lane Tech stadium, 2:15 p. m.; St. Philip vs. St. George at Loyola, 2:15 p. m.

The largest crowd to see a high school football game this season is expected in Comiskey park today when St. Rita meets Leo's Lions in the annual Sisters of Mercy benefit game before an attendance that may reach 40,000. The game will have an important bearing on the south section race of the Catholic league. St. Rita, currently undefeated in league play, shares the lead with Weber, undefeated in five games, while Leo has suffered one league loss, to Weber, 6-0.

Leo and St. Rita have played in the annual game since 1939, and it wasn't until last year that St. Rita finally registered a victory by a 12 to 6 score. Today, St. Rita, under Coach Leo Deutsch, who learned his football at St. Benedict's college under Lt. Comdr. Larry [Moon] Mullins, former Notre Dame full back now at Iowa Pre-Flight school, will be seeking a victory to keep in the South section race.

Each Has 2 Victories.

Going into today's game, Leo has won two south section games, losing only to Weber. St. Rita has two victories in league play. In pre-season practice games, St. Rita had one loss, a 26 to 0 defeat from St. Ignatius, and two ties. Leo tied St. George, lost to Tilden of the public school league, and routed Loras Academy of Dubuque, Ia., before entering league competition.

Elsewhere in the south section today, Mount Carmel plays Joliet Catholic at Yates av. stadium, while De La Salle and Weber meet in Key Branch stadium.

Ignatius Meets Fenwick.

In the north section, everything hinges on today's meeting between St. Ignatius and Fenwick, both undefeated, altho Fenwick opened against St. Rita with a scoreless tie. St. Ignatius also opened its season against St. Rita, and won, 26 to 0. Both teams played Joliet Catholic, Ignatius winning, 33 to 0, while the Friars beat Joliet, 41 to 6.

DePaul plays St. Mel in Lane Tech stadium, and St. Philip, after routing St. Patrick last week, meets St. George of Evanston in Loyola stadium.

Tenpin Stars Set Sights on Spot in Finals

Chicagoland bowlers competing in the qualifying for the national individual match game tournament, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, are just getting warmed up. While it is too early to tell what totals will be needed to qualify in the various establishments where the eliminations are scheduled, indications are that the requirements will force some mighty fancy pin shooting.

The 675 series which Normal Nelson turned in at Garden Recreation still leads the early field. Bob De-Young's 666 at Rose Bowl is second, followed by Al Piermattie's 629 at Cascade, and a similar total by H. W. Kennedy at Bowling Lanes. Ray Hultquist's 590 is best at Park Manor.

Open to All Bowlers.

Any bowler is eligible to compete and may enter the tourney at any of the five establishments hereunder listed with their managers:

GARDEN RECREATION, 4074 Milwaukee av., Lyman Bolger and Mike Hechinger.

ROSE BOWL, 11517 S. Michigan av., Paul Young.

Meanwhile Ned Day's free bowling school, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, goes merrily on. Yesterday Ned was at Hyde Park Recreation, where he engaged in a doubles match with Tony Strahl against Oliver Planchon and Ed Brosius with this result:

Brosius	193	164	174—531
	378	344	357—1079
Strahl	194	171	142—507
Day	197	174	193—564
	391	345	335—1071

Ned then took on Strahl in a singles match with this outcome:

Strahl	213	183	175—571

At Park Manor Tuesday.

Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday Ned is scheduled at Park Manor, Wednesday at Bowling Lanes, and a week from today at Downers Grove Recreation. On Oct. 30 he will appear at Stack and Ryan's, 1510 N. Dave Behncke, husky full back and St. Rita captain, will represent his team in the tossing of the coin prior to the opening kick-off.

Coach Leo Deutsch directed St. Rita to a victory in the 1943 game and has hopes that his team will make it two straight today.

SPOTTING THE PINS

BY ROBERT BEACH.

Ned Day was telling the story—

". . . so this chap dashes madly up to the foul line, winds up and let's fly with all the force he could muster. Then he went into the doggondest Sioux war dance you ever saw. He hopped to the right and, with his hands, deftly guided the ball all the way down the alley, moving first to the right and then over to the left a little. He ended up on the far side of the lane to his left, stopping only because the ball return was in his way.

"When he found his way back to where I was standing he looked at me, beaming, and asked what was wrong with his game. I pointed out that, while body English might, in some remote cases, be of possible aid, psychologically, it should, at all costs be confined to the bowler's own alley.

"He stared blankly at me for a moment and then said, 'Why that isn't body English, Mr. Day; that's my follow-thru.'

"And so it goes—I learn as much as I teach.

"But I've really enjoyed conducting this bowling school for THE TRIBUNE. I have really learned some things, too. I know, for one thing that there is a tremendous demand for free instruction for beginner bowlers. There's no one to teach them, as there is in golf. There's no one to tell them, either, that they shouldn't run up to the foul line just as the bowler on the alley to their left or right does, nor that they shouldn't take a ball from the rack as the bowler on the other side of the rack goes up to the foul line. They're not rude; there's just no one to teach them either fundamentals or etiquette."

Chief Fault Among Beginners Is Lack of Footwork.

The chief fault among beginners, as Ned has found it, is footwork.

"Without proper, coördinated footwork," Ned explained, "almost everything else is wasted—delivery, follow-thru, accuracy, and result—they all go for naught. A smooth, even stride to the foul line and an easy, graceful release of the ball with a natural follow-thru are the essentials I've been preaching. It's about all I have time to tell any one particular bowler down there on the lanes. That's why my chalk talks are just as important as the laboratory work on the alleys.

"But more than anything else, this school has impressed upon me that inexperienced bowlers are mighty appreciative of anything that is done to improve their games. That's why I wish I could devote a lot more time to the teaching phase of the game, because without proper instruction, the 140 average bowler will never average much more than that."

KELLEY DENIES MILLERS BOUGHT BY ATHLETICS

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 21 (AP).—The Minneapolis Times said today that the Minneapolis American association baseball club has been sold to the Philadelphia Athletics, but officials of both clubs promptly denied the report.

Mike J. Kelley, owner of the Millers, said, "Nobody has put any money on the line. I submitted a proposal to two clubs in the American league and two clubs in the National league for a working agreement—but not for a financial interest in the Minneapolis club."

In Philadelphia Connie Mack said "We're interested to a certain extent in the Minneapolis club, but we haven't bought it yet."

TOBIN ORDERED TO END GROCERY DELIVERY STRIKE

Daniel J. Tobin, president of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters and director of the labor division of the Democratic national committee, whose teamsters have halted the flow of shipments of canned foods to the army and navy from the Reid, Murdoch & Co. plant, 325 N. La Salle st., yesterday was ordered by the war labor board to end all strike activity by an affiliated union.

The board also censured the affiliate for attempting to dictate contract terms before it has established its representation rights.

Refuse to Cross Picket Line.

The order also was sent to David Kahn, president of local No. 738 of the Grocery and Food Products Warehouse Employes' union, which on Oct. 11 established a picket line the teamsters refused to cross and so paralyzed shipment of thousands of cans of food to the army and navy.

Signed by Edgar L. Warren, regional WLB chairman, the order directed the Grocery union to disband its picketing and "further to cease and desist from all forms of direct and indirect economic actions which are contrary to national policy and to labor's unqualified no-strike pledge."

The order stipulated that unless the union halted its interference before noon tomorrow, its officials would be summoned to attend a "show cause" hearing Tuesday to explain why the dispute was not settled in accordance with established procedures.

Dispute Involves Representation.

These procedures include settlement of representation issues by the appropriate government agency, the telegram said, and indicated the WLB would take no part in the dispute until that issue had been legally settled.

Before picketing was begun the union demanded that its right to bargaining representation be established by a check of membership cards against the company's pay roll and that if a union majority were indicated, the company was to sign a closed shop contract. This the company refused to do.

ATTRIBUTE VAST OIL ADVANCES TO PATENT SYSTEM

Vast mechanical and process developments of the oil industry may be credited to the ingenuity of American invention motivated by the protection offered it under the patent system, Dr. Gustav Egloff, research director of the Universal Oil Products company, said in a paper on "Invention and the Oil Industry" released yesterday.

"Tremendous as the achievements have been in development of both thermal and catalytic cracking processes, it is well to remember that more than 500 million dollars was spent in research and development projects, and in plants which were commercial failures," Dr. Egloff said. "It may be asked what impelled the inventors in these fields to drive on in the face of such discouragement.

"The driving force was the incentive offered by our patent system. Certainly, rewards should be forthcoming to successful processes based on invention after the expenditure of time, energy, and capital."

PLANTS' SALES NOT END OF WAR OUTPUT—JONES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21 (AP).—Secretary of Commerce Jones said today any announcement that a war plant is to be offered for future sale or lease by the Reconstruction Finance corporation should not be interpreted to mean that war production in the plant is to be halted or workers laid off.

There has been some such misinterpretation, said Jones, since the Defense Plant corporation [RFC subsidiary] made a catalog of its plants to make information on their size and location available for any one who may be interested in buying one or more for post-war use.

"The catalog stated that all plants would remain in war production as long as needed," he recalled.

HOST OF NEW INVESTORS.

After World War I., many bond houses expanded their facilities, and the multitude of new investors who had bought Liberty and Victory bonds was believed to have given impetus to the investment business at that time. It has been estimated that some 15 million persons—a large part bond buyers for the first time—purchased the 21 billion dollars of bonds issued by the government from 1917 thru 1919.

The same widening of investor ranks is occurring on a much larger scale in the present war. As of July 31 there were outstanding 36 billion 538 million dollars of United States savings bonds, mostly at current redemption values, an increase of 32 billions since June 1941. Purchases were being made by 27,600,000 persons under pay roll deduction plans last June, and an average of approximately 10 per cent of their pay was being set aside in payment. This total is in addition to a vast number of individual owners of treasury bonds and other savings bond buyers.

The expectation in financial circles is that many of the new bond buyers will have learned the lessons of thrift and the benefits of security ownership with post-war advantages to themselves and the investment market.

Lessons can be learned from the financial experience of the 15 years which followed the last war. Many holders of Liberty and Victory bonds sold these prime securities at depreciated prices, and a fair presumption is that part of the proceeds went into unfortunate investments in the boom era of the 1920s.

Since it is possible to cash war savings bonds at fixed redemption values, there may be even more temptation to shift such funds after the war to less secure investments offering larger interest or dividend yields at the time. For inexperienced buyers of securities, the lessons of the 1920s suggest that it will be wiser in many cases to retain the war bonds. No one contends that laws since passed for the protection of investors are a substitute for experience, information, and judgment in the employment of savings.

Yet the aggregate of small savings is becoming of increased importance in the future financing of industry inasmuch as present tax laws severely limit the possibilities of capital accumulation by the possessors of large incomes. One form of such financing is thru insurance companies and banks.

AMER. AIRLINES BOARD APPROVES CAPITAL CHANGE

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Directors of American Airlines today approved plans for changes in the company's capital structure involving an increase in authorized common stock from 1 million shares of $10 par to 2,400,000 shares of $5 par value to provide for a two-for-one splitup.

The plan, which will be submitted to stockholders at a meeting on Dec. 6, also calls for a new preferred stock issue of 200,000 shares of $100 par, and 100,000 shares of "employe stock" to be sold to officers and employes on conditions to be determined by directors. It would be convertible into common stock three years from date of issuance. None of the preferred stock will be issued immediately.

The outstanding 50,000 shares of $4.25 cumulative preferred stock has been called for redemption Jan. 15, 1945. This is convertible into common at $70 a share.

AVERAGE WAGES PER WEEK GAIN 71 PCT. SINCE '41

Increased hours of work at overtime rates, expansion of high wage industries, premium pay for late evening and early morning shifts and other factors increased average weekly earnings of factory earners 71 per cent between January, 1941, and April, 1944, John B. Parrish, regional director of the United States bureau of labor statistics, reported yesterday. In the same period hourly wage rates increased 28 per cent. The largest increases in hourly rates occurred in New York, Buffalo, N. Y., St. Louis, Mo., and Dallas, Tex. Substantially smaller gains, tho slightly above the national average, were recorded for Chicago, Milwaukee, Wis., and Minneapolis, Minn.

PRICES OF RYE CLOSE HIGHER; DEMAND ACTIVE

Rye futures pushed upward yesterday, wiping out Friday's losses and closing 2 to 2¼ cents a bushel higher as the result of aggressive professional and commission house buying based on reports that eastern distillers were buying cash rye.

Operations in other grains were light, but prices rose in sympathy with rye. Wheat futures gained ¼ to ½ cent, corn ⅜ to ⅝ cent, oats ½ to ⅝ cent, and barley 1½ cents.

Distillers Shift to Rye.

Several eastern distilleries were reported converting their industrial alcohol operations to grain from sugar and molasses. Possibility of large imports of Canadian rye for delivery on December contracts was reported reduced by recent orders of the office of defense transportation which limit imports to consumer needs. Announcement is expected this week that distillers will be permitted to make beverage alcohol in December.

Houses with southwestern connections sold wheat futures early, but the market moved up readily later on professional buying based on the strength in rye. Reports are current Canada has been asked by England to set aside an additional 12 million bushels of wheat for shipment to India. This would be the first substantial business with that country in about 25 years. India normally buys from Australia, which is facing a near crop failure.

Rain Needed in West.

Lack of rain in western areas of the winter wheat belt is causing numerous reports of crop deterioration, especially from north central Nebraska. Weather bureau reports say there has been little rain in the central west in about a month.

There was no pressure on the corn market and commission houses were rather persistent buyers of December. Refusal of farmers to sell cash corn freely is said to be having some effect on sentiment.

TEN YEAR HOME UNIT NEEDS SET AT 12.6 MILLION

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21 (AP).—An estimate that 12,600,000 nonfarm homes and apartment units will be required in the first post-war decade "to meet the needs of American families and to make substantial progress in replacing substandard structures" was made today by the national housing agency.

The nation's biggest residential building year [1925] produced about 930,000 new units. The low point was reached in 1933 with 93,000 units, and the 1920-29 average was 700,000.

John B. Blandford Jr., national housing administrator, said the estimate of post-war needs represented an "earnest effort to judge the size of the nation's housing needs," but is not "an announcement of a program." Replacement of all substandard structures in ten years would require 16,100,000 units, but NHA assumed the replacement job would be spread over 20 years.

USE X-RAY FILM TO TEST SHELLS BEFORE SHIPPING

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP).—Shells and rocket projectiles are X-rayed on a conveyor-belt system to assure even packing of the explosive, the Eastman Kodak company announced today.

The company made the disclosure as it announced shipment of more than a ton of its X-ray film for Texas, Kansas and Tennessee ordnance plants using the new X-ray system which permits rapid sequenc exposures. The film is developed on a straightline production basis and is examined before shipment of the shells to prevent defective equipment from reaching combat troops.

The shipment was half of the load of the first air-freight plane to leave Rochester on regular schedule.

BUTTER DEMAND CAUSES TALK OF NEW POINT RISE

The shortage of butter despite an increase to 20 points in ration value is giving rise to trade speculation as to whether a further rise in points may be forthcoming, the American Butter institute said yesterday. Demands at retail are far in excess of the limited supplies, despite 20 point rationing and the wider use of substitutes, the war food administration reported.

WFA also said some representatives in the trade believe the butter supply will not improve until there is a readjustment of butter prices in relation to other competitive dairy products.

EXPECTS FOOD GLUT TO CREATE PRICE PROBLEM

Demand Less After War, Says Trade.

BY ANNE DOUGLAS.

As the end of the war in Europe approaches, attention of the food industry is centered on the mountains of food reserves in the United States, by no means all of which will be needed for European relief. Despite government assurance of continued price supports, most members of the food trade believe the end of hostilities will create a problem of maintaining prices.

Altho American civilians are beset by shortages of some foods, notably butter, sugar, and meats, food production this year is 38 per cent above the pre-war average and 5 per cent above 1943. Seventy-five per cent is allocated to civilian markets, with the remainder divided between military and lend-lease operations.

The army, which does not make public its holdings, is believed to have enough food to provide relief for liberated areas for at least six months after the end of the European war. Lend-lease purchases are expected to drop substantially soon after the German defeat.

Evidence of Worry Shown.

Evidence that the government is worried about impending surpluses is shown by the series of meetings called in Washington, D. C., by the office of price administration to discuss adjustments necessary after V-E day. After the first one, held recently, Price Administrator Bowles said more would be necessary, so the OPA can keep the food industry fully informed of the difficult problems to follow the collapse of Germany, and to obtain industry views on how best to meet the problems.

Lee Marshall, director of the office of distribution in the war food administration, said recently that with the end of the European war and the subsequent decline in government purchasing, he doubted that the domestic market could absorb food production at the rate obtained this year, even with sizable relief demands.

Canned Goods Stocks Not Big.

Stocks of canned vegetables are not excessive, however, altho they have been removed from rationing. This year's pack is estimated at 142 million cases, compared with 147 million last year. WFA stocks on Oct. 1 were approximately 4 million cases, representing about three months' lend-lease supply at the recent rate of withdrawal. Canners and distributors believe that even if the war ends in Europe they will not have enough to take care of their needs.

The effect of increased home canning and of suspected large home stocks which housewives may begin to use up when they think the emergency is over remains a question.

Canned fruit stocks of WFA were slightly less than half a million cases, equal to one month's lend-lease supply. This year's pack is expected to be 47 million cases compared with 39 million in 1943, but government purchases are heavier, and canners expect canned fruit supplies to be shorter than vegetables.

Government Holdings Listed.

Government food holdings in cold storage on Oct. 1 included nearly 94 million pounds of creamery butter, more than 82 million pounds of cheese, 79 million pounds of dried eggs, approximately 1½ million cases of shell eggs, and 63 million pounds of frozen eggs. Also held were 88 million pounds of frozen and cured pork, and nearly 90 million pounds of lard and rendered pork fat.

WFA food stocks in cold storage amount to less than 10 per cent of total cold storage holdings in the country, Marshall said.

Unusually large grain production this year may add to the disposal problem. National wheat production of 1,108,881,000 bushels stands as an all-time record. The corn crop, an estimated 3,196,977,000 bushels, was nearly a record. Production of rice, beans, peas, soybeans, oats, barley, and grain sorghums all were above average. The only major crops below average production were rye and sugar beets.

Better Than Expected.

Armies entering agricultural sections of Europe have reported that farming and dairying were maintained better than expected during German occupation, leading to the belief that the United States will not be called on to provide such large amounts of grains and other foods as first predicted.

Meat production this year will be approximately 25 billion pounds, and is expected to be 22 or 23 billion next year, which is above the pre-war average. Lend-lease and the army will take about 5 billion pounds this year. Great Britain and the United States army both are known to have large backlogs of canned meat, which could be used for relief feeding when the war ends.

Present food prices, in most instances supported by government props, are far above the lowest prices of the last 15 years.

Wholesale Prices Compared.

Following are the lowest wholesale prices of various commodities in the 1930s and current prices:

	Lows.	1944.
Wheat, bu...	$0.44½	$1.71⅞
Corn, bu.....	.22	1.07⅝@ 1.13¼
Oats, bu......	.15¼	.63¼@ .67⅝
Lard, cwt....	3.57½	12.55
Steers, cwt..	2.75@6.35	14.00@17.25
Hogs, cwt...	1.65@3.00	14.75
Lambs, cwt..	2.00@4.75	14.25
Butter, lb....	16.4	41½
Cheese, lb...	.10¼	.26
Milk, cwt...	1.80	3.29
Eggs, doz...	.12	.44 @ 48.8
Potatoes, cwt	.75	1.75 @ 3.30
Onions, 50 lb	.35	1.15 @ 1.35

The food trade is watching the effect of WFA resale of some goods into civilian channels. WFA officials have assured the trade repeatedly that there will be no dumping on the market.

WFA policies indicate that government food purchases will not be reduced appreciably until after the European war ends. Cuts then will be gradual because of continued demands for the war across the Pacific. The only important sales to domestic markets are expected to be out-of-condition lots and surpluses which can be readily absorbed because of civilian shortages.

Losses Permitted; Plans Made.

Surplus property disposal legislation permits the Commodity Credit corporation to lose money on surplus foods moved abroad. The school lunch plan may be expanded materially, providing an outlet for food surpluses. One plan calls for reviving food stamp issuance on a broad basis of providing more nutritive surplus foods, thru trade channels, to families with incomes below $1,500 a year. This would require congressional appropriations.

These plans do not remove trade apprehension that commercial prices will be depressed by government sales after the European war ends, it appears. WFA has been slow in getting sales of incidental lots organized and operating so that buyers and sellers will understand its functioning, trade observers report. The delay is attributed to government slowness in organizing anything new—with too much red tape, too many legal details, and difficulty in recruiting capable personnel.

Stock Market in Election Years

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 21 (AP).—One-fifth of the gross proceeds from common and preferred stock offerings of small corporations is absorbed in the sale of the stock, a securities and exchange commission study disclosed today.

Statements filed under the securities act between Jan. 1, 1938, and June 30, 1944, show the cost of flotation to companies with assets of less than 1 million dollars averaged 21.6 per cent of expected gross proceeds for equity issues registered for sale thru investment bankers, the report said. Commissions to bankers amounted to 19.7 per cent; the other 1.9 per cent was absorbed by expenses.

Companies with assets between 1 and 5 millions reported an average total cost of 15.8 per cent—14 per cent for bankers' compensation and 1.7 per cent for expenses.

BLACKLIST MORE FIRMS OF MANDL IN BUENOS AIRES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21 (AP).—Three more firms of Fritz Mandl, Austrian industrialist now in Argentina, have been blacklisted by the United States government, the state department disclosed today.

Its latest listing of companies and persons abroad to whom American exports and trade are denied because of axis connections, included three more firms controled by Mandl in Buenos Aires and also named Mandl personally in its list of Uruguayan additions. Five other Mandl firms have been blacklisted previously.

Mandl is the former husband of Hedy Lamarr, screen actress.

The list, which is revised semimonthly, was conspicuous today for 72 Chilean firms which were restored to American trade. Argentina led the Latin American field with the largest number of new firms blacklisted.

Stocks Mixed; Week's Prices Change Little

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Buying of stocks remained selective today and the market closed irregular to end a week in which prices generally changed little.

Among the strongest issues, all at new peaks for 1944, were American Airlines, apparently responding to a proposal for a 2 for 1 split in stock; North American Aviation, still buoyed by a dividend increase; Texas Pacific Land Trust, again aided by word the company had negotiated profitable leases to two important oil producers; Marshall Field, aided by high sales figures and suggestions the issue was lagging behind the market, and Childs company. On the Curb Childs preferred rose 4 points in odd lot trades.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was unchanged at 55.6 and for the week was up 0.1 of a point.

BOND AVERAGES DIP.

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Principal corporate groups showed slight average declines in today's bond market despite a number of individual gains of fractions to about 2 points.

Among the rail loans up 1 to 1¾ were Southern Pacific 4½s of '68, 4½s of '81, and 4½s of '69; Central Pacific 5s, and Monon 5s.

Trading in foreign dollar bonds was light and mostly at moderately improved prices. United States government loans held about even.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN.

Prices were uneven on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in turnover of 15,000 shares. Four issues to reach new 1944 highs were Eversharp, 47¼, up ¼; Marshall Field, 18¼, up ⅜ in active trade; Belden Manufacturing, 17⅝, up ¼, and E. L. Bruce, 30½, up ½. Volume leaders included Chicago corporation common, Commonwealth Edison, and Illinois Brick, all unchanged.

ARMY RELEASES DETAILS OF NEW FLYING BOXCAR

New York, Oct. 21 [Special].—The army today released details on the C-82, Fairchild Engine and Airplane corporation's freight carrier, designed specifically for the logistics of the Pacific war. The announcement from the company's office in New York, put the airplane in the "50,000 pound class" and gave its range at 3,500 miles. It indicated that it could land more than 10 tons of equipment on almost any atoll or jungle landing strip in the Pacific theater.

Numbers or speed of production remain restricted, along with some other details such as cruising speed. It is in production at Fairchild's Hagerstown, Md., plant.

Named the "Fairchild Packet," it carries an almost square fuselage of about the dimensions of a small railroad box car beneath its high wing. Two Pratt & Whitney, 2,100 horse power engines are installed at the front of booms that carry the tail well to the rear. The stern of the fuselage opens to the full width and height of the cargo compartment.

PREDICTS RADIO OUTPUT OF 17 MILLION A YEAR

R. C. Sprague, president of the Sprague Electric company, North Adams, Mass., yesterday predicted production of radio sets would reach 16 to 17 million a year for the first few years after reconversion to civilian output has been completed. Production of tubes will reach 200 million a year and replacement parts worth 100 million dollars a year will be made, he said. Approximately 15 million of the country's 60 million sets are beyond repair and the number is increasing daily, he said. Sprague spoke at the Electronics Parts and Equipment Industry conference in the Stevens hotel.

War Cutbacks Fail to Reach Expected Rate

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21 (AP).—Big cutbacks in war production—foreseen as an employment and morale problem this fall—have failed to materialize in anything like expected volume and no major cuts are in sight before victory in Europe.

War production board figures revealed today that 85,000 employes of prime contractors have been displaced by cutbacks since June 15, or fewer than one in 1,000 war workers. The lay-off figures, however, do not show what the impact might be on subcontractors.

Decline May Be Gradual.

Official sources said that if the fighting in Europe lasts thru 1944 "more and more run-outs"—contracts completed and not renewed—will take place. This would mean a gradual tapering-off, so that V-E day would bring a smaller industrial dislocation than the 40 per cent slash now officially predicted. "Run-outs" are less feared, by business and labor alike, than cancellations because contractors can make advance preparations for other war or civilian work.

In the four months since the army and navy began reporting cutbacks thru WPB's production executive committee staff, those large enough to be reported have numberd 800, representing armament cuts of about 980 million dollars.

Fewer than a dozen, however, have had serious repercussions on employment in the cities involved, and in many cases the lay-offs expected by Washington authorities did not take place or were substantially lower than estimated.

Many Only Halt Increases.

Many curtailments were cancellations of future increases, rather than cuts in current production. Others simply brought manufacturers' schedules down to goals that could be met.

The continuing expansion of many war programs, going ahead concurrently with cutbacks in others, makes it comparatively easy for producers to find new contracts. An electrical concern in Ohio, for instance, lost a $1,800,000 contract and informed Washington that 350 workers would be discharged. It later trimmed the estimate to 200 persons. By the end of 60 days, the company had obtained new war work which not only absorbed all the workers but required the hiring of 150 more.

PAY FIGHT LOST, SAYS JOURNAL OF RAILROAD UNIONS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21 (AP).—The newspaper Labor, a weekly published by 15 railroad unions, predominantly AFL affiliates, said today that "organized labor has lost its long and bitter battle for revision of the Little Steel wage-freezing formula—at least for the time being."

The newspaper added that "the public-employer majority rejected labor's demand for an outright recommendation to President Roosevelt that he revamp the formula and instead proposed another fact-finding study on the subject, thus blasting hopes of American labor for relief from the 'nutcracker' of frozen wages and rising prices. In labor circles the general impression is that the board's action was in line with instructions from the White House."

MONEY ORDER RATE CUTBACKS EFFECTIVE NOV. 1

Postal money order rates, which were raised March 25 in amounts ranging from 4 to 15 cents, will be reduced to pre-March levels Nov. 1, the Chicago postoffice said yesterday.

An official said "some drop" occurred in the number of money orders issued, and that there was "no doubt" banks were providing competition with lower rates on checks.

The following table gives the current and reduced rates:

	Present rate.	New rate.
1 cent to $2.50..........	10c	6c
$2.51 to $5.00..........	14c	8c

PRICE CONTROL SHAKEN BY BIG MEAT DEMAND

Lower Production Troubles OPA.

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

The office of price administration's fight against inflation in the live stock and meat industry has reached a critical stage as a result of expanding demand for meats and falling production, it was said in the stock yards yesterday. Pressure against price ceilings has increased tremendously in recent weeks and has been marked by a big increase in violations of price rules, observers said. Current beef production is below the peak set two months ago and hog slaughter is the lowest in 26 months.

A review of the markets since the price battle began in the spring of 1942 disclosed many upward revisions of prices by the administrators to relieve pressure and avoid a complete breakdown of their control.

Bring Higher Prices.

All meat animals except lambs are selling higher than when the fight began. Average classes of cattle last week brought $30 a head more than they did in May, 1942, when price planners started their program to control beef prices in wholesale and retail channels.

In the 30 months the average steer price rose $3 a hundred pounds, whereas in the 30 months prior to price control the gain amounted to $1.25. Steers in the Chicago yards this month have averaged $16.20 a hundred pounds.

Hogs in the 32 months that pork prices have been controlled averaged $6.45 a hundred pounds higher than in the 32 months preceding pork ceilings, a rise of 84 per cent. In the first 21 days of this month hogs averaged $14.35. Lambs this month averaged $14.20, compared with $14.50 when ceilings were first imposed.

Hog Ceilings Increased.

As recently as a week ago the OPA revised upward the ceiling prices on live hogs at large numbers of selling points, as much as 30 cents a hundred pounds at some places. Mitchell, S. D., ceiling was increased 10 cents. Thirty cents was added to the limit at all selling points in 10 counties of Idaho. Twenty other Idaho counties received a 20 cent increase.

Buyers in many parts of the country are finding loopholes thru which they are piercing the live hog ceilings, especially the price limit on "heavy" hogs, which farmers regard as unfair because it penalizes the owner 75 cents a hundred pounds if his hogs exceed 240 pounds by even one pound. Most packers have always regarded stock as light or medium weights until they exceeded 255 pounds, but are forced now by law to classify hogs down to 241 pounds as heavy.

CHEMICAL STRIKE MAKES PLANT BIG FIRE HAZARD

Monsanto, Ill., Oct. 21 [Special].—William Krummrich, production manager of the Monsanto Chemical company plant here, said tonight that disaster from fire threatens the plant and community as a result of removal of maintenance and power plant employes in the current strike.

"A large chemical plant contains quantities of chlorine stored under pressure; phosphorous, which is spontaneously inflamable unless kept under water, and quantities of inflamable materials such as benzine and toulene," Krummrich said.

The plant was closed as the result of a walkout which began Thursday after the company transferred a worker from the chlorine division on charges that he was doing "unsafe work," Krummrich said.

Eau Claire Plant Reconverted, Returns to Tire Manufacture

BY HERSCHEL PATTERSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 21.—A 19 million dollar reconversion job, one of the biggest so far, was completed today when the largely expanded Gillette plant of the United States Rubber company turned out its first tire since shortly after Pearl Harbor.

F. B. Davis.

The tire—the first synthetic ever made in the plant—marked the culmination of less than a year of preparation for the resumption of output after production of small arms ammunition was halted. The plant's facilities had been turned to that type of war work after crude rubber became scarce.

Concentrate on Big Tires.

High officials of the company watched production of the first tire. They included F. B. Davis, chairman, and H. E. Smith, president.

Howard O. Hutchens, factory manager, said immediate production will be for military and essential civilian use, with emphasis on large size tires for trucks, buses, and farm equipment. Employment will total 3,335 persons on three eight-hour shifts, a 33 per cent increase from the pre-war 2,431 employes.

In addition to the 19 million outlay on the Eau Claire plant, the company is spending more than 10 millions to expand tire production facilities elsewhere.

Discussing the tire outlook, Smith said that if the war in Europe were to end this year the industry should make 48 million passenger car tires in 1945.

Hope for A Card Driver.

"Thus, the A card driver can look with hope to next year," he said. "In 1946 the industry should produce 70 million passenger car tires. The average pre-war yearly production of passenger tires was 47 million, but we figure the 70 million will help catch up with accumulated demand."

Davis expressed optimism over the future expansion of the synthetic rubber industry, with diversification of products. He said most items made of natural rubber in the past can be made of equal or better quality and eventually at a price equal to that of pre-war natural rubber items.

And here is news for the ladies! Davis said the women may get lastex girdles before the A drivers get their tires.

FIDELITY TO PAY 25 PCT. MORE IN SEVERAL STATES

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 21 (AP).—Receivers for the Fidelity Assurance association prepared today to pay 25 per cent against the 15 million dollars of liabilities under their jurisdiction, but announced that payments are not moving as well in states which have separate receiverships.

The big Wheeling concern, with investment contract holders in 29 states, was placed in receivership in 1941 but liquidation was started only last year after settlement of a prolonged jurisdictional dispute. The current payment brings to 85 per cent the amount returned to contract holders in those states covered by the West Virginia receivership.

In some states assets deposited by Fidelity have been enough to pay all claims, the receivers said. These include Delaware, Tennessee, Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Alabama, and Wisconsin.

BOOST IN CITRUS PRICE ASKED TO CUT STORM LOSS

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 21 (AP).—An immediate increase in the price ceilings of both fresh and processed citrus fruits to compensate growers for their storm losses was requested today by directors of the Florida Citrus exchange.

"The law provides for adjustments in price ceilings when there is a crop disaster and we have received assurances the government will give immediate consideration to the upward revision of our maximum prices," Charles H. Walker, exchange president, said.

Losses Are Large.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21 (AP).—The war food administration has received estimates that between 50 and 75 per cent of Florida's grapefruit and 20 to 30 per cent of the orange crop was blown from the trees in this week's hurricane.

COAL SHORTAGE DANGER CURBED BY BIG OUTPUT

Early Public Buying Is Factor.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

An improvement in the outlook for filling United States coal requirements this winter, both for industrial and home use, was reported yesterday by leaders in the coal industry. They said production has been maintained at a higher level than appeared probable last spring when a serious coal shortage was predicted by many authorities.

Increases in industrial stockpiles and the way the public has cooperated with the industry by filling basement storage bins in advance of the fall buying season helped mines keep production large.

Two uncertain factors are the amount of coal that may be shipped to the liberated countries of Europe and the labor situation, coal men said.

1943 Output Sets Record.

In meeting the country's war boosted needs for coal, the bituminous coal mining industry has made an outstanding production record. In 1918, the last year of the World war, 18,319 mines, employing 942,000 persons, produced 579 million tons. Last year 6,972 mines, with 400,000 men, produced 589 million tons—an all-time record.

The solid fuels administration for war early this year estimated the 1944 requirement at 616 million tons and later raised the estimate to 626 million. In the first nine months of this year the mines produced 471,-535,000 tons, leaving 154,465,000 needed during October, November, and December to meet the corrected estimate, or a weekly average of 11,881,000 tons.

Average weekly production from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, 1944, was 12,079,-000 tons, compared with 11,400,000 during the corresponding 1943 period. If the mines continue at the rate established during the first nine months they could lose 10 million tons during holidays and still meet the original estimate of 616 million. In this event coal users would have to draw on the stockpile, currently estimated at about 64 million tons.

The stockpile at the start of 1943 was 85 million tons, which declined to 75 million on Sept. 1, 1943. This year the stockpile was only 53 million at the start, but had risen to 63 million on Sept. 1.

In order to acquaint the public with the need for storing coal the Chicago Coal Merchants' association carried on a campaign urging early buying. The campaign was reported a major factor responsible for Chicago retailers delivering in the period April 1 to Oct. 1 about 39 per cent of the coal that they delivered during the entire year preceding April 1.

The coal dealers are unable to fill the full amount of orders for smokeless coal for home use, but are making up the difference with coals from Illinois and Indiana fields.

INJUN SUMMER

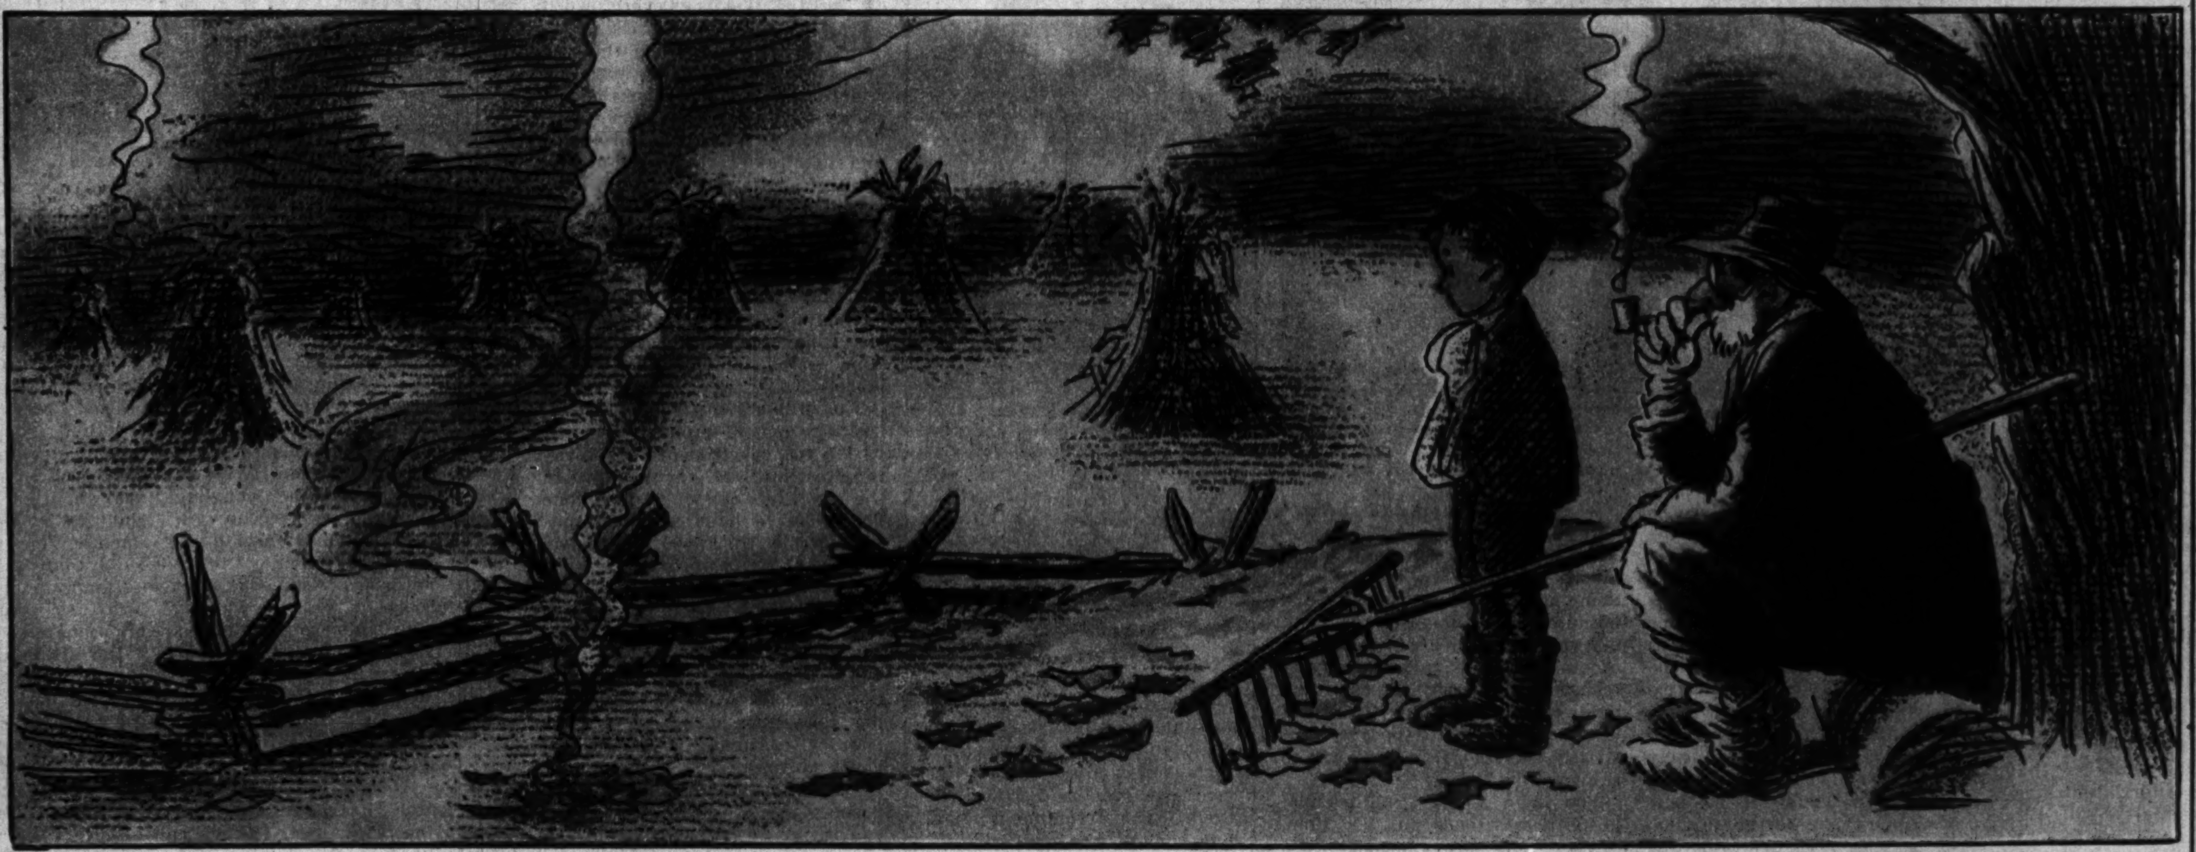
Yep, sonny, this is sure enough Injun summer. Don't know what that is, I reckon, do you?

Well, that's when all the homesick Injuns come back to play. You know, a long time ago, long afore yer granddaddy was born even, there used to be heaps of Injuns around here — thousands — millions, I reckon, far as that's concerned. Reg'lar sure 'nough Injuns—none o' yer cigar store Injuns, not much. They wuz all around here—right here where you're standin'.

Don't be skeered—hain't none around here now, leastways no live ones. They been gone this many a year.

They all went away and died, so they ain't no more left.



But every year, 'long about now, they all come back, leastways their sperrits do. They're here now. You can see 'em off across the fields. Look real hard. See that kind o' hazy, misty look out yonder? Well, them's Injuns—Injun sperrits marchin' along an' dancin' in the sunlight. That's what makes that kind o' haze that's everywhere—it's jest the sperrits of the Injuns all come back. They're all around us now.

See off yonder; see them tepees? They kind o' look like corn shocks from here, but them's Injun tents, sure as you're a foot high. See 'em now? Sure, I knowed you could. Smell that smoky sort o' smell in the air? That's the campfires a-burnin' and their pipes a-goin'.

Lots o' people say it's just leaves burnin', but it ain't. It's the campfires, an' th' Injuns are hoppin' 'round 'em t' beat the old Harry.

You jest come out here tonight when the moon is hangin' over the hill off yonder an' the harvest fields is all swimmin' in th' moonlight, an' you can see the Injuns and the tepees jest as plain as kin be. You can, eh? I knowed you would after a little while.

'Jever notice how the leaves turn red 'bout this time o' year? That's jest another sign o' redskins. That's when an old Injun sperrit gits tired dancin' an' goes up an' squats on a leaf t' rest. Why, I kin hear 'em rustlin' an' whisperin' an' creepin' 'round among the leaves all the time; an' ever' once'n a while a leaf gives way under some fat old Injun ghost and comes floatin' down to the ground. See—here's one now. See how red it is? That's the war paint rubbed off'n an Injun ghost, sure's you're born.

Purty soon all the Injuns'll go marchin' away agin, back to the happy huntin' ground, but next year you'll see 'em troopin' back—th' sky jest hazy with 'em and their campfires smolderin' away jest like they are now.

TWO GENTLEMEN FROM INDIANA

By DELOS AVERY

TWO GENTLEMEN FROM INDIANA who were going to be famous but did not know it were walking south on Michigan avenue, Chicago, on a summer day in 1890, hoping to find that one of the dingy rooming houses along the way really had what all of them advertised, "comfortably furnished rooms for refined people."

One of the pair was a young fellow named George Ade, the other John T. McCutcheon. They had been college chums at Purdue, and now they were a sketch-and-write team for a newspaper, the Morning News, McCutcheon drawing pictures and Ade writing stories to go with them.

Ade was 24 years old, McCutcheon 20. Their hours of work were all hours. They were ready for action at any time of the day or night. Their subject was Chicago. And their only instructions were to be as interesting and entertaining as possible.

Of Ade's appearance at that time we can get a pretty good idea from a description written by McCutcheon: "He was a tall, slender boy with a face as refined as a girl's. . . . His hair was very dark but not black. . . . A long head with an unusual development fore and aft, and ears of generous size standing well out from the side elevations. A small, sensitive nose, slightly aquiline; a strong mouth, and an unusual sweep of eyebrows over bluish gray eyes, sometimes keen and twinkling, at other times vague and indefinite. Long, slender hands; long, slender legs, and long, slender arms. Height 5 feet 11¾ inches with his hair cut, and weight about 135. In appearance . . . what might be called 'delikit.' He wore a blue suit."

Ade's salary was $12 a week, so he had good reason to be thrifty. So had McCutcheon, apparently, for he described their joint economic position by saying: "We were not quite poor enough to have beautiful ladies bring Christmas baskets to us and not quite rich enough to buy Christmas baskets for ourselves."

Hence their careful exploration of the rooming house district. They found a place a little south of the spot where the Blackstone hotel now stands. It was near the corner of Peck court. McCutcheon still denies that it was "comfortably furnished," but it could be slept in, and—an important fact—it was within walking distance of their office, which meant a saving in car fare.

They had a "gold reserve" consisting of Ade's watch and McCutcheon's ring. These items were usually in pawn, says McCutcheon, before the end of the week, but "always redeemed on Tuesday"—the day after pay day.

The room they took was third floor back. McCutcheon remembers that it "extended in sweeping perspective, 12 feet in one direction and 10 in the other," and that "you had to take accurate aim to walk between the bed and the sofa."

The sofa had a bumpy ridge in its seat, and tiresome visitors were consigned to it with the hope they would not stay very long. But one college chum liked it so well, ridge and all, that he stayed three weeks. "Unfortunately," says McCutcheon, "his collars wouldn't fit either of us."

The room had one window only, facing west, and he remembers the view: "In the foreground a morgue for empty bottles, barrels, and old packing cases, and in the distance the stately uplift of the Polk Street station tower." The room suited the purposes of the sketch-and-write team, however, in more ways than one. It was not only a place to sleep but a place to use as raw material for art and literature.

"It must have been beautiful at sunset," says

STARTING TODAY! A NEW FEATURE—

ANY QUESTIONS?

By MAUREEN DALY
(Author of "Seventeenth Summer" and "Smarter and Smoother.")

"In the old days I spent most of my time with one boy."

TIME OUT now for some concentration on the question and answer department. These questions come from gals who are puzzling over problems from party invitations and the date shortage to the pros and cons of holding hands on the front doorstep. And the first one gives out this way:

Q.—"I had been going with a certain group of fellows and girls ever since we were in sixth grade—that was four years ago. Last year I moved away from the neighborhood and started at a different high school, away from the rest of the gang. Naturally we drifted apart a little. In the old days I spent most of my time with one particular boy, and we went in and out of the hand-holding department because of another girl who really chased him.

"Now he has broken up with her, too, but doesn't seem to care to date me, either. I am having a party soon to which I intend to invite the old crowd; would it be wrong to ask this certain Jackson, too? I still like him very much, but as far as I know he doesn't care at all about me."

A.—Put that boy first on the list! He is one of the old gang, so as an old friend he will expect to be invited to your party. If you omitted him it would be obvious to your friends and to the boy that you are carrying a torch, but king-sized! And this party will also give you a chance to prove to yourself whether you really are or not!

Q.—"I'm 16 years old and not in the least popular with boys. My parents have told me to accept the fact gracefully, but I don't want to give up till every remedy has been tried. Altho I am not pretty, other girls of my age who are no prettier date often and have many more friends than I. I study hard at school and usually make the honor roll.

"Several weeks ago I took some aptitude tests to learn for what vocation I am suited, and on the personality tests I came out 'extremely subjective,' or very introverted. Altho I have a few very good friends, I like to read, play the piano, and be alone—and I wish some one could tell me how to overcome this unfortunate tendency, because it is worrying me terribly.

"I've been a wallflower at every dance I've attended, and my efforts to be gay sometimes make me ridiculous, besides leaving me so tense and nervous I wish I were safely at home. Perhaps I shouldn't wear my glasses, but I'm so nearsighted I can't see without them. I would give anything for a sparkling personality."

A.—Maybe your friends like you much better the way you are. Some gals are fun to have around because they have an effervescent, ginger ale quality about them, and others make equally satisfying friends because they are calm and mild, with the soothing quality of hot tea. And both types can be strictly smooth gals. Don't try to change your type.

You have a few good friends; keep those friends and see them often. Add an occasional new friend to your list—not one that you've had to be "gay" to find, but one who just naturally appeals to you. Most people prefer to have a few good friends rather than several dozen casual or insincere acquaintances. Sixteen is rather young to be moving yourself into the Cinderella department; you can't honestly say you aren't popular with boys, because you haven't given yourself a fair try.

Why not forget the whole business until, say, two years from now? In the meantime concentrate on being a good friend and having fun with the gals whom you already know. And don't try to "sparkle." If you're really having fun you'll sparkle without knowing anything about it. Every one feels off the beam once in a while; maybe this was just your day for feeling blue.

Q.—"We are six girls, and all of us date a lot. We don't have much use for a girl who necks all the time and lets every Tom, Dick, and Joe that comes her way kiss her. But if you are going out with only one boy, or going steady, and think he's a strictly all right Joe, is there any crime in letting him put his arm around you once in a while or kiss you good night? The girls here don't think so. Isn't there a difference between letting one boy get friendly and letting them all?"

A.—There's a big difference—but let's let the other gals get in their opinions. Send in your story, morning-glory; we'll sort out the answers and let you know what the other honey chiles have to say.

INSIDE WAR TIME INDIA

● This is the third article in a series of four based upon first-hand observations of the author during a trip thru war time India. In his earlier articles he described the wretched conditions of the natives and gave a word picture of Delhi, the capital.

By ALEX SMALL

A scene in Chandni Chauk, one of the principal bazar streets in Delhi.

DELHI now is as overcrowded as Washington, with a mob of people winning the war or somehow subsisting on the fringes of war. Long blocks of one story temporary buildings have been built as offices and dwellings, and these take care of some people. House room is rationed. Any resident may be required to take in lodgers or even may be turned out of his residence altogether.

Hotels are required to take in customers for four nights only. After that, if the person wants to stay longer, he must get a permit from an official called the estate officer.

The ordinary citizen, if he ever had a telephone, probably has lost it, for the government took away the apparatus for war winning. In the big hotels one single telephone has to serve hundreds of people. Considering the way the system works, the hardship is only a relative one. If you want to communicate with some one it is better to send your own bearer, or some chaprassi, with a written chitti. He will dawdle his way to the destination and back while you are waiting your turn at a telephone or frantically cursing a dial which yields no answer.

As for ideas of transacting any business at an American pace, you had better forget them before you even start. You will annoy the Indians, who will sabotage you, and scandalize the British. You will be opposed by the inertia of things and the cussedness of man. Your nerves will give before theirs will. By that time the heat will have worn you down anyway and you won't care whether you get anything done or not.

A real hardship to the Delhi residents was loss of the fans—as much a necessity of life as ice. The government took all the fans it could get hold of and of course India's infant industry is incapable of producing new ones. People hide them and hoard them, even put them away from visitors they don't know or cannot trust. Once I was offered the lease of an apartment, but was to pay 6,000 rupees (over $1,800) for "furniture." It consisted, I found, of eight hoarded electric fans.

Life is not too hard on the British officer who is winning the war at the Delhi G. H. Q. If he belonged to the permanent establishment, the peace time Indian army, he probably has his wife and children with him and has got the war on a family basis. These families, despite the cry over housing shortage, occupy commodious quarters, with their ayahs (Indian girl nurses), bearers, khidmatgars, chokidars, and the other servants with whom the oligarchs make up slightly for the lack of ordinary modern conveniences.

The war winner probably lives over in Civil Lines, which still has a sort of social prestige over New Delhi. Each morning, before the pitiless sun gets into its stride, he mounts his bicycle or gets into the autobus specially meant for such as he, and covers the five or more miles to the secretariat in New Delhi, and clock-punches into the war. Generally he will take two hours—from 13 to 15 o'clock—for lunch. Then he has two or three hours more of war effort and clocks out of the war for the day.

If he is a very minor official he may have a roasting office in one of those new temporary buildings, where by 11 in the morning the heat will have him reduced to an irascible, whining pulp. With a little energy and some wangling he may get the place fixed up with kuskus tatties—India's ancient system for air conditioning.

This consists of screens of a highly absorbent reed, the kuskus, hung over or built around windows and doors. Then you must get your bearer to arrange to keep the screens drenched with water. If any breath of air comes thru that screen it turns the atmosphere inside delightfully cool no matter what the temperature outside.

The catch in the system is in keeping the tatties wet. The job is usually beneath the dignity of a bearer, who will put it off on some child slave, armed with bucket and dipper or even a stirrup pump. But the child becomes bored and sleepy and then the tatties speedily dry up and are of practically no use.

A Hindu boy.

A really top drawer kuskus outfit is connected up with the water system. From a pipe at the top a constant dribble keeps the screens always wet.

The higher ranking war winners are fairly comfortable. The thick walls of the secretariat building provide a reasonably cool temperature inside, and they have an abundance of those commandeered fans.

The war being over for the day, the Indian army officer, or official, turns to recreation. That may be family joys only. Or he may sit on the wide, stately veranda of the Cecil hotel and drink as much as he can get or afford. Rarely will he get beer, less rarely some Scotch whisky. Usually there is something called gin, some passable Australian or South African brandy, and a fearsome liquid named Indian whisky, guaranteed to ruin completely any human being's inner plumbing.

Or our official may go to his club. Behind high walls, deep inside the greenery of its compound, it shelters him from contact with any but pukka sahibs like himself. Indians rich enough to pay the dues are admitted to the Gymkhana club of New Delhi and I have seen some of them there at big parties. More than one has told me that he simply paid his dues and stayed away, so chilly did he find the atmosphere.

The strain on tired warriors is relieved by the dinner-dances given at least once a week by each of the big hotels. How any one has the courage to dance on a sizzling Delhi evening is a mystery, but some people do it and like it. Here you may see the real pukka sahibs—officers of the regular Indian army, contemptuous of the upstarts brought out to India by this war—in their skin tight trousers and dashing blue and red coats. Here, too, are their women—the spoiled, domineering, discontented women of colonial life. Each goes about like the head of a comet, trailing after her her train of aspirants.

The gang seen at these dances is on about the lowest conceivable level of civilization. They know nothing about the country they live in and don't want to know. They are concerned with their own prestige, with sports, with intrigue for position and advancement. Most of them are of the huntin', shootin', fishin' type.

An American's instinct is to fight it. A personal servant appears too much a touch of snobbery. But I predict you'll succumb. Then you'll be again exasperated, for it's hard to see what a bearer does for you tangibly; yet if you don't have one you get into all sorts of difficulties.

At the big hotels in Delhi (both New Delhi and Civil Lines), in Bombay, Calcutta, and Madras you can get along without a bearer. The hotel supplies room boys, who for an appropriate amount of baksheesh will do little services for you. They will go out for drinking water (which always is in some mysterious inaccessible place), buy you ice, and give your soiled clothes to the dhobi.

You find you need a bearer as soon as you travel around India. He alone on those exhausting train journeys can find you those necessities of life, ice and water, and get you something to eat. In the hotels of small towns he alone can get your clothes washed. The dhobi there will refuse to deal with the "European" directly.

The bearer must act as intermediary profiteer and get his little squeeze. This is a feature of Asiatic life—many tiny jobs and a tiny squeeze for each one. Common poverty makes each of these people respect the other man's graft and help him to get it. At "dak bungalows," usually the only refuge in more remote spots, the misti in charge deals only with a sahib's bearer.

In these days bearers are not easy to get. Able-bodied men have gone into the armed forces or into India's nascent war industry. No longer will they be happy with 20

KIDS RULE THE ROOST

Hollywood.

THIS IS THE YEAR of child stars, with talented kids in greater demand than they have ever been in the entire history of movies, with the possible exception of Shirley Temple.

Central Casting boasts 1,500 small thespians whose mothers hang around the telephone night and day, waiting to snatch off their prodigies' curl papers and rush them to the casting directors. Every ambitious mother in the business thinks she has a Peggy Ann Garner, a Roddy McDowall, a Margaret O'Brien, an Elizabeth Taylor, a Jackie Jenkins, or a Ted Donaldson in her home.

Movie moguls are capitalizing on stories with child characters. Jim Ryan of Twentieth Century-Fox told me: "The problem isn't to find kids with talent and looks; our difficulty is to select the ideal one child for the part out of the mob of applicants. You can get 150 kids in half an hour, all of them personable and camera wise—some too wise. A smart casting director doesn't always care about experience. He picks 'em if they fit the part like a glove and have that certain look to their faces."

Having that certain look has upped young talent to where it pays a fat federal tax each year. They buy rafts of war bonds, too, since judges now stipulate bonds are the best investment for their savings. No contract made with a minor holds today without approval of the Superior court. So parents are merely legalized guardians of their children's incomes. Unfortunately, the laws didn't protect Jackie Coogan when he was a star; but today no parent or guardian has control of more than 50 per cent of the child star's income.

Fifteen per cent is put into bonds and placed with the county clerk when the salary is small. As salaries mount, judges stipulate how profits are to be invested with each option lifting. The lush days of the movie mamma are over—and a good thing, too.

Small stars usually disappear when they reach the awkward age. Occasionally they come back in their teens as ingenues, as did Shirley Temple, Anita Louise, and Jane Withers. But the first awkward-age star of magnitude to hit the screen is Twentieth Century's Peggy Ann Garner, now playing Francie in Betty Smith's current hit, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

This is the most important role ever entrusted to any young player. It fell to Peggy Ann after her distinguished performance as the child Nora in "The Keys of the Kingdom"—also the child in "Jane Eyre." But the characterization of Nora was so fine it sent executives scurrying to the legal department to reread her contract and make sure she was firmly tied to the company. This 12-year-old, who works 71 out of the 73 days required by the picture for shooting, gets two days' rest before going into "Nob Hill," where she plays Katy, a little Irish immigrant child, an emotional and important role.

The part of Francie brought Peggy Ann 360 separate speeches—93 more sides than Jennifer Jones had in "The Song of Bernadette." Studio moguls feel the awkward age will not take Peggy Ann from the public eye, since she depends solely on interpretation and emotional appeal.

She's not a pretty child in the conventional sense; she has beautiful bone structure and a face full of character that takes on beauty when the role demands. She's never worn curls, but her straight hair has great adaptability.

From time to time she appears in leading fashion magazines as a child model. This is how her career began, and she likes to keep her hand in. She goes in for ballet dancing and recently won a contest for fancy figure skating; all of which makes good training for a wide variety of roles.

Another child star who promises to weather the grim years that threw Jackie Coogan, Freddie Bartholomew, Dickie Moore, and Peter Lawford out of pictures for a time is Roddy McDowall. His performances are predicated on sheer technique and vast spiritual comprehension of the adult heart.

War is largely responsible for the uncanny understanding of this 15-year-old English boy whose top-spinning days were spent in London's air raid shelters during the first great blitz.

In "The Keys of the Kingdom" young McDowall plays Francis Chisholm as a boy—a role as appealing as Hiu in "How Green Was My Valley," which shot him to stardom overnight. He is now in Kanab, Utah, making "Thunderhead," another Mary O'Hara story and a sequel to "My Friend Flicka." The tale has majestic outdoor settings, gives Roddy the sort of things he loves best, working with animals.

Another small fry who promises to have such a record is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's 7-year-old Margaret O'Brien. This philosophical pixie is no run-of-the-mill beauty, either. Small Margaret's face has quality and spirit rather than baby beauty. She comes of a dancing family—both her mother and aunt are talented performers. But Margaret made her initial hit by reading the Gettysburg Address in a government short with Jimmy Cagney titled "You, John Jones."

A tear-jerk scene from "Babes on Broadway" convinced Metro's bigwigs she was a prodigy. They certainly had something there. Margaret O'Brien's ability is frightening to many adult actresses who expect to do lots of hard work before they can lay claim to the title artist, something this child had right from the beginning.

In "Sunday Dinner for a Soldier" is Connie Marshall, a mini-marvel who, like Margaret O'Brien and Peggy Ann Garner, became known as a model and magazine cover child before clicking with movie cameras. She's lined up against Bobby Driscoll and Billy Cummings, two scene stealers who won their spurs in "The Sullivans." This is Connie's first picture, but she's a child to keep your eyes on.

I spotted George Noakes for a winner in "Going My Way." So did Twentieth, I guess, because they grabbed him for the part of Andrew in "The Keys of the Kingdom." He's an English type whose soft-cheeked charm hides an athlete's physique.

There's Ted Donaldson, from "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," and Skippy Homeier, who plays nasty Nazi kids superbly. Elizabeth Taylor, who has a steadily mounting following and will be co-starred with Rooney in "National Velvet." O, and there's Jackie Jenkins of "The Human Comedy," who wrapped himself about our hearts in a brief two hours. The list is as long as your arm.

Some small fry get temperamental, like Baby Leroy, whose career when phhht! when he sauntered before the mikes and gave a loud raspberry instead of his lines. He kept on doing it, put his heart into it, too. It expressed his opinion of professional life in general. So he was retired into civilian life until he grows up and learns that a raspberry grows on a bush and is not a vulgar sound thrown into the face of W. C. Fields, who taught him how to do it, then lived to regret it.

SCENTIMENTALITY

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

LET'S GIVE this business of scenting alluringly a little thought today, chiefly from the purchasing angle.

Ordinarily you go along content in the knowledge that soap and water, followed by dusting powder, is sufficient to the day's need. But comes a festive occasion, and you lean on perfume for success. It's not a bad idea, since, while the road to a man's heart may be his stomach, you have to catch him first before you can feed him. And the road to his awakening romantic interest often can be traced to a something about you that the other girls haven't got. It might, indeed, be your voice, your hair, your pretty face. But in order to make a direct hit your perfume has to be something awfully good.

You scout for the exactly right scarf to wear with your suit. Your hat takes days of scouting. The correct gloves, bag, and general accessory items are all given due thought and care.

So rushing in and buying a scent that some one else wears successfully isn't smart. If you're going to use a scent, make it distinctive with you personally.

This season you may be aching to establish a new personality. You may want to appear in a different role than that of the efficient worker, the conscientious contributor to war causes. Or you may want to be your own sweet self, which has proved good enough to date. There's no harm in accenting these roles with an accenting scent.

In perfume, as in everything else, price no longer is necessarily a guide to quality. Fragrance is a nebulous thing, and the purchase of a perfume should be dictated by your own personality, what best suits you, the occasion, and the kind of clothes you are wearing.

Querying a noted perfumer on the subject of scents and odors, we were reminded that a scent should be tried on the skin before the purchase is made. Scent is affected by the individual chemistry of each person. Some women may apply a scent that in a short time will seem to have disappeared; another may find a good perfume takes on a disagreeable tang with short wear. So it is imperative to rub it into the skin to eliminate alcohol vapors in the perfume and to know its effect coupled with the heat of the body. Try different odors from the tester bottles to be found at perfume counters.

You have to catch him before you can feed him, and a good perfume can be a wonderful help in adding to your allure.

Then consider the occasion of wear. There is the spectator sports outfit, say, and the daring frock of ultra-modern design for dinner wear. Good sense would indicate differing odors for the different ensembles. There's the charming dress for gala wear at home, into which a particular scent might well be injected. There is the efficient business frock, calling for a dab of feminine lure just to remind others there's a woman beneath the efficient facade. So use extra care when buying perfumes. It pays dividends.

INSIDE WAR TIME INDIA

rupees a month wages. They want a minimum of 46, and some get 60 or over, plus such graft as they can make on the bills they settle and squeeze they get out of any tradesman, even out of a barber. The master has to provide them quarters—usually they sleep on the floor of the veranda in front of the master's door—and at least one costume (dhoti, or whatever he wants). The bearer is supposed to provide his own food, but in these days he will often ask for a food allowance, if, for instance, you are traveling into a scarcity region with black market prices.

My own experience with bearers will do for a sample. For four months I stood out against the system; I endured the jibes of well meaning Britishers about the bad taste of eccentricity; I found that other Americans in Delhi all had bearers. When I had reached an unprecedented state of shabbiness because I could not get my shoes nor my brass polished, nor a stitch of clothes mended, I hauled down the flag and took a bearer.

The first I drew was a Poonchwallah—that is, he came from Poonch, a tiny native state on the edge of Kashmir. According to the British, those were the right qualifications, a man from the northwest frontier, the home of the "martial races," and a Moslem to boot. Hindus are supposed to be tricky and unreliable.

My Poonchwallah had had long experience with tough old British officers, and had his own notions of what a pukka sahib should be and do. He started by turning on the taps for my bath; then by putting my shoes on me, and, if you please, my pants. When I told him such things were not among the required services I lost face immediately and never quite recovered it. A white man who would admit that he could put on his own clothes could not possibly be out of the top drawer.

He did clean up my leather and brass, or hired some one else to do it for him. Then I sent him to buy odds and ends in the bazar, and his bills showed his peculiar arithmetic. Here is how it worked. He would have to buy a vacuum bottle ("Japanese," as he told me proudly), which cost him 32 rupees. I should have had to pay about 58 myself, besides taxi or tonga fare to the bazar and all the headache of looking for it. My idea was that we should split the difference, and he might equitably charge me about 45 rupees. His mind didn't work that way at all; on his bill it would be 90.

When we traveled he made a brave showing, dressed up in his long, tight fitting shirwani, regardless of the heat, and with his starched pugree standing up stiff above its greenish gold cone. As he stood among the numerous coolies who hauled my dunnage he was a real prime minister, directing a monarch's affairs. You might imagine that the function of a bearer is to bear. Nothing could be further from the truth. He gets coolies to do that; it is out of his functions and below his dignity; and the master pays for the coolies.

When we got to Rawalpindi, being so close to Kashmir and Poonch, he told me he was homesick and had to get up to the ancestral farm to see how his women were getting on with the harvesting. For, as he asked me in the mixture of pidgin English and pidgin Urdu we used between us, how can any one expect the women to be really capable and diligent if the man does not turn up occasionally to encourage them with shouting, cursing, slapping, and kicking?

So I advanced him 200 rupees (an enormous sum and evidence of my inexperience) and told him to meet me six days thence in Rawalpindi cantonment. At the appointed time he was not there, nor for some days after; so I gave him up and returned to Delhi without a bearer. First I had told another bearer—for they have an extraordinarily efficient bush telegraph among themselves and I was sure word would get to him—that I was going to send the police to make him disgorge those 200 rupees.

That was bound to work if he could be found at all. Bearers and all people of that class live in abject terror of the Indian police. They know that for a little baksheesh the police will work on a man. For five to 10 rupees they'll bounce him around properly. And if you want the man killed that will run into money—maybe 50 rupees or more—because there will be nosey people to be squared, like the prison doctor.

My Poonchwallah, as expected, came racing back to me, trembling at the idea of falling into the hands of the police. Having to account for those 200 rupees, which he already had regarded as on the credit side, he grafted more zealously than ever. Then we went off to Calcutta, and there he collapsed completely, proving thereby the British contention that "Europeans" can stand the heat of India better than its natives. My bearer explained he was used to being grilled alive, as at Delhi and all north India, but he couldn't endure being boiled alive, which is what happens at Calcutta.

Then one day he shamefacedly came in to bid me good-by. I imagined he was going back to Delhi or to his native Poonch. No, he told me, it was more than that; he was going back to his old master, a choleric, red faced British colonel. I supposed I was not enough of a pukka sahib for such a distinguished bearer. He told me that was just about the case. "You see," he explained, "I don't have any fun with you. You hardly ever question bills and you don't know what prices are. It's easy to graft 50 rupees off you. But with that old sahib of mine—you ought to see the work I have to do just to swizzle one measly little anna out of him. That's real sport."

My second bearer walked in on me one morning when I was roosting in the outer chicken coops of a hotel compound in Madras. He handed me the usual bearer's chittis—a mess of greasy papers from former masters, including some Americans. He was a tiny fellow, quite black, with a deep bass voice, which gave him immense prestige with coolies, sweepers, and like underlings. He pushed them around with speed and gusto.

We had some language difficulty. Other people have told me his English was very good, and certainly he spoke a lot of it. His Urdu was little better than mine, for his real tongue was his own Madrassi Tamil. About graft he showed a far better disposition than my former bearer and all around was more satisfactory.

Then little Gurka, for that was his name, developed bridegroom trouble. This takes some explaining. He was a very pious Hindu; still he had committed the most grievous of all sins, for he had no son. Worse—he had five daughters. Now, being sonless lets him in for 60,000,000 years of purgatory, blown about as a homeless spirit in some chill limbo. That could be mitigated considerably if ever he should be able to adopt a son.

Before that, one imperative duty was laid on him—to get his five daughters married. Neglect of that would be a wilful sin committed in his present life, whereas his sonless state is expiation of the sin of a previous life. Well, Gurka told me, in his booming voice, no one could imagine the high price of bridegrooms on the Madras market. It was all the fault of this war, taking the boys into the army and the factories and giving their families big ideas.

Then a man had to reckon with the cunning extortions of marriage brokers, generally mean old women. And there were all the incidental expenses—higher even than the original bridegroom price. There was the astrologer who had to be squared, and the greed of the priest to be reckoned with, and the ruinous cost of the marriage feast, especially with present sky high prices of rice. Last you had to worry lest astrologer and priest might conspire to call the wedding off at the last moment—the stars having suddenly become unfavorable—and then the feast would have to be eaten anyway and another one paid for later.

This was enough care to rest on any father's shoulders, but apparently I must have done him some good. When I had had Gurka about two months he one day told me, his little gnarled black face bunched up in a smile, that all was well for his eldest daughter, who already had passed the age of 14—the legal marriage age for girls in British India—and who therefore was getting him reproach among the neighbors. Later, when we went to Ceylon, he was delighted, for he had heard that young men were plentiful down there and he hoped to do some advantageous bridegroom shopping. He must have succeeded, for shortly after our return he told me everything was shaping up nicely for the second daughter, soon to pass the line of 14, when her unwed state would be a scandal.

Gurka's bills always looked reasonable to me, but there must have been something wrong. He did not get those bridegrooms for nothing, and when we parted I was sure that he was well on the way to having the third. His greatest present hope is that the war may end before he has to worry about the two youngest girls. Then young men will be plentiful and cheap. Even—who knows?—it might be the bride's father who will be able to collect.

Concern for past and future destiny lay heavy on Gurka. What could he have been in previous existences to merit being sonless? And what would await him if he shouldn't be able to get those five daughters married or else adopt a son? After his weary purgatory, in what sorry or loathsome guise might he not come back to life? As a python? A donkey? A rat? A cockroach?

"Maybe," I suggested one day, "as an Englishman."

Gurka clapped both hands over his eyes in a characteristic Hindu gesture of dismay. "No, no, sahib," he wailed, "not that, surely not that!"

McCutcheon, implying that he and Ade, busy at their office desks at such an hour, missed the sunsets. No matter. They saw sunsets from other angles—and they knew that the sun also rises.

A room like theirs could be had for $2.50 a week each, making a total of $5 a week for the landlady. There is a legend that they retained this humble cubicle long after their improved fortunes would have permitted a more luxurious abode, and that their reason for remaining was the thought that the landlady needed the money.

There were inconveniences, such as "bath on the floor below"—offset by "your own washbowl and pitcher on the dresser." But the greater compensation apparently was the story material waiting for the first lively imagination that might come along and use it. Indeed, it is believed that this Peck court room and the corridor and stairway were the background for Ade's story of "The Mystery of the Back-Roomer." Remember?

The Back-Roomer in that story, which you still can find in some of the libraries, was a silent, secretive man who came and went at strange hours, never mingling with other tenants. He always carried a black tin box. What could be in it? Why was he never without it? A fortune in large-denomination bills? Letters which must not be seen by certain eyes? The secrets of a criminal plot? Records of an international spy?

Corridor doors were ajar, Ade said, when the man of mystery started up or down the stairs. Eyes peered out of darkness. Men standing on tiptoe on chairs watched thru transoms. McCutcheon sketched such scenes and Ade described them. But the answer to the mystery was simple enough when some one became bold enough to ask a question. The tin box contained the implements of the stranger's profession. That was why he took them with him when he went out, brought them back when he returned.

Where did he work? In a Turkish bath establishment. And what was he? A chiropodist! It would have tickled O. Henry. But to Ade and McCutcheon it was just a day's work, story and pictures to turn in before deadline. Next day—something else.

It was a good time—historically—for a pair of talented and eager young men to launch a career. The whole comedy-drama of "the gay '90s" was just beginning, and there is no better way now to look back on that period than thru Ade's stories and McCutcheon's pictures. The material was rich and the competition was keen enough to keep them on their toes. Eugene Field was on the same paper with Ade and McCutcheon. Finley Peter Dunne, creator of "Mr. Dooley," was reporting on the Herald—later on The Tribune. Theodore Dreiser was writing for the Globe. And before the end of the decade Bert Leston Taylor was to come down from Duluth to work on the Journal and gain the experience which enabled him in 1901 to start the most famous of all newspaper "colyums," The Tribune's "A Line o' Type or Two."

All these gifted people saw wonderful bits of history—the return of the soldiers from the Spanish-American war, the birth of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, the march of "Coxey's army" to Washington, the invention of the horseless carriage, even the happy day when the Supreme court called the income tax unconstitutional.

"There was an awful lot of work to do," McCutcheon says, "but it did not seem like work. There was joy and zest and adventure in it. Besides, we didn't have anything else to do."

It was McCutcheon who persuaded Ade to come to Chicago—not that much persuasion was needed. Ade had already learned to write well, at college and on a local Indiana paper. And he had had two years' experience in writing puffs for a patent medicine concern that specialized in a cure for the tobacco habit. The cure was positively guaranteed, provided the patient followed directions, and the first direction was to quit using tobacco. The outfit was "the Universal Remedy company," and Ade's name on the letterhead as "manager" looked more impressive there than on the pay roll. So any kind of a big city offer was certain to be alluring.

McCutcheon summarized the "equipment" that Ade brought to Chicago as follows: "A wonderful memory, an X-ray insight into motives and men, a highly developed power of keen observation, and the benefit of four years of literary work in college and three years in professional fields. He had lived in the country and had retained, as on a photographic plate, the most comprehensive impressions of country life. He knew the types, the vernacular, and the point of view of the country people from the inside. He had lived in a small town and acquired a thoro knowledge of types and customs. He had learned college life. . . . He was ready to learn what a great city could teach."

One thing it taught him was to abandon the ponderous rhetorical prose he had developed at college, where at the age of 19 he had produced such extraordinary paragraphs as, for example, this:

"The formation of steadfast friendships with congenial spirits is rightfully judged to be the most potent factor in true education. Unfortunate is he who feels no pang of regret when called upon to sever the relations engendered during the most buoyant and hopeful period of life."

Twenty-five years later he read it over and said: "Such fine writing is a little beyond me now, but I must have been driving at something."

As a cub Ade was assigned to write about the weather, and he "made the weather news one of the bright spots" in the paper. He covered big news stories brilliantly, competing successfully with such stars as Brand Whitlock, who was on another Chicago paper.

It was not straight news, however, but "features," that made him famous. And one day the idea came to him to try something in the fable form.

"The first fable I ever wrote," said Ade, "started me upward on my dissolute career until I landed in the gutter of notoriety."

That is Ade on Ade—with too much modesty.

The fact is that he had strict standards for his fables, especially in calling names. "A young girl," he said, "may be a flapper, a bud, a peach, a pippin, a lollypaloozer, a nectarine, a cutie, a queen, the one best bet, a daisy, or even a baby doll, without being insulted; but never a 'chicken.' Our fellow citizen may be a dub or a lobster or a mutt, but not a 'slob.'"

The first of the Fables in Slang was about two sisters, one of whom was a Plain Girl with a Good Heart, while the other, Sister Mae, was a Pippin, who chewed gum and had social ambitions. The one with the Good Heart had a job in a Factory, sewing bands on hats for Three Dollars a Week. But Sister Mae became a cashier in a Quick Lunch Establishment where a young man who owned a Bucket Shop admired her so much that he married her; and when Wheat went to a Dollar she had her hair bleached and talked about the music of Vogner and had Pink Rugs and a coachman named James and there was Champagne on Ice and Mae became so refined that the smell of Cooking made her faint.

Mae's husband had a Dress Suit made to order and there was a large diamond on his Shirt Front, and he paid $12 to get Mae's picture printed in the Southwest Division Society News with a line underneath saying she was a Society Leader. Mae believed it and sent copies of the paper to her Relatives in distant states. Then Mae remembered how she could not endure the smell of Cooking and also remembered that her sister with the Good Heart was still sewing bands for Three a Week in the Factory. So Mae, being by this time well pleased with the idea of being a sort of Lady Bountiful, hired her sister as Cook at Six Dollars a Week and then sat down happily at her Grand Piano to play "All Coons Look Alike to Me." Thus it was made clear, Ade said, that one who is honest and industrious, meaning the Cook, "will surely succeed in time." For the required last line without which no fable is complete he added:

Since the purpose here is not to republish the works of George Ade, but merely to stir the memories of those old enough to have read them in newspapers, and to stimulate younger folks who may have neglected them, we have given only a faint outline of the fable of Sister Mae. The whole of it, along with many more of Ade's early stories, may be found in a volume published by the Caxton Club of Chicago, entitled "Stories of the Streets and of the Town," which was the original caption used for the newspaper series. It contains a number of the best of the fables and a fine selection of the other stories—the stories about "Artie," a very self-assured young man about town; others about "Doc Horne," who was a fascinating liar, and the classic group of tales concerning "Pink Marsh," a Negro bootblack, of whom Mark Twain said in a letter to William Dean Howells: "O, the shiftless, worthless, lovable black darling! Howells, he deserves to live forever."

The last story in the book is "Effie Whittlesy," which Howells gave the place of honor in his anthology of America's greatest short stories. "It is a contribution to American fiction," he said, "of a value far beyond most American

Let These Thirty Vitamin Specialists and Doctors Tell You Why

A Revelation to Thousands Who Have Taken B Vitamins and Been Disappointed

LITERALLY MILLIONS of people in this country are suffering from Vitamin B-Complex deficiency. They're nervous, tired, irritable, sleep poorly, feel generally rundown. Most of these people never know what is the matter with them. A great number have taken extra B vitamins—AND BEEN DISAPPOINTED!

"THE KEYS OF THE KINGDOM"

1 Young Francis Chisholm (Roddy McDowall), born in Scotland in 1869, finds himself an orphan following a terrible storm. He makes his home with Aunt Polly, Uncle Ned, and Cousin Nora (Peggy Ann Garner).

2 The sweet memory of his mother helps the grown Francis (Gregory Peck) decide to enter the priesthood. He finds in Father Hamish McNabb (Edmund Gwenn) an understanding friend, especially when thoughts turn to home and Nora instead of to the great work he has undertaken.

3 At his first mission, in Pai Tan, China, Francis finds that a priest's work often becomes that of a doctor. In saving the life of the child of a wealthy mandarin he makes a lifelong friend.

4 Francis sets out to build a church by hand. In the midst of his labors he is embarrassed by the early arrival of Sister Maria Veronica (Rosa Stradner). She does not take well to his unkempt appearance, and an unfriendly attitude arises between them.

6 Later his mandarin friend, Mr. Chia (Leonard Strong), urges Francis to leave the city with him, as it is unsafe, but the priest elects to stay with his people.

7 As time goes on the misunderstanding between Francis and Maria Veronica turns into firm friendship and understanding.

8 Above: After many years Francis returns to Scotland, only to find the bishop's representative (Sir Cedric Hardwicke) not too impressed with the financial condition of the mission.

9 But Francis knows that work was done and continues without him, and retires to spend his last years at ease. Nora's grandson, Andrew (George Nokes), often takes him fishing.

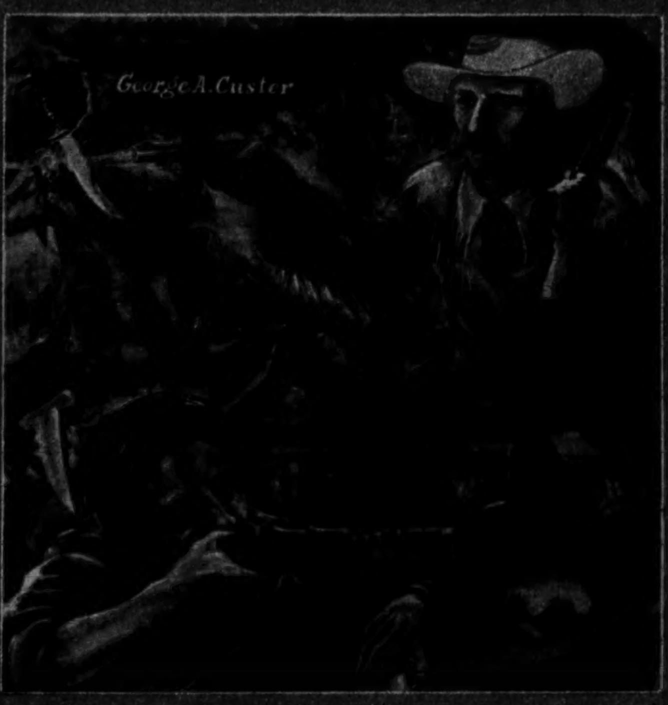
Romantic Figures of American History



The illustration above, by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Varnek, is another of the series appearing currently in this section with biographical sketches.

SIXTY-EIGHT years ago last June 25 a man on a sorrel horse rode away in the whirling dust at the head of five troops of his 7th cavalry—225 men—to vanish in the stark hills of Montana. The story of George Armstrong Custer's last fight on the Little Big Horn river never has been told in full. Nor will it ever be told in full, for Custer and his troopers perished to the last man. Only the Indians who fought the soldiers in that bloody battle knew what happened in the end, and their accounts, obtained long after the fight, were contradictory and unreliable.

Custer was a brave, vain, and headstrong man. The tragedy on the Little Big Horn brought to an end a career marked by glorious achievements on the battlefields of the Civil war and on the western plains. His blunders were more than compensated for by his gallant services to his country.

Custer was born in New Rumley, O., Dec. 5, 1839, and was graduated from West Point in 1861. As a second lieutenant of the 2d cavalry he took part in the first battle of Bull Run. After serving in the defense movements around Washington he was transferred to the 5th cavalry and in July, 1862, was promoted to first lieutenant. For his gallant conduct at Aldie on June 16, 1863, he was made a brigadier general of volunteers and given command of a Michigan brigade. Thereafter he served with distinction at Gettysburg and in the Virginia campaigns. Finding favor with General Sheridan, he was made a captain of the regular army in May, 1864. (Commissions in the regular army were separate and distinct from volunteer [state troops] commissions.) A few days later he was brevetted lieutenant colonel, and on Sept. 19 he was brevetted colonel of regulars. On Oct. 2 he was given command of the 3d division of cavalry and was brevetted major general of volunteers. He was not yet 25 years old.

It was in pursuit of Lee's army from Richmond in April, 1865, that he won his greatest glory, his division leading the van and fighting day and night. Two more honorary promotions came to him, brevets of brigadier general and major general of the regular army.

On disbandment of the volunteer army after the war Custer was left a mere captain of the 5th cavalry. When the 7th cavalry was organized in 1866 he was assigned to it with the rank of lieutenant colonel, and as neither of the two colonels assigned to it one after the other assumed command, he was in charge of the regiment to the time of his death.

On charges of deliberate absence from duty Custer was court-martialed and sentenced to a year's suspension from the army, but he was recalled in 1868, and on Nov. 27 of that year he defeated the Cheyenne Indians in the battle of Washita. In 1873 he was assigned to the command of Fort Abraham Lincoln at Bismarck, N. D. Slated to command an expedition against the Sioux and Cheyennes in 1876, he became involved in a congressional inquiry into alleged frauds in the Indian service. His testimony was unfavorable to William C. Belknap, former secretary of war, and gave offense to President Grant, who deprived him of his command. Grant relented, however, and Custer was restored to his regiment, tho not to the leadership of the expedition.

On May 17 (1876) the expedition left the Missouri river. On June 22 Custer and his troops set out for the Little Big Horn, while a force under Generals Terry and Gibbon, which had joined him from the west, started up the Yellowstone river, planning to make a rendezvous later with Custer.

Custer neared a great Indian encampment on the morning of the 25th. He did not wait for Terry and Gibbon. Dividing his force and thus weakening it, he ordered Capt. Frederick W. Benteen, with three troops, to advance in one direction, and Maj. Marcus A. Reno, with three other troops, to strike out in another. Reno crossed the Little Big Horn and fought a vicious battle with a large number of Indians. His survivors were saved from annihilation only by the reappearance of Benteen and his troops.

In the meantime Custer and his five troops rode away on the right side of the river (the side opposite where Reno fought his battle) and were never seen alive again by white men. Two days later scouts found corpses, some of them mutilated, scattered on the Custer battlefield.

A Main Course Pie

By MARY MEADE

IF YOU think that's pie in the picture, you're right and you're wrong. Right because it's a two-crusted treat served in pie-like wedges. Wrong because vegetables, not fruit, are sandwiched between the pastry, and you eat the dish for your main course, not for dessert.

You wouldn't want this pie for dessert, because it's a vegetable pie with cheese sauce.

PARTY VEGETABLE PIE, CHEESE SAUCE

1 egg
2½ tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
3 cups diced cooked vegetables (corn, celery, carrots, peas)
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 recipe for two-crust pastry
⅓ cup milk
½ pound processed cheese

Beat egg and flour together, add milk gradually, then vegetables, hard-cooked eggs, and onion. Season with salt and pepper. Place in pastry-lined pie plate and cover with top crust. Make several slits in top to allow for escaping steam. Bake in 425 degree oven for 40 minutes, or until crust has browned and filling has set. Serve each portion with cheese sauce made by melting the packaged cheese food over hot water and gradually adding ⅓ cup milk.

If you think it extravagant to use ½ pound of cheese at one meal, use just a part of the package and make the cheese sauce by melting it in a cup of medium white sauce.

QUICK SPINACH LUNCH DISH

(Serves four to six)

1 to 2 pounds spinach, cooked
6 slices bread, cut in cubes
¼ cup margarine or bacon drippings
⅓ cup cream or evaporated milk
Dash nutmeg, salt and pepper

Chop spinach fine. Brown bread cubes in fat and add spinach. Cook one minute; add cream and heat thru. Season with nutmeg and salt and pepper to taste.—MRS. R. M. ADDISON, Box 31, Charlevoix, Mich.

PARIS NEVER GAVE UP

This is the second chapter from the journal of a Tribune man who spent the entire 50 months of German occupation inside Paris—one of the few Americans who were able to do so without being interned or working for the Germans. Last Sunday he described the early days and the difficulties of adjustment to the new regime.

By ROBERT SAGE

CHAPTER II.

THE GREATEST cause of suffering in Paris during the period of German occupation was fear, fear of things that did not happen to everybody but that might happen to anybody, and at any moment; fear of being arrested, of being tortured, of being executed—fear of these things not only for one's self but for one's relatives or friends.

There was no sure way to avoid such misfortunes. Even the most "correct" behavior (correct by German standards) was not enough to assure immunity, because the Nazi strategy was to punish the innocent if the guilty could not be found. And those who sought personal safety and comfort by going into the dirty business of collaboration with the Germans had equal cause for terror. Patriots might do them in. Laval himself with all his bodyguards was never safe.

Fear of the unknown was as bad as fear of the known—or worse. The Gestapo knew this and employed both techniques of terror. Some of their acts of brutality were done under the planned light of full publicity. Others were kept secret, or semi-secret. Known truth lent credibility to rumor.

Somebody would speak of screams heard in the night. A carpenter's wife would tell the woman next to her in the food line that her husband was engaged solely in making pine coffins which were carried away daily by the Germans. There were shadowy and fragmentary stories of execution chambers in prisons, forts, and even apartment houses.

American troops march down the Champs Elysees from the Arc de Triomphe in Paris.

Always the hunt for Jews, for anti-German writers, and for leaders of the underground continued. The household goods and other belongings of those arrested would be carried in vans to the basement of the Museum of Modern Art, where they were sorted out and then sent to Germany.

Prisons in the city and camps in the suburbs were crowded with political prisoners. The sound of a shot was less harrowing than a scream, because the former meant death and the latter torture.

Sometimes relatives received farewell letters written a few hours before execution. Sometimes the disappearance of a friend or relative was followed, after an agonizing suspense, by news that the missing person had gone into hiding, just in time.

These fugitives, or course, had no food tickets, but patriots fed them, risking their own lives and cutting down on their own meager rations to do it. There were tens of thousands thus in hiding. It is no exaggeration to say that half the families in Paris had at least one member to worry about, at least one who was a war prisoner, a forced laborer, a member of the Maquis, or dead.

Facts which were known only to a comparative few during the occupation are now being made known to everybody thru the liberated press. Writers like Jacques Decour, Max Jacob, and Benjamin Cremieux were put to death. The whole population of the village of Oradour were murdered and their homes burned. Eyes were gouged out to make men talk. Fingernails were pulled out with forceps. Ice water baths and electric shocks were used. (An ice water bath does not mark the body.)

The French, being realists, know that human capacity for endurance of cruelty varies with individuals. They have drawn a line, therefore, between those who willingly collaborated for the sake of their own convenience and comfort and those who yielded only as much as their fear compelled them to.

A woman who discussed Schiller with a German soldier did not have her head shaved. A citizen who was seen to accept a proffered handshake from a German officer was not punished for it. Hotel and restaurant proprietors as well as merchants who dealt with the Germans have been given the benefit of the doubt as to their patriotism. (Some of them, making large profits, secretly turned the money over to the resistance movement.)

Unforgiven, however, are these groups: All who supported Vichy, including some who insist their motive was to soften Germany's treatment of France; all who joined the Vichy militia, the Legion of French Volunteers, the African Phalange, the Francists, the Rassemblement National Populaire; all writers, lecturers, radio commentators who served the Germans, appeared at collaborationist social functions, or made tours of Germany; industrialists, bankers, and other business men who used their influence with the Germans to crowd out their competitors and enrich themselves; and all Frenchmen who took Gestapo pay for spying on their fellow citizens.

There are other groups of Frenchmen who are going to be unhappy for a long time to compensate for the soft life they led under enemy rule—the tradesmen who jeered at French customers waiting for hours in line and were obsequious to Germans who walked in ahead of the line; all Frenchmen who were able to keep their automobiles and get essence (gasoline) to run them; all who had good new clothes and leather-soled shoes, sure sign of either collaboration or the black market.

The black market was bad. It also was necessary. It had two kinds of customers and two kinds of operators—bad, and not so bad. Almost everybody had some kind of contact with it. Its best functions were to supply the French with food and other goods otherwise unobtainable and to deprive the Germans thus of a part of their loot. Butter and meat that nourished a Frenchman would not nourish a German.

France has no quarrel with an underpaid clerk who gave up smoking in order to sell his ration of cigarets for six or seven times what they cost him, thus acquiring enough francs, perhaps, to buy a little black market meat for his family. France forgives the maid who stood in line all afternoon to buy vegetables and sell them at 300 per cent profit. There is tolerance for the woman who got extra butter and traded it for second hand shoes.

The law, Nazi law, fixed prices, and the black market demanded about 10 times as much. Like the American bootleggers in the prohibition era, the black market operators sought to excuse their prices on the basis of the risks they took.

Of course the Germans knew about it and of course the Germans, at least some of them, coöperated to make it possible. German army trucks carried supplies to the black market. The big dealers could not have operated without the knowledge, and therefore the consent, of the Germans. Can any one suppose that this consent was not paid for? The pay might not always be money. It might be service—collaboration.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS • By Bob Becker

IN THE GAY '90s, when the pug dog was popular, horse-drawn fire-fighting equipment always gave a big show in American towns as soon as a fire alarm was sounded. The clang of the gong on the smoking fire engine, the sight of the beautiful, sleek horses galloping thru the streets hauling the bright red hook and ladder outfit, and the way other horse-drawn vehicles got out of the way of the firehouse boys were familiar features of the early days.

At that time in our history you could find a coach dog or Dalmatian in nearly every fire station. And in thousands of small privately owned stables there were more coach dogs, for it was a well known breed in those days before the automobile became popular. When Americans substituted motor cars for horses this trend ousted the coach dog as an American favorite. The pug dog also went into an eclipse about that time.

This show winning Dalmatian, Ch. Williamsdale Inkspot, is well named, for the Dalmatian is noted for its black or brown spots against a white background.

Fortunately the good looking Dalmatian, a very old breed, has been staging a come-back. Today you are beginning to see more of them as pets and also in dog shows.

Dog authorities say that the coach dog originated in the province of Dalmatia. It has been called the firehouse dog, the carriage dog, the plum pudding dog, and many other names. And the roles that the breed has played down thru the centuries are just as varied as its names. Of course nearly everybody knows the heroic role the Dalmatian has played as a fire apparatus follower and firehouse mascot.

Records show that at one time Dalmatians have been employed as shepherds. Sometimes packs of them were trained for boar hunting, and individuals even were trained as pointing dogs. Then there were owners who taught the Dalmatians the business of rat killing. So down thru the years the intelligence and adaptability of the Dalmatian have made him a very useful dog.

The instinct for coaching is bred in this dog. Just as American owners kept Dalmatians around stables, so the English had one of these dogs following the master's coach or carriage. These animals often would travel for miles between the wheels of the vehicles. At the end of the trip the dog would take over the job of guarding the conveyance. The Dalmatian has the strength, the gait, and zest for this road work and thrives on it. He loves horses and today holds the title of being the only recognized carriage dog in the world.

Dalmatians are not noisy. They are ideal watchdogs, protective but not overly aggressive. With children a Dalmatian is a perfect companion, always ready for fun.

Another advantage of the breed is its coat. The Dalmatian has a short, hard, sleek coat which makes it easy to keep in the home. A good dog of the breed should weigh between 35 and 50 pounds. Altho most specimens that you see in homes have black spots against a white background, the so-called liver-spotted variety is in keeping with the standard.

Two Gentlemen . . .

Collectors of Ade lore will find the Caxton volume precious for another reason: the introduction, written by Franklin J. Meine and including a long reminiscent letter from McCutcheon, who probably knows more than any other one man about Ade.

Ade and McCutcheon took their famous trip to Europe in 1895, and it was a bold thing to do. They had been pinching nickels long enough to save $800 each for the expenses, and they proposed to burn their bridges behind them. They would resign from the paper, of course. Or would they? To one of them or perhaps simultaneously to both there came an audacious idea. They would proposition the boss. And they did.

They called it an "ultimatum," and it was this: Whether he liked it or not, they were going. But if it suited the boss they would send back to him two stories a week, with illustrations. They would pay their own expenses if the boss would continue to pay them their salaries. That meant $35 a week each—for they had had a series of wage increases since their Peck court days.

To their amazement and delight, the boss agreed—quick! Not even an argument. Did ever a newspaper make a better bargain for foreign correspondence?

The trip took four months and the young wanderers covered Ireland, England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, and France. McCutcheon says they did this on their saved-up fund, which seems to imply that they let their wage checks accumulate at home, ready to be used when they got back. They must have been shrewd and canny travelers, for we are told that they not only paid their expenses as they went along but bought "a number of art treasures that eventually wound up in the attic."

The first of Ade's "Artie" stories appeared in newspaper form in 1896, unsigned. They became a once-a-week series in the Chicago Record and afterward they came out as a book, published by H. S. Stone & Company. Later there was a series about "Pink Marsh," the Negro bootblack, and another about "Doc Horne," described by McCutcheon as "a gentleman liar." All these books were successful, but it wasn't long before destiny—in the form of public demand—took charge of Ade.

It was a little like what destiny did to Conan Doyle, who, after writing a story or two about Sherlock Holmes, found that he was a slave, compelled to write Sherlock Holmes and nothing much else for the rest of his life. Ade was not quite that unlucky. He was not forced to write Fables forever, but he had to wear forever the "fable reputation" and was called the "dean of slang" in spite of his protest that his "Fables in Slang" were not really slang at all, but merely "vernacular." They looked like slang because of the way capital letters were employed.

He wrote a book of them, then another, titled "More Fables in Slang." The syndicate demand was insatiable. "Then began," says McCutcheon, "that amazing rise to world-wide fame and a swollen fortune. . . . His income leaped and leaped. The golden flood poured in upon him in a way that staggered one accustomed to compressing his wants within $60 a week. He became known as the High Priest of American slang. When he registered at a strange hotel the reporters came to interview him, and no matter what he said, the interview appeared with a dizzy string of slang en brochette, in imitation of his fable style. . . . The sequel was obvious. The theatrical field with its golden promise was laid down before him."

Ade wrote "The Sultan of Sulu," his first big stage success, while he was visiting McCutcheon at a health resort in Asheville, N. C., in 1900. The piece was full of bright and timely lines touching on topics fresh from the newspapers. There was much controversy, for instance, over the question of holding the Philippines or freeing them. So a "compromise" was suggested in the play: "The Filipinos should be allowed their independence on Thursdays and Saturdays." Another line was: "The Constitution and the Cocktail follow the flag."

Almost everything that Ade touched in that period seemed to turn into money. His syndicated stories enabled him to "collect from a hundred papers instead of one." And there were times when he had two shows at once on Broadway, with others on the road. "The County Chairman" was a huge success and seemed to be an inexhaustible source of revenue. "The College Widow" was similarly prosperous, with most of the characters drawn from real people the author had known in his own college days. "The undergraduate owing an $18 board bill," Ade confided, "was Booth Tarkington."

Most of the summers of Ade's last years (he died on May 16, 1944) were spent on his great Indiana estate, Hazelden, at a place that grew in acreage from year to year. First, when his income had become large, he bought a small farm with a cottage on it. McCutcheon says the cottage became a house "and then a splendid country home" with a landscape gardener making it constantly more beautiful. All sorts of gadgets were acquired, "including an ice plant, an electric light plant, and all the other plants known to luxury and botany."

Ade liked to rest there for a short period, but he was, as McCutcheon called him, "a restless rester," and the autumn usually brought on an attack of wanderlust. Such attacks, if mild, might take him only as far as Florida, to spend the winter, but more often they snatched him away to remoter places; and the last time a summary of his travels was compiled it showed ten European trips, eleven visits to the West Indies (where McCutcheon's Treasure Island was a potent lure), four journeys to China and Japan, and two circumnavigations of the globe.

He never married. Too busy?

(This has been a rambling sketch of Ade and McCutcheon—mostly Ade. There is another tale to tell, in an early issue, of McCutcheon and Ade—mostly McCutcheon.)

u-m-m! Treats for Hallowe'en

It's Hallowe'en, so give a party.
With pumpkin pie win praises hearty,
An' light Spry doughnuts, golden-brown.
They'll call you "best cook in the town!"

SO SPICY, SMOOTH, DELICIOUS
Spry
Guaranteed by Good Housekeeping

Crispy, Spry doughnuts—so digestible!

- 2 tablespoons Spry
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 eggs or 4 egg yolks, beaten
- 1 cup milk*
- ¼ teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ teaspoon lemon extract
- 3½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1¼ teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon mace

* If buttermilk or sour milk is used instead of sweet milk, use ½ teaspoon soda and 2 teaspoons baking powder.

COMBINE Spry, sugar and eggs and blend well. Add milk and extracts and mix thoroughly. Sift flour with baking powder, salt and mace. Add to blended ingredients and mix until smooth. With as little handling as possible, roll dough to ⅜-inch thickness. Cut with 3-inch doughnut cutter. Fry in hot Spry (375° F.) about 1½ inches deep, until brown, turning when first crack appears. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 2 dozen. And even the children can eat them . . . food fried the Spry way is so digestible!

Hallowe'en Pumpkin Pie

JACK O' LANTERN never gave you such a sparkling smile as you'll get from your Hallowe'en company when they taste this spicy-smooth pumpkin pie with its meltingly tender, flaky Spry crust.

Fry the Spry way for delicious, digestible fried foods. Serve these light, crispy doughnuts. They don't use up a lot of fat . . . you can use the same Spry over and over again for frying. And discover New Easy-Mix Spry's thrilling, better cake secret . . . it's easy now to get lighter, more delicious cakes that stay fresh longer. Yes, siree—just changing to Spry can make you a much better cook!

Hallowe'en Pumpkin Pie

- 1½ cups canned or cooked pumpkin
- 1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- ¼ teaspoon allspice
- 2 tablespoons molasses
- 3 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 cup evaporated milk or top milk
- 1 unbaked Spry Pie Shell

Mix pumpkin, sugar, salt, spices and molasses. Add eggs and milk and mix thoroughly. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 40 to 45 minutes, or until knife inserted comes out clean. Let pie cool. Such flaky, tender, delicate-tasting crust with Spry. So easy to digest!

Make a paper pattern for a jack o' lantern face. Just before serving, place pattern over cooled pie and dust confectioners' sugar through holes.

Sugar-Saving Tip. Instead of 1 cup brown sugar, use ½ cup each sugar and corn sirup (or maple sirup); reduce milk to ½ cup.

Spry Pie Shell

Mix 1¼ cups sifted ALL-PURPOSE FLOUR and ½ teaspoon SALT. Measure 7 tablespoons of creamy, snow-white SPRY—divide into 2 equal parts.

STEP 1 for Tenderness—cut in first half of Spry until as fine as meal. Creamy Spry cuts in so easily!

STEP 2 for Flakiness—cut in remaining Spry until size of large peas.

Add 3 tablespoons cold WATER, mixing thoroughly into a dough. Roll thin; fit into pie pan. Trim 1 inch larger than pan; turn back edge; flute rim.

Want Softer, Smoother Skin? It's yours
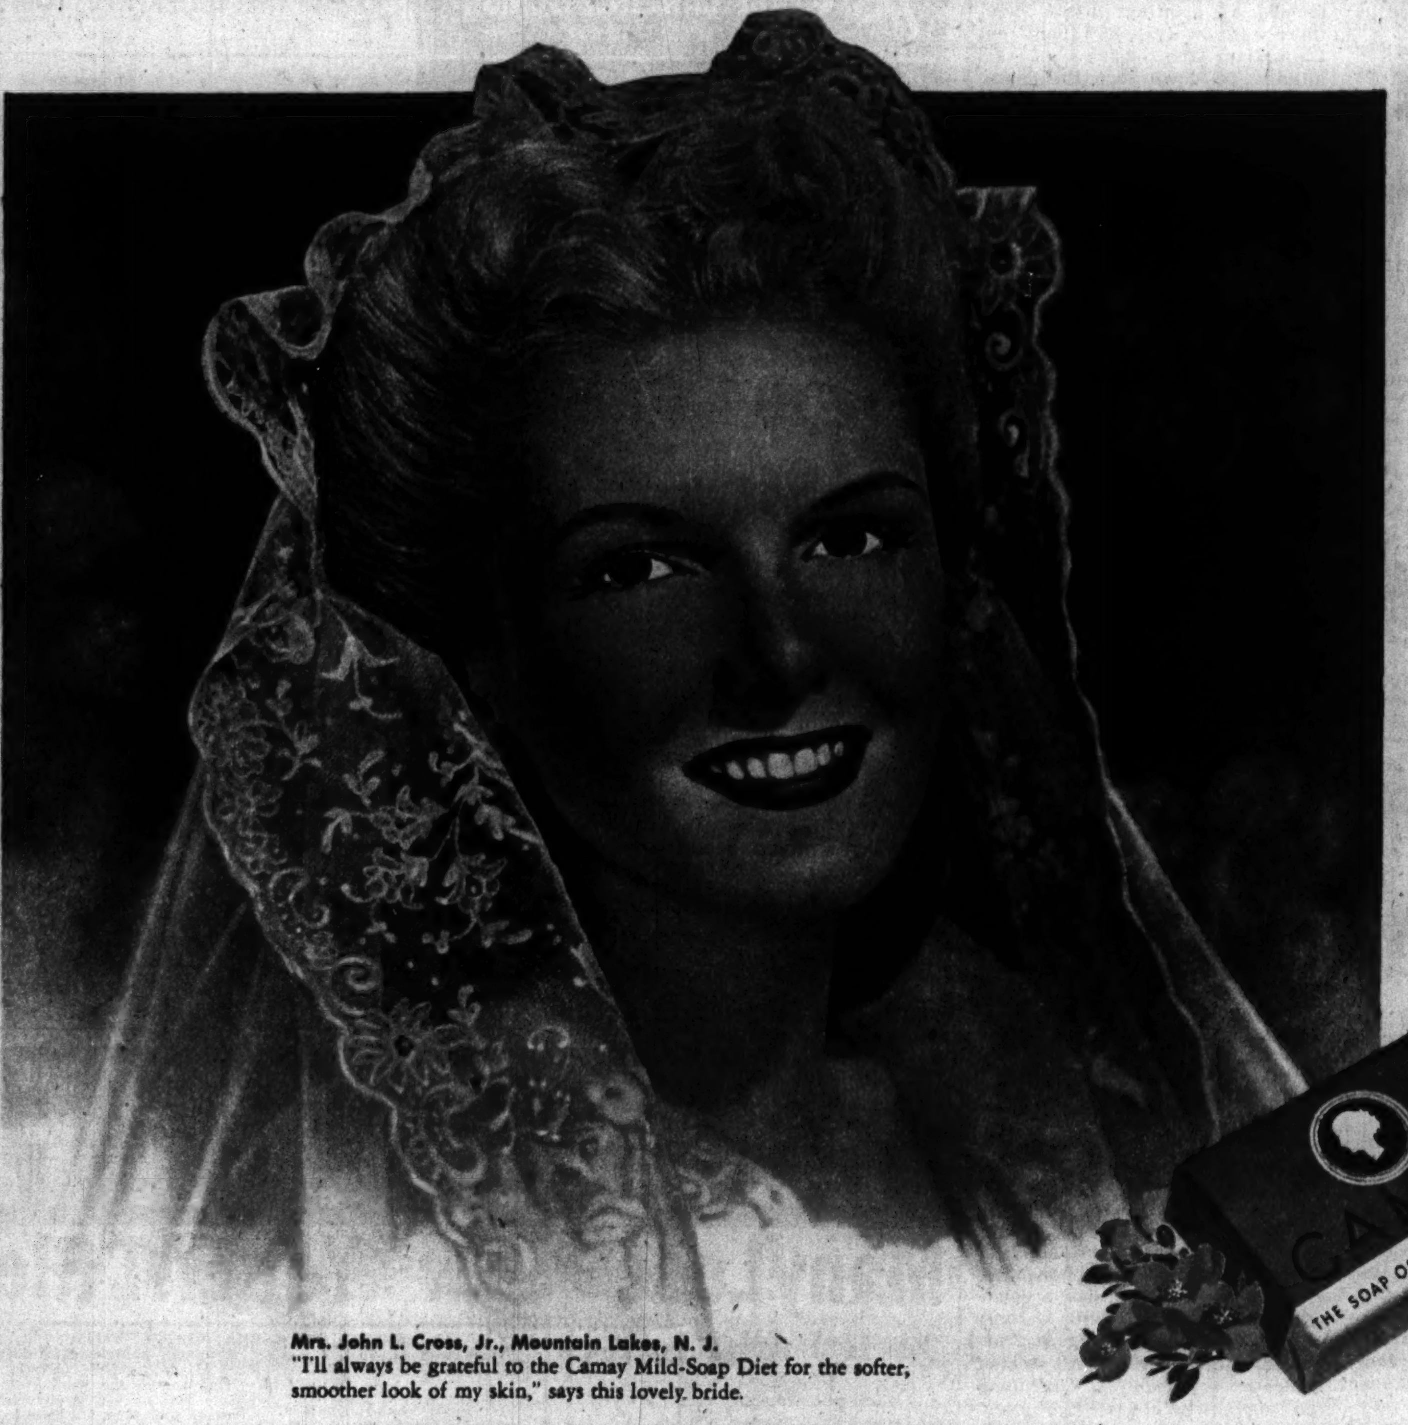
with just One Cake of Camay!



CAMAY
THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Mrs. John L. Cross, Jr., Mountain Lakes, N. J.
"I'll always be grateful to the Camay Mild-Soap Diet for the softer, smoother look of my skin," says this lovely bride.

Tests by doctors prove Camay is Really Mild!

Wishing for a skin that fairly sparkles . . . feels softer, smoother? It's yours . . . with just one cake of Camay! Change from improper care to the Camay Mild-Soap Diet. Doctors tested this care on over 100 complexions. And most complexions simply bloomed — noticeably softer, fresher, clearer — with the first cake of Camay.

. . . it cleanses without irritation

These tests proved Camay's mildness . . . proved it can benefit the skin. "Camay is really mild," said the doctors, "it cleansed without irritation." No wonder the Camay Mild-Soap Diet brings such striking improvement to complexions. So get Camay . . . and see the new, softer charm of your skin!

Go on the Camay Mild-Soap Diet

Cream that mild Camay lather over your face—your forehead, nose, chin. Then—rinse warm. If your skin is the oily type, add an extra C-O-L-D splash. Repeat Camay's mild care, night and morning.

Simple, isn't it? Your first cake of Camay means a lovelier complexion!

Precious materials go into Camay—make each cake last! Remember, soap waste is war waste.

"A Co-ed taught me to keep clothes prettier—by putting me wise to TWICE the Wear with Ivory Flakes Care!"

1. "Our constant companion on treks from one naval base to another is Ivory Flakes," says Mrs. Philip Gustafson of Columbus, Ohio. "When Phil was taking his officer's training at a big university, I busied myself with putting on fashion shows for the gals on campus. One of those smart lassies put me wise to twice the wear with Ivory Flakes care. Best advice I've had!

2. "Ivory Flakes care 'pays off' more now than ever, when pretty new clothes are so darn scarce and expensive. Believe me, I never treat things roughly with the wrong kind of soap. Not since I found out that wash tests on dresses, housecoats, undies, prove pretty washables give as much as twice the wear with Ivory Flakes care. Best piece of news in a month of Sundays—for all of us gals!

3. "Make all washables last longer —not just your stockings. Give 'em all gentle care with the flake form of baby's mild Ivory Soap—that goes for everything from girdles to slipcovers!"

A LITTLE GOES A LONG WAY toward keeping colors bright and gay. So don't waste Ivory Flakes. Like all soap, it's made of vital war materials.

Enjoy Hours of Continuous Medication

Many a happy marriage has been wrecked by a woman's ignorance, laziness or neglect of intimate feminine cleanliness.

And today well-informed women no longer use weak homemade mixtures or strong, harmful poisons, because Science has given you a higher standard of antiseptic cleanliness — and so much easier and convenient—ZONITORS!

So Powerful Yet So Harmless

Zonitors are greaseless, stainless, snow white suppositories. Ready for instant use—Zonitors spread a powerful antiseptic germicidal film—yet are so safe to delicate tissues. POSITIVELY non-burning, non-poisonous.

An extra advantage of Zonitors is they provide HOURS of continuous medication. They destroy offending odor and help guard against infection by instantly killing every germ they touch. Of course it's not always possible to contact all germs in the tract. BUT YOU MAY BE SURE OF THIS! No other germicide kills germs any faster or more thoroughly. Zonitors kill every reachable germ and keep them from multiplying.

Buy Zonitors at any drugstore. Benefit by their convenience and hours of continuous medication. Follow label directions.

I'm the wife of the engineer who helped plan the new THOR automatic washer!

Even with all your laundry troubles now—you'd be cheered up if you knew what's coming your way right after-the-war.

Those Thor engineers have been working night and day to give you a new automatic washer that seems to do everything but go to the store to buy soap flakes.

Lots of its features are still secret—but here are some of the things you can look forward to:

Put the clothes into the Thor dry—take them out dry.

Let it run itself automatically, or else decide, if you wish, to shorten or lengthen the time for sudsing, washing, rinsing, etc.

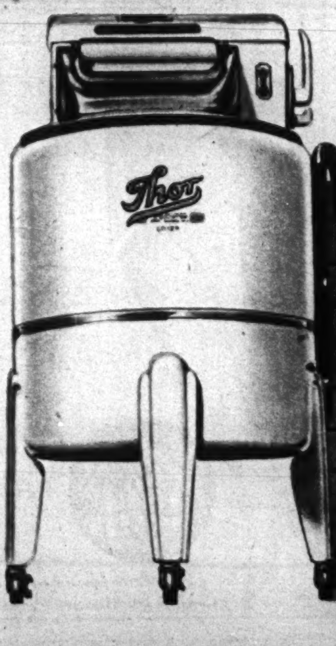
Yes, and the Thor uses a famous washing principle that really gets the dirt out! Try it on work clothes and you'll see. Yet it's as gentle as your own two hands in washing laces, lingerie and delicate fabrics.

And the new automatic Thor will cost less than many of the ordinary pre-war models.

You'll want one of the new Thor Automatics the minute you lay eyes on it. And you can start now to get one. Go to your Thor Dealer and ask to sign the Thor Priority Register. This puts your name on a preferred list, to be offered a Thor Washer as soon as released. You don't have to buy—you pay nothing for this privilege. You assure yourself of the earliest washer available. If you don't know your nearest Thor Dealer's name, write us.

HURLEY MACHINE DIVISION
Electric Household Utilities Corporation
54th Avenue and Cermak Road, Chicago, Ill.

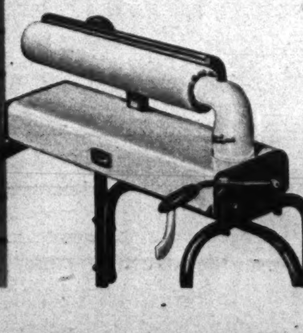
Thor has produced more washers for our Armed Forces than all other manufacturers combined.



The 1942 Thor Washer was a honey—but the new Automatic will be still better.

Thor

For preferred attention when washers are released, sign the Thor Priority Register at your Thor Dealer's.



A new Automatic Gladiron will greet you soon—amazingly simple and effortless.

If your favorite candy dealer is temporarily out of Bunte's, ask again . . . for none can compare with Bunte's quality and flavor! Bunte's Mi Choice, is especially appropriate.

"My career is glamour" says enchanting DANA JENNEY

"Being a Cover Girl is a dream job"—says alluring, successful Dana Jenney. "But I have to be right down to earth about keeping exquisite under the torrid heat of photographers' 1000-watt lamps.

"So I was thrilled when I found a deodorant that really did keep my underarms dry—Odorono Cream! I can trust it, even under the most trying conditions, to keep freshness from wilting—and safeguard the expensive dresses and furs I model.

"Every girl will like the things I like about Odorono Cream. First, it contains a really effective perspiration stopper that closes the tiny underarm sweat glands and keeps them closed up to 3 days!

"It's safe for fabrics too—just follow directions. And you can tell it contains soothing emollients because it's non-irritating even after shaving.

"Another thing—each jar gives you up to 21 more applications for 39¢ than other leading deodorants.

"Won't you try velvety, fragrant Odorono Cream—see if you don't agree with me that it's a marvelous help in guarding precious glamour!"

U.S. GOVERNMENT INSPECTED* MILD, TENDER, JUICY!

In ever increasing numbers folks are demanding the wieners made from a more exacting recipe.

To produce them we follow a recipe over 60 years old. It calls for certain proportions of pork, beef and veal. These meats are selected carefully to get the right proportion of tender lean meat. The flavor is the flavor of the meat with only mild seasoning added. No cereal is used. Although this increases the cost of Yellow Band Wieners it gives a flavor beyond comparison.

Since discovering the care with which they are made, thousands now serve these Oscar Mayer Wieners more often. Try them today. At your dealer's, look for the wieners in the continuous Yellow Band. You'll be glad you did.

DICK TRACY
by CHESTER GOULD
CONGRATULATIONS, CONNELLY AND WIX! YOUR QUICK RESPONSE HAS ENDED THE CAREER OF AT LEAST TWO OF SNOWFLAKE'S ABDUCTORS.
TELL ME HOW YOU SIGNALLED FOR HELP, CHIEF
IT WAS SIMPLE. I THREW THIS TUMBLER SWITCH ON MY DESK— WITH MY KNEE.
THAT OPENED THIS MIKE DIRECTLY TO THE RADIO ROOM. THEN, BY CONVERSATION WITH THESE THUGS, I LET THE OPERATOR KNOW WHAT WAS GOING ON BUT SHAKY GOT AWAY! WITH SNOWFLAKE! OUR JOB IS ONLY HALF DONE!
MEANWHILE, RETURNING FROM THE MODEL AGENCY WHERE HE HAD BEEN SEEKING INFORMATION ABOUT SNOWFLAKE DICK TRACY WAITS FOR TRAFFIC LIGHTS TO CHANGE.
CLINK
THAT WAS A MARBLE. HUH? WHAT TH— THAT'S JUNIOR!
WHAT'S HE DOING ON THE BACK END OF THAT CAR? HE—HE'S TRYING TO SIGNAL ME—WANTS ME TO FOLLOW.
D6173
LUCKILY, I CAME UP TO HEADQUARTERS JUST AS THIS MUG WAS CARRYING SNOWFLAKE OUT — I'VE GOT TO LET TRACY KNOW WHY I'M HERE
D6713
snowflake
I DON'T LIKE THAT ROADSTER THAT'S FOLLOWING US. STEP ON IT.
WE'RE ALMOST THERE, SHAKY
ONTO A SIDE STREET, THEN, WITH TIRES SHRIEKING, THE GUNMAN'S CAR TURNS INTO A PRIVATE DRIVEWAY AND INTO AN OPEN GARAGE.
WITH ABRUPT SUDDENNESS THE OVERHEAD DOOR SLAMS DOWN. A LOCK CLICKS! —— THE SCREECHING BRAKES OF THE DETECTIVE'S CAR PIERCE THE SILENCE.

I'M SO ANXIOUS TO SEE HER... YOU SEE, MY COUSIN JANE WAS TRAPPED IN BURMA BY THE JAP INVASION, MUCH AS YOU WERE, MISS BELINDA... THE LIEUTENANT DIDN'T MENTION THE OTHER YOUNG LADY'S NAME ON THE TELEPHONE—SO I CAME ALONG IN THE MOTORCAR ON THE OFF CHANCE THAT YOUR FRIEND MIGHT BE MY POOR JANE...

Carlyn Phelps Truax

OF CHICAGO
Her engagement to Corporal James H. Drumm, Jr. of New York was announced last Thanksgiving Day, when he was home on furlough

AT U. S. O. CANTEEN SHOWS Carlyn entertains the boys at the Great Lakes Training Base. "U.S.O. Clubs need volunteers for all kinds of work," she says.

CARLYN'S LUMINOUS COPPER-GOLD HAIR intensifies the creamy-soft look of her fine, smooth skin. This adorable Pond's bride-to-be met her fiancé on the way to South America—where she was going to visit friends, and he to join his parents who live part of the year in Rio, part in New York.

She's Engaged!

She's Lovely! She uses Pond's!

Carlyn's complexion is especially pretty, smooth, fresh and soft as can be. "Pond's Cold Cream," she says, "is my beauty cream. It's such a fine, smooth cream you feel it's bound to do nice things for your face."

She smooths soft, snowy-white Pond's over her face and throat. Pats it with brisk finger tips to soften and release dirt and make-up. Tissues off.

She rinses with a second Pond's creaming, working the cream round her face with little spiral whirls. Tissues off again. "Two creamings this way give my face the loveliest, immaculate feeling," she says.

Use your Pond's Cold Cream this way—every night, every morning and for daytime clean-ups. It's no accident so many more women use Pond's than any other face cream at any price. Ask for a big jar! Large sizes save glass! And it's so much quicker to dip finger tips of both hands in the wide Pond's jar.

That Troublesome Mouse

GINKY has caused the Teenie Weenies a great deal of trouble. It didn't do a bit of good to arrest him and put him in the Teenie Weenie jail for that is just what the mouse wanted. He is extremely lazy and he would like nothing better than to be put in the Teenie Weenie jail where he could sleep most of the time and have the Teenie Weenies bring his meals to him.

Ginky hadn't been around the Teenie Weenie village since the time the little men gave him a sound thrashing for having insulted the Lady of Fashion. They had heard reports of him from time to time and they were very bad reports, too. It seems that the mouse had gone to live in one of the big houses near the Teenie Weenie village. He had made a nest under the porch and the Teenie Weenies had heard that the mouse was making raids on the pantry in the house. The people who lived in the house had set traps for Ginky, but the mouse is very clever and he carefully avoided the traps. However, in spite of his cleverness he finally met his match, for he ate some poisoned bait that had been set out for him, and if it hadn't been for the Teenie Weenies that would have been the last of Ginky.

One day the Teenie Weenie Cowboy happened to pass near the place where Ginky had set up house keeping and the little chap heard him groaning. He ran to the Teenie Weenie village with the news and, in spite of Ginky's bad character, the General thought something ought to be done for him, so he had the Doctor examine him.

"He'll have to be carefully nursed if he pulls through," the Doctor told the General.

The General decided it would be best to carry Ginky to the Teenie Weenie jail where he could be looked after and so a litter was made out of two long twigs and an old rag. Under the care of the Doctor, Ginky soon recovered, but when the Policeman ordered him out of the jail the mouse flatly refused to go.

"Just lock the door," the General told the Policeman. "When Ginky gets hungry he'll be mighty glad to get out."

After Ginky had been locked in the jail for three days without anything to eat he demanded to be let out. The Policeman opened the door and Ginky lost little time in hurrying away to find something to eat.

"Now," said the General when Ginky had disappeared, "lock the door so he can't get in again and we won't be bothered with him for a while."

DE PAUL SEEKS A CLOSER TIE WITH ALUMNI

Plan Is Product of New President.

The Rev. Comerford J. O'Malley assumed his duties as president of De Paul university last week. He succeeded the Very Rev. Michael J. O'Connell, president of the university for 10 years, who resigned to become superior of the priests of the Congregation of the Mission in Chicago.

Father O'Malley served as dean of De Paul's college of commerce from 1936 until his appointment as academic coördinator of the specialized war training program at the university in 1943. Recently he assumed the duties of organizing the alumni association program, which will be given over to a new appointee. Father O'Malley especially is concerned with the alumni group and will continue his active interest in its promotion.

Sets Up Alumni Office.

Under his direction an alumni office has been set up in the administration building on the De Paul campus, 2235 Sheffield av. Thru class representatives from the various college units, he hopes to keep in touch with thousands of alumni from the first graduation class of 1899 to the present day. The alumni body is estimated at more than 10,000 members, 96 per cent of whom reside in the metropolitan area of Chicago.

The organization is made up of six units representing each of the six divisions of the university, law, liberal arts, commerce, music, drama, and secretarial. Each unit has selected its own officers to serve on the board of governors for the association.

Name Harrington Law Head.

The following graduates were chosen officers of the law unit: Cornelius J. Harrington, class of 1921, president; Daniel F. Murphy, '19, vice president; Henry L. Phoenix, '26, and Stacy W. Osgood, '30, vice presidents; Olga Jurco, '38, secretary, and Henry Abrahams, '28, treasurer.

The liberal arts unit of the north side and loop school named Matthew J. O'Brien, '08, president; Olivia M. Cox, '37, vice president; Eleanor Schaefer, '40, secretary; Mrs. Joseph L. Kleiner, '33, treasurer.

From the downtown college of liberal arts and sciences, officers chosen were: Anna W. Dorner, '33, president; Harriet R. Fijalkowski, '43, vice president; and Lillian Bogacz, '42, secretary.

Alumni Magazine Published.

The music-drama units named Rose Krivanek, '43 to the presidency; Barbara Sieben, '33, vice president; Helen Dallach, '33, secretary, and Elizabeth Rozek, '41, treasurer. The secretarial group choose Genevieve T. Bennett, '37, president; Marjorie VosBurgh, '30, vice president; Rosemary Kennedy, '38 secretary, and Mary M. Elster, '42 treasurer.

The De Paul University Alumni News will serve as the official medium of the association. Clarence Carey, '32, is editor in chief of the publication.

CONG. DEWEY'S BACKERS CLAIM FRAUD SCHEME

Nominee Is Target of Hillman.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Issues in the race for congress in the 9th Illinois district were clearly defined last week when two so-called independent voting groups openly recommended the defeat of Congressman Charles S. Dewey and Dewey workers alleged that a gigantic vote fraud was being prepared in an effort to beat the Republican nominee.

Swinging their hardest blows at Dewey, who is recognized as one of the foremost financial experts in congress, are Sidney Hillman's CIO political action committee and the Independent Voters of Illinois, who are collaborating with—and in some cases overlapping—the work of the regular Democratic organization. They are supporting Alexander J. Resa, Democrat and the choice of the city hall, who is now employed as an assistant corporation counsel.

Harmony in G. O. P. Ranks.

Aiding Dewey and the rest of the G. O. P. nominees is a large group of business men who are in complete harmony with the regular Republican ward organizations on the near north side. They have just started checking the new registration lists and in particular those in parts of the 42d ward.

Charles F. Hough, chairman of the business men's committee in the 42d, said that there was no factional fight of any kind there and that Paul C. Ross, the ward committeeman, was doing a great job as director of the campaign. He added that Charles Peace, the former committeeman, was coöperating 100 per cent.

Urges Present Day Attitude.

In his speeches Congressman Dewey has urged a present day outlook on world affairs rather than a raking over of old coals.

"Our job now is to win the war, bring the boys back home at the earliest moment, and see to it that they all have decent jobs at decent pay," he said. "There is no use harping on the days when President Roosevelt was saying the idea of a two ocean navy was just plain dumb.

"I am being attacked because I voted against the original lend-lease bill. I did not vote against it because it was lend-lease but because it gave the President what amounted to a blank check to draw unlimited funds. My desire was to have congress retain control of this spending; after all, congress is the protector of the people's money. I voted for all subsequent lend-lease extensions."

Finds Support in Labor.

Dewey said he had expected to see the PAC indorse his opponent, but that he did not feel the indorsement would hurt his chances with the rank and file of CIO men and women, who were opposed to the communist PAC leadership. His supporters scoffed at the Independent Voters of Illinois, which always becomes an adjunct to the Democrats, year after year, while it maintains the fiction of independence.

In the 10th, north of the 9th and taking in all of Lake county, the Republican incumbent, Ralph E. Church, has opened a vigorous campaign in which he defends his record as a voting congressman and attacks the "hidden foreign policies" of the Roosevelt regime. His opponent is Curtis D. MacDougall who is indorsed by the Hillman organization and the I. V. I. MacDougall is a Northwestern university professor.

Flays Hush Hush Policy.

Church asserted last week that New Deal censorship went much too far when it shut the people off from information on its policies abroad, and that this weakens and undermines the democratic ideal and is equal to suppression of freedom of speech.

"The American people need a government in which they can have confidence," he said. "If a lasting peace is to be obtained, it must be founded on public understanding and not simply imposed on the people. That was the idea of Woodrow Wilson—open covenants openly arrived at.

"Neither congress nor the people were told of American foreign policy before this war. Only after war started were the people given the facts about relations with Japan. It was too late then."

Hits Pre-War Aid to Japs.

Long before the outbreak of war, Church said, he and other congressmen tried to pass legislation to stop shipments of steel scrap and oil to the Japs, but this effort was defeated by the administration. Whatever the policy was then, he said, it was a tragic failure.

"We are today in ignorance of the scope of post-war commitments by the President," Church said. "What about Africa? What about Badoglio in Italy? We are in the dark as to our attitude toward De Gaulle and France. These are not military matters; they are political and economic. They bear upon the peace we will have after victory. The American people ought to know about these things.

Recalls Pearl Harbor Tragedy.

"The New Deal continues to cover up on Pearl Harbor after nearly three years. I have tried three times in congress to have the administration gather courage and honesty enough to make the facts public, but without success. The concealment policy is more in keeping with dictators' policies than with American principles."

Church said he favored constituting Palestine as a homeland for the Jewish people, that he had signed

Bolts of printed calico on the shelves, glass jars of lemon drops and peppermint sticks, and small Victorian greeting cards gay with roses and forget-me-nots also will give atmosphere. Instructing the priests and lay workers of his diocese to "carry on, but evade capture," Bishop Baddeley remained in his diocese during the Japanese conquest, managing to keep one island ahead of the invaders, and was known to hundreds of Americans who served in the Solomons theater.

Because new garments or shoes were unavailable, Bishop Baddeley said, a native accompanied him on his parish rounds to sew the soles on his shoes along the way. His diocese, extending over 2,000 miles, has been aided during the war by the Episcopal church's aid to British missions fund.

Will Abandon Part of Campus.

The recently announced navy policy of curtailing the officer training programs on college campuses thruout the nation will result in several program reductions at Northwestern university, President Franklyn B. Snyder has announced. Curtailment of the navy program will allow return of classrooms and housing facilities to regular student use, Snyder said.

The first step in the program has been to abandon the V-12 enlistment policy which will reduce the number of trainees with each graduation. On Nov. 1 the roster of 1,025 men will be cut to 850 in the V-12 division, and on Nov. 15 the naval radio operator's school, which numbers 1,000 men, will be cut to 500. This school, which has been housed in Lunt building and Swift hall, will be discontinued next Feb. 1.

Goodrich house grill, which has been the mess hall for V-12 trainees, will be vacated by the navy on Nov. 1. It then will be used as a students' dining hall.

With the departure of 500 members of the radio school on Nov. 15, the university will take over the upper floors of Lunt building for educational use. After Feb. 1, with the abandonment of the naval radio operator's school, the building will be returned to the university, with the exception of the basement which will serve as the mess hall for the V-12 unit.

R. O. T. C. to Keep Swift.

By Feb. 1 the navy V-12 program will be housed in Swift hall, which then will become the naval science building, not only for the duration but for post-war programs of the R. O. T. C. unit which will continue with an approximate enrollment of 300 men.

The naval radio operator's school was established at Northwestern in June, 1942. When it closes next February almost 5,000 men will have been graduated.

To date, the navy has not announced any changes for the naval midshipman's school in Abbott hall on Northwestern's Chicago campus. Since the midshipman's school was established in 1940, 15,500 men have been graduated as ensigns.

PAUL RANDOLPH FLAYS CHAOS OF TOO MANY LAWS

Promises to Fight for a Simpler Code.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

The multiplicity of state and national laws has resulted in confusion and misunderstanding, and the time for a change has arrived, Paul J. Randolph, one of two Republican nominees for the house of representatives in the 29th senatorial district, told north side audiences last week.

"When I get to Springfield I will do my utmost to make our laws and regulations and our system of government so simple that the average person can grasp them quickly and fully," Randolph pledged.

Sees Too Much Law, Red Tape.

"I have no pet scheme to cure the ills of mankind. Rather, I have a belief that we are suffering under too much law, too much red tape, confusion, misunderstanding, and regulation. Any one who knows all the laws that today surround our life could qualify as a Supreme court justice, president of 20 of our major universities, and sole author of the dictionary and encyclopedia rolled into one," said Randolph.

Samuel L. Workman, former assistant state finance director, is the other Republican house nominee in the 29th district. Democratic nominees are Rep. Edward P. O'Grady, who has been in the Illinois assembly since 1934, and Rep. Arthur J. Quinn, who is finishing his fifth term.

G. O. P. Optimistic in 31st.

In the 31st district, Republicans are confident they will capture the Illinois senate seat left vacant by the death of Sen. Milton D. Smith [D.]. Such a victory would mark the first time since 1930 that a Republican has represented the 31st district in the state senate.

Rep. Edward P. Saltiel, who is finishing his fifth term in the Illinois assembly, is the G. O. P. senate nominee.

Saltiel has told voters that his Democratic opponent, Albert L. Schwartz, is inexperienced in legislative matters. But Schwartz has countered with the reply that his nine years in the Chicago corporation counsel's office has made him cognizant of Illinois laws.

Has Sponsored Several Laws.

Saltiel, an attorney, was the author and sponsor of the law which requires medical examination for venereal disease before marriage.

"This law met with such popular acclaim and general satisfaction that 25 other states have followed Illinois in adopting similar legislation," Saltiel said. "It not only is effective insofar as it protects unborn children, but it has played a big part in bringing about the educational program which followed its passage."

Saltiel also was author and sponsor of the pre-natal examination law which almost entirely has prevented the birth of children with syphilis. This law has been adopted by many other states. Saltiel took charge in the house of the bill providing for care of the educable mentally handicapped children in Illinois.

Wants to End Cigaret Tax.

Schwartz captained the American swimming team in the 1932 Olympics, and was leader of Northwestern university's swim team from 1927 to 1930. His platform calls for cutting the sales tax in half, elimination of the cigaret tax, abolishment of overlapping taxing bodies, Constitutional reapportionment, and bonuses of at least $300 for Illinois service men and women in addition to the federal bonus.

State Sen. Ray Paddock, Republican senate nominee from the 8th district, is gathering in the last of the summer's produce on his 240 acre Round Lake farm, and is looking forward, he said, to harvesting a bumper crop of votes at the polls Nov. 7.

The 8th district includes Boone, Lake, and McHenry counties, which Sen. Paddock has represented in the upper house since 1928. Charles F. Hayes of Harvard, retired Chicago and North Western railway conductor, in his Democratic opponent.

TRAFFIC SCHOOL ON N. U. CAMPUS TO LAST 2 WEEKS

The Northwestern university traffic institute will hold its two week traffic officers' training school beginning tomorrow on the campus. Offered in coöperation with the safety division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the course is open to city, state, and county policemen and highway patrol officers.

The school consists of demonstrations, lectures, and group discussions on methods of dealing with traffic problems and accident investigation. Instruction is aimed at assisting officers in coping with the growing accident rate.

No entrance examinations or educational qualifications are required. On satisfactory completion of the course, officers will receive a certificate awarded on the basis of attendance and grades.

48 NORTH SHORE SCHOOLS TO GET SAFETY AWARDS

With a record of no fatalities in patroled zones last year, 48 public and parochial schools on the north side will receive certificates of merit at a safety rally Tuesday afternoon in the McPherson school, 4728 N. Wolcott av.

School principals, patrol sponsors, and patrol captains will accept the certificates from Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, who said the winners are particularly deserving because their duties were heavier than in pre-war years. School patrols had increased responsibility, he said, because fewer traffic policemen were available.

CONG. DEWEY'S BACKERS CLAIM FRAUD SCHEME

appeals to that end that he regretted the President had not used his influence with Britain to have the Balfour declaration of 1917 approved.

In one of his speeches, made in Highland Park, MacDougall said there was a possibility of a post-war revival of the Ku Klux Klan "unless we take our native crackpots seriously." He added that "the German propaganda machine" is trying to rouse racial, religious, and class hate in this country.

Church retorted to this: "The best chance for getting the Klan back rests with Hal Styles, Democratic candidate for congress in California, who has admitted being a former kleagle and, perhaps not incidentally, has the support of the PAC, just as the professor has it."

Douglas Plant Anticipates 2 Years' Full Production

The Douglas Aircraft Co., the nation's top producer of military aircraft, has the government's assurance of at least two more years of war work after the defeat of Germany.

It has a backlog of postwar commercial orders totaling more than $150,000,000.

Yet, despite these bright prospects, the huge Douglas plant near Park Ridge needs 4,000 more workers for peak capacity, and hundreds leave the plant in search of "permanent" employment at the news of each battle won by the United Nations.

Donald Douglas.

This problem was discussed last week by Donald W. Douglas, president of the company, and 35 of his Chicago division heads immediately after his return from New York where he signed contracts with three major airlines r the early delivery of 93 new h-speed, four-engined airliners.

glas Addresses Executives.

a dinner meeting in the water Beach Hotel, Douglas is executives:

"We all know that the airplane is here to stay, but I want Chicago to know that Douglas is here—in Chicago—to stay. But we cannot build these planes unless we have enough workers.

Big Transports Needed.

From other sources it was learned that the C-54 Skymaster type of cargo transport being produced here will be a military essential for several years, for these reasons:

1. Long range huge cargo air transports are and will be needed for operations in the Pacific, where they will provide a safe, rapid means of supply, transfer of fighting personnel, and the evacuation of the wounded.

2. With the bridges, railroads and roads of the European war theater almost totally destroyed, the armies of occupation will need this type of travel.

Douglas said he would appeal to Mayor Kelly and state and federal officials to help him

Start YOUR FUTURE..today in Aviation . . train for it now by coming to work at Douglas at once!

AFTER THE WAR, aviation will be one of the major industries in the Chicago area. Airlines, aircargo carriers, maintenance and operations shops, and aircraft plants will have good jobs for workers who are properly trained. Prepare for your career in aviation NOW by working in the Chicago plant of Douglas Aircraft Company. No "cutbacks" or "layoffs" in sight here. Douglas employes will work at full capacity building vitally needed military transport planes until Japan is defeated. Then they will build planes for the airlines on orders already booked this far ahead.

Good Pay... Convenient Transportation. Experienced or inexperienced... we train you so that you are bound to make good in fabricating, shop, assembly and installation work... what we term "beating on the airplane." As interesting work as you'll ever find.

If you want to serve your country, make good money, enjoy your job, and if you are not already employed in an essential industry, don't delay. Come to the WMC's U. S. Employment Service office at 5306 Lawrence Avenue. Or come to our own employment offices at 4070 Milwaukee Avenue, near Irving Park; 2717½ Milwaukee Avenue, near Logan Square; or to the plant employment office at Mannheim, Higgins and Devon.

A visit to the National Barn Dance last week, followed by the premiere of the Paramount movie bearing the same name and including Bob Benchley and the radio cast, left us with the conviction that the radio barn dance is a natural for television. The WLS show is filled with action and the players are all in colorful garb. It's an easy show to look at. Not all radio shows are. Incidentally, Pat Buttram makes out quite a case for himself as a comedian, in the picture.

Which Is Which, a variety show with a quiz angle, will make its bow over CBS at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday. Ken Murray will be master of ceremonies. The idea is to mix variety with a test involving guests and their vocal doubles. Guests will be Frank Morgan, Kate Smith, Basil Rathbone, and Ted Lewis.

Harold Lloyd, veteran comedian of the silent movie days, has signed for his first radio job. He will serve as host and director for the new Comedy Theater which will replace the Les Tremayne-Jack Gleason series on NBC at 9:30 Sunday nights, starting Oct. 29. Lloyd has been on the air only briefly before—once from Honolulu and once from London. First guests will be Claudette Colbert and Robert Young.

Harriet O'Rourke, Chicago Music Festival winner and well known thruout the west for her radio and concert appearances, will appear in the Singing Cinderella concert with John Baker, baritone, over W-G-N-Mutual at 8 tonight.

Arthur Murray, who has been known as a dance expert for decades, will introduce a dancing course via television on the Dumont station, WABD, in New York, starting Oct. 29. No, you will not be able to see-hear the show in Chicago.

WANTS TO VIEW CLARK TROLLEY OR ROBOT BOMB

In July, 1943, a ride on a Clark st. trolley was the chief desire of Staff Sgt. Robert Snider, 29, who at the time had been in England seven months with a troop carrier group. His latest wish is to see a robot bomb but so far he's been disappointed, Sgt. Snider wrote to his mother, Mrs. W. E. Snider, 430 Deming pl., to whom he told his wish for a street car ride. Here are excerpts from his recent letter:

"I just came back from London last night, a 48 hour pass. Had a room in Stanhope Gardens. I was on the fifth floor with a sweeping view north toward Hyde park so that when the alert came on at 7 a. m. yesterday I hopped out of bed and waited for something to see; then I went back to bed and dozed off.

Blast Feels "Terrific."

"I heard the robot coming, but by the time I got to the window it was just hitting; couldn't see it, but felt a terrific concussion, and having no clothes on, it gave the sensation of a warm draft on my skin. There was a great cloud of black smoke right after the thud and I gauged the hit to have been about a mile away.

"A few minutes later another one came and a terrific lot of smoke. But in neither case did I get to the window in time to see the plane itself. . . . For about 15 minutes afterward the air was filled with tiny particles of dirt and stuff; I had some London prints lying on a little table next my bed and they were covered by this sooty stuff.

"I walked over to the Hans Crescent club for a shave and breakfast and on the way I saw a peculiar sight—a house had been bombed, wrecking all five floors, roof, and front wall, leaving only the side walls attached to the adjoining houses.

Building Is Shambles.

"High up on one wall, part of which had been a bedroom closet, were a row of hooks on which were hanging a man's suit and several dresses. Beds, chairs, people, and everything but the dresses and suit on the hooks had been blasted down to the cellar. You still see a lot of broken glass and debris along many streets in the west end. . . .

"I came across another Britishism I want to remember; they pronounce it unex-PURR-gated, instead of the way we do, un-EX-purgated. Also, they refer to a 'bunk up' where we say a 'boost up,' as the other day when two little boys were trying to get over a fence and asked me to give them a 'bunk up.' A pullman kitchenet apartment is referred to as a 'self-contained suite.'"

Before entering the army in February, 1942, Sgt. Snider was a free lance writer, and had worked as a copy writer and reporter.

Yehudi Menuhin Is Philharmonic Soloist

PACIFIC VETERAN DISCOVERS WAR ONLY DOG'S LIFE

Returns from Battle Zone in Crate.

One of the three soldiers enlisting from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Isberner, 6200 N. Maplewood av., has returned home from the war. After two years in the South Pacific, Rex, a Dobermann-Pinscher, received honorable discharge.

Rex enlisted with the K-9s Oct. 2, 1942, the same week that his pal, Edward G. Isberner, now a corporal at San Louis Obispo, Cal., donned khaki.

Fred Also Overseas.

"Ed was my second son to enter service," said Mrs. Isberner. "My other son, Fred, is now in England with the air forces. He's a member of a ground crew . . . been overseas more than a year.

"When my husband mentioned Rex's going to war, I protested: 'Our dog, too?'" Mrs. Isberner continued. "Then my husband said, 'You had to give up your sons, you can give up the dog.' So Mr. Isberner took Rex off to register, and the next thing we knew he received his summons."

Rex Glad to Return.

Telling of the dog's return, Mrs. Isberner said, "Rex was coming home by railway express. My husband met the train, and the baggage master let him see Rex, who was in a crate. The dog recognized Mr. Isberner at once, so the agent let Rex out. When they left the station, tho cars were parked two deep, Rex led the way to our car. Two years hadn't dimmed his memory."

OTTO G. FIFIELD BLASTS REDS IN CONGRESS RACE

Seeks Indiana Seat in 1st District.

With a vigorous campaign directed against communism, and a demand for equitable union policies with maintenance of high wages, Otto G. Fifield, after a 14 year political vacation, is seeking election to congress in Lake county, Ind., the state's 1st congressional district.

Otto G. Fifield.

Fifield is opposing the Democratic incumbent, Ray Madden, whom he has accused of being a follow-the-leader politician with a New Deal record holding little appeal to the thinking voter.

Has Distinguished Record.

A veteran real estate man and farmer, Fifield can go back to the '20s to point to a record as an Indiana state legislator and as secretary of state under Gov. Harry Leslie.

The Republican nominee was named to the state assembly for the first time in 1918. He served two terms, during the second of which he was G. O. P. floor leader in the house. From 1924 to 1927 he served Lake county, his lifelong home, as treasurer. In 1928 he was elected secretary of state. He is a graduate of Purdue university.

Has 7 Point Platform.

Fifield is making his race on this seven point platform: [1] A fight against communism, which he says has taken over the Democratic party; [2] a call for jobs at good wages for returning war veterans; [3] opportunity and security for small business; [4] equitable union policies with continuing high wages as a means of keeping mills and factories open and preventing a post-war depression; [5] a remorseless slashing of government spending as soon as the war is over; [6] expansion of the public educational system, and [7] strengthening of the social security system.

In a recent address before the League of Women Voters in Gary, Fifield stressed the importance of a smooth working plan for reconversion as an antidote for depression. He called attention to the magnificent job of converting from peace time to war production in spite of New Deal hampering and said that "private industry can make prompt conversion again only if not interfered with by burocrats."

In addition to the regular G. O. P. organization, all daily newspapers in Lake county have indorsed the Crown Point nominee.

A recent contribution of $10,000 from Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., has brought the building fund to within $25,000 of its $250,000 goal and it is expected that the remaining amount will be raised in the next two weeks by private contributions. To the $250,000 raised in Harvey, the Y. M. C. A. of Chicago is adding $150,000 as a gift and loaning another $250,000 from its endowment funds.

PARKS OF SOUTH SIDE ANNOUNCE FALL PROGRAMS

Fight Rationing Thru Artcraft Units.

Designed to provide creation and physical development for war workers, their families, and others, fall and winter programs for 12 south side parks operated by the Chicago park district are getting under way this week.

Dances, dramatics, physical conditioning, and weight reducing groups, and games and sports are included on the programs. Also on the program are craft and artcraft groups designed to aid the rationing program thru the manufacture of items which otherwise would be difficult to obtain. At many parks, groups are being formed for repairing and reconditioning household articles, altering or making new clothes, millinery and costume jewelry.

Programs Still Tentative.

Because of the man power shortage many programs still are in a tentative stage and are subject to revision. However, such programs as have been announced are:

Bessemer—Boys' and men's gym periods, basketball and volleyball, business men's physical fitness period, and club meetings.

Grand Crossing—Tap and folk dancing, tumbling, volleyball, and gym periods for women and girls, and gym, volleyball, and basketball for men and boys.

List Other Parks.

Madden — Calisthenics, volleyball, and basketball, boys' and girls' glee club, contract bridge, commando tactics for 9 to 11 year old boys, wrestling, and dancing.

NEGROES HAIL STAND OF G.O.P. ON STATE JOBS

Flay New Deal Bias, Discrimination.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

What three Republican governors have done for the Negroes of America and the conduct, in contrast, of Democratic office holders, were discussed last week in speeches by William E. King, G. O. P. nominee for congress in the 1st Illinois district.

The governors are Thomas E. Dewey, John W. Bricker, and Dwight H. Green. King pointed to a 32 page, illustrated booklet published by the 1,088 colored employes of the state of Illinois and asserted it proved conclusively that northern Republicans—and not southern Democratic congressmen and senators—are the true friends of the Negro.

"Democrats give lip service to nondiscrimination but keep the poll tax in the south," King averred. "Gov. Green of Illinois has seen to it that the 400 Negro state employes in office when he was elected have been almost tripled. Under his administration 488 more colored civil service workers have been added to the state pay rolls.

Negro on Commerce Commission.

"One of the five members of the Illinois Commerce commission, which regulates all public utilities, is a Negro, Val. J. Washington. He is the only member of our race to hold a similar position anywhere in the United States [salary, $6,000]. I am myself a member of the state industrial commission.

"Negroes now are employed in every state department. There are four assistant attorneys general, a chemist, numerous statisticians, investigators, and inspectors; also, state parole officers who are Negroes. We now have more civil service appointees than all previous state administrations gave us.

"Gov. Dewey of New York and Gov. Bricker of Ohio are also our friends. The attitude of these three governors is sharply different from that of the President and of the Democratic governors who are left in office. Of the 2,900,000 federal civilian employes less than 1 per cent are Negroes—and Negroes are 10 per cent of the entire population."

Distribute 150,000 Copies.

The booklet referred to, of which 150,000 copies are being distributed, details what Gov. Dewey has done in his home state for Negroes. He appointed Francis E. Rivers to a judgeship of the New York city court, a $17,500 job. He made Noah A. C. Walter, Negro and CIO union official, a member of the state industrial board at $8,500 a year.

The secretary of New York's state department of labor, at $5,000, is a Negro woman, and so is an assistant district attorney at $6,000. Dewey has made numerous appointments of Negroes to posts paying $3,500 to $5,000. It is asserted that Franklin D. Roosevelt, as governor, appointed no Negroes to places worth more than $4,200 a year.

In Ohio, the booklet asserts, Gov. Bricker has appointed 1,134 Negroes to public office—five times as many as were appointed by the last Democratic administration in that state. The Bricker term also has seen legislation that granted a million dollars of state funds to the Negro university, Wilberforce.

Cites Misuse of Service Men.

A foreword to the booklet, written by Oscar De Priest, 3d ward alderman and former congressman, condemns the Democrats for discrimination. He also criticizes the army for keeping Negro troops at labor rather than in fighting units and "miscalling them engineers and quartermasters." He said that young colored women were ineligible to serve in the WAVES and SPARS, solely because of color.

Commending the three Republican governors, De Priest said that their records proved their "hatred of segregation and discrimination."

King's opponent for congress is the incumbent Democrat, William L. Dawson.

Downs for Small Business.

In another south side district, the 2d, Republican Nominee Thomas J. Downs has stressed in recent speeches the sad plight of small business under the present New Deal regime.

"More than a million businesses were closed in 1942 and 1943," Downs said. "Most of them were driven to the wall by burocratic regulations. These figures are not propaganda; they are taken from the report of a senate committee on small business, headed by a Democrat, Sen. Mead of New York. Of the businesses involved, 85 per cent employed not more than three workers each.

"During the war 70 per cent of all contracts have gone to 100 big corporations; the small business man was unable to cut into any share of this profitable business.

"Besides, the government itself has entered socialistic production that the small man cannot compete against. Between 1934 and 1939 total assets of all government corporations rose to more than 12 billion dollars, an increase of nearly 5 billions.

"We must have a new administration in Washington that will give small business at least an even chance against big business; only a Republican President and congress, working together, can do the job."

Downs is opposed for the congressional seat by William A. Rowan, choice of the Chicago Democratic machine and the incumbent. Rowan defeated Downs in 1942 by only about 3,500 votes of 216,000 cast.

HITS NEW DEAL TREATMENT OF NEGRO SOLDIERS

Martin Charges They Get Only Menial Jobs.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

"Negro hating New Dealers, who have consigned colored soldiers and sailors to the basest of menial jobs, should be swept into oblivion Nov. 7 by an avalanche of Negro votes," Dudley S. Martin, one of two Republican nominees for the Illinois house of representatives in the 3d senatorial district, asserted last week.

Martin's attack was particularly aimed at Secretary of War Stimson and Lt. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, whose reported utterances recently stirred Negroes thruout the nation.

"Petitions signed by thousands of Negroes call upon President Roosevelt to remove Gen. Somervell because of a reported slur by the general on a million Negro soldiers," Martin declared.

Send Wire to Roosevelt.

"The petitions were inspired by a story in the Chicago Defender in which Gen. Somervell, at a recent meeting called to discuss the problem of returning Negro soldiers, is reported to have said, 'I'd like to throw the coons into the middle of the desert.' Gen. Somervell was born in Arkansas."

Martin said a telegram to Roosevelt stated:

"We call for positive correction before Nov. 7, as election day will afford the Negro voters in the north their final protest of your administration's failure to guarantee equal rights in the military service and for civilians on the home front for which their sons fight and die on battlefields abroad."

Martin reviewed the disturbances which took place last August at Camp Claiborne, La., and demanded that an investigation into the underlying causes be made immediately.

Asks White House Answer.

"Why weren't the facts released so that the public could know what went on?" queried Martin. "Was it due to racial discrimination? These questions call for an answer from the White House now, and should not be allowed to kick around until after election day."

No right thinking person can accuse the Negro of not doing his full share in helping to win the war, Martin declared. As an example, he referred to a news dispatch from Rome, dated Sept. 2, which told how Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark visited a wounded Negro infantry man and awarded him a Purple Heart as the 92d infantry division, a Negro outfit, killed its first Germans and suffered its first battle casualties in the 5th army drive between Pisa and Florence.

"Dispatches tell how courageously Negroes have fought in other campaigns," said Martin. "On Sept. 15, American Negro troops faced heavy shell fire for six days at the Moselle river crossing near Metz.

Other Heroic Fighters.

"One of the officers, Lt. George R. Lamb of Dallas, Tex., said the troops deserved special credit since they actually had been trained for rear jobs and that this was the first time they had been used right up on the front lines," said Martin.

"This bears out the point that Negroes are fighting side by side with white troops in all theaters of war, and if they are willing to face the enemy then they deserve better treatment than they are now receiving," he said.

"Secretary Stimson has charged that many Negro army units have been unable to master modern weapons which has kept them from fighting," Martin declared. "The news records of Negro valor give the lie to Stimson's unjust accusations. It's time Negroes spoke out against such utterances. Their one weapon is the ballot on Nov. 7."

Employment Trebled by G. O. P. Head.

Almost three times as many Negroes are employed by the state under Gov. Green as were employed under any Democratic governor, a booklet recently published by Negro state workers discloses.

The illustrated paper points out that about 400 were serving the state when Green took office and that he has built the total to 1,088.

One of the state employes responsible for the publication is Val J. Washington, 4546 Vincennes av., former south side newspaper man. Washington was placed on the Illinois commerce commission by the governor.

George A. Blakey, 3630 S. Park way, is an assistant attorney general representing the state in the prosecution of occupational sales tax cases in Circuit and Superior courts. The Rev. James L. Horace, 632 Oakwood blvd., is a member of the Illinois war council and as chairman of the committee on war bonds must boost state-wide sales of bonds.

MARK TWAIN SOCIETY ELECTS SOUTH SIDER AS MEMBER OF GROUP

Newest Chicago member of the International Mark Twain society is Kathryn M. Johnson, 4509 Prairie av., who recently was notified that she has been selected for membership in the group which includes such dignitaries as Winston Churchill, George Bernard Shaw, Herbert Hoover, Carl Sandburg, and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek.

Kathryn Johnson.

Miss Johnson is not aware for which of her literary works she was honored, but believes it was for "Stealing a Nation," a pamphlet concerning the Negro race. Miss Johnson taught in public schools thruout the country for many years and served as a traveling public speaker for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. She served with the Y. M. C. A. in France 14 months during the last war.

The Mark Twain society is an honorary organization whose province is "to knit the world in a bond of cultured peace." At one time Mussolini was listed as honorary president and Haile Selassie as vice president.

S. SIDE CHURCH TO HEAR SOUTH PACIFIC BISHOP

The Rt. Rev. Walter Hubert Baddeley, Anglican bishop of Melanesia, whose diocese consists of the Solomon Islands, New Britain, New Ireland, and the Admiralty Islands, will speak at 8 p. m. Thursday, Nov. 2, in the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, 1420 E. 56th st.

The Rev. E. S. White, pastor, has invited members of all Episcopal churches in the south deanery to attend. Instructing the priests and lay workers to "carry on, but evade capture," Bishop Baddeley remained in his diocese during the Japanese conquest, managing to keep one island ahead of the invaders, and was known to hundreds of Americans in that theater of war.

The diocese, which extends over 2,000 miles, has been helped during the war by the Episcopal aid to British missions fund.

BUSINESS MEN BOOST DOWNS IN THORO DRIVE

BY LEWIS WILLIAMS.

Business men of the 2d congressional district, working with regular Republican ward organizations, are well advanced in their drive to send Thomas J. Downs to congress as a replacement for William A. Rowan. The business men charge Rowan is a rubber stamp for Mayor Kelly.

Reasonably enough one of the most active groups of business men is operating in the 10th ward which gave Rowan a majority of more than 8,000 in 1942 when he defeated Downs by approximately 3,500 votes in the district.

Steel Leader Heads Workers.

Under the direction of Harry Acker, Inland Steel executive, the ward is being combed by men in all walks of life in an effort to unearth all Republican voters. In their after hour jaunts around the precincts the business men also are trying to convince voters with Democratic leanings to split their ticket, and give Downs their congressional ballot.

The 2d district drive is one of five being carried on in Chicago by the business men's committee whose goal is to insure a Republican congress. As in the 2d, a close race is expected in the other four areas in which they are concentrating their efforts. They are diligently backing Rep. Fred Busbey in the 3d, William E. King in the 1st, Rep. Charles S. Dewey in the 9th, and Charles Garland in the 7th.

School Poll Watchers.

Fred M. Gillies, plant superintendent at Inland Steel, is directing the overall drive in the 2d and 3d districts. His call for volunteers weeks ago brought an excellent response but he reported that the committee's greatest need is still more workers. The business men's aid has been a boon to ward organizations whose ranks have been riddled by the draft.

Business men, new at the business of politics, are being schooled already to watch for chain voting, the short pencil, and trick counting. At a meeting of 10th ward workers last week Acker pointed out that fraudulent voting has stolen many elections in Chicago.

Calls Nov. 7 "Last Chance."

Acker told the workers that "if we carry Dewey we will carry the whole Republican ticket." He cautioned them that part of their job is to wake up the Republican precinct captains who, he said, have had little incentive to work during the lean years behind. Summing up the business men's reason for interest in the campaign Acker said, "If we don't change the administration in Washington this year, we may not have the chance in 1948."

Chester Harmon, president of the 10th ward Republican organization, and James Rowe, secretary, promised the business men full coöperation. Harmon told them they could elect Tom Downs thru their efforts and said there is a possibility that the ward, overwhelmingly Democratic in the last decade, will break about even on the whole ticket. Business men will attend a meeting of precinct captains Wednesday night in headquarters, 3649 E. 106th st.

In House to House Canvass.

Acker has assigned volunteers to each precinct in the ward for a door to door canvass to be completed before Nov. 7. One of the teams of workers, composed of Ross Clark and Alvin Blanford, has already covered its precinct. Two years ago it went 4 to 3 for Downs. They report a probable even break this year.

Another worker doing yeoman service in the 10th ward is G. B. Charnas, a general contractor. Charnas, who learned his business after coming here from Greece as a youth, has the job of contacting all Greek voters in the area.

A large organization of business men volunteers is operating in the north end of the 2d district under the direction of Frank P. Breckinridge, who is coördinating activity in the 3d, 4th, 5th, and 6th wards.

Women are playing an important part in Breckinridge's plans and a group under the leadership of Mrs. Herbert Riddle, 5626 Woodlawn av., has taken the responsibility for getting out a record Republican vote in the 5th ward area bounded by 55th and 59th sts., Cottage Grove av. and the Illinois Central tracks.

Women to Hold Tea.

In the 3d ward Beulah Brown, 5214 Indiana av., is directing the women's efforts. She is in charge of a tea to be held for Downs next Sunday in Royal Circle hall, 51st st. and Michigan av. Mrs. Effie Humphries-Hale, 417 E. 47th st., president of the Lincoln Woman's club, is in charge of women's work in the 4th ward.

A business men's committee meeting for Downs to be held Nov. 2 in Warwick hall, 543 E. 47th st., will climax the campaign in the north end of the 2d district. Frank Green, 4624 Vincennes av., is in charge of the massmeeting.

WATER CRISIS SWINGS VOTES TO TOM DOWNS

Pledges Fight for Health of South Side.

Widespread interest in the clean water plank of the congressional platform of Thomas J. Downs, Republican nominee in the 2d district, has disclosed a variety of methods by which housewives on the south side, especially mothers, are attempting to meet the hazards of pollution.

Downs' clean water appeal is based upon the charge that the present congressman is a creature of the Kelly machine and therefore dares not bring pressure upon the administration for priorities to complete the filtration plant started six years ago.

The water issue appears to have found a response among divergent groups and some political leaders have observed that Downs has struck political pay dirt in the sinks and bath tubs of the south side.

Uses Only Distilled Water.

An example of the south side water problem and how it is met can be cited in the case of the Martha Washington Home for Dependent Crippled Children, 4515 Drexel blvd. There the health of 35 children from 2 to 16 years is paramount. Mrs. Frank J. Heitman, 6835 Bennett av., president of the board of directors, said that distilled water is purchased for the younger children and water is boiled for the older ones.

Mrs. George M. Lewis, 6922 Jeffery av., estimated that she spends at least $24 a year for distilled water. Mrs. Douglas K. Huntress, 1011 E. 50th st., who has two children, 3 and 6, said that she uses city water only for cooking. Mrs. Leo S. Guthman, 4949 Ellis av., who has to safeguard the health of two children, 2 and 4, is another housewife and mother who has lauded Downs' clean water appeal.

Cites Fear of Epidemics.

Dr. Hugh Fox, 8047 Maryland av., community physician and member of the Grand Crossing-Chatham Chamber of Commerce and the Chatham Y. M. C. A., said the water is so bad at times that health authorities have to take all measures of precaution to keep an epidemic from breaking out.

Physicians constantly are stressing the importance of boiling all drinking water on the south side," he said.

John G. Henneberger, 9952 Avenue H, a welder and president of the United Steel Workers of America [CIO] at Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, has announced his support of Downs because he believes "health is paramount to winning the war."

Labor Leaders Back Downs.

"Concentrated on the south side are some of the nation's largest steel plants," he declared, "the majority of whose workers come from south side homes. We can't afford an epidemic from bad water."

Other south side labor leaders who have lauded Downs' clean water appeal include Charles Morris, 10100 Yates av., president of a south side American Federation of Labor local; William F. Marsh, 10718 Avenue F, president of the Calumet lodge, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and F. H. Seymour, 11141 Emerald av., a member of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America.

"Lake Pollution Greater."

Seymour said: "There are more people on the south side now and more lake pollution from lakeside industries. The people are tired of water that is too dirty even to take a bath in."

Joseph C. Brodzinski, 8000 Brandon av., a south side grocer, and his brother, Robert Brodzinski, 8452 Manistee av., recording secretary of the South Chicago local of the Butchers' union, each have four children and a personal interest in the health problem.

Joseph Brodzinski said: "It's time some one stopped the south side water problem from being kicked about. I'm interested in seeing an administration elected that can get the filtration plant completed."

Recalls Faucet Spouting Fish.

His brother, Robert Brodzinski, recalled having seen fish come up thru the faucets and told about the time he helped his mother wash the bathroom walls with water that left the walls streaked and covered with sand.

"Some south siders relieve the problem by carrying water from the 68th st. experimental pumping station," Charles C. Blish, 1903 E. 72d st., said. "But now with gasoline rationing and longer working hours people cannot get to the station so easily."

Puts Health Before Subway.

"The city hall machine should have been concerned about the health of its residents instead of material for the gopher hole," Capt. Dennis M. Malloy, 6720 Ridgeland av., president of the Chicago Retired Policemen's association, said referring to the subway.

South side business men who want to see the south side filtration plant completed at the earliest possible moment include Henry W. Smith, 10244 Avenue H, president of the East Side Chamber of Commerce, and Maj. Henry W. Lee, 2603 E. 77th st., who have worked with civic committees on many attempts to purify drinking water for south side homes.

Wins Support on Pure Water Plea

Our Children
ARE ENTITLED TO
WATER

The stand taken by Thomas J. Downs, Republican nominee for congress in the 2d district, to obtain pure water for the south side has won him the support of many groups and people, including housewives. Supporting the nominee are (left to right): Mrs. George M. Lewis, 6922 Jeffery av.; Mrs. Leo S. Guthman, 4949 Ellis av.; Mrs. Douglas K. Huntress, 1011 E. 50th st., and Mrs. Frank J. Heitman, 6835 Bennett av., president of the board of the Martha Washington Home for Dependent Crippled Children.

14 SOUTH SIDERS VOLUNTEER AS POLL WATCHERS

Civic Committee in Drive for 5,000.

Fourteen south side residents were among the first 200 to be recruited in a drive to enlist 5,000 nonpartisan volunteer poll watchers for election day, Nov. 7.

They were enlisted by the joint civic committee on elections in its drive to eliminate vote frauds at polling places. They will be given special courses of instruction in voting procedure and the detection of fraudulent ballot casting. Members of the Chicago Bar association will act as the instructors and the course will include a motion picture, "The Fight for Honest Ballots," depicting common vote frauds.

131,000 Registrants Ruled Out.

Organized as a nonpartisan volunteer group, the committee is composed of nine organizations reepresenting more than 30,000 members who are actively engaged in civic affairs. Guy E. Reed, president of the Chicago Crime commission, is chairman.

According to Reed, more than 131,000 names were stricken off the voters' registration list because of irregularities discovered by canvassers for the group during the 1940 election when 7,000 poll watchers volunteered. Because of the number of men and women in service, a shortage of available personnel exists now.

Name Early Volunteers.

The watchers signed are R. J. Benedict, 7749 Constance av.; Eleanor O. Chaffee, 7257 University av.; C. O. Decker, 6450 Kenwood av.; Mrs. A. E. Carver, 2509 E. 76th st.; Charles M. Hovey, 7131 Yates av.; M. A. Hubbard, 6733 East End av.; Paul Mauck, 8224 Ingleside av., and Beverly J. Perkins, 7418 Jeffery av.

St. Lawrence Women.

A Halloween masquerade party will be held by the St. Laurence Woman's club at 8 p. m. Tuesday at the club hall, 72d st. and Dorchester av. Mrs. Frank McCabe, 7517 Paxton av., is party chairman.

Negro Artists, Models Offer Revue Thursday.

The seventh annual artists and models ball, the Red, White, and Blue revue, will be held Thursday evening in the Savoy ballroom as a benefit for the South Side Community Art center, 3831 Michigan av.

The program will include ballet numbers starring Lester Goodman, who was in the cast of the first all-Negro production of "Aida," Florence Saunders, Rebecca Crowley, Nezelle Bradshaw, and Bobbe Foreman; a voodoo ritual dance featuring Frank Carter and William Reed and a finale in which the models will walk down a ramp among the guests.

Name Dance Directors.

Mrs. Franke Raye Singleton, 3638 Giles av., is chairman and Mrs. Pauline Kigh Reed, 5438 Michigan av., is chairman of the sponsoring committee. George Williams, 764 Oakwood blvd., is production chairman, assisted by Mrs. Brunnetta Mouzon, 4627 Wabash av., and Mrs. Francis Reese, 5638 Michigan av.

Dance directors include Goodman, Julian Swain, and Grant Wright. Costumes for the models have been designed by Elroy Parker, Foreman, and Ruth Jordan, and have been executed by Mrs. Nora Logan, 6627 Wabash av. [who is also making the costumes for the dance numbers]; Mrs. Ida Tavernier, 5041 Michigan av., and Mrs. Susie Lewis-Weston, 5435 Michigan av. Miss Alberta Knight, 3836 Giles av., designed the head gear for both groups.

Many Models to Appear.

Models who will appear on the program include Winnie Christie, Christine Martinez Smith, Lucille Santiago, Mary Anne Hall, Irene Bragsdale, and Ruth Logan. Artists who are working on the program are Cornelius Johnson, Leroy Winbush, Estelle Johnson, Margaret Goss, and William Carter.

AVIS LEE CARVES HER FUTURE OUT OF WOOD BLOCKS

BY MAURINE MYERS.

The only thing that worries Miss Avis Lee, 4733 Deming pl., is that "some day some one will insist that I get to work." For five year Miss Lee has been carving dolls for a living. Ten or 12 hours a day, six days a week, she sits in her bedroom-studio and turns out miniature Tom Sawyers, Huckleberry Finns, Topsies, and Tiny Tims. And she has so much fun doing it she feels a little guilty about the whole thing.

The 10-inch figures which come off Miss Lee's "production line" have won her quite a name among doll collectors all over the country. For special collections, she has made dolls of Lincoln as a boy, of Peter Stuyvesant with his silver banded wooden leg, of Stephen of Cloyes, and of Whistler's mother.

Pleasant and Profitable.

But the dolls currently marching off her carving table are the story book characters loved by children and adult collectors. Made for a collector's corner, some sell for as much as $25, which makes a pleasant vocation also profitable.

The doll business, for Miss Lee, began about five years ago. After she was graduated from Carl Schurz High school, she took a business course, and thereby presumably was fitted for a secretarial post. But she laughingly recalls that she "held" seven jobs during her first six day work week. She had started to do wood carving as a hobby, and her fingers always were cut and sore from the razors and knives she used. She couldn't get any speed out of a typewriter and had no great taste for her jobs.

Wraps Sketches with Parcels.

Then she turned to clerking. But she spent more time sketching customers on wrapping paper than she did in wrapping purchases. Finally came the decision she must keep the job and discard the hobby, or quit the job and make her living with the hobby. A window display of tiny figures inspired her to try carving dolls for collectors. The gift of a set of professional wood carving tools made the choice inevitable.

The first several years were pretty tough, she recalls. She hadn't perfected her methods, and production was a slow and tedious process. She felt lucky if her receipts reached $8 weekly.

Nowadays she can turn out a doll a day. "And they call me an artist," she laughs wryly as she sews up half a hundred tiny arms of muslin she has dyed flesh color. Most of the work, she points out, is routine. But still it's fun.

No Helpers Wanted:

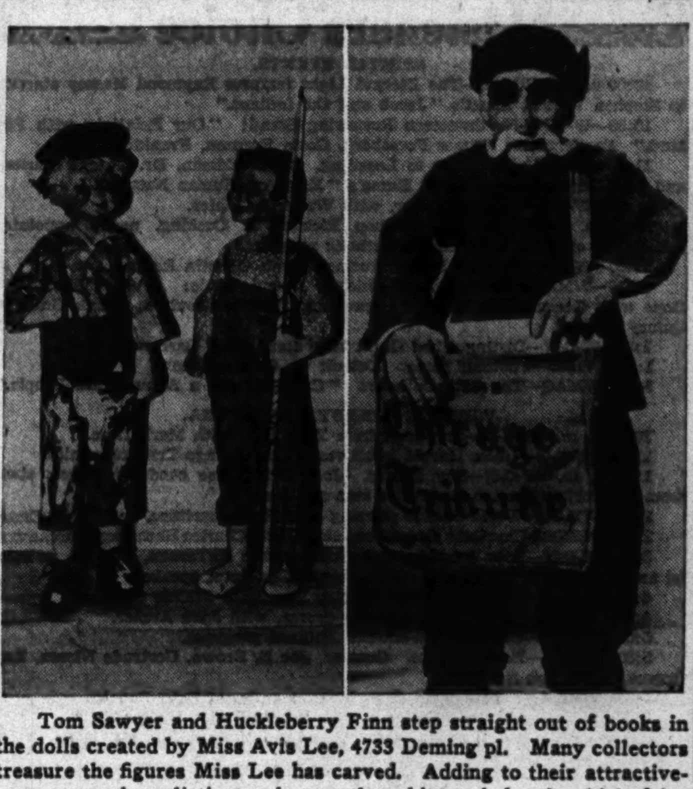
The shops are clamoring for more and still more of her little dolls, such as the tiny Mennonite couple, with the girl carrying a pot of red geraniums, and the boy, in his broad brimmed black hat, with a white hen tucked under his arm. "But I'm my own worst bottleneck," Miss Lee admits. "Some one else could sew up the arms, and stuff them and the bodies properly. Some one else could do the routine work of sewing arms on bodies, and roughing out the wooden blocks for the heads. That would leave me with only the final carving, and the custuming. But I can't bear to let any one else touch these youngsters."

Miss Lee's inspirations come from many sources. Clippings from magazines and newspapers, and sketches made in street cars and elevated trains cram a drawer in her studio. Currently she is making portrait dolls, working from snapshots of the child. For children's librarians, she makes story book characters come alive.

S. Side Church Will Hold Political Forum Tonight

Ald. Theron Merryman [R., 45th], Assistant Corporation Counsel Maurice Nathanson [D.], and Maynard C. Kreuger, University of Chicago economics professor and Vice Presidential nominee of the Socialist party in 1940, will be speakers at the forum meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the South Congregational church, 40th st. and Drexel blvd. A question period will follow the forum.

Dolls Bring Book Characters to Life



Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn step straight out of books in the dolls created by Miss Avis Lee, 4733 Deming pl. Many collectors treasure the figures Miss Lee has carved. Adding to their attractiveness are such realistic touches as the whitewash brush which drips down Tom Sawyer's trousers and onto his shoes, and Huck Finn's torn overalls, bandaged toe, and fishing pole. At the right (top) is another of Miss Lee's character dolls, a study of the news dealer who was a familiar figure in Garfield park for many years. This doll was patterned after quick sketches Miss Lee made of the dealer as she passed in the elevated train.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 23.

Now that the ground is crusting over with frost and the outdoor plants have entered into their annual resting period, the gardener may thing his garden activities have ceased. Such is not the case, for work may continue whenever the weather is suitable for one to be outdoors.

Tuesday, Oct. 24.

Unless weather conditions prevent it, the perennial borders still can be made or constructed, but if the soil is dry wait until later, even tho it must be carried over until spring. See that the space around late hardy lilies is covered to keep out frost. Some lily bulbs arrive very late and space must be prepared beforehand for planting in rich, unfrozen soil.

Wednesday, Oct. 25.

Clear all dead weeds in the garden to prevent existing seeds from falling and developing next season. Many already have fallen and the result will be more weed killing later on.

Kill all weeds to kill seeds. This applies also to the home yard. Kill the weeds that grow along alley fences. Feeding trees is important for most of them suffer from a lack of food. Tree food or fertilizer can be supplied now and mixtures are available at the large supply houses.

Thursday, Oct. 26.

Tulips can be planted as long as the ground is not frozen and bulbs are obtainable. Water should be drained from sprinkling systems and the hose and it is wise to move everything indoors for protection against winter weather.

Friday, Oct. 27.

Stone clips are recommended for protection for rock garden plants, for when placed carefully around each plant they prevent heaving and washing of the soil. Work them up close to each plant, but be careful not to cover the crowns. Pine needles also are excellent where they are available. Marsh hay will suffice.

For perennials try using corn stalks between the plants and cover with a few leaves or straw, the stalks will give plenty of air spaces and prevent smothering. Roses often are planted just before freezing weather, but usually the work is done in spring in the middle west.

Saturday, Oct. 28.

Keep flowering pot plants in good condition by keeping them as cool as possible, especially at night, and never allow them to suffer from lack of water. This applies especially to pot chrysanthemums at this time. Their pots are filled with roots and require examining each day. Do not bring the bulbous plants to the light until they are thoroly rooted, otherwise they will produce an abundance of leaves at the expense of flowers. This applies to the tulips and some narcissi.

Paperwhite and Chinese sacred lily are easily grown and furnish excellent bloom. Watch the house plants for insect pests and start spraying immediately if any are seen. Turn the plants once a week to prevent the foliage from turning toward the light.

HOUSE PAINTING IN AUTUMN HAS ITS ADVANTAGES

Sun Has Surfaces in Prime Shape.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There are many advantages to fall painting, as days are mostly bright and sunny without being too hot, and the temperature in the daylight hours is well above freezing and ideal for painting. Then, too, surfaces have become well dried out by the summer sun and are in prime shape to take paint and other protective and decorative finishes.

Insects are fewer in autumn and the annoyance of finding them in freshly applied paint is gone. Still another advantage is that in many instances shrubbery, except for the evergreen variety, will have dropped its leaves and it is easier to paint behind it. The same applies to vines.

Let Sun Dry Dew.

While all seasons of the year are favorable to interior painting, it is true that on bright autumn days plenty of ventilation is possible thru open doors and windows, and if there are objectionable odors, these are not hard to disperse by active ventilation.

Paint experts advise that before starting to paint it is wise usually to let the morning sun dry the dew or other moisture which can accumulate on an exterior surface during the night. If there has been a frost, let this melt and the moisture dry and the temperature rise to the proper degree for painting.

Clean Off Dried Paint.

In most cases, paint experts believe it is wise to avoid exterior painting when the temperature is under 50 degrees. If the day is cool one can start painting on the sunny side of the house and then follow the sun around the building.

The surface to be painted should always be swept or brushed and if old paint is cracked or scaly, a wire brush should be used and also a scraper or putty knift. Any metal downspouts, gutters, or other outside metal work should be scraped or sandpapered.

SCHOOL RADIO CONFERENCE IN CHICAGO 2 DAYS

Dr. Johnson and Bryson Are Chairmen.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Problems of educational broadcasting will be considered at the eighth annual School Broadcast conference to be held tomorrow and Tuesday at the Morrison hotel. Lyman Bryson, director of education for CBS, will be the permanent chairman, and Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, honorary chairman. Dr. Johnson will be the speaker at the conference banquet tomorrow evening when the annual awards of merit will be announced. Sterling Fisher of NBC will preside.

A visit to the National Barn Dance last week, followed by the premiere of the Paramount movie bearing the same name and including Bob Benchley and the radio cast, left us with the conviction that the radio barn dance is a natural for television. The WLS show is filled with action and the players are all in colorful garb. It's an easy show to look at. Not all radio shows are. Incidentally, Pat Buttram makes out quite a case for himself as a comedian, in the picture.

Which Is Which, a variety show with a quiz angle, will make its bow over CBS at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday. Ken Murray will be master of ceremonies. The idea is to mix variety with a test involving guests and their vocal doubles. Guests will be Frank Morgan, Kate Smith, Basil Rathbone, and Ted Lewis.

Harold Lloyd, veteran comedian of the silent movie days, has signed for his first radio job. He will serve as host and director for the new Comedy Theater which will replace the Les Tremayne-Jack Gleason series on NBC at 9:30 Sunday nights, starting Oct. 29. Lloyd has been on the air only briefly before—once from Honolulu and once from London. First guests will be Claudette Colbert and Robert Young.

Harriet O'Rourke, Chicago Music Festival winner and well known thruout the west for her radio and concert appearances, will appear in the Singing Cinderella concert with John Baker, baritone, over W-G-N-Mutual at 8 tonight.

Arthur Murray, who has been known as a dance expert for decades, will introduce a dancing course via television on the Dumont station, WABD, in New York, starting Oct. 29. No, you will not be able to see-hear the show in Chicago.

'Voice of Turtle' Stars Air Christmas Campaign

K. T. Stevens and Hugh Marlowe, featured in "The Voice of the Turtle," will be heard on Stella White's Best Jobs program over WAIT at 5:30 p. m. tomorrow. They will speak in behalf of the Christmas stocking drive for Bundles for America.

Ethel Barrymore Colt on Distinguished Guest Hour

Ethel Barrymore Colt, daughter of the famous Ethel Barrymore and a star of the theater and operatic stage herself, will make a guest appearance on the Distinguished Guest hour over W-G-N from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. today. She will tell of her experiences in the theater.

Play College Medley

A medley of college tunes will be featured by Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra on the Hour of Charm program over WMAQ-NBC at 9 o'clock tonight.

LISLE COUPLE PLAYS SANTA TO 77 YANKS

Each Package Fits a Foster Son.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Packing and preparing for shipment Christmas packages to their 77 boys overseas has provided an interesting activity for Mr. and Mrs. John Dvorak, Ogden av. and Blodgett rd., Lisle. Contents of the boxes vary, for the Dvoraks are in contant correspondence with the service men who have made their particular wants known.

The Dvoraks have no service flag in their window. They have no children of their own. During World War I. they adopted four children all of whom now are married.

There are boys who seem like sons to the Dvoraks. It was while they resided in Berwyn that Russell Swanson, a neighbor boy, won their affection by his offer to run errands for Mr. Dvorak. Russell grew up and went into the army. Correspondence with Russell and his letters from camp so delighted the Dvoraks that they began widening their circle of acquaintance with men in uniform.

Kept Informell by Letters.

Mr. Dvorak has been bedfast for three years, but his contact with so many of America's fighters keeps him closely in touch with the war. Entertainment of soliders and sailors at dinner has been a custom in the Dvorak home since the war began. Package sending also has been a year around program.

Natives of the near west side, the Dvoraks later moved to Berwyn, and for the last 15 years have resided in a home on a hill just off Ogden av. To the house, the mailman delivers an average of 15 letters a week which Mr. Dvorak has an opportunity to read and reread leisurely.

Special requests for articles not obtainable at the front have been encouraged by the middle aged couple. For instance, there was the boy in Burma who specified a pair of woolen socks to keep off the leeches. The socks went into his Christmas box.

Card Included with Gifts.

With each Christmas box, the Dvoraks have included an elaborate Chrismas card. Contents of the boxes have included razor blades, sardines, playing cards, fruit cake, glasses of cheese, and hard candy. Complying with requests has called for considerable shopping.

Mrs. Dvorak shared one of the letters from overseas with her visitor. It was full of peppy paragraphs dealing with army life and with words of appreciation. It ended with the sentence to Mr. Dvorak, "I know you will be up and around so that we can have that turkey dinner together when I get home."

"And I will get up," said Mr. Dvorak. "When that day comes that they are all back home I'll get up to greet them even if I have to be carried out of bed."

IRISH LIBERTY LEGION TO HOLD PARTY SATURDAY

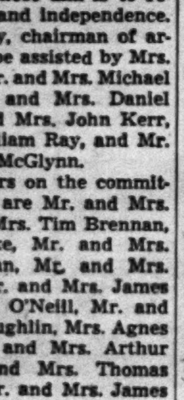
The Ulster Irish Liberty legion will celebrate its sixth anniversary with a Halloween party Saturday evening in McEnery's hall, 4039 Madison st. The legion is an organization composed of natives of Ulster, Ireland, whose aim is to restore Irish unity and independence.

Mrs. E. A. Riley, chairman of arrangements, will be assisted by Mrs. John McGinnis, Mr. and Mrs. Michael McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McKillop, Mr. and Mrs. John Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. William Ray, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGlynn.

Other west siders on the committee for the party are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gillespie, Mrs. Tim Brennan, Miss Eileen Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bresnahan, Mr. and Mrs. John Brennan, Mr. and Mrs. James Leary, Mrs. John O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McLaughlin, Mrs. Agnes McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McGinnis, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wetherall, and Mr. and Mrs. James Delargy.

MELANESIAN BISHOP TO GIVE LECTURE IN RIVER FOREST NOV. 5

The Rt. Rev. Walter Hubert Baddeley, Anglican bishop of Melanesia, whose diocese comprises the Solomons, New Britain, New Ireland, and the Admiralty Islands, will speak on the afternoon of Nov. 5 at Christ Episcopal church, River Forest.



Bishop Baddeley.

Bishop Baddeley, who remained in his diocese during the Japanese invasion, living "like a rabbit" while he kept one island ahead of his unwelcome visitors, was known for his cheerful philosophy by American soldiers and marines who served on Guadalcanal and Bougainville.

Among those who knew the bishop is Lt. Comdr. W. E. Sims, U. S. N. R., who commanded a destroyer based at Tulagi. Lt. Comdr. Sims is the son of William F. Sims, vestryman and lay reader of Christ Episcopal church, and Bishop Baddeley will be the guest of Mr. Sims during part of his visit in Chicago.

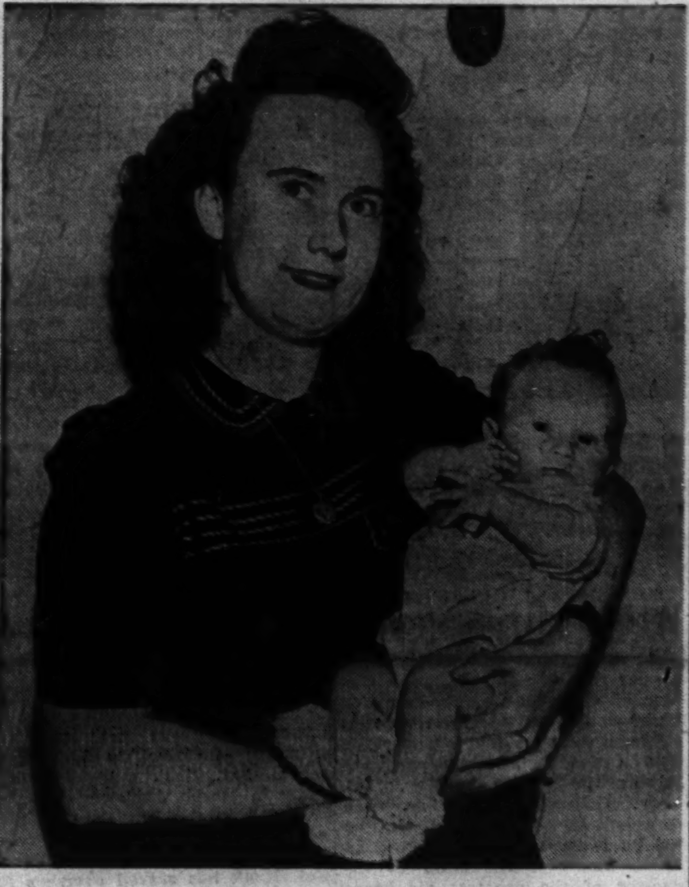
MRS. EDWARD J. FITZGERALD AND EDWARD JR.

MRS. JOHN WELCH AND LAWRENCE ARTHUR.

MRS. JOHN J. M'NALLEY AND JOHNNY.

MRS. MELVIN E. NOVAK AND BARBARA JANE.



MRS. RAYMOND J. FRICK AND RAYMOND JR.

MRS. ROY L. SLAMA AND LEE ROY.

These photos of wives and babies of service men will be sent overseas to men at fighting fronts who have never seen their babies. V-mail photos supplied by The Tribune have been sent to battle fronts thruout the world. [TRIBUNE Photos by Julius Gantter.]

MRS. RICHARD B. HEYDINGER AND RICHARD JR.

Proud Fathers Will Become Prouder When V-Mail Arrives

Pride in their offspring will take on greater proportions when fighting fathers of eight west side babies are introduced to the children thru V-mail photos furnished by the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE. The photos soon will be en route to battle fronts in every theater of war.

Richard B. Heydinger Jr., who is affectionately called Ricky, might be a singing person or a singing parson when he grows up as his father, Lt. Heydinger, is a chaplain in the navy and his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Heydinger, formerly was a singing teacher. Lt. Heydinger has been stationed in the Pacific area seven months. Ricky, born Aug. 2, is a chubby baby with brown hair, big blue eyes, and a bigger smile. He lives with his mother and grandmother, Mrs. Mary Kozelka, at 1829 S. 62d av., Cicero.

Johnny on His Way Up.

When the mail call is sounded in the Aleutians, Chief Warrant Officer John J. McNalley will find a picture of his namesake born Feb. 26, who has been nicknamed, Johnny. Johnny is 28 inches tall and weighs 21 pounds, which makes his mother believe he will be a big man like his father. His eyes are rapidly changing to brown like those of his mother, Mrs. Helen McNalley of 259 Prospect av., Elmhurst, and he has six teeth. McNalley has been overseas since July, 1943.

A picture of his son should cheer Pvt. Raymond J. Frick who is convalescing in an army hospital overseas from wounds he incurred in France. According to the baby's mother, Mrs. Ellen Frick of 2610 Marwood st., River Grove, Raymond Jr., who has brown hair, blue eyes and a small nose, looks exactly like his father. Ray was born July 21 and Pvt. Frick has been stationed overseas for six months.

Both Arrive Same Day.

Pvt. Melvin E. Novak, on duty with the air transport command in New Caledonia, arrived overseas March 5, the day his daughter, Barbara Jane, was born. Bobbie, as her Dad calls her, is a sunny tot with blue eyes and an abundance of dark brown hair. Her mother, Mrs. Evelyn Novak of 3334 Elm av., Brookfield, says that Bobbie is the image, miniature size, of Pvt. Novak.

Lt. Otto F. Zajeck, stationed in New Guinea since May, soon will have his greatest desire fulfilled when he sees his son, Otto Jr., to whom he has written a daily letter since the baby's birth Aug. 3. Junior has blue eyes, a little dark hair and a forehead and small face like his father's. Otto lives with his mother, Mrs. Ruth Zajecek at 2730 S. 58th ct., Cicero.

"Only Baby"—to One Man.

His contention that his baby is the "only baby in the world" will have more truth than ever to Edward J. Fitzgerald, petty officer on duty in the Mediterranean, when he sees the photo of his son, Edward Jr., born Jan. 19. Edward, who smiles like his daddy, has blond hair, blue eyes and infectious manners. The baby's mother, Mrs. Frances Fitzgerald, who is residing with her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Fitzgerald, 220 N. Lombard av., Oak Park, thinks that her son must have a feeling that his dad is in the navy, for the only toy he likes is one of a sailor.

Lawrence Arthur Welch, born March 11, is the answer to his father's prayers. Lt. John C. Welch, who has been stationed in the Pacific since July, 1943, wanted a son and now he has one who resembles him. Larry has blue eyes, sandy blond hair and is rather tall. According to his mother, Mrs. Ella Welch, who lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Hlavacek, 247 Lawton rd., Riverside, Larry also resembles his 25 month old sister, Georgia Ann.

Lt. Roy L. Slama had two reasons to celebrate April 5, for it was the third anniversary of his wedding and the birthday of his son, Lee Roy. Lt. Slama, stationed in the European theater since last February, will note a combination of his wife's features and his own when he sees his son for the first time. Lee has dimples, facial expressions, and a mouth like his father's, and a nose and brown eyes like his mother's. He lives with his mother, Mrs. Arline Slama, and his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Slama, at 2401 S. Home av., Berwyn.

Harrison High to Launch Bond Sale on Halloween

Halloween day has been chosen by the war bond committee at Harrison Technical High school to announce the school's pre-sixth war loan drive. Six girls, dressed in Halloween costumes, stationed in a war bond booth will launch the drive to sell $57,570 worth of bonds by Dec. 20—enough to purchase a medium tank as Harrison's gift to the army. Chairman is Irene Kaminski, 2861 22d pl. She will be assisted by Leonore Levi, 1615 S. Hamlin av.; Josephine Nazzo, 2929 Arthington st.; Dorothy Matusz, 2863 21st pl., and Emily Filips, 2322 S. California av.

Dance at Westmont to Benefit Service Men

A dance, sponsored by the Liberty Park Service Men's Homefolks' association, will be held at 8 p. m. Saturday in the American Legion hall, Westmont. Proceeds will be used to support the organization's program of sending packages, letters, and a community newspaper to service men from Liberty Park, Westmont, Downers Grove, and surrounding unincorporated areas.

PAC INCREASES TEMPO IN FIGHT WITH GARLAND

Uczciwek Is Target of Reds, Too.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Republican nominees for congress on the west and northwest sides reported last week that they were encountering speedup tactics by the CIO political action committee and what they termed its satellite organizations, all of which have nonpartisan names but support none but Democratic candidates.

This form of opposition was described as particularly strong in the huge 7th district, where Charles H. Garland is the G. O. P. nominee, and in the 8th, where John F. Uczciwek is conducting a blistering campaign against Thomas S. Gordon, the Democratic incumbent. In the 7th several new and elaborate offices have been opened by PAC, which has been circulating literature and canvassing voters, in many instances without consulting the regular Democratic ward and precinct workers.

PAC Steps Up Pace.

Supporters of Garland and Uczciwek asserted that the Communist dominated PAC was intensifying its drive in the hope of offsetting a marked switch of votes to the Republicans in Polish-American sections. There has been much dissatisfaction in these sections over the apparent surrender of Poland, by England and America, to the Russian dictator Stalin.

The G. O. P. candidates have been outspoken against the Polish policy of the administration and against the silence of their opponents, both of Polish ancestry, "because the city hall won't let them say a word against Roosevelt." Garland has come out for a free, strong, and intact Poland and has challenged his opponent, William W. Link, to state his views on the subject.

Poll Confirms Fears.

Uczciwek has claimed that the Kelly machine is "scared."

"Three weeks ago I began giving the people of my district the truth about Poland," he said. "Then Gov. Dewey in New York attacked the President's silence about the Polish-Russian deal. That is what frightened the local machine, which handpicked Gordon.

"I am informed reliably that, in the hope of bolstering its own morale, the machine took some straw votes in Polish sections and got cold comfort—it was found that 10 per cent of the Polish-American vote out this way had moved over to the Republican, which is the honest, side, and that it was getting worse daily for the machine.

President Finally Sees Poles.

"Alarmed, the machine communicated with Washington and a day or two later leaders of the Polish-American National congress were invited by wire to meet Mr. Roosevelt in the White House. Quite a change, as he had previously refused to see them. The officers were salved, but they did not obtain any satisfaction on the question. What I said still holds; only a Republican President and congress can be trusted to get Poland justice."

Garland said that he had assurances of the support of many Polish-Americans who were Democrats.

"My voice will always be raised to urge justice for racial and religious minorities," he asserted. "But who has heard my opponent say a word in favor of the land of his fathers?"

Airport Plan Hailed.

Garland said that there had been a large and enthusiastic response to his pledge to work to keep the big Douglas airport near Park Ridge for civilian use after the war. This port, he said, is the best in the suburban area and could be expanded to any limits necessary at low cost.

His comment on the activities of PAC was: "These people are trying to beat me for being what I am—a business man who will take care of the interests of the 7th district and the whole United States. I am against regimentation. I am against wild public spending. I am against communism in any guise or disguise.

Speaks Up for Unions.

"I am for union labor, justice to the small business man [who must be allowed to compete with big business] and a sound, nonpersonal foreign policy as expounded by the Republican platform and Gov. Dewey.

"My record is clear as a business man, as mayor of Des Plaines, as a candidate, and as an individual who loves the American way of life. I am confident that the people will not be swayed by the smear charges made against me by pretended patriots."

Kozicki Hits OPA Tangle.

Another Republican nominee who expects to gain heavily by the Polish-American vote switch is Leo J. Kozicki of the 4th district, who has attacked the "Roosevelt deal" on Poland. He is also campaigning against regimentation and maladministration of the OPA in his territory. His opponent is Martin Gorski, incumbent who owes his advancement to the city hall and unswerving subservience to the New Deal.

Two west side districts appear safe, with possibly some loss in pluralities for the Democrats. In the tiny 5th Adolph J. Sabath is the Democratic incumbent running against Max Price, Republican. Harry G. Green is making the race as a writein candidate. In the 6th the Democratic nominee is Thomas J. O'Brien, former sheriff. He is opposed by the Republican nominee, Charles J. Anderson Jr., and an independent, Iva J. Henderson.

Y'S NEXT OF KIN CLUBS LIGHTEN WAR'S WORRIES

Bring News of Enemies' Prison Camps.

Two Next of Kin clubs have been established on the west side by relatives of American prisoners of war. The clubs were planned by the Young Men's Christian association to bring comfort, aid, and a continuous and permanent source of information about the camps to the families of war prisoners. They have been organized in various neighborhoods thruout Chicago with each neighborhood Y. M. C. A. inaugurating a personal counseling and information service.

The west side clubs which have held preliminary meetings for organization are at the Sears Roebuck Y. M. C. A., 3210 Arthington st., and at the Austin Y. M. C. A., 501 N. Central av. The Sears Roebuck Y. M. C. A. will hold another meeting Tuesday evening at which Alvin J. Steinkopf, news analyst, will be guest speaker.

Austin Meeting Friday.

The next Austin meeting will take place Friday evening with Dr. Rudolph Malek, pastor of the Chandler Methodist Evangelical church, as guest speaker. Dr. Malek was a chaplain in German prison camps during the World War I. and has been a missionary in Japan.

The Y. M. C. A. has direct contact with prison camps under international authorization and with the financial aid of the national war fund. International Y. M. C. A. secretaries are permitted to visit camps at regular intervals. They interview camp commanders and prisoners to determine the facilities available and the further needs for athletic and recreational programs. They arrange for better programs by the distribution of books, supplies, and other materials.

Barred from Jap Camps.

Due to the noncoöperation of the Japanese, regardless of a written permission to enter camps in the Philippines, the Y. M. C. A. has not succeeded in entering the Asiatic theater camps as it did the German camps. Information in the Asiatic theater must be handled thru a neutral party and therefore the Swedish consul has acted as intermediary for the group.

Harriet Hester, staff director of the Y. M. C. A. Next of Kin program, has arranged for card index lists of war prisoners' relatives who receive invitations to meetings. At the preliminary meetings clubs are formed and at later meetings speakers familiar with prison camp conditions address the groups.

Members Exchange News Facts.

At each meeting members exchange information which enable them to form a fairly complete picture of life in the camps. Often prisoners write home of buddies in the same camp which enables families who have not had previous word of their sons to know where they are.

Preparing gift packages for shipment to prisoners is another feature of the club. Relatives are encouraged to use package labels supplied every 60 days by the army provost marshal's office.

Vitamins, Sweaters Desired.

A box to a prisoner must not be over 18 inches in length and the weight should not exceed 11 pounds. However, the ideal sized box is 14 inches by 7 inches and these may be obtained free from the Red Cross. No printed material is allowed in the packages which bars labels on items. Thru letters from their sons, members have learned that vitamins are needed to supplement rations. Sleeveless sweaters also are welcome.

The counseling service gives special help to relatives of men missing in action. Y leaders attempt to give such families knowledge of international laws and provisions in an effort to provide encouragement. The service has procured and coordinated all available data from far east prison camp areas, including letters and reports from the International Red Cross and Y. M. C. A., which members may study.

Next of Kin clubs soon will be established in every Y. M. C. A. district.

Army Hospital Seeks Civilians for Nurse Duty

An appeal for civilian nurses to supplement the hospital staff is being made by Brig. Gen. P. J. Carroll, commanding officer of the army's Vaughan General hospital, Hines. Most of the army nurses, it is explained, already are overseas and others are scheduled to leave soon. At least 50 civilian nurses are needed to help army nurses care for the hospitalized.

In addition to the nurses, there is a shortage of other civilian help at the hospital. Gen. Carroll said plans have been devised to hire part time workers as well as full time employes. He expressed the belief that housewives and others who could work four or five hours daily would be willing to take part time jobs.

Needed immediately are women mess attendants, men ward attendants, janitors, pay roll clerks, clerk-stenographers, boiler firemen, laboratory technicians, laborers, a gardener, associate mechanical engineer, associate architectural engineer, storekeeper, loaders and pullers for laundry, orthopedic mechanics, and press operators for the dry cleaning plant.

OUR TOWN

IN THEIR bulletins to members of their organizations, William C. [Bill] Maas of the Cicero Rotary club and W. H. Funston, adjutant of La Grange post of the American Legion, usually throw in an adage for good measure. In his latest news letter to the Rotarians, Bill closed with the line: "Politicians plan for future campaigns; statesmen plan for future generations." Funston's final fling was: "When we see where to get off, that's where we can begin to get on." Don't know where the boys get their pithy sayings, but somehow they seem to sink in more effectively than if they came from expected sources.

Wonder what could be added to the repertoire of high school cheer leaders! Glenbard High school's student publication takes its exponents of the art to task with the assertion that they "definitely belong to the pre-Civil war or 'Out-of-Granny's' snuff box vintage," and adds: "They may be quaint, but they're far from cheering." Perhaps there should be cheer leaders to cheer the cheer leaders.

Lauds Dewey Frankness in Freedom Stand.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

Roosevelt belatedly says he wants a strong Poland—"just like Joe Stalin"—Daniel A. Roberts, Republican candidate for the house of representatives in the 23d senatorial district, last week told an audience in the hall at 1277 Milwaukee av.

Roberts declared that Roosevelt's "cynical parrying of the people's demands for some return on the expenditures of American blood and treasure is in shocking contrast with the forthright stand of Tom Dewey."

Laud Dewey's Stand.

The Republican Presidential candidate's insistence that Poland be given a square deal has swung thousands of Polish-American voters over to the Dewey-Bricker ticket, Roberts said. He declared Polish leaders thruout the nation have lauded Dewey's denunciation of "the secrecy of current diplomatic negotiations which attempt to determine the future status of Poland."

"O, yes, Roosevelt will probably echo Dictator Stalin's pledge about a strong Poland 'again and again and again,'" Roberts said. "But tragic experience has sharpened the wits of voters so that they will still discount his assurance.

Delegation Gets Runaround.

"A delegation headed by Charles Rozmarek of Chicago, president of the Polish-American congress, called on Roosevelt and retired amid a barrage of weasel words intended to say everything and still say nothing.

"Rozmarek had informed Roosevelt that delegates were anxious to know if he was prepared to insist upon and to defend the just principles of Poland's independence and territorial integrity without which the Polish nation could not remain self-supporting and would become dependent on Russia," Roberts said.

"Roosevelt replied that there should be no question but that Poland must be reconstituted as a great nation. He then stated that he did not know all that was going on inside Poland and that no one in the United States had accurate information on what was transpiring.

Churchill, Stalin Hold Out?

"Yet, it is a known fact that at the time he spoke, Churchill and Stalin were discussing this very question. It has been stated on good authority that Roosevelt is in constant touch with Poland happenings. Were these not weasel words, or did Roosevelt cloud the issue so that he would not be compelled to answer what he and his administration will do toward preserving Poland?

"Poland is at the cross roads and every person of Polish descent has a right to complain against such secrecy. They have a right to ask whether Poland will be sold down the river. Unless protection is afforded, the present war will be an entirely fruitless errand," Roberts concluded.

Day Hits Democratic Monopoly.

Joseph D. Day, Republican candidate for state representative in the 27th senatorial district, charged last week that the present campaign of his three Democratic opponents, is an attempt to establish one party rule in America.

"The framers of our state constitution insisted that minority parties be represented in the assembly," said Day. "Yet the Democratic politicians, in their lust for power in the 27th district, are attempting to deprive the district's present Republican minority of a representative. They are after all three house seats," said Day.

Sees Change in November.

The 27th district long has been a Democratic stronghold, but until 1942, Republicans succeeded in getting a representative in the legislature, usually thru bipartisan agreement. Two years ago, however, the Democrats nominated and elected three candidates.

The Democratic trio includes A. L. Auth, who has served eight terms; Rep. John Kuklinski, who has served three terms, and Rep. Anthony C. Prusinski, now finishing his first term.

Seeks to Enter Halls of Congress.

First in Dairy Business.

He was born on Chicago's southwest side, the cradle of many first and second generation Americans. He has seen foreign born families settle, establish homes, and become prosperous. Here he has learned first hand the meaning of Americanism which he aspires to represent in congress.

He launched his business career 15 years ago in a small dairy business left to the family in Bridgeport community at the time of his father's death. Later he set up a printing shop, then branched into real estate and insurance, eventually selling the printing shop. His new, larger business office attests his business ability.

Son Has Own Orchestra.

Son Leon, musical scholarship student at Holy Trinity High school, has claimed the basement of the Kozicki residence as headquarters for his six piece orchestra. The organization plays at least once a week at community entertainments and has appeared on programs in the state and in Michigan and Minnesota.

The candidate's daughter is a sxth grader at SS. Peter and Paul school, 37th pl. and Paulina st. Dancing lessons are a big interest in Rita's life.

Long Interested in Boy Scouts.

Kozicki's Boy Scout days have interested him in teaching boys, particularly those whose only playgrounds are the streets. As a troop committeeman he reviews the progress of 85 Scouts and nine troops at McKinley park. Years ago he served as a Scout master and organized the first all Chinese troop in the city.

His Boy Scout training made Kozicki a useful OCD worker when home defense was first organized. He was appointed OCD training chairman at McKinley park and organized classes and trained instructors in first aid and home care.

CHAUNCEY REED HITS BUROCRACY AT EVERY TURN

Republican Congressman Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago, candidate for reëlection in the 11th district, has gained renown in 10 years of service in Washington as a foe of burocracy, which he recognizes as one of the greatest dangers to traditional American government.

"I have steadfastly opposed the delegation of additional powers to the executive branch and to burocracy," he said in a recent speech. "Federal burocrats are the breeders of government by directive, of the subordination of the people's elected representatives, and of the concentration of power in the hands of the few from whose decisions there is no appeal.

Hits Grade Labeling.

"Whether this is a revised brand of communism, socialism, or fascism, it is distinctly not Americanism. I have steadily been against the New Deal attempts to saddle socialized medicine and grade labeling on the public. Mothers should be permitted to choose for their own children the physician they want. Housewives must have the right to purchase groceries, if they like, by trade names familiar to them."

Reed is a veteran of the first World war and was the first commander of the Naperville post of the American Legion. He has been twice elected a national officer of the Legion's fun making organization, 40 and 8.

State's Attorney 14 Years.

For 14 years before his election to congress Reed was state's attorney of Du Page county, and in that capacity prosecuted a number of widely publicized criminal cases, including the daylight robbery and attempted murder of Arthur Cutten, millionaire broker. All of the bandit gang involved were sent to prison for long terms. He obtained murder verdicts against two killers, who were executed.

While state's attorney he was chosen twice as president of the State's Attorneys' Association of Illinois.

On Veterans' Committee.

Committees on which Reed has served in the house of representatives include those on World war veterans, the District of Columbia, coinage, and weights and measures. Of the last named he is ranking Republican member. He is also on the powerful judiciary committee.

The 11th district, which takes in McHenry, Kane, Du Page, and Will counties, is regarded as safely Republican and has never elected a Democratic congressman. However, Reed is not depending on his majority of 57,661 in 1942 to carry him over. He is campaigning actively against his Democratic opponent, Otto Joseph Hruby Jr.

Reed Known as Foe of Burocracy

Congressman Chauncey W. Reed is the Republican nominee for re-election in the 11th district which includes Will, Du Page, Kane, and McHenry counties.

COUPLE DRIVES TO WEDDING IN ONE HOSS SHAY

Gas Rationing Not Cause; It Happened in '94.

When Alice Holland and P. Grant Adland were married on an October day in 1894, Austin, where they resided, was a country suburb. They were driven in a carriage to the Lamon Methodist church where Dr. Milton B. Williams performed the ceremony. The marriage certificate was decorated with bells and lilies, and there was a separate scroll for each phrase of the ritual that ended with "to love and to cherish 'til death us do part."

P. Grant Adland.

Mrs. Adland.

After their marriage the couple moved to a new west side neighborhood and attended the Sacramento Methodist church. When their daughter, Lucile, was born they purchased a home near the Austin Methodist church and joined that congregation. Later the Adlands moved to Oak Park and joined the Oak Park First Methodist church. They attended the Oak Park church even after taking up their residence at 4535 S. Arthur av., in Congress Park, 16 years ago. Came gasoline rationing, and now the Adlands take an active part in the Congress Park Community church.

Three Hundred Attend.

More than 300 guests attended the recent golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Adland at the Oak Park Arms hotel. Present were old friends from various west side neighborhoods. Plans for the anniversary were made by Miss Lucile Adland, who holds a secretarial position.

Mr. Adland, 78, came to Austin as a young man from North Cape, Wis., with his parents, who were members of the Knud Adland family which played an important part in the settling of the North Cape community. Mr. Adland is the last survivor of a family of six sons and two daughters. For many years he was an official in a wholesale grocery firm and later worked for the government.

Comes to Austin at 9.

Mrs. Adland, 69, came with her parents to Austin when she was 9 years old. Her father and his two brothers married three sisters. When she was 17 Mrs. Adland was invited to a birthday party given by one of her aunts. It was known that Mr. Adland would be among the guests, and the girl was teased about her prospective beau. Courtship days included several visits to the Chicago World's Fair of 1893.

A wedding present in the Congress Park home is a mantle clock which the Adlands declare has not missed a minute in all the 50 years.

Betrothed

DU PAGE COUNTY MILKWEED PODS ARE OFF TO WAR

In patriotically responding to the appeal to collect milkweed pods, boys and girls of Du Page county have surpassed expectations, according to Michael F. Lies, chairman of the war board of the county. Mr. Lies said the harvest when completed this fall would probably provide 2,200 bags of the pods or enough to make 1,100 life jackets for service men.

Asked last spring by the state department of agriculture to aid in the nation-wide milkweed pod search, Mr. Lies contacted Lewis V. Morgan, county superintendent of schools, who, in turn, explained the program to the school children. Youngsters from the age of 7 upward have joined eagerly in the hunt, and no group has returned empty handed.

Packed in Onion Sacks.

The pods are picked green and put in onion sacks for later shipment to Petoskey, Mich. Each filled bag contains about 800 pods which, when dry, produce about five pounds of the sought-for material. When the pods crack and the floss begins to fly, harvest time is over.

The milkweed floss is said to be of a quality 100 per cent as good as that of kapok, which previously was imported from the orient.

Mr. Lies said none of the Du Page county youngsters residing near the open fields had been obliged to journey far in finding a milkweed patch. Altho milkweed grows on high ground, most frequently it is found in the lowlands where the seed has settled after being blown about.

Full Coöperation Extended.

At first, the public was curious about the groups of gleaners, but, when the program was explained, whole-hearted coöperation was extended. For the young hunters, there has been plenty of excitement in coming across prize patches of the weed.

Schools have allowed half a day for the pod picking. In addition the boys and girls have gone out after school hours and on Saturdays.

Two 4-H club groups in Villa Park have been particularly active in the project. The Flashing Needles, led by Mrs. Robert A. Adams, and the Wisconsin Avenue Cultivators, led by Mrs. Norman Lange, has picked 167 bags of the floss now being stored in the village.

SCHOOL RADIO CONFERENCE IN CHICAGO 2 DAYS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Problems of educational broadcasting will be considered at the eighth annual School Broadcast conference to be held tomorrow and Tuesday at the Morrison hotel. Lyman Bryson, director of education for CBS, will be the permanent chairman, and Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, honorary chairman. Dr. Johnson will be the speaker at the conference banquet tomorrow evening when the annul awards of merit will be announced. Sterling Fisher of NBC will preside.

A visit to the National Barn Dance last week, followed by the premiere of the Paramount movie bearing the same name and including Bob Benchley and the radio cast, left us with the conviction that the radio barn dance is a natural for television. The WLS show is filled with action and the players are all in colorful garb. It's an easy show to look at. Not all radio shows are. Incidentally, Pat Buttram makes out quite a case for himself as a comedian, in the picture.

Which Is Which, a variety show with a quiz angle, will make its bow over CBS at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday. Ken Murray will be master of ceremonies. The idea is to mix variety with a test involving guests and their vocal doubles. Guests will be Frank Morgan, Kate Smith, Basil Rathbone, and Ted Lewis.

Harold Lloyd, veteran comedian of the silent movie days, has signed for his first radio job. He will serve as host and director for the new Comedy Theater which will replace the Les Tremayne-Jack Gleason series on NBC at 9:30 Sunday nights, starting Oct. 29. Lloyd has been on the air only briefly before—once from Honolulu and once from London. First guests will be Claudette Colbert and Robert Young.

Harriet O'Rourke, Chicago Music Festival winner and well known thruout the west for her radio and concert appearances, will appear in the Singing Cinderella concert with John Baker, baritone, over W-G-N-Mutual at 8 tonight.

Arthur Murray, who has been known as a dance expert for decades, will introduce a dancing course via television on the Dumont station, WABD, in New York, starting Oct. 29. No, you will not be able to see-hear the show in Chicago.

'Voice of Turtle' Stars Air Christmas Campaign

K. T. Stevens and Hugh Marlowe, featured in "The Voice of the Turtle," will be heard on Stella White's Best Jobs program over WAIT at 5:30 p. m. tomorrow. They will speak in behalf of the Christmas stocking drive for Bundles for America.

Joe E. Brown Visits Radio Hall of Fame

Joe E. Brown, Gertrude Niesen, Roy Rogers, and Ralph Edwards of radio's Truth or Consequences show are to visit the Hall of Fame broadcast over WENR-Blue at 5 p. m. today. Paul Whiteman and his orchestra will provide the program's musical background.

Gladys Swarthout on Kostelanetz Program

Gladys Swarthout will be Andre Kostelanetz's guest on WBBM-CBS at 3:30 p. m. today. Her songs will include Cole Porter's "Begin the Beguine," Lenoir's "Speak to Me of Love," and Mellocker's "If I Give My Heart."

Play College Medley

A medley of college tunes will be featured by Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra on the Hour of Charm program over WMAQ-NBC at 9 o'clock tonight.

On Mix Show

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 23.

Now that the ground is crusting over with frost and the outdoor plants have entered into their annual resting period, the gardener may thing his garden activities have ceased. Such is not the case, for work may continue whenever the weather is suitable for one to be outdoors.

It is not necessary to begin mulching until the ground freezes, for mulching does not prevent the ground from freezing. Mulching keeps the frost in the ground, preventing early alternate thaws and freezes from heaving plants from the ground with subsequent injury. During good weather leaves may accumulate, but pile them in an obscure spot where they will decay.

Tuesday, Oct. 24.

Unless weather conditions prevent it, the perennial borders still can be made or constructed, but if the soil is dry wait until later, even tho it must be carried over until spring. See that the space around late hardy lilies is covered to keep out frost. Some lily bulbs arrive very late and space must be prepared beforehand for planting in rich, unfrozen soil.

When planting borders, shrubs, or other plants be satisfied with a few dependable groups, including hardy phlox and peonies, which should be used sparingly or they will dominate.

Wednesday, Oct. 25.

Clear all dead weeds in the garden to prevent existing seeds from falling and developing next season. Many already have fallen and the result will be more weed killing later on.

Kill all weeds to kill seeds. This applies also to the home yard. Kill the weeds that grow along alley fences. Feeding trees is important for most of them suffer from a lack of food. Tree food or fertilizer can be supplied now and mixtures are available at the large supply houses.

Thursday, Oct. 26.

Tulips can be planted as long as the ground is not frozen and bulbs are obtainable. Water should be drained from sprinkling systems and the hose and it is wise to move everything indoors for protection against winter weather.

Clean all garden tools and the lawn mower, for tools will last a long time if given proper care and protection. Clean out window boxes and store them, but if boxes are available and can be fastened outside the window ledge, fill them with small evergreens now before severe weather arrives.

Friday, Oct. 27.

Stone clips are recommended for protection for rock garden plants, for when placed carefully around each plant they prevent heaving and washing of the soil. Work them up close to each plant, but be careful not to cover the crowns. Pine needles also are excellent where they are available. Marsh hay will suffice.

For perennials try using corn stalks between the plants and cover with a few leaves or straw, the stalks will give plenty of air spaces and prevent smothering. Roses often are planted just before freezing weather, but usually the work is done in spring in the middle west.

To protect existing plants, hill up the soil as far as possible around each plant, which should cover the point of bud union and leave a few buds to develop in spring. Then cover between the plants with strawy manure, if available, or straw, marsh hay, or hay that is not full of seeds. Leave the ends of the roses intact, for they will help keep the covering in place. Planting trees and shrubs may continue until the weather becomes too inclement.

Saturday, Oct. 28.

Keep flowering pot plants in good condition by keeping them as cool as possible, especially at night, and never allow them to suffer from lack of water. This applies especially to pot chrysanthemums at this time. Their pots are filled with roots and require examining each day. Do not bring the bulbous plants to the light until they are thoroly rooted, otherwise they will produce an abundance of leaves at the expense of flowers. This applies to the tulips and some narcissi.

Paperwhite and Chinese sacred lily are easily grown and furnish excellent bloom. Watch the house plants for insect pests and start spraying immediately if any are seen. Turn the plants once a week to prevent the foliage from turning toward the light.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

Members of the Irving Park Y. M. C. A. have a busy fall and winter of athletic and social events before them. The season's schedules released by Y staff members recently provide a program ranging from class instruction in swimming to dancing parties and community sings is planned for young people and adults.

Younger girls, between 8 and 17, will have two gymnasium and two swimming sessions each week, from 3:30 to 5 p. m. Added this year is a special beginners' swim class with test swims on Friday afternoons, when pupils are given an opportunity to pass tests chronicling their advancement. Half of each swim period will be spent in instruction, half in open swimming.

The Booster club again is operating for the principal purpose of stimulating interest in membership in the Y among the younger girls. Handicraft and dramatic classes are being held each Saturday from 9:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. Special Y. M. C. A. approved films are being shown from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. Saturdays.

Individual instruction in swimming is available to members by appointment for beginners and advanced swimmers. A life saving course will be conducted in November.

Lobby sings are being held at 8:30 p. m. on Tuesdays, with chess offered at 8 p. m. on Tuesdays and Fridays. The Irving club, comprised of business and professional men over 30, will continue to hold its sessions in its separate exercising quarters, where the health service department is available and social programs are presented. Willard J. Rowlett is president of this group. The public address system of the Y will be utilized from 6 to 7 each evening, presenting a selected program of classical and semi-classical records to those in the lounge and the dining room.

Will Train Junior Leaders.

Dale L. Carlson, boys' work secretary, announces a new junior leaders program which is part of a national plan to train boys for leadership of gym and swim classes, and all Y program activities. The group will meet at 4 p. m. Fridays, examinations closing each period of instruction. Those who pass the tests will be awarded the national leaders corps emblem, and will assist gym and swim instructors in various class sessions. A Gift of Carving Tools Uncovers Gift of Carving in a Former Clerk

An avocation has developed into a vocation for Miss Avis Lee, who carves character dolls for collectors in the bedroom studio of her home at 4733 Deming pl. Given a set of professional wood carving tools five years ago, Miss Lee quit her job as a clerk and turned to producing miniature Tom Sawyers and Huckleberry Finns. Her dolls now are treasured items in many collections thruout the nation.

The minute detail which Miss Lee incorporates in each of her dolls is their greatest appeal, she believes. Tom Sawyer, on the left, grins smugly as he holds a whitewash brush, which has dripped onto his trousers and shoes. Next, Huckleberry Finn displays a gap toothed smile, in spite of his torn overalls and bandaged toe, for he has his fishing pole in hand. At the right are Miss Lee's most popular Christmas couple, the carolers. In a prim little ruffled poke bonnet, the pantalooned girl sings from a book open to a Christmas carol. Her companion, in a tall beaver hat trimmed with a holly sprig, toots an accompaniment on his trumpet.

While Miss Lee is at work on a new doll, she keeps before her a large drawing board covered with clippings and sketches of the doll she wants to make. At the lower left is a portrait doll of her nephew, clad in blue corduroy snow suit and white galoshes. At the lower right are sketches and the finished head of a crying doll she is making.

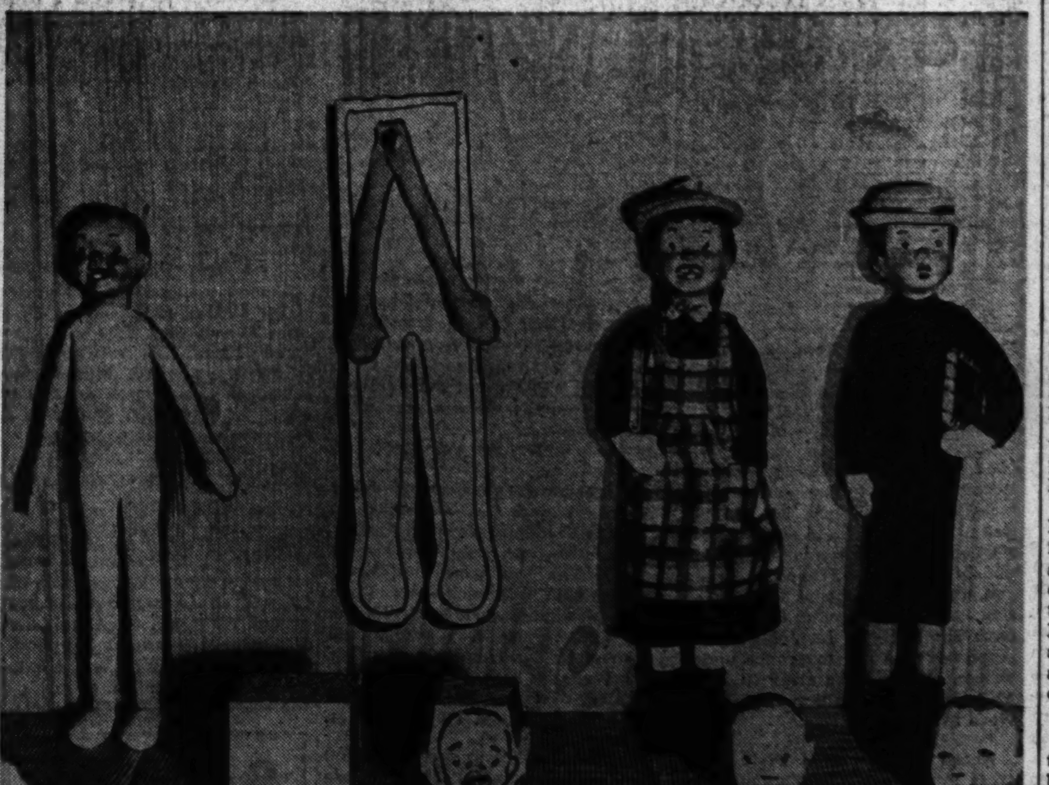
Not all of Miss Lee's dolls are childlike characters. For collectors she has made many dolls of all ages. Some years back, she was attracted by the appearance of the news agent at Lake st. and Hamlin blvd. She never saw him face to face, but each time she passed on the elevated she made a quick sketch, and the doll on the left is the result. The dealer, long a familiar figure in Garfield park, died some months ago. In the center, Miss Lee's "Bookkeeper of 1808" might have stepped out of a Dickens novel. Bowed legs and big hands of the cowboy on the right make him look like a small version of a member of the cast of "Oklahoma!"



"Assembly line" work takes most of the time in the manufacture of each of the dolls. First the block of soft wood gets a quick sketch of the face it is to become, then it is roughed out, and finally reaches the finished, unpainted form shown at the right. The body and arms are made of soft muslin, as shown tacked to the wall. Then the body is stuffed, the arms sewn on, and the head attached. Lastly comes the costuming, as demonstrated here by Mary and Jack, Miss Lee's most popular dolls. They are caricatures from photos of Miss Lee's parents, taken when they were grammar school pupils.

Uczciwek Is Target of Reds, Too.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Republican nominees for congress on the west and northwest sides reported last week that they were encountering speedup tactics by the CIO political action committee and what they termed its satellite organizations, all of which have nonpartisan names but support none but Democratic candidates.

This form of opposition was described as particularly strong in the huge 7th district, where Charles H. Garland is the G. O. P. nominee, and in the 8th, where John F. Uczciwek is conducting a blistering campaign against Thomas S. Gordon, the Democratic incumbent. In the 7th several new and elaborate offices have been opened by PAC, which has been circulating literature and canvassing voters, in many instances without consulting the regular Democratic ward and precinct workers.

PAC Steps Up Pace.

Supporters of Garland and Uczciwek asserted that the Communist dominated PAC was intensifying its drive in the hope of offsetting a marked switch of votes to the Republicans in Polish-American sections. There has been much dissatisfaction in these sections over the apparent surrender of Poland, by England and America, to the Russian dictator Stalin.

The G. O. P. candidates have been outspoken against the Polish policy of the administration and against the silence of their opponents, both of Polish ancestry, "because the city hall won't let them say a word against Roosevelt." Garland has come out for a free, strong, and intact Poland and has challenged his opponent, William W. Link, to state his views on the subject.

Poll Confirms Fears.

Uczciwek has claimed that the Kelly machine is "scared."

"Three weeks ago I began giving the people of my district the truth about Poland," he said. "Then Gov. Dewey in New York attacked the President's silence about the Polish-Russian deal. That is what frightened the local machine, which handpicked Gordon.

"I am informed reliably that, in the hope of bolstering its own morale, the machine took some straw votes in Polish sections and got cold comfort—it was found that 10 per cent of the Polish-American vote out this way had moved over to the Republican, which is the honest side, and that it was getting worse daily for the machine.

President Finally Sees Poles.

"Alarmed, the machine communicated with Washington and a day or two later leaders of the Polish-American National congress were invited by wire to meet Mr. Roosevelt in the White House. Quite a change, as he had previously refused to see them. The officers were salved, but they did not obtain any satisfaction on the question. What I said still holds; only a Republican President and congress can be trusted to get Poland justice."

Garland said that he had assurances of the support of many Polish-Americans who were Democrats.

"My voice will always be raised to urge justice for racial and religious minorities," he asserted. "But who has heard my opponent say a word in favor of the land of his fathers?"

Airport Plan Hailed.

Garland said that there had been a large and enthusiastic response to his pledge to work to keep the big Douglas airport near Park Ridge for civilian use after the war. This port, he said, is the best in the suburban area and could be expanded to any limits necessary at low cost.

His comment on the activities of PAC was: "These people are trying to beat me for being what I am—a business man who will take care of the interests of the 7th district and the whole United States. I am against regimentation. I am against wild public spending. I am against communism in any guise or disguise.

Speaks Up for Unions.

"I am for union labor, justice to the small business man [who must be allowed to compete with big business] and a sound, nonpersonal foreign policy as expounded by the Republican platform and Gov. Dewey.

"My record is clear as a business man, as mayor of Des Plaines, as a candidate, and as an individual who loves the American way of life. I am confident that the people will not be swayed by the smear charges made against me by pretended patriots."

Kozicki Hits OPA Tangle.

Another Republican nominee who expects to gain heavily by the Polish-American vote switch is Leo J. Kozicki of the 4th district, who has attacked the "Roosevelt deal" on Poland. He is also campaigning against regimentation and maladministration of the OPA in his territory. His opponent is Martin Gorski, incumbent who owes his advancement to the city hall and unswerving subservience to the New Deal.

Two west side districts appear safe, with possibly some loss in pluralities, for the Democrats. In the tiny 5th Adolph J. Sabath is the Democratic incumbent running against Max Price, Republican. Harry G. Green is making the race as a writein candidate. In the 6th the Democratic nominee is Thomas J. O'Brien, former sheriff. He is opposed by the Republican nominee, Charles J. Anderson Jr., and an independent, Iva J. Henderson.

BY MAURINE MYERS.

The only thing that worries Miss Avis Lee, 4733 Deming pl., is that "some day some one will insist that I get to work." For five year Miss Lee has been carving dolls for a living. Ten or 12 hours a day, six days a week, she sits in her bedroom-studio and turns out miniature Tom Sawyers, Huckleberry Finns, Topsies, and Tiny Tims. And she has so much fun doing it she feels a little guilty about the whole thing.

The 10-inch figures which come off Miss Lee's "production line" have won her quite a name among doll collectors all over the country. For special collections, she has made dolls of Lincoln as a boy, of Peter Stuyvesant with his silver banded wooden leg, of Stephen of Cloyes, and of Whistler's mother.

Pleasant and Profitable.

But the dolls currently marching off her carving table are the story book characters loved by children and adult collectors. Made for a collector's corner, some sell for as much as $25, which makes a pleasant vocation also profitable.

The doll business, for Miss Lee, began about five years ago. After she was graduated from Carl Schurz High school, she took a business course, and thereby presumably was fitted for a secretarial post. But she laughingly recalls that she "held" seven jobs during her first six day work week. She had started to do wood carving as a hobby, and her fingers always were cut and sore from the razors and knives she used. She couldn't get any speed out of a typewriter and had no great taste for her jobs.

Wraps Sketches with Parcels.

Then she turned to clerking. But she spent more time sketching customers on wrapping paper than she did in wrapping purchases. Finally came the decision she must keep the job and discard the hobby, or quit the job and make her living with the hobby. A window display of tiny figures inspired her to try carving dolls for collectors. The gift of a set of professional wood carving tools made the choice inevitable.

The first several years were pretty tough, she recalls. She hadn't perfected her methods, and production was a slow and tedious process. She felt lucky if her receipts reached $8 weekly.

Nowadays she can turn out a doll a day. "And they call me an artist," she laughs wryly as she sews up half a hundred tiny arms of muslin she has dyed flesh color. Most of the work, she points out, is routine. But still it's fun.

No Helpers Wanted.

The shops are clamoring for more and still more of her little dolls, such as the tiny Mennonite couple, with the girl carrying a pot of red geraniums, and the boy, in his broad brimmed black hat, with a white hen tucked under his arm. "But I'm my own worst bottleneck," Miss Lee admits. "Some one else could sew up the arms, and stuff them and the bodies properly. Some one else could do the routine work of sewing arms on bodies, and roughing out the wooden blocks for the heads. That would leave me with only the final carving, and the custuming. But I can't bear to let any one else touch these youngsters."

Miss Lee's inspirations come from many sources. Clippings from magazines and newspapers, and sketches made in street cars and elevated trains cram a drawer in her studio. Currently she is making portrait dolls, working from snapshots of the child. For children's librarians, she makes story book characters come alive.

Plenty of Supplies.

Her closet of supplies is overflowing with boxes of cotton yarn which she uses for hair, long planks of soft wood which eventually will be cut into tiny blocks from which heads are carved, yards of cotton and corduroy and velvet which will dress future Tom Sawyers and Becky Thatchers.

Even the tiny accessories each doll carries come from Miss Lee's fingers. The chicken is modeled in papier mache, the flowers are made from felt, the tiny song books are printed with actual tunes, and Tom Sawyer's carved whitewash brush has dripped disastrously over his trousers and shoes. Miss Lee believes collectors buy the dolls more for these realistic little touches than for the dolls themselves.

If she ever finds time, Miss Lee plans to expand the avocation which has grown into a vocation. Even now she is making dolls for commercial advertising—for advertising movies and window displays. She gives lectures, too, demonstrating her carvings. But some day she wants to develop a latent enthusiasm for photography. Then she will write children's books, and illustrate them with photos of her own dolls.

Peoria st. Fighting in the Southwest Pacific jungles, Pvt. Currire's job often is hazardous. In many places, on patrols and during front line action, the runner acts as a communications link between fighting units within the company.

SCHOOLS OF N.W. SIDE IN LINE FOR SAFETY AWARDS

Club to Give Scrolls to 85 Groups.

With a record of no child killed in patroled zones last year, 85 schools on the northwest side will receive certificates of merit this week from Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club.

ROBERTS FLAYS F. D. R.'S DOUBLE TALK TO POLES

Claims G. O. P. Strength Bolstered.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

President Roosevelt's double talk on the vital topic of Poland's independence and territorial integrity has swung thousands of Polish voters over to the Republican ticket, Daniel A. Roberts, Republican candidate for the house of representatives in the 23d senatorial district, told an audience last week at Allied Legion post hall, 1277 Milwaukee av.

"When a delegation, headed by Charles Rozmarek of Chicago, president of the Polish-American congress, accepted an invitation to call on Roosevelt to be told what part this country would play in Poland's future, it was met by such a shower of weasel words that the delegation retired in confusion," said Roberts.

Day Hits Power Grab.

Joseph D. Day, Republican candidate for state representative in the 27th senatorial district, charged last week that the present campaign of his three Democratic opponents, who again seek to win all three legislative seats is an attempt to establish one party rule in the district.

"The framers of our state constitution believed in representation for minority parties," said Day.

"Minority Rights Rejected."

"The Democratic politicians, in their lust for power in the 27th district, are attempting to deprive the district's present Republican minority of a representative. They are after all three house seats. Only in a communistic state are the rights of minorities ignored as the Democrats are attempting to do here," said Day.

The 27th district long has been a Democratic stronghold but until 1942 Republicans succeeded in getting a representative in the legislature, usually thru bipartisan agreement. However, the Democrats nominated three candidates and captured all three house seats in November, 1942.

Forecasts End to Stronghold.

The Democratic trio includes Rep. A. L. Auth, who has served eight terms; Rep. John Kuklinski, who has served three terms, and Rep. Anthony C. Prunsinski, now finishing his first term.

"This is just another example of Democratic greediness," said Day. "They have a stranglehold on the three district seats and are fighting now to retain it. The 1942 election proved beyond a doubt that they want to hog everything. But the return to power of the G. O. P. will put an end to such tactics and give Republicans in the 27th district a seat in the legislature. That return of power is scheduled to arrive Nov. 7."

NINE N. W. SIDERS VOLUNTEER AS POLL WATCHERS

Spearheading the drive to enlist 5,000 nonpartisan volunteer poll watchers for election day, Nov. 7, nine residents of the northwest side were among the first 200 Chicago voters to be qualified.

The observers, who were recruited by the joint civic committee on elections, 105 S. La Salle st., in its drive to eliminate vote frauds at polling places, will be given special courses of instruction in voting procedure and the detection of fraudulent ballot casting.

The nine qualified poll watchers are:

Found 131,000 Irregularities.

During the Presidential election in 1940 7,000 poll watchers volunteered thruout Chicago. With many of the men and women now in the service, a shortage of available personnel exists. According to Guy E. Reed, chairman of the committee and president of the Chicago Crime commission, more than 131,000 names were stricken off the voters' registration list because of "irregularities" discovered by canvassers of the civic group.

Organized as a nonpartisan volunteer group, the joint civic committee on elections is composed of nine organizations representing more than 30,000 members who are actively engaged in or support civic affairs. Those who wish to serve can volunteer by calling Franklin 8440.

3 Shifts for Workers.

In order to encourage enrollment of watchers, and ease the strain on workers, the length of service on election day is to be divided into three main shifts. The first shift will be from 5:45 a. m., 15 minutes before the polls open, to 11:30 a. m. The second shift will start at 11 a. m., allowing the changing shift of watchers to compare notes, and terminate at 5 p. m. The third shift will begin at 4:30 p. m., and continue until all ballots have been counted. Women will be allowed to select their particular shift.

Members of the Chicago Bar association have volunteered to instruct potential watchers in the intricacies of voting, and a special motion picture, entitled "The Fight for Honest Ballots," which depicts common vote frauds, is included in the instructions.

JEWISH LEAGUES TO INDUCT NEW LEADERS TODAY

The Jewish Youth leagues of Chicago will hold installation of officers at 7:30 p. m. tonight at the Anshe Emet synagog, Pine Grove and Grace sts. The ceremony will be culminated with the installation of executives of the administrative committee.

These leagues are an extension division of the Board of Jewish Education with more than 1,000 members in 14 city high schools, including northwest side's Tuley, Roosevelt, and Von Steuben. Estelle Marshall, Von Steuben, is among those being installed on the administrative committee.

Seymour Okner, president of the Roosevelt High school chapter, and city co-adviser, heads the committee on arrangements. The formal program which will include a candlelight ceremony and vocal selections by Jewish League musicians, will be followed by dancing.

Gather Milkweed Pods in Field

Monday, Oct. 23.

Now that the ground is crusting over with frost and the outdoor plants have entered into their annual resting period, the gardener may thing his garden activities have ceased. Such is not the case, for work may continue whenever the weather is suitable for one to be outdoors.

Tuesday, Oct. 24.

Unless weather conditions prevent it, the perennial borders still can be made or constructed, but if the soil is dry wait until later, even tho it must be carried over until spring. See that the space around late hardy lilies is covered to keep out frost. Some lily bulbs arrive very late and space must be prepared beforehand for planting in rich, unfrozen soil.

Wednesday, Oct. 25.

Clear all dead weeds in the garden to prevent existing seeds from falling and developing next season. Many already have fallen and the result will be more weed killing later on.

Kill all weeds to kill seeds. This applies also to the home yard. Kill the weeds that grow along alley fences. Feeding trees is important for most of them suffer from a lack of food. Tree food or fertilizer can be supplied now and mixtures are available at the large supply houses.

Thursday, Oct. 26.

Tulips can be planted as long as the ground is not frozen and bulbs are obtainable. Water should be drained from sprinkling systems and the hose and it is wise to move everything indoors for protection against winter weather.

With good care the plants will stay in fine condition all winter and then can be transplanted in rows in a sunny place in the garden. Be sure that the soil in the boxes is not allowed to dry out or the plants will turn brown.

Friday, Oct. 27.

Stone clips are recommended for protection for rock garden plants, for when placed carefully around each plant they prevent heaving and washing of the soil. Work them up close to each plant, but be careful not to cover the crowns. Pine needles also are excellent where they are available. Marsh hay will suffice.

For perennials try using corn stalks between the plants and cover with a few leaves or straw, the stalks will give plenty of air spaces and prevent smothering. Roses often are planted just before freezing weather, but usually the work is done in spring in the middle west.

Saturday, Oct. 28.

Keep flowering pot plants in good condition by keeping them as cool as possible, especially at night, and never allow them to suffer from lack of water. This applies especially to pot chrysanthemums at this time. Their pots are filled with roots and require examining each day. Do not bring the bulbous plants to the light until they are thoroly rooted, otherwise they will produce an abundance of leaves at the expense of flowers. This applies to the tulips and some narcissi.

Paperwhite and Chinese sacred lily are easily grown and furnish excellent bloom. Watch the house plants for insect pests and start spraying immediately if any are seen. Turn the plants once a week to prevent the foliage from turning toward the light.

MILKWEED PODS HAVE WAR ROLE IN LIFE JACKETS

Weeds are going to war, thanks to the efforts of various groups of northwest side young people. In answer to the plea of government agencies for milkweed pods, high school and grammar school students are spending their leisure hours roaming the prairies, harvesting the pods which in former years have proved only picturesque additions to the landscape.

Since kapok no longer can be imported government, scientists discovered in numerous tests that the silk of the milkweed served much the same purpose. Moisture proof and light, it is being used to fill the life jackets for navy men, for it serves the same buoyant purpose as the kapok.

Collect Pods in Field Trips.

At the suggestion of L. A. Hofer, principal of Taft High school, 5625 N. Natoma av., members of the biology class set the harvesting of the milkweed pods as one of their fall projects. Field trips as well as after school excursions are utilized to pile up sacks of the pods. The students collected empty onion bags, and to date have filled 50 such bags, each weighing between 40 and 50 pounds. Their goal is 100 bags, which they must harvest soon before the pods dry out and split and the valuable silk is lost to the wind.

Also participating in the collection are the children of the Albany Park OCD area. One group, ranging from 6 to 12, made several trips recently to the unpopulated section along California av. between Foster and Peterson avs., collecting some 10 market baskets full of pods on their first trip. Leading the group were Jerome Geller, 3042 Leland av., and Carole Reemis, 4734 Whipple st., both 12 years old.

Boys Go Out on Bikes.

Another group, organized by Harold Poncher, youth activities chairman for Albany Park OCD, have gone on their bikes along Northwest hwy., bringing back as many of the pods as they could find.

Adult interest also is shown in the milkweed pod collection. Mrs. Henry Melin, OCD morale chairman for Albany Park, had intended to play a game of golf last week, but when she saw the milkweed pods growing along the edge of the course she gave up the game and filled her golf bag with the pods. Other adults are also contributing time and effort to harvest the pods before they burst.

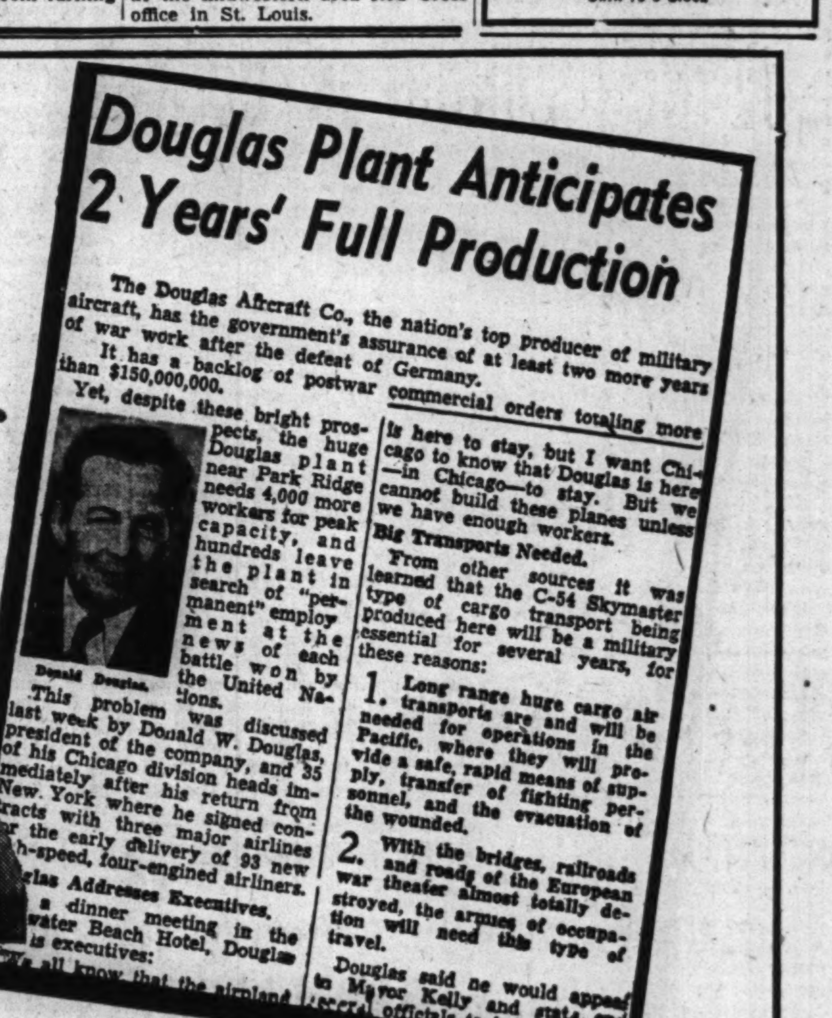
POST-WAR OPPORTUNITY for Men and Women who get jobs now in Chicago's new INDUSTRY



Douglas Plant Anticipates 2 Years' Full Production

The Douglas Aircraft Co., the nation's top producer of military aircraft, has the government's assurance of at least two more years of war work after the defeat of Germany.

It has a backlog of postwar commercial orders totaling more than $150,000,000.

Yet, despite these bright prospects, the huge Douglas plant near Park Ridge needs 4,000 more workers for peak capacity, and hundreds leave the plant in search of "permanent" employment at the news of each battle won by the United Nations.

Donald Douglas.

This problem was discussed last week by Donald W. Douglas, president of the company, and 35 of his Chicago division heads immediately after his return from New York where he signed contracts with three major airlines for the early delivery of 93 new high-speed, four-engined airliners.

Douglas Addresses Executives.

At a dinner meeting in the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Douglas told his executives:

"We all know that the airplane is here to stay, but I want Chicago to know that Douglas is here—in Chicago—to stay. But we cannot build these planes unless we have enough workers.

Big Transports Needed.

From other sources it was learned that the C-54 Skymaster type of cargo transport being produced here will be a military essential for several years, for these reasons:

1. Long range huge cargo air transports are and will be needed for operations in the Pacific, where they will provide a safe, rapid means of supply, transfer of fighting personnel, and the evacuation of the wounded.

2. With the bridges, railroads and roads of the European war theater almost totally destroyed, the armies of occupation will need this type of travel.

Douglas said he would appeal to Mayor Kelly and state and federal officials to help him

Start YOUR FUTURE . . today in Aviation . . train for it now by coming to work at Douglas at once!

AFTER THE WAR, aviation will be one of the major industries in the Chicago area. Airlines, aircargo carriers, maintenance and operations shops, and aircraft plants will have good jobs for workers who are properly trained. Prepare for your career in aviation NOW by working in the Chicago plant of Douglas Aircraft Company. No "cutbacks" or "layoffs" in sight here. Douglas employes will work at full capacity building vitally needed military transport planes until Japan is defeated. Then they will build planes for the airlines on orders already booked this far ahead.

Good Pay . . . Convenient Transportation. Experienced or inexperienced . . . we train you so that you are bound to make good in fabricating, shop, assembly and installation work . . . that we term "beating on the airplane." As interesting work as you'll ever find.

If you want to serve your country, make good money, enjoy your job, and if you are not already employed in an essential industry, don't delay. Come to the WMC's U. S. Employment Service office at 5306 Lawrence Avenue. Or come to our own employment offices at 4070 Milwaukee Avenue, near Irving Park; 2717½ Milwaukee Avenue, near Logan Square; or to the plant employment office at Mannheim, Higgins and Devon.

SCHOOL RADIO CONFERENCE IN CHICAGO 2 DAYS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Problems of educational broadcasting will be considered at the eighth annual School Broadcast conference to be held tomorrow and Tuesday at the Morrison hotel . Lyman Bryson, director of education for CBS, will be the permanent chairman, and Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, honorary chairman. Dr. Johnson will be the speaker at the conference banquet tomorrow evening when the annul awards of merit will be announced. Sterling Fisher of NBC will preside.

A visit to the National Barn Dance last week, followed by the premiere of the Paramount movie bearing the same name and including Bob Benchley and the radio cast, left us with the conviction that the radio barn dance is a natural for television. The WLS show is filled with action and the players are all in colorful garb. It's an easy show to look at. Not all radio shows are. Incidentally, Pat Buttram makes out quite a case for himself as a comedian, in the picture.

Which Is Which, a variety show with a quiz angle, will make its bow over CBS at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday. Ken Murray will be master of ceremonies. The idea is to mix variety with a test involving guests and their vocal doubles. Guests will be Frank Morgan, Kate Smith, Basil Rathbone, and Ted Lewis.

Harold Lloyd, veteran comedian of the silent movie days, has signed for his first radio job. He will serve as host and director for the new Comedy Theater which will replace the Les Tremayne-Jack Gleason series on NBC at 9:30 Sunday nights, starting Oct. 29. Lloyd has been on the air only briefly before—once from Honolulu and once from London. First guests will be Claudette Colbert and Robert Young.

Harriet O'Rourke, Chicago Music Festival winner and well known thruout the west for her radio and concert appearances, will appear in the Singing Cinderella concert with John Baker, baritone, over W-G-N-Mutual at 8 tonight.

Arthur Murray, who has been known as a dance expert for decades, will introduce a dancing course via television on the Dumont station, WABD, in New York, starting Oct. 29. No, you will not be able to see-hear the show in Chicago.

TOSCANINI WILL OPEN BEETHOVEN FESTIVAL TODAY

Arturo Toscanini will direct the NBC Symphony orchestra in a nine week Beethoven festival which begins on the Symphony of the Air hour at 4 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. Today's concert marks the opening of the program's winter series and Toscanini's eighth season with the orchestra.

Regarded as one of the foremost interpreters of Beethoven music, Toscanini is to start the Beethoven cycle by conducting the composer's Symphony No. 1 in C major and his Symphony No. 8 in F major. The two final broadcasts of the cycle will be devoted to a presentation of Beethoven's only opera, "Fidelio."

TULEY STUDENTS WILL GIVE AID TO INCOMING FROSH

Youths Outline High School Work.

Freshmen at the Sabin branch of Tuley High school, 2216 Hirsch st., have been working on two projects to help January freshmen get a good start in planning their first semester's work.

This week 17 of the freshmen class will make return visits, accompanied by a Tuley faculty member, to the elementary school they last attended. The freshmen will discuss with 8-A students their choice of subjects, courses and extra curricular activities.

List Schools on Schedule.

Elementary schools to be visited by former pupils include: Andersen, by Florence Cooper; Avondale, Ethel Pye; Brentano, Mike Hogue; Burr, Albert Degand; Chase, Elaine Dabrowski; Chopin, Alice Chuhak; Columbus, Genevieve Karol.

Tell First Impressions.

Other students have written letters to prospective freshmen, describing their first impressions of high school, which will be included in a booklet, "Welcome to Tuley High." The booklet also will contain a welcome from Miss Hazel L. Stillman, principal; a description of courses, from which freshmen may choose their electives, and information about student athletics and clubs.

Sketches illustrating the booklet were made by Alice Gidzinski, Irene Polski, and Charlotte Gerhardt, students in the high school's art department.

Sibelius Symphony No. 2 on W-G-N Concert Hour

Compositions by Sibelius, Weber, and Debussy will be featured on Symphony Hall from 8:30 to 9:30 p. m. Tuesday on W-G-N and WGNB. Henry Weber will conduct the W-G-N Syhphony orchestra. His Symphony No. 2 will highlight the full hour program of classical music. The orchestra will open the program with the overture to "Euryanthe," by Carl Mario von Weber. "La Demoiselle," by Debussy, will also be presented.

Orson Welles Guest.

Orson Welles will be featured as a guest on the Charlie McCarthy-Edgar Bergen show over WMAQ-NBC at 7 o'clock tonight.

WELLS IS NEXT SCHOOL TO SHOW WARES ON W-G-N

Wells High school, 936 N. Ashland av., will go on the air at 10 a. m. Saturday over W-G-N, as the fourth program in the sixth series of Citizens of Tomorrow, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's half hour transcribed youth show. Wells will be the 144th high school in Chicagoland to be saluted on this program dedicated to the teen-age boys and girls of America.

Dr. Paul R. Pierce, principal of the school since its organization 10 years ago, will be host and introduce the show's principal of the air, Philip Maxwell, of the editorial staff of THE TRIBUNE.

Chorus to Sing Spiritual.

The Wells mixed chorus, directed by H. E. Nutt, will sing "Deep River," a spiritual arranged by H. T. Burleigh, and "America My Own," written by the Chicago composer, Noble Cain.

Maxwell will conduct the program's news quiz, questioning Beverly Argenzio, Carol Ghilarducci, Lorraine Dubiel, Robert Wise, Patricia Palm, and Raymond Filarski, all Wells students. He will add to the program's honor roll the names of Emil Joseph Zamorski, 16, Wells senior, 3236 Cortez st., and Ruth Saxby, 16, senior at Freeport [Ill.] High school. Emil will be interviewed.

A new attraction, "Talent Star," will present Emil Bruni, 17, 2146 Race av., who will play an accordion solo, "Dark Eyes." He will be introduced by Harry Creighton, announcer. The "Interscholastic News" broadcast will be given by Marion Kalina, 17, news editor of the school paper.

Professionals on Show.

Jane Anderson will be the program's piano accompanist, and the roles of "Jimmy and Jerry" will be taken by Wayne Dickinson and Beryl Vaughan, professional radio stars. Morrison Wood is the producer.

Cheer leaders from Wells taking part in the broadcast will be Stavrola Chandiles, Frances Martinchuk, Beatrice Rauscher, and Bernadine Janco. Preceding the transcription, national and school colors will be presented, the student body will recite the pledge of allegiance, and more than 1,000 students will sing the national anthem.

The show will be recorded at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the Wells school auditorium.

THEATER OF AIR TO OFFER GIRL SCOUT SALUTE

As a salute to the Girl Scouts of America, the Chicago Theater of the Air will present an original musical-dramatic Halloween fantasy titled "Peter and the Pumpkin" over W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast to coast Mutual network from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak on the program.

Colleen Moore, former movie actress, will be a special guest on the program, speaking in behalf of Girl Scout week, to be celebrated from Oct. 29 to Nov. 4.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber will provide the musical accompaniment. Bruce Foote, baritone, and Virginia Haskins, soprano, will be the soloists. John Barclay and Hope Summers will take the leading dramatic roles and they will be supported by Laurette Fillbrandt, Lucille Dodge, Rita Ascot, Norman Gottschalk, and Ray Suber.

Ethel Barrymore Colt on Distinguished Guest Hour

Ethel Barrymore Colt, daughter of the famous Ethel Barrymore and a star of the theater and operatic stage herself, will make a guest appearance on the Distinguished Guest hour over W-G-N from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. today. She will tell of her experiences in the theater.

Purchase of a building site for a Harvey Y. M. C. A., organization of a board of directors, and plans to complete the building fund of $650,000 were announced recently by Paul W. Soenksen, chairman of the board of directors.

The site at the southeast corner of Central av. and 155th st. is 193 by 175 feet. As soon as building materials can be obtained a four-story structure will be erected containing 142 residence rooms, two large gymnasiums, swimming pool, two handball courts, a physical department for women and girls, another for men and boys, cafeteria, clubrooms, handicraft and hobby rooms, public lounge, and other recreational, social, and health facilities.

Myron Lambert Jr., Herbert S. Dickinson, and Russell McKibben. Howard Jehu will serve as chairman of the public relations committee.

A financial campaign for a modern Y. M. C. A. in Harvey was launched in May by a committee of the Harvey Association of Commerce in coöperation with the Y. M. C. A. of Chicago. A recent contribution of $10,000 from Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., has brought the building fund to within $25,000 of its $250,000 goal and it is expected that the remaining amount will be raised in the next two weeks by private contributions. To the $250,000 raised in Harvey, the Y. M. C. A. of Chicago is adding $150,000 as a gift and loaning another $250,000 from its endowment funds.

Available to 80,000 Citizens.

Civic Committee in Drive for 5,000.

Fifteen southwest side residents were among the first 200 Chicago voters to volunteer as poll watchers for election day, Nov. 7. Five thousand workers are needed.

They were recruited by the joint civic committee on elections, 105 S. La Salle st., in its drive to eliminate vote frauds in polling places. They will be given special courses in voting procedure and detection of fraudulent ballot casting by members of the Chicago Bar association.

Finds 131,000 Cases of Fraud.

During the Presidential election in 1940, 7,000 poll watchers volunteered thruout Chicago, but with many of the men and women now in service, a shortage of personnel exists. According to Guy E. Reed, chairman of the committee and president of the Chicago Crime commission, more than 131,000 names were stricken off the voters' registration list in 1940 because of discrepancies discovered by canvassers for the civic committee.

Organized as a nonpartisan volunteer group, the committee on elections is composed of nine organizations representing more than 30,000 members actively engaged in civic affairs.

Will Work in Shifts.

In order to encourage enrollment of watchers and ease the strain on election day, service is to be divided into three shifts. The first shift will start at 5:45 a. m., 15 minutes before the polls open and continue until 11:30 a. m. The other shifts are from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. and from 4:30 p. m. until all ballots have been counted. Women may select their shift.

Southwest side watchers signed are Glenn D. Adams, George D. Maxfield, Bert M. Erickson, Frank J. Hamilton, Shirley S. Heale, H. R. Miller, Mrs. W. D. Hunnell, Lawrence J. Kush of Harvey, Fred J. Leveronz, Ambrose A. Miller, Kathleen C. Riordan, James F. Wesley, Mrs. Pearl West, A. W. Stapleton, and P. B. Shannon.

LEADERS HAIL BUSBEY AID TO SERVICE MEN

Nominee Continues Attack on Reds.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Representatives of many veterans' organizations, associations of small business men and labor unions have indorsed Congressman Fred E. Busbey for reëlection in the big 3d Illinois district on the southwest side, basing their support on his record in congress. Others who are independent or Democratic have given him warm praise for his official acts.

Busbey, an ardent foe of communism and a member of the house committee on un-American activities, is the No. 1 purgee on the list of the CIO political action committee, whose communist leadership he has excoriated as a destroyer of the American form of government. He is depending on the support of "true Americans" to offset the smear campaign of the PAC bosses.

Democrats Join in Praise.

Commended especially was Busbey's effort in behalf of the new G. I. bill guaranteeing to returned soldiers many benefits, including unemployment pay and the financing of their education.

"It has been a pleasure for myself and our World war veterans' committee to have worked with you on the G. I. bill," wrote John Stelle, former Democratic governor of Illinois, to Busbey. "I personally commend your work for this bill."

James P. Ringley, chairman of the Illinois state committee on veterans' rehabilitation, wrote:

Former Fighters Aid Campaign.

"You must feel a sense of personal satisfaction in having had a prominent part in the drafting of this bill. . . . I feel satisfied that the men and women upon their return to their homes will also appreciate the effort you extended in their behalf."

tional legislative committee of the American Legion, thanked Busbey for his help and added that the congressman always "came thru" when a question of veterans' welfare was involved.

The 3d District Ex-Service Men's Community organization not only praised the congressman but unanimously endorsed his candidacy and pledged themselves to work for him. He has been given the endorsement also of the Illinois Republican Service Men's league, which stated that his official acts reflect the views of the veterans of both World wars.

Expects Labor Suport.

Busbey, who was Americanism director of the Legion in Illinois before his election, is openly conducting an unrelenting fight on the communist minded high officers of the PAC. These, he claims, do not represent the millions of the CIO rank and file, who cherish their rights as good Americans.

"They know who are their real friends and will vote for me on Nov. 7," he predicted. "They want nothing to do with communism."

The Small Business Men's committee for Busbey, composed in large part of retailers in the district, has given the congressman its endorsement and assistance.

During his two years in the house of representatives Busbey has frequently asisted officials of Chicago trade associations with their problems, and several of them have written him in appreciation of his energy and acumen.

List Union Endorsements.

"I believe that every one of these association heads would recommend all small business men to give me their votes," he said.

Among the labor unions whose endorsement is claimed by Busbey are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Helpers, the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, and the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes.

Renews Americanism Pledge.

"With the aid and approval of such men and such organizations I am confident of winning," said Busbey. "The smear campaign that has been started against me will be wrecked when it encounters them.

"I am pledged to assist in bringing prosperity to the United States and to ridding our government of alien influences. I won't get tired of that. And everybody will always know where I stand."

Busbey said that the pressure of the campaign had not halted the handling of veterans' requests in his office and that their letters had been answered and appropriate action taken on them day by day.

Kozicki Flays OPA Tangle.

Opposing Busbey in the election is Edward A. Kelly, choice of the city hall and congressman for 10 years. He was defeated by Cong. Busbey in 1942 by about 6,000 votes.

Another Republican nominee on the southwest side is Leo J. Kozicki of the 4th district, who speaks strongly against regimentation and maladministration of the OPA. He is also outspoken against the policies of President Roosevelt in regard to Polish boundaries in peace time, and American truckling to Stalin's views on eastern Europe.

Elevated Legion Units Install New Leaders

TIM INGWERSENS MARK 50 YEARS OF WEDDED LIFE

Seventy-seven years of this life have brought no cause for complaint to Tim Ingwersen, Flossmoor. His only regret is that many others have not been as fortunate as he.

He and Mrs. Ingwersen will observe their 50th wedding today with a quiet celebration at the home where they have lived for 20 years.

Quiet living with lots of work is the basis of contentment, says Ingwersen, who served Swift & Co. for 44 years. First he was a cattle buyer, then a plant manager, and for four years preceding his retirement was chief cattle buyer. He was hired by Gustavus Swift, founder of the company.

"Must Have Job Enthusiasm."

Ingwersen believes contentment also is related to one's enthusiasm for his work and believes a young man should "live, eat, and sleep his job." Indicating that he followed his own advice, James H. Boyle, head of the beef, lamb, and veal department of Swift's, says, "Tim loved to buy cattle. He was especially happy when in a pen of prime cattle. After the purchase he would gather his buyers around and point out the good qualities. Tim did much to develop the Canadian plants, but his heart was always in that load of prime cattle."

Mrs. Ingwersen has lived in Chicago all of her 73 years. She remembers some of the ruins of the Chicago fire. She heard Adelina Patti sing in the old Exposition building on the site now occupied by the Art institute. Ingwersen, who has lived here 77 years, remembers Michigan avenue as a mud rut.

Didn't Retire to Quit.

They have four sons, three daughters, and 13 grandchildren. One son, Henry N. Ingwersen, Flossmoor, served as an army lieutenant in World War I. and another son, Capt. Timothy B. Ingwersen, is serving in World War II. with the 9th air force in France. Other sons and daughters are Mrs. James Slack, Flossmoor; Philip Ingwersen, Boston, Mass.; Richard C. Ingwersen, Jackson, Mich.; Mrs. Wilfred Pape, 11055 Bell av., and Mrs. Cyril M. Gallati, Thornton.

From the day he retired in 1932 Ingwersen decided he was not "going to sit on the back porch." He formed Ingwersen, Hunbert & Compton, live stock commission company, and for the last 13 years has been going to work regularly with his son, Henry.

His philosophy is one of gratitude—gratitude for his family, his health, his home; gratitude to his employer, and gratitude for a system of government based on freedom and initiative which enabled him to earn the security he is enjoying. His wife shares this philosophy.

Harold Swift Lauds Friend.

When Ingwersen went to work for Gustavus Swift in 1888 the company's capital was $3,000,000. When he retired in 1932 it was $150,000,000. His contribution to that growth is attested by Harold H. Swift, vice chairman of the board of directors of Swift & Co.

"Tim was delegated the job of making a cattle buyer out of me," says Swift. "I shall never get over being grateful to him for his patience, fine coöperation, and his emphasis on the essentials of the business, which included not only buying the cattle alive but seeing the beef after they were dead to know whether they proved to be what I expected them to be. Later, when he transferred most of his time and attention to the beef business in the office, I found him always the same thoro, conscientious, and effective person, so that from my early association all thru to the time Tim Ingwersen retired on pension I considered him one of the standbys of our business."

Wed 50 Years

Seeks Congress Seat from 4th District.

First in Dairy Business.

He was born on Chicago's southwest side, the cradle of many first and second generation Americans. He has seen foreign born families settle, establish homes, and become prosperous. Here he has learned first hand the meaning of Americanism which he aspires to represent in congress.

He launched his business career 15 years ago in a small dairy business left to the family in Bridgeport community at the time of his father's death. Later he set up a printing shop, then branched into real estate and insurance, eventually selling the printing shop. His new, larger business office attests his business ability.

Son Has Own Orchestra.

Son Leon, musical scholarship student at Holy Trinity High school, has claimed the basement of the Kozicki residence as headquarters for his six piece orchestra. The organization plays at least once a week at community entertainments and has appeared on programs in the state and in Michigan and Minnesota.

At present Leon can't decide whether to take up law as a profession or work to establish a "name" band of his own—a weighty decision for the young clarinetist to make but not a pressing one.

The candidate's daughter is a sxth grader at SS. Peter and Paul school, 37th pl. and Paulina st. Dancing lessons are a big interest in Rita's life.

Long Interested in Boy Scouts.

Kozicki's Boy Scout days have interested him in teaching boys, particularly those whose only playgrounds are the streets. As a troop committeeman he reviews the progress of 85 Scouts and nine troops at McKinley park. Years ago he served as a Scout master and organized the first all Chinese troop in the city.

His Boy Scout training made Kozicki a useful OCD worker when home defense was first organized. He was appointed OCD training chairman at McKinley park and organized classes and trained instructors in first aid and home care.

For vacations the family goes to the north woods, where they live in a tent. The family hobby is music. They all love to sing, with Leo at the piano, and they often attend concerts and the opera. In the summer they watch the Sox play baseball.

Mrs. W. Ray Dolan, 626 W. 43d pl., president, has appointed Mrs. George C. Weathered, 8210 Champlain av., chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

She is assisted by Mrs. Edward E. O'Reilly, 7919 May st.; Mrs. Irving Cruice, 7712 Sangamon st.; Mrs. William J. Delahanty, 7943 Vernon av.; Mrs. Henry Thee, 1422 E. 68th st.; Mrs. R. G. Hamilton Park Library Will Hold Open House

Open house will be observed in the Hamilton park library at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday. Motion pictures will be shown in the Hamilton park auditorium, 72d st. and Normal blvd.

Interest in Youth His Hobby

Leo J. Kozicki, 1724 W. 35th st., Republican nominee for congress in the 4th district, keeps up his interest in citizens of tomorrow thru Boy Scout activities. As troop committeeman he reviews the progress of Scouts on the southwest side. Left to right (first row) are: Melvin Travis, 2544 39th pl.; Richard Kulwiec, 4033 S. Talman av., and Robert Farrell, 3934 S. Rockwell st., and the nominee. Left to right (second row) are: Howard Zelecka, 4314 S. Campbell av.; Daniel McCarthy, 4346 S. Campbell av.; Joseph Kollander, 2544 40th st., and Leroy Borchardt, 3445 Justine st.

FARMERS BALK AT BITTER PILL OF TRUMANISM

'Last Straw' Aids G.O.P. in 14th District.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

Farmers in Kane and Kendall counties have swung their support to Dewey and Bricker in a concerted drive to end New Deal bungling in rural areas, Merritt J. Little, Republican nominee for state senator in the 14th senatorial district, asserted last week.

Selection of Sen. Harry S. Truman of Missouri as the Democratic nominee for Vice President doomed whatever chance the New Deal might have had to get out a sizable vote in the two counties, Little declared. The majority of voters, he said, have compared Truman with Gov. Bricker and Truman has not appeared in a favorable light.

Fear Truman in White House.

"Many voters feel that if Roosevelt is elected for a fourth term and something happened to him while in office, we would be saddled with a man who might try to run national affairs along Kansas City's Pendergast machine lines," Little said.

Negroes, under President Roosevelt, have been subjected to the harshest treatment since their emancipation from slavery, Dudley S. Martin, one of two Republican nominees for the house of representatives in the 3d district, told southwest side audiences last week.

Negroes Let Down by F. D. R.

The highest attainment of the Negro under Roosevelt was a WPA job and the most menial at that, Martin declared. Roosevelt's power has surpassed that of all other Presidents in the nation's history, but he has exercised none of it to aid the Negro, he said.

Martin has accelerated his campaign in an effort to recapture the house seat he lost in 1942. He is teamed up with Rep. Charles J. Jenkins, who is serving his 7th consecutive term. Martin and Jenkins are colored.

Simultaneously, both Democratic nominees, Rep. George Garry Noonan, and Rep. Fred J. Smith, are conducting spirited campaigns. Noonan is serving his 13th term in the general assembly. Smith, a Negro, is finishing his first term, having won two years ago to give Democrats two house seats in the district.

War Fears Realized.

In his attack on the New Deal, Martin further declared: "Four years ago the Republican party predicted that Roosevelt would plunge this country into war despite his promise that our boys would not fight on foreign soil.

"Republicans forecast that the fourth term would bring a dictatorship to the United States, and this has come to pass. The country today is regimented under New Deal burocrats just as it would be under any form of dictatorship. No one can make me believe that rationing is necessary. It is just another New Deal plot to get Americans in the habit of doing what they are told.

Poll Tax Issue Raised.

"Roosevelt has forced congress to pass measures he knew were not Constitutional, and not once did he raise his voice in behalf of the anti-lynching bill or anti-poll tax bill.

"In a recent talk, Roosevelt urged all citizens to vote regardless of race, color, or creed—yet during his 12 years in office he has failed to encourage legislation which would have brought that opportunity to Negroes in the south. Moreover, he refused to permit his party at the Democratic national convention to go on record as being in favor of giving the Negro an opportunity to vote in the future.

Esteem Record of Dewey.

"Following similar lines, the Democrats refused to insert one plank in their platform which would aid Negroes in the post-war era. Because of this, thousands of Negroes are flocking to the Dewey-Bricker ticket."

Continuing, Martin said: "As governor of New York, Dewey has named more Negroes to outstanding positions than Roosevelt has appointed during his 12 years in office. Thus, it is emphatically borne out that the hope of our race rests in the election of Dewey and the Republican ticket.

"Roosevelt appeased the south by kicking Wallace off the ticket and selecting the southern senator, Harry S. Truman. Like all Americans, we plainly can see the greatest republic on earth being crucified by an un-American outlaw gang headed by such men as Sidney Hillman and Earl Browder. They are employing the same tactics in the United States that Lenin and Trotsky used in Russia to bring about the most severe dictatorship the world has ever known.

Fear Strong Dictatorship.

"This election is a matter of life and death, for if Roosevelt is returned to office, opportunity for Negroes forever will be dead in the America we have known for 160 years. Under our Constitutional form of government Negroes have progressed, and so long as we have a Constitution, Negroes can expect fair treatment. But once dictatorship is established firmly on this soil, the Negro, as a member of a minority group, is doomed forever," Martin concluded.

In the 13th senatorial district, Bernard Goodman, who sought the house of representatives nomination as a Democrat in the 1940 and 1942 primaries, and as a Republican last April, has announced his support of Rep. Ragnar G. Nelson and Edward Schneider, Republican house nominees in the 13th. Rep. Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R.], who has been speaker of the house for the last two of his 12 terms, did not seek office again.

Hits Bossism of Demo Pair.

Democratic nominees are Rep. John G. Ryan and Adam S. Mioduski. Ryan has been in the legislature since 1932. Mioduski served two terms before his defeat in 1942.

Goodman described his 1940 and 1942 primary ventures as an effort to break up the Ryan-Mioduski combination. "I understand there is a deal on among Democrats in the 13th district to dump Ryan in favor of Mioduski," Goodman said. "It is my aim to work for Rep. Nelson and Schneider for we do not want Ryan-Mioduski bossism to return."

CHAUNCEY REED HITS BUROCRACY AT EVERY TURN

Republican Congressman Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago, candidate for reëlection in the 11th district, has gained renown in 10 years of service in Washington as a foe of burocracy, which he recognizes as one of the greatest dangers to traditional American government.

"I have steadfastly opposed the delegation of additional powers to the executive branch and to burocracy," he said in a recent speech. "Federal burocrats are the breeders of government by directive, of the subordination of the people's elected representatives, and of the concentration of power in the hands of the few from whose decisions there is no appeal.

Hits Grade Labeling.

"Whether this is a revised brand of communism, socialism, or fascism, it is distinctly not Americanism. I have steadily been against the New Deal attempts to saddle socialized medicine and grade labeling on the public. Mothers should be permitted to choose for their own children the physician they want. Housewives must have the right to purchase groceries, if they like, by trade names familiar to them."

Reed is a veteran of the first World war and was the first commander of the Naperville post of the American Legion. He has been twice elected a national officer of the Legion's fun making organization, 40 and 8.

State's Attorney 14 Years.

For 14 years before his election to congress Reed was state's attorney of Du Page county, and in that capacity prosecuted a number of widely publicized criminal cases, including the daylight robbery and attempted murder of Arthur Cutten, millionaire broker. All of the bandit gang involved were sent to prison for long terms. He obtained murder verdicts against two killers, who were executed.

While state's attorney he was chosen twice as president of the State's Attorneys' Association of Illinois.

On Veterans' Committee.

Committees on which Reed has served in the house of representatives include those on World war veterans, the District of Columbia, coinage, and weights and measures. Of the last named he is ranking Republican member. He is also on the powerful judiciary committee.

The 11th district, which takes in McHenry, Kane, Du Page, and Will counties, is regarded as safely Republican and has never elected a Democratic congressman. However, Reed is not depending on his majority of 57,661 in 1942 to carry him over. He is campaigning actively against his Democratic opponent, Otto Joseph Hruby Jr.

BY MAURINE MYERS.

The only thing that worries Miss Avis Lee, 4733 Deming pl., is that "some day some one will insist that I get to work." For five year Miss Lee has been carving dolls for a living. Ten or 12 hours a day, six days a week, she sits in her bedroom-studio and turns out miniature Tom Sawyers, Huckleberry Finns, Topsies, and Tiny Tims. And she has so much fun doing it she feels a little guilty about the whole thing.

The 10-inch figures which come off Miss Lee's "production line" have won her quite a name among doll collectors all over the country. For special collections, she has made dolls of Lincoln as a boy, of Peter Stuyvesant with his silver banded wooden leg, of Stephen of Cloyes, and of Whistler's mother.

Pleasant and Profitable.

But the dolls currently marching off her carving table are the story book characters loved by children and adult collectors. Made for a collector's corner, some sell for as much as $25, which makes a pleasant vocation also profitable.

The doll business, for Miss Lee, began about five years ago. After she was graduated from Carl Schurz High school, she took a business course, and thereby presumably was fitted for a secretarial post. But she laughingly recalls that she "held" seven jobs during her first six day work week. She had started to do wood carving as a hobby, and her fingers always were cut and sore from the razors and knives she used. She couldn't get any speed out of a typewriter and had no great taste for her jobs.

Wraps Sketches with Parcels.

Then she turned to clerking. But she spent more time sketching customers on wrapping paper than she did in wrapping purchases. Finally came the decision she must keep the job and discard the hobby, or quit the job and make her living with the hobby. A window display of tiny figures inspired her to try carving dolls for collectors. The gift of a set of professional wood carving tools made the choice inevitable.

The first several years were pretty tough, she recalls. She hadn't perfected her methods, and production was a slow and tedious process. She felt lucky if her receipts reached $8 weekly.

Nowadays she can turn out a doll a day. "And they call me an artist," she laughs wryly as she sews up half a hundred tiny arms of muslin she has dyed flesh color. Most of the work, she points out, is routine. But still it's fun.

No Helpers Wanted.

The shops are clamoring for more and still more of her little dolls, such as the tiny Mennonite couple, with the girl carrying a pot of red geraniums, and the boy, in his broad brimmed black hat, with a white hen tucked under his arm. "But I'm my own worst bottleneck," Miss Lee admits. "Some one else could sew up the arms, and stuff them and the bodies properly. Some one else could do the routine work of sewing arms on bodies, and roughing out the wooden blocks for the heads. That would leave me with only the final carving, and the custuming. But I can't bear to let any one else touch these youngsters."

Miss Lee's inspirations come from many sources. Clippings from magazines and newspapers, and sketches made in street cars and elevated trains cram a drawer in her studio. Currently she is making portrait dolls, working from snapshots of the child. For children's librarians, she makes story book characters come alive.

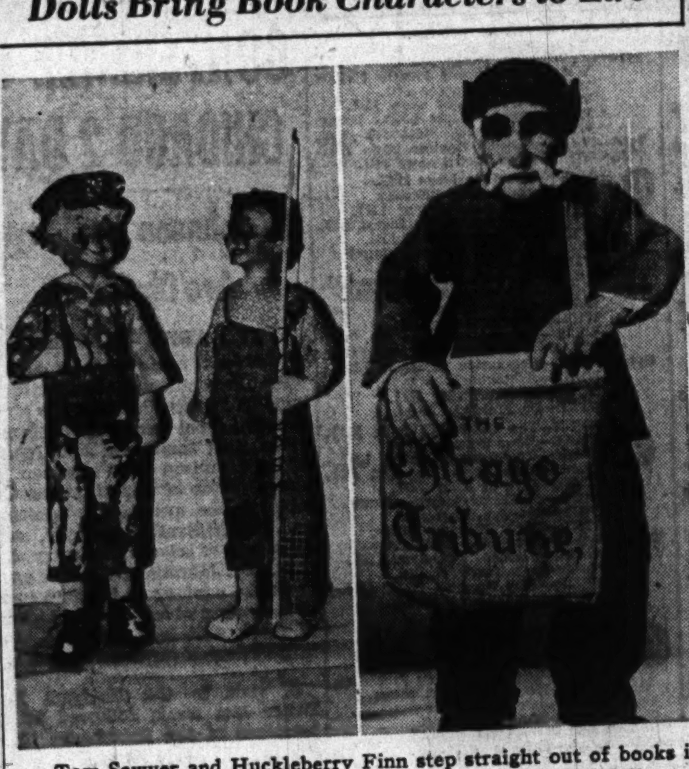
Compositions by Sibelius, Weber, and Debussy will be featured on Symphony Hall from 8:30 to 9:30 p. m. Tuesday on W-G-N and WGNB. Henry Weber will conduct the W-G-N Syhphony orchestra. His Symphony No. 2 will highlight the full hour program of classical music. The orchestra will open the program with the overture to "Euryanthe," by Carl Mario von Weber. "La Demoiselle," by Debussy, will also be presented.

Ethel Barrymore Colt on Distinguished Guest Hour

Ethel Barrymore Colt, daughter of the famous Ethel Barrymore and a star of the theater and operatic stage herself, will make a guest appearance on the Distinguished Guest hour over W-G-N from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. today. She will tell of her experiences in the theater.

Dolls Bring Book Characters to Life



Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn step straight out of books in the dolls created by Miss Avis Lee, 4733 Deming pl. Many collectors treasure the figures Miss Lee has carved. Adding to their attractiveness are such realistic touches as the whitewash brush which drips down Tom Sawyer's trousers and onto his shoes, and Huck Finn's torn overalls, bandaged toe, and fishing pole. At the right (top) is another of Miss Lee's character dolls, a study of the news dealer who was a familiar figure in Garfield park for many years. This doll was patterned after quick sketches Miss Lee made of the dealer as she passed in the elevated train.

HOUSE PAINTING IN AUTUMN HAS ITS ADVANTAGES

Sun Has Surfaces in Prime Shape.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There are many advantages to fall painting, as days are mostly bright and sunny without being too hot, and the temperature in the daylight hours is well above freezing and ideal for painting. Then, too, surfaces have become well dried out by the summer sun and are in prime shape to take paint and other protective and decorative finishes.

Insects are fewer in autumn and the annoyance of finding them in freshly applied paint is gone. Still another advantage is that in many instances shrubbery, except for the evergreen variety, will have dropped its leaves and it is easier to paint behind it. The same applies to vines.

Let Sun Dry Dew.

While all seasons of the year are favorable to interior painting, it is true that on bright autumn days plenty of ventilation is possible thru open doors and windows, and if there are objectionable odors, these are not hard to disperse by active ventilation.

Paint experts advise that before starting to paint it is wise usually to let the morning sun dry the dew or other moisture which can accumulate on an exterior surface during the night. If there has been a frost, let this melt and the moisture dry and the temperature rise to the proper degree for painting.

Clean Off Dried Paint.

In most cases, paint experts believe it is wise to avoid exterior painting when the temperature is under 50 degrees. If the day is cool one can start painting on the sunny side of the house and then follow the sun around the building.

The surface to be painted should always be swept or brushed and if old paint is cracked or scaly, a wire brush should be used and also a scraper or putty knift. Any metal downspouts, gutters, or other outside metal work should be scraped or sandpapered.

OLD GANG STILL THERE IN JOE'S TAILORING SHOP

Morgan Park youths who congregated at Joe Basco's tailor shop, 223 W. 111th st., before the war still may keep in touch with each other thru Joe's information bureau for service men in the area.

In the window of his shop are 125 pictures of soldiers, sailors, and marines who depend on Joe for news of former schoolmates and friends in the military services. There is also a collection of Japanese money and a bullet riddled flag bearing the rising sun emblem, brought from Munda by Pvt. David R. Thompson, Morgan Park.

Gets Letters from Africa, India.

"Many of the boys who used to drop into my shop when on furlough asked about their friends who had joined the service while they were at camp," Joe explained. "Sometimes I received letters from India or Africa from boys requesting me to get the address of their old buddies. Then I got the idea to start an information bureau in the store so these boys still could be together—as they were in the old days.

"A year ago I wrote to 10 of the boys asking them to send their pictures. I placed the pictures in my store window, and kept their letters and addresses on file. Gradually every boy in the neighborhood who joined the service brought or sent his picture to me. Post cards began coming from all parts of the world with addresses of Morgan Park boys who wanted to have their names and pictures placed on file," Joe said.

Wife Helps with Mail.

When Joe Basco's cleaning and tailoring business is heavy, his wife, Helen takes over the task of answering his mail.

"The train is just a block from my store and the boys always come to see me first, when they arrive here on furlough. Sometimes they bring souvenirs from foreign countries with them, for use in the store display window," he said.

Joe laid aside a heavy bolt of serge cloth as he spoke. He glanced at the pictures in the window, thinking of other days.

Got Their Long Pants from Joe.

"The store is rather empty and quiet, now that they are so far away. I remember when they were youngsters with nothing more serious than a ball game on their minds. Some of them had their first pair of long pants tailored here, and as they got older they consulted me on styles and colors to wear. A few of the boys came here to have their officer's uniforms made," Joe said.

"I want them to feel that Morgan Park and the old familiar landmarks will be here when they geat back. Perhaps my information bureau has helped to bring them more closely together."

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 23.

Now that the ground is crusting over with frost and the outdoor plants have entered into their annual resting period, the gardener may thing his garden activities have ceased. Such is not the case, for work may continue whenever the weather is suitable for one to be outdoors.

Tuesday, Oct. 24.

Unless weather conditions prevent it, the perennial borders still can be made or constructed, but if the soil is dry wait until later, even tho it must be carried over until spring. See that the space around late hardy lilies is covered to keep out frost. Some lily bulbs arrive very late and space must be prepared beforehand for planting in rich, unfrozen soil.

Wednesday, Oct. 25.

Clear all dead weeds in the garden to prevent existing seeds from falling and developing next season. Many already have fallen and the result will be more weed killing later on.

Kill all weeds to kill seeds. This applies also to the home yard. Kill the weeds that grow along alley fences. Feeding trees is important for most of them suffer from a lack of food. Tree food or fertilizer can be supplied now and mixtures are available at the large supply houses.

Thursday, Oct. 26.

Tulips can be planted as long as the ground is not frozen and bulbs are obtainable. Water should be drained from sprinkling systems and the hose and it is wise to move everything indoors for protection against winter weather.

Friday, Oct. 27.

Stone clips are recommended for protection for rock garden plants, for when placed carefully around each plant they prevent heaving and washing of the soil. Work them up close to each plant, but be careful not to cover the crowns. Pine needles also are excellent where they are available. Marsh hay will suffice.

For perennials try using corn stalks between the plants and cover with a few leaves or straw, the stalks will give plenty of air spaces and prevent smothering. Roses often are planted just before freezing weather, but usually the work is done in spring in the middle west.

Saturday, Oct. 28.

Keep flowering pot plants in good condition by keeping them as cool as possible, especially at night, and never allow them to suffer from lack of water. This applies especially to pot chrysanthemums at this time. Their pots are filled with roots and require examining each day. Do not bring the bulbous plants to the light until they are thoroly rooted, otherwise they will produce an abundance of leaves at the expense of flowers. This applies to the tulips and some narcissi.

Paperwhite and Chinese sacred lily are easily grown and furnish excellent bloom. Watch the house plants for insect pests and start spraying immediately if any are seen. Turn the plants once a week to prevent the foliage from turning toward the light.

THEATER OF AIR TO OFFER GIRL SCOUT SALUTE

As a salute to the Girl Scouts of America, the Chicago Theater of the Air will present an original musical-dramatic Halloween fantasy titled "Peter and the Pumpkin" over W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast to coast Mutual network from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak on the program.

Colleen Moore, former movie actress, will be a special guest on the program, speaking in behalf of Girl Scout week, to be celebrated from Oct. 29 to Nov. 4.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber will provide the musical accompaniment. Bruce Foote, baritone, and Virginia Haskins, soprano, will be the soloists. John Barclay and Hope Summers will take the leading dramatic roles and they will be supported by Laurette Fillbrandt, Lucille Dodge, Rita Ascot, Norman Gottschalk, and Ray Suber.

Debussy Sketches.

The Cleveland orchestra, under the direction of Vladimir Golschmann, will offer three symphonic sketches from Debussy's "La Mer" on W-G-N-Mutual at 11 o'clock tonight.

SCHOOL RADIO CONFERENCE IN CHICAGO 2 DAYS

Dr. Johnson and Bryson Are Chairmen.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Problems of educational broadcasting will be considered at the eighth annual School Broadcast conference to be held tomorrow and Tuesday at the Morrison hotel. Lyman Bryson, director of education for CBS, will be the permanent chairman, and Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, honorary chairman. Dr. Johnson will be the speaker at the conference banquet tomorrow evening when the annul awards of merit will be announced. Sterling Fisher of NBC will preside.

A visit to the National Barn Dance last week, followed by the premiere of the Paramount movie bearing the same name and including Bob Benchley and the radio cast, left us with the conviction that the radio barn dance is a natural for television. The WLS show is filled with action and the players are all in colorful garb. It's an easy show to look at. Not all radio shows are. Incidentally, Pat Buttram makes out quite a case for himself as a comedian, in the picture.

Which Is Which, a variety show with a quiz angle, will make its bow over CBS at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday. Ken Murray will be master of ceremonies. The idea is to mix variety with a test involving guests and their vocal doubles. Guests will be Frank Morgan, Kate Smith, Basil Rathbone, and Ted Lewis.

Harold Lloyd, veteran comedian of the silent movie days, has signed for his first radio job. He will serve as host and director for the new Comedy Theater which will replace the Les Tremayne-Jack Gleason series on NBC at 9:30 Sunday nights, starting Oct. 29. Lloyd has been on the air only briefly before—once from Honolulu and once from London. First guests will be Claudette Colbert and Robert Young.

Harriet O'Rourke, Chicago Music Festival winner and well known thruout the west for her radio and concert appearances, will appear in the Singing Cinderella concert with John Baker, baritone, over W-G-N-Mutual at 8 tonight.

Arthur Murray, who has been known as a dance expert for decades, will introduce a dancing course via television on the Dumont station, WABD, in New York, starting Oct. 29. No, you will not be able to see-hear the show in Chicago.

TOSCANINI WILL OPEN BEETHOVEN FESTIVAL TODAY

Arturo Toscanini will direct the NBC Symphony orchestra in a nine week Beethoven festival which begins on the Symphony of the Air hour at 4 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. Today's concert marks the opening of the program's winter series and Toscanini's eighth season with the orchestra.

Regarded as one of the foremost interpreters of Beethoven music, Toscanini is to start the Beethoven cycle by conducting the composer's Symphony No. 1 in C major and his Symphony No. 8 in F major. The two final broadcasts of the cycle will be devoted to a presentation of Beethoven's only opera, "Fidelio."

Orson Welles Guest.

Orson Welles will be featured as a guest on the Charlie McCarthy-Edgar Bergen show over WMAQ-NBC at 7 o'clock tonight.

This Appears to Be a Good Season for 'Othello'

Opera Revival and Play with Robeson Billed

By Claudia Cassidy.

"Othello" or the Italian "Otello"—Shakespeare alone in his glory or set to some of the most dramatic music yet written for the lyric stage—this looks like a good season for both. For weeks the telephone and mailbag have been clamoring to know when Paul Robeson arrives in Margaret Webster's record breaking revival, and the date so far is April 10, at the end of the tour, so the production can settle down for a run. But the opera revival rings up its curtain at the Civic Opera house next Saturday afternoon, with Giovanni Martinelli as the Moor, Rose Bampton as Desdemona, and Lawrence Tibbett as Iago, the Verdian equivalents of Robeson, Uta Hagen, and Jose Ferrer in the Theater Guild play.

Paul Robeson.

Chicago opera held "Otello" in the standard repertory for years, largely as a vehicle for Charles Marshall, but performances of the play have been few and far between in this generation. We saw it last in federal theater days when Ian Keith amused himself by playing both the Moor and his crafty tomenter, thus avoiding the torture of deciding which was the better role. A versatile actor has as much trouble choosing between Othello and Iago as between Romeo and Mercutio. Brian Aherne settled for the gadflies, probably on the theory that they usually steal the show. But Miss Webster's production was planned for Paul Robeson, the first Negro in many years to play Otello, an imaginative piece of casting extraordinarily right in appearance, tho controversial in performance.

Verdi solved the casting problem, and complicated it, by making the role of Otello so formidable only a dramatic tenor of great power and sweeping range can hope to compass its emotional scope or conquer its terrifying tessitura. But he also gave the baritone Iago a role of great brilliance in musical characterization, built on the cornerstone of the torrent of malevolence that is the credo. And being a rich man, as music went, he gave Desdemona the last act treasure of the Willow Song and the "Ave Maria," all leading to the climax that is the death of Otello.

If you are lucky, you may own a record of that stricken song by the very Francesco Tamagno chosen by Verdi to create the role at La Scala back in 1887. Verdi was 74 then, and had written no opera for 16 years, tho "Falstaff" was to follow "Otello." Fortune was with him, because Arrigo Boito, composer of "Mefistofele" and "Nerone," was the poet who adapted Shakespeare to opera with credit to both. Tamagno sang "Otello" here at the Auditorium in 1890, with Albani as Desdemona, and he sang it at the Metropolitan in New York during that period, with Maurel, the original Iago. It isn't drama for weaklings, operatic or otherwise. Just as the play drew such figures as Kean, Booth, Salvini, Barrett, and Mantell, the opera attracted sopranos of the caliber of Melba and Tetrazzini, with Leo Siezak [father of the actor, Walter Siezak] as a Moor of later renown, appearing with Scotti as Iago.

Our resident opera first staged "Otello" in 1911 with Zerola, Sammarco, and Korolewicz, but the opera really came into its own as an accepted part of the repertory in 1920 when Charles Marshall made his debut in the title role, with Rosa Raisa as Desdemona and Titta Ruffo to sing his fabulous performance of the Credo. Marshall was a sensation, and tho no other role ever duplicated that success for him, his Otello remained a triumph. After Raisa's unforgotten Desdemona, the role was sung by Anna Fitziu [who spells it Fitzu now because when she was ill a numerologist told her she never would get well with that i in her name], Marion Claire and Claudia Muzio, while Rimini, Schwarz, Formichi, and Vanni-Marcoux were the Iagos.

RUTH GORDON

[Lucas-Pritchard Photo.]

Then for a while we had no dramatic tenor for the title role, tho the late Aroldo Linde made a brave start with the San Carlo revival. Lauritz Melchior has sung it with success, as his records indicate, but not in this country, which chains him to Wagner, a fact which must irk him now and then, for all the gold and jewels lavished on the links. "Otello" was rescued from the shelf by Giovanni Martinelli, whose repertory holds more than 50 operas. He added the Moor [and that valiant but less triumphant Tristan] to the list, and first sang the opera here in 1936, with Edith Mason as Desdemona and with Lawrence Tibbett making his Chicago opera début as Iago. Martinelli and Tibbett sang in our last performance, two seasons ago, with Stella Roman.

It may be that Tibbett is the man to turn a new trick by appearing not only in both roles, but on both the singing and speaking stages. At any rate, Basil Rathbone long has been trying to persuade Tibbett to play Othello to his Iago. Tibbett remonstrates, "Not with my face," deprecating the catlike visage so much a part of his vivid stage equipment. But if he does decide to do it, some of these days, he will be stepping into another Robeson role. Only he did "Emperor Jones" with music.

Fausto Cleva, our new artistic director, evidently believes in deploying his forces to make rehearsals count, so the second week of opera holds three repetitions, only two with a major change of cast. Mr. Martinelli replaces Kurt Baum in Wednesday night's "Carmen," which otherwise retains the first night cast, including Gladys Swarthout, Christina Carroll, and Alexander Sved. Monday's "Traviata" again features Bidu Sayao and Robert Weeds, this time with Mario Berini, while Saturday night's "Boheme" offers Marjory Hess, Nino Martini, Richard Bonelli, Christina Carrol, and Virgilio Lazzari.

"Il Trovatore" has its first performance of the season Friday night on the Board of Education series, with Zinka Milanov, Kerstin Thorborg, Kurt Baum, Richard Bonelli, and Virgilio Lazzari heading the cast. Mr. Cleva, a busy man indeed, does all the conducting except for "Trovatore," which tenders its baton to Giuseppe Bamboschek, just added to the list of conductors. Lily Pons' fans may remember Mr. Bamboschek as the chubby accompanist who sat down at the piano, riffled a book of songs, couldn't find what he wanted, trotted offstage and brought back another book, riffled that one, then discovered the song was in the first one all the time. Miss Pons enjoyed it, and so did the audience and Mr. Bamboschek.

THE HIDDEN TOWN

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

(Copyright: 1944: By F. R. Bechdolt.)

INSTALMENT IX.

THE constable was making noises when they left by the front door. The street was still empty and Pete Escobar was in the blacksmith shop.

"I was sort of hoping you'd come back," he said. "Now I will go get my hoss."

"Sheriff's coming," Beulah announced from the doorway a moment later. "And Yardley too. What could be sweeter? Get going while the going's good. I'll handle the rear guard action."

Harvey didn't waste time asking her what that last meant. He was in the bed of the big ditch which the county road crew had dug last spring to carry off flood waters during the winter rains when he heard the uproar of a high powered motor with its muffler cut out. He had reached the grove of gum trees in Dutra's pasture before the noise of another speeding car drifted over from Escondido's main street.

The rear guard, he told himself, was getting into action. A few moments later he saw Pete riding leisurely across the vacant lots toward his hiding place.

The huge gum trees had been planted more than forty years ago, when nearly every rancher in northern California was obsessed by the idea that there was a fortune to be made from eucalyptus wood. Their pale stems were shaggy with shedding bark and they were so close together that you couldn't see what lay twenty feet ahead of you. The grove was an ideal hiding place, and it happened that Harvey wasn't the only one who was using it this morning.

Hither Manuel Soto and his brother Pedro had come just as the day was breaking. The former was bearing a good-sized jute sack upon his back. The sack was bulging and a dark stain was spreading over its lower portion. To one initiated in the habits of Escondido's paisanos the sight of this burden would immediately suggest the probability that some neighboring rancher was going to miss a calf within the next day or two. To one familiar with the Soto brothers the sight would bring certainty.

Aware of these facts the pair had separated here before the sun had risen. And Manuel was awaiting Pedro's return with the decrepit old jalopy which was the Soto family's pride. He had in fact grown weary of waiting. For how was he to know that his brother was standing entranced in the forefront of the audience gathered around Harvey Little's roadster? Manuel was lying on his back at the foot of a gum tree with his head on the sack and he was half asleep when the sound of voices roused him. He scrambled to his feet and he was thinking that he would give that lazy Pedro a piece of his mind for bringing another along to share the good veal, when he realized that neither of those voices belonged to his brother.

There wasn't a breath of wind stirring and the voices were within a few yards of the tree behind which he was hiding. He could hear every word the pair were saying:

"That man you told me about when I came to the blacksmith shop. You said he can send Yardley to the gas chamber in San Quentin."

Manuel Soto did not stir. No need to risk discovery by looking forth to confirm the speakers' identity. He had known Harvey Little ever since he was a little boy.

"Me, I don't know who that man is." There was no mistaking this deep bass. It belonged to Pete Escobar. "I only know the man he told it to. Ees name is Joe Murphy. E'es working a one man mine across the hills. Quicksilver. Mebby he can tell you where the other one is. An' you don't need to keep the road to get to his mine, Harvey. It is in Wildcat canyon. Head for the main ridge, that way nobody sees you. Follow the ridge south until you are above the Agua Fria spring. Then strike off due east, right down the canyon. My hoss he is a fast walker, and he is fresh."

A moment later the sound of receding hoofbeats came thru the trees and Manuel Soto lay down again with his head upon the sack of meat.

In Queensburg Eddie Morton was up and about before Harvey had left the Plaza tavern to go downtown in Escondido, Eddie was facing the bartender in the Rodeo taproom and he was asking a question which the bartender had heard many times—but never more fervently put than it was then.

"Sure I can make a gin fizz," the bartender told him with sedate benignity. "I learned how to mix drinks before anybody excepting Carrie Nation thought of prohibition. Bartenders were bartenders in those days. Now they're nothing but glorified soda jerkers." He placed a metal shaker on the counter and poured a generous slug of gin into it. He added other ingredients.

"I think," Eddie told him a few seconds later, "that I could stand another."

"On the house," the bartender announced when he pushed the next glass forward. "And I'd take it slower if I was you. Give it a chance to cool the pipes as it goes down."

The coffee shop of Queensburg's best hotel opened off from the taproom. Here Eddie ordered a substantial breakfast, of which he consumed only a half slice of toast and less than half a cup of coffee. There was, he consoled himself, plenty of nourishment in those two fizzes to do a man until lunch time. Then he remembered that John Yardley would be awaiting him right now in Escondido. Okay, he told himself, let Yardley wait.

It was the first return of assertiveness since he had faced the Alcalde last night. On his way to his office he considered the advisability of one more gin fizz and decided to postpone it until he had finished a bit of business which he had in mind.

The lawyer who had filed the attachment suit for the furniture company's collection agency was a competitor of his for police and justice court cases, and neither of them held the slightest respect for the other, which was quite logical. The gin fizzes and the realization that he was, comparatively speaking, solvent for the time being, were doing things to Eddie when he took the phone receiver from its cradle to call up his brother barrister. The conversation which followed was dignified on both sides. The only hit which the other scored in this verbal joust was his insistance on a cashier's check to satisfy the claim. And this was a mere scratch.

Queensburg's banking hours began at 10 in the morning, but if you were known you could get in by rapping on the door any time after nine. Eddie made his deposit, bought the cashier's check, mailed it and took time out for two more fizzes. It was nearing 9:30 when he was driving past the service station at the forks of the Escondido road.

He didn't see Beulah's big sedan speeding toward him until it was almost on top of him, and all that he saw then was a thick cloud of dust. Traction was poor here and she was pulling out of a skid; she passed so close that he was still expecting to feel the shock of the collision when she was two hundred yards beyond. It brought back the vivid memory of what had taken place on this same stretch of road less than twenty-four hours ago, and his nerves were still shaky a few minutes later.

He was coming into a sharp curve on the side road among the hills when the moan of a siren smote his senses like the voice of avenging fate. It rose to a thin shriek as he was pulling off the road and the sheriff's car shot by. It had gone a good half mile before he realized that the clamor of that siren wasn't meant for him. He hadn't recovered the shock when he drove into Escondido. There was, of course, only one thing to do.

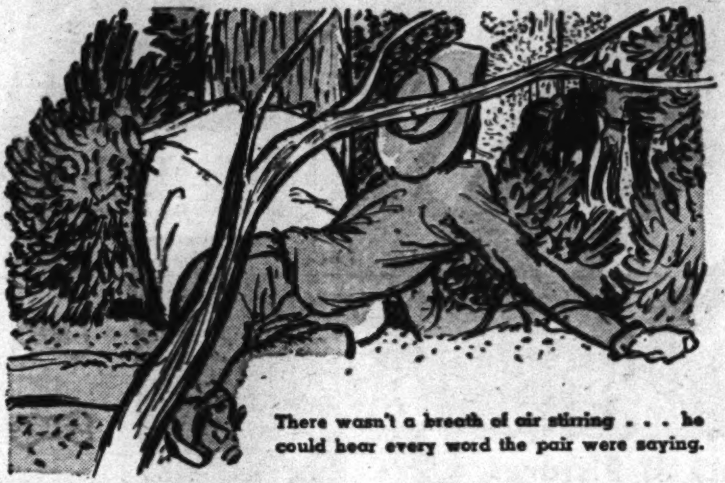
Escondido's drinking place had never been called a taproom. In fact, it had never ceased functioning as a saloon during the years of national prohibition. The room was long and its ceiling was low. There was not a stool in it; the back bar mirror was adorned with a landscape done in soap. There were two poker tables in the rear and the walls were placarded with mottoes. These had been painted by an itinerant Basque whose sense of humor would have startled old Rabelais. The proprietor's Portuguese wife, who had a pretty fair mustache and an imposing bosom, was tending bar. And a pair of swarthy vaqueros were arguing loudly at the far end of the battered counter when Eddie entered. He ordered a gin fizz.

The lady behind the bar gave him a bewildered look. He pulled himself together and said:

"O, make it brandy." He filled the pony glass from the bottle and swallowed its contents in a single gulp. He heard the voice of Pete Escobar.

"An' I bet you my next month's wages," Pete declared, "it was not Harvey Little."

Eddie poured himself another drink. It was his intention to leave as soon as he had downed it. He was wishing those fellows would quit wrangling. He was wishing he could get a moment's peace in which to collect his thoughts before he went to face John Yardley. But the voice of the other vaquero was beyond ignoring.



There wasn't a breath of air stirring . . . he could hear every word the pair were saying.

"Jos' because yo' like somebody," the vaquero said, "ees no reason for you should be a fool, Pete. I tell you that I was standing by Harvey Little's car an' I see that body weeth my own eyes, an' I heard the deputy sheriff saying that the Alcalde saw Harvey Little taking that body to the car. He was driving a burro, an' Anastasia Rodriguez was packed on that burro's back. An' not one half of an hour ago Harvey Little knocks Hay Belly cold when Hay Belly comes into Doc Munra's store to arrest him. An' now Beulah Smeeth is driving her beeg car down the road like a bat out of hell to catch them. An' thees is the straight goods, Pete."

Eddie paid for his drinks and left the place. For the life of him he could not understand what had made Harvey resist arrest and flee. The brandy of Escondido was a home made product and it was extremely swift to act. If it hadn't been for an insidious sense of well being which was stealing over him, he might have devoted more thought to this. But his mind was traveling along another and a pleasant line. As matters now stood he was no longer in danger of being charged with last night's murder. And if he played his cards right there was no reason why he couldn't reopen the old case against the Alcalde later on. The fact that the latter had offered false information which cleared him of possible suspicion didn't bother Eddie in the slightest. He was as near to cocky as a man can come who has spent a sleepless night with the dread of the execution chamber for company, when he entered the bank.

John Yardley received Eddie in the little office where he transacted his more private business. He said:

"Sit down. You've been drinking." Eddie did not trouble to answer. He settled himself in a chair and lighted a cigaret.

"Why in the devil," he asked, "do you suppose Little ran away?"

The Alcalde scowled. He said:

"You're late and you've been drinking."

"You said that once before," Eddie reminded him.

"And," Yardley continued evenly, "you act like a man who has been hearing good news about himself. You haven't got it into your head that you're anyways in the clear as far as what happened last night is concerned, have you?"

Eddie laughed pleasantly. "Something like that," he admitted. "You put the finger on Harvey Little and that lets me out. I ought to have thanked you when I came in, I suppose."

"Don't bother to do it," the Alcalde said, "and don't believe all you hear in Escondido. You were raised here. You ought to know better. I ain't a fool. And I ain't figuring on letting go of you just yet."

"You're not trying to tell me that you didn't send for the sheriff and——" Eddie fell silent. He said to himself: I might have known!

"I sent for the sheriff," Yardley told him, "and I informed him that I saw a man driving a burro with a body on its back; and that I saw the man put the body into Little's car. And I described the party that I saw. I said he looked like Little. The two of you are nearly the same build, you know. And, if I was to change my statement because I had seen you since, and it had freshened my memory—isn't anybody could find fault with that, is there?"

Eddie was sobering off. It was a swift process and it was not pleasant.

"And that," John Yardley added, "isn't all of it either. Estaban Valdez has been getting seven stitches in his scalp and he isn't even as good as usual. I thought somebody ought to take a look around after the sheriff went away, and being as there wasn't anybody else, I handled the job myself. There's a whole bunch of footprints in the old olive grove: prints of two men and one burro. And a lot of dried blood in the wild oats. When the sheriff returns he would be interested to know about them. And on my way back to the bank I ran against Rosa who waits on table in the tavern. She was looking for me. She said that she heard the Huntoon girl telling young Little at breakfast this morning that she was walking past the olive grove last evening and that you came running out of the trees. She said she never saw anybody look as scared as you did.

"So," the Alcalde nodded, "it makes small difference to me. If you go to the execution chamber, you'll not be bringing up that old scandal. But if they arrest you for that killing, you're not of any use to me, and I can't see any reason why I should protect you after you go to jail."

Eddie was holding his head in his hands. "That girl!" he muttered.

"That girl," Yardley nodded. "There's the point. I've already said that I don't intend to get mixed up in this business, and maybe I went too far when I informed the sheriff about that body, but if it's necessary this—as I've told you—can be amended. And now I'm going to bring up a fact that you already realize, but you haven't got the nerve to acknowledge it—you've got to get rid of that girl, or face a murder charge. No getting around it, my friend. And furthermore, you're going to do it in the way I tell you to do it. You've got a faculty for botching up this sort of thing when you try to handle it by yourself. You——" He broke off abruptly —— "There she is now!"

"Very well." The Alcalde's voice was as crisp as if he were telling his elderly woman assistant to foreclose on a mortgage. "Go over there and let her in. Slip into the back room and don't let her hear you unlock the outer door. I don't know what sort of business she's come for, but it's something in connection with this old scandal which you were trying to rake up. She'll tell you about it and she'll probably want some advice. When she asks it, make some excuse—that's one thing you're good at—and go into the back room again. I'll be there to give you instructions."

He bent his bleak eyes on Eddie and he shook his head.

"Pull yourself together! Face the facts. It isn't a pleasant job—but there's nothing pleasant about the San Quentin gas chamber, and that's where you're going if you don't get rid of her."

The Nell Huntoon whom the Alcalde saw on the stairs to Eddie Morton's office this morning was a different girl than the one who had talked matters over, in that same room, yesterday afternoon. Things had been happening to her since Harvey Little had left her at the door of the House of the Four Winds.

The old house backed toward the east and its front was in the shadow. When she opened the door the gloom in the wide hall was deeper than it had been yesterday afternoon. It brought again the one faint memory which had abided with her during these last 18 years, and as it had been in those days when she was a little girl, so now she hurried down its length, seeking the brighter light beyond.

The morning sunshine was streaming thru the kitchen windows. The overripe wild oats on the hillside across the narrow flat were rippling in the breeze and she heard the soft, sweet call of the wild doves among the great live oaks on the first ridge. She noticed a cloth poster on the watering trough, and she read the warning notice of the state board of health which announced that the trough was quarantined. The dead sheep had been removed and a dozen fires were blazing where their bodies had lain. It happened that the wind was drawing toward the hills just then. She saw that one of the fires had crept into a clump of sagebrush, but she thought nothing of this at the time.

She was turning from the window when she heard a swift footstep in the hallway. She went to the door and opened it and she saw a small shape hurrying toward her in the dimness.

"I am Theresa," the shape announced "an' I come to do the work. I don' theenk you remember me?" Her voice was gentle, and when she walked into the brightness of the kitchen she looked incredibly fragile. She must have been well past 70, for her hair was as white as snow, and the lines were deep on her dark face; her body was bent, and her smile did not reveal a single tooth. She said:

"You were so small w'en you was here before that I could hold you up in one hand."

Nell was smiling. "Now I remember you. You paddled me once. It was out there in the front hallway." The old woman was laughing softly. "Becos you played the mud pies in your w'ite dress and I had tol' you not to go out there by the water trough. It was your father tol' me that I should do this. But now I go to my work."

In the doorway she paused. "Your father was a fine man," she said, and then she closed the door behind her.

What Has Gone Before

Nell Huntoon writes to Edward Morton Jr. to review a murder charge against her dead father. Eddie is in financial difficulties and decides if he can incriminate Yardley, a banker known as the Alcalde, it will mean ready money. Yardley has a fear the past will catch up with him. Anthrax is prevalent in the hills. Yardley forces Ursula to get him wool from a dead sheep. At a service station Nell meets Beulah Smith; Harvey Little, son of the man her father was accused of killing, and Anastasia Rodriguez. The service station man is killed by a hit-and-run driver. Anastasia picks up something from the road. From Eddie Nell learns her father and Jim Little were partners, and the latter was killed while talking to her father. Anastasia demands $500 from Eddie for the metal hub cap from his car, and Eddie contemplates murder. Nell is prevented from drinking the poisoned spring water by Harvey, who persuades her to move to the tavern. Nell and Beulah see a prospector, with two burros, whom Beulah had grubstaked 20 years ago. After killing the Mexican with Yardley's hammer Eddie meets Nell. Eddie ties the body to one of the burros with a rope taken from Harvey's car. From his window Yardley sees Eddie and the burro pass by. Arming himself, he follows, watches Eddie stow the body in the trunk of Harvey's car. He demands the hub cap and car keys and orders Eddie to bring the hammer to him. At daybreak, after reopening the trunk and placing the keys in Harvey's car, Yardley notifies the sheriff. Pete Escobar, up in the hills, sees Yardley's strange actions. Harvey has breakfast with Nell and they decide that together they will ferret out the truth. Pete Escobar warns Harvey and tells him there is one man who can send Yardley to the gas chamber.

IF YOU "HATE EXERCISE" AND "LOVE TO EAT"—

Here's a New Lazy-Way to REDUCE —Quickly and Safely

10-Day Miracle Diet—Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days!—and Still Eat 3 Delicious, Satisfying Meals a Day; Not Do a Bit of Extra Exercise!

YES, it's true—this new 10-Day MIRACLE DIET—thanks to the latest discoveries in the science of weight control! Now—WHETHER YOU ARE A MAN OR A WOMAN—you can lose 10 pounds in 10 days, 30 pounds or more within 3 months, comfortably, pleasantly, healthfully. WITHOUT forcing yourself through strenuous, difficult exercises. WITHOUT taking dangerous reducing pills or drugs. WITHOUT sweating miserably in steam baths or spending money for massages. And WITHOUT suffering the dizziness, nausea, and mental torture of self-imposed starvation!

The whole secret lies in the food you eat—not just how much food, but also which kinds of food. And it isn't (as you may have always imagined) merely a matter of "calories." It's the kind of calories that makes the difference! Some foods are high in fat-producing calories. Others are high in energy-producing calories. If you merely cut down the amount of food you eat—without seeing to it that you get more energy-calories than fat-calories—you don't lose weight at all. Instead, your body simply "slows down," and continues to store fat.

What Is This Amazing Secret?

What's more, you'll eat three delicious, fully-satisfying meals a day, including a big breakfast. You'll be allowed to "snack" between meals. And this remarkable new scientific lazy-way to lose weight—described in the fascinating book, "The New Way to Eat and Get Slim," by Donald G. Cooley—brings you not only a slimmer, more attractive figure, but also greater health and beauty as well! Your skin will become smoother and clearer . . . your hair softer, more lustrous . . . your eyes more sparkling. You will have more energy, more pep, more get-up-and-go.

These days many people think they already know about calories. But do they really? Suppose you had to choose between a large glass of orange juice and half a sirloin steak? You would probably reach for the orange juice. But, as a matter of fact, the sirloin steak would give you 15 times as many of those precious ENERGY-calories. And yet the total number of calories in each is roughly the same!

What This Book Can Do For You

Mr. Cooley's book shows you quickly and clearly how to apply this simple principle of selecting energy-calories instead of fat-calories. It gives you a "10-Day Miracle Diet" by which you lose a pound a day for 10 days; a diet for losing 10 pounds in 30 days; a "tapering off" diet for losing 8½ pounds in 30 days; and a "Stay-Slim" diet, so that when you reach your desired weight, you can STAY there.

And you don't have to adhere rigidly to these diets, either; the book's special Substitution Table gives you dozens of meats, and other foods which you may eat instead. The partial contents shown on this page can only suggest a few of the many ways this book goes about improving your figure, health, appearance, and general disposition.

Ballet Theater Ready to Pounce on Opera House Nov. 24

THAT'S Ballet Theater you see in the offing, ready to pounce on the Civic Opera house the instant the opera closes. There will be 14 performances from Nov. 24 thru Dec. 3, with the usual week-end matinées, and the most potent lures include the return of Tamara Toumanova as guest star on leave from Hollywood, and the Chicago début of "Fancy Free," the sailor ballet once called "39 Buttons," by Jerome Robbins, Leonard Bernstein, and Oliver Smith, whose combined age is less than 75. The poignant "Pillar of Fire" will be back, of course, with Nora Kaye in her best role, and there is a new Balanchine ballet, "Waltz Academy," set in a Russian rehearsal room to music of Rieti, with costumes and scenery by Doboujinsky, while the grand pas de deux from the third act of "Swan Lake" has been added to the repertory, as well as David Lichine's "Graduation Ball," the Straussian afterpiece first danced here by the Ballet Russe. No word has yet arrived as to whether Lichine and Riabouchinska will come along for their original roles.

Tamara Toumanova.

But cross off Anton Dolin. The minute Beatrice Lillie landed in New York from London Billy Rose wiped a clammy brow and got in there pitching on "Seven Lively Arts," due to reopen the Ziegfeld, Dec. 7. Markova and Dolin, as you know, are to star in it, along with the matchless Lillie, Bert Lahr, and Benny Goodman, and Stravinsky has written a new ballet for them, which Balanchine says is good. William Schuman has written music for the show, too, and it has sketches by Moss Hart, scenery by Norman Bel Geddes, and clothes by Valentina, while Ben Hecht is on the job, according to Rose, "holding my hand during rehearsals."

All this is expected to cost a million dollars by opening night, but Ned Alvord [of the eternal cutaway that turns seersucker with the summer] writes to tell me not to worry about the Little Giant. So far Mr. Rose has well over $300,000 tucked away in theater parties, and he expects another $250,000 from an advertisment he recently ran offering all tickets for 16 weeks by mail order, in advance of opening the box office. "It may sound corny," said Mr. Rose, blushing like his name, "but first come, first served." He added, with a glint of ferocity, that if you don't get the tickets you want before the speculators do, it's your own fault. The whole thing has the astute Alvord in a state of rueful awe. "For 50 years in show business," he says, "I have dreamed of financing a production with the public's money, but this is the first time I ever saw it done." He recovers sufficiently to add a postscript about "Carmen Jones." It's doing so well the Chicago engagement is indefinitely postponed. No, Mr. Alvord, I won't worry about Mr. Rose.

Even Success Riles Some People.

Apparently, next to being a failure, the worst thing you can do is to be a success. It riles people, so they ruffle up, demanding to be shown. Take "Oklahoma!" It became a resounding triumph because it is so simple, so fresh, and so unabashedly gay. But because of its success a lot of people imagine it's something it never claimed to be, and they get mad because it isn't lush with spangles. Take "The Voice of the Turtle." It skyrocketed to fame because true theater folk are a sentimental lot, enchanted with a tender love story, not so much, believe it or not, because of the seduction scene as because they enjoy watching two attractive youngsters play house and fall in love. Yet there are people who complain that the "Turtle" is trivial, as if it ever pretended to be important. It's unpretentious and beautifully done, without a wisecrack to its name, and, besides, people who go to the theater are funny that way, but they think love is important. These softies actually think the voice of the turtle should be heard more often in the land.

Seven Great Plays for $1.

Sometimes it's astonishing what a dollar will buy. In this case seven of the world's great plays, complete and unabridged, as chosen by George Jean Nathan for reasons briefly presented in his introduction [World Publishing company, Forum books edition, on sale Wednesday]. Now seven is a curious number, since people always ask you to name the 10 best, or worst, of anything, apparently considering it a cabalistic symbol. But it's an imposing seven, including Aristophanes' "Lysistrata," Goethe's "Faust" [translated by Bayard Taylor], Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac" [translated by Harold Whitehall], Ibsen's "The Master Builder" [translated by Edmund Gosse and William Archer], Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard," O'Neill's "The Emperor Jones," and O'Casey's "The Plough and the Stars." A bargain, armchair playgoers, if ever you saw one.

The Mozart of Literature.

Remember when we were trying to match music with literature? Harry Monroe, a Chicagoan now staff sergeant with the signal corps in England, wrote then to insist that only "Zuleika Dobson" is a match for Mozart. Which is why this paragraph from his most recent letter, "I went down into Surrey and had luncheon with Sir Max and Lady Beerbohm, and he is the most enchanting personality you could meet. He seemed so delighted that I would travel so far to see him, and I was equally happy that they would have me. A most charming afternoon for me, and I know he is the Mozart of literature. True, he hasn't produced the quantity, but the quality is none but Mozart. Have you read 'Zuleika Dobson'? If not, please—for me—do so." I'll read it again—with pleasure.

Notes and Items.

Milwaukee's visits from the Chicago Opera are now revised, like this: Nov. 7, "La Traviata," with Sayao, Berini, and Bonelli, Cleva conducting; Nov. 9, "Romeo and Juliet," with MacDonald, Berini, and Ballarini, Hasselmans conducting; Nov. 14, "Faust," with Della Chiesa, Gerard, and Moscona, Cleva conducting. . . . Carla Bradley has sold Nijinska's "Hitch Your Wagon to a Star" to the new Ballet International for production this season. . . . And in answer to inquiries, the Chicago Opera hasn't decided yet just how that Nov. 18 request performance will be chosen. Details are promised soon.

3 Unfamiliar Pieces Also to Be Presented

One first Chicago performance and readings of three works of comparative unfamiliarity sprinkle the three programs to be played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Désiré Defauw this week.

The novelty, however, can scarcely be described as new music, since its composer died in 1918. Théo Ysaye, the composer of "Fantasie on a Walloon Theme," was the younger brother of the great Belgian violinist, Eugen Ysaye. He was a pupil of César Franck and a composer of moderate industry, tho his compositions have rarely been heard outside his native Belgium. The work appears on the Thursday-Friday concerts, together with a youthful and infrequently heard Stravinsky composition, "Fireworks," subtitled "A Fantasie for Orchestra." "Fireworks" was composed in 1908 at the time Stravinsky was a student of Rimsky-Korsakoff, and was written to celebrate the marriage of Maximilian Steinberg and Rimsky-Korsakoff's daughter.

Other works listed for the Thursday-Friday concerts are Mendelssohn's overture, "Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage," Schumann's First ["Spring"] symphony, and Ravel's choreographic poem, "La Valse."

The Tuesday series of concert matinees opens this week and the first program lists Berlioz' "Benvenuto Cellini" overture, Brahms' Second symphony, Prokofieff's Scythian Suite, "Ala and Lolli," and Scriabin's "Poem of Ecstasy." The Prokofieff work has been heard only once before on Chicago Symphony orchestra programs, in 1918, when the composer conducted it on his first American tour. Incidentally, at that time he took up a short Chicago residence to work on his opera, "The Love for Three Oranges," which had been commissioned by Cleofonte Campanini for performance by the Chicago Opera company.

The second "Pop" concert of the season will be given on Saturday night, with a program consisting of Bach's B minor suite for flute and strings, Mozart's "Jupiter" symphony, Enesco's First Romanian Rhapsody and the Bacchanale from Wagner's "Tannhäuser."

Hans Lange, associate conductor of the orchestra, will make his first appearance of the season at the Thursday-Friday concerts of Nov. 23 and 24, when William Kappell will be the piano soloist. Music new to the Orchestra hall programs of the orchestra to be played on Mr. Lange's programs includes the overture to "The Wasps" by Vaughan Williams [played here several times by the Illinois Symphony orchestra], Sir Edward Elgar's second symphony, Stravinsky's "Four Norwegian Moods" and Circus Polka, and Hindemith's "Symphonic Metamorphosis on themes by Carl Maria von Weber."

The original Don Cossack chorus, one of the most popular of concert attractions, will appear under the direction of Serge Jaroff at the Civic Opera house this afternoon at 3:30. This will be the group's 20th appearance in Chicago under the management of Harry Zelzer. In addition to the usual selections, the program contains some unfamiliar items: "Ave Maria" from Rachmaninoff's "Evening Service," a song by Shvedoff with the title "The Exchange of Diplomatic Notes Between the Turkish Sultan and the Zaporojsky Cossacks," a selection of songs by Gretchaninoff, and a medley of Russian infantry marching songs.

Alexander Joseffer, a pianist who has appeared frequently as an accompanist during recent seasons and who is heard regularly with the Ginsburg Ensemble at the Palmer House, will give a recital at Kimball hall tomorrow night at 8:30. His program lists three Scarlatti sonatas, the Bach-Busoni Toccata and Fugue in D minor, Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata, a nocturne and five etudes by Chopin, pieces by Debussy, Ravel and Toch, and Liszt's Twelfth Hungarian Rhapsody.

Knox College Puts New Education Plan in Effect

Student Unity, Organization Program's Aim

By Rev. John Evans.

Matured planning by Knox college faculty results in putting into operation this fall quarter a new program of integrated higher education aimed to give unity and organization for the post-war student which will develop a reasoning, resourceful, and responsible citizen able to deal with life's increasing complexity.

The program calls for concentrated effort over the four year college course on two objectives. After absorbing the facts, skills, and attitudes of general education during his first two years, the student will implement this knowledge with critical judgment and creative imagination for the next two years thru discussion groups, seminars, and individual honor projects directed by the department head.

For upper classmen now in school, radical changes are the shift from three five hour courses to four four hour courses, and graduation requirements raised from 36 courses to 48. Thru a project and examination at the end of his college work, a senior will be expected to present evidence that he has attained a reasonable command of the processes of liberal education.

Civilian students tho fewer are brighter, according to President W. H. Cowley of Hamilton college, Clinton, N. Y. Entry of the United Sates into war brought enrollment there to an all-time low but the average I. Q. was at an all-time high of 81.6 per cent. Pre-war average approximated 75 per cent but this 1944 I. Q. averages is only 3.4 per cent below the Phi Beta Kappa level.

Dr. Hans W. Weigert, graduate of the University of Tuebingen, Germany, has been appointed associate professor of international relations and geography at Carleton college, Northfield, Minn.

President William M. Lewis of Lafayette college, Easton, Pa., will award the honorary degree of doctor of laws to Eric H. Johnston, president of the United States chamber of commerce, who will deliver the Founders' day address Friday.

Dean Russel D. Haines of the college of commerce, De Paul university, considers that with the enrollment of girls 34 per cent over last year women are beginning to feel they must prepare themselves to meet stiff post-war competition. Accounting, he states, is the most popular subject with women, due to industry's increased demand for extensive records, cost accounting and tax experts.

SATIRIST

Four Students Who Fought for Poland

"FOUR FROM THE OLD TOWN," by Antoni Gronowicz. [Scribner's, $2.]

What Nazi occupation of Poland did to four young students in the old city of Lwow is the theme of this gripping yet restrained story for older boys and girls. Perhaps it is more accurate to say what the four young students did to the occupation! Intrigue and suspense abound as the four help to bring the day of liberation. The author is qualified to write of the intensity of Polish patriotism for he is a former resident of Lwow.

Mildred L. Reid, 2131½ Ridge, Evanston.

Gertrude Stein poses with Alice B. Toklas and her dog, "Basket," in front of her home in France, where she kept her identity secret during four years of Nazi occupation. She has completed a new novel which will be ready for publication soon.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock.

LAST summer this column related that Charles Trenkle, Chicago manager of the Macmillan company, had stuck his neck out with the prediction that "Forever Amber" would be an autumn best seller. . . . The novel appeared last Monday and immediately the Chicago bookstores were stormed with demands for copies. . . . If the supply holds out the No. 1 position on the best seller lists should be reached by the middle of this week. . . . Whether the book will eventually reach the phenomenal totals of "Gone with the Wind" is still anybody's guess.

Meanwhile, Bennett Cerf has published this quip in his "Trade Winds" column in the Saturday Review of Literature: "Louis Untermeyer thinks Macmillan overlooked a bet when they didn't rename Kathleen Winsor's 'Forever Amber' 'Gone with the Winsor.'" . . . And this dispatch comes out of New York: "The love life of Charles II. and the natural fecundity of the Restoration period, honestly portrayed in 'Forever Amber,' a novel by Kathleen Winsor, is unsuitable movie fare and the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America [the Hays office] has so intimated to competing Hollywood studios. A spokesman for the Hays office today admitted in effect that bidding for Miss Winsor's book had been discouraged. 'Can it be,' asked Miss Winsor, 'that they want history rewritten for tender tastes?'"

Another new book reaching for the best seller lists is "Tall Tale America" [Coward McCann], by Prof. Walter Blair of the University of Chicago. . . . Robert M. Hutchins, president of the same university, has been awarded the degree of "frustrationis doctor" by Chicago's Boswell institute. . . . Albert Johannsen, professor emeritus of geology at the Midway, will give an illustrated talk, "The House of Beadle and Their Dime and Nickel Novels," at the monthly dinner of the Westerners tomorrow evening at the Merchants' and Manufacturers' club in the Merchandise Mart. . . . "Pilots Also Pray," by Tom Harmon, University of Michigan celebrity, is to be issued by Crowell on Tuesday.

John T. McCutcheon, famed Tribune cartoonist, has contributed a classic pictorial tribute to his lifelong friend, the late George Ade, for the next issue of the Magazine of Sigma Chi. . . . Col. Frank Kurtz, commanding officer of a 15th air force bombardment group based in Italy and a principal character in William L. White's "Queens Die Proudly," was the guest speaker at a Sigma Chi alumni luncheon Friday at Mandel Brothers. . . . Carl Wiegman's recent series in this newspaper on the comparative records of the Vice Presidential candidates has been reprinted by the Tribune company in pamphlet form under the title, "Bricker and Truman." . . . Included is Joseph Parrish's cartoon, "Which of These Candidates Is Big Enough to Occupy the White House?"

Special displays have been arranged by a number of bookstores in the loop for this week to help focus public attention on Navy day, Oct. 27. . . . The observance here is sponsored by the Navy league's Chicago council, headed by Barrett Wendell, and the guest of honor will be James V. Forrestal, secretary of the navy. . . . Kroch's store is devoting its main Michigan av. window to the display; among the others with featured exhibits are Marshall Field's, Carson's, Brentano's, Goldblatt's, and the Fair.

This comes from William Gilmore Beymer, now living in Los Angeles: "My press clipping agency sent me two very pleasing notices you wrote about my '12:20 P M.' as it appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. I know it's not customary for book review departments to pay much attention to magazine serials. Therefore, I am all the more pleased with what you wrote and this note is to let you know I appreciate it.

"As you now know, part of your pleasant prophecy is coming true. After a couple of postponements, due to the sort of production troubles that all publishers seem to be having these days, the newest date for the release of the book, Nov. 6, seems likely to stand up. The jacket will have, I understand, a couple of biographical notes which, in view of what you wrote in your first notice, probably will surprise you considerably."

Introduction to Advanced Calculus

"METHODS OF ADVANCED CALCULUS," by Philip Franklin. [McGraw, $4.50.]

This is an eminently sensible text. It aims to do two things: refresh and improve the reader's technique in applying elementary calculus, and to present methods of advanced calculus which are essential in practical engineering problems. The whole weight of the exposition and illustrations is directed toward giving the student and the practicing engineer a tool which will serve him in meeting and solving problems in engineering and science.

Franklin is particularly successful in reviewing elementary calculus so as to strengthen the reader's command. The whole text shows an excellent use of graphs for clarifying problems. Both student and practicing engineer and scientist will find it a stepping stone to more difficult treatises on the subject. Thruout the text Franklin gives bibliographical guidance to related advanced reading.

Ethiopia Viewed as Fabled Realm of Prester John

"THE LAND OF PRESTER JOHN," by Elaine Sanceau. [Knopf, $2.75.]

High in the ranks of legendary figures stands Prester John, that fabulous myth who wandered and ruled thru Asiatic history. His realm was variously placed, glowingly described. His eventual arrival in Ethiopia was probably due to the coincidence of an actual Abyssinian king who in some respects fitted the fancy robes of the legendary John.

At any rate, Prester John's land is what we now know as Ethiopia, and Miss Sanceau has chosen a slightly less legendary period of its history for her subject. The author seeks to show, in the main, the Portuguese attempts to extend to this land the benefits of Catholic Christianity. Whether intentionally or not she assumes the legendary and romantic method, with the result that Portugal's comparatively short lived interest in Ethiopia lacks much if any meaning. Miss Sanceau has ignored the materialistic urges behind Portugal's interest. But if the reader is satisfied with another bit of romantic reading in the Prester John vein, this is a rewarding book.

THE Winds OF Fear

By HODDING CARTER

Author of The Lower Mississippi

It is a troubled, stirring story of whites and blacks as they really are. Written with the insight of a Southerner and the skill of a journalist who has no private stake in tradition scented by century-old magnolias, it is bitter reading; but there is in it drama, humor, poetry — and a way to understanding. $2.50

Jewish Place in Literature to Be Depicted Here

Jewish Book month will be observed this year Nov. 10 to Dec. 10. Jewish Book week will climax the observance from Dec. 3 to 10. This was announced last week by the Chicago Area chapter of the Jewish Book Council of America.

The chapter is composed of both Jews and gentiles, including a large number of theologians, sociologists, librarians, educators, authors, booksellers, and book critics. Dr. Samuel M. Blumenfield, dean of the College of Jewish Studies, is the new chairman, succeeding Louis Zara, the novelist who headed last year's committee. Mrs. M. L. Purvin, a member of the board of the Chicago public library, is vice chairman; Leonard Meites, editor of the Jewish Chronicle, is treasurer; Anna L. Salzman is recording secretary, and Mrs. Miriam Cooper is corresponding secretary.

It is the purpose of the council to bring to the attention of the American reading public some of the outstanding literary and artistic creations bearing upon Jewry and Judaism. In this city there will be exhibits of books, manuscripts, and ceremonial objects at the library, the Jewish People's institute, and elsewhere. It is hoped to have, as one of the leading displays, a collection of Chinese manuscripts telling of a Hebrew community that once existed in China.

Among those sponsoring the observance are Carl B. Roden, librarian of the Chicago public library; Dr. Benjamin H. Birmbaum, president of the Chicago Rabbinical association, and Dr. Philip L. Seman, director of the Jewish People's institute.

Romance in Early Days of Carolina

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst.

With this big, full, exciting novel Inglis Fletcher has added another panel to her romantic chronicle of the Carolina colonies. Like "Raleigh's Eden" and "Men of Albemarle," this story is laid in both England and America, on both the sea and the land; but it focuses along the Cape Fear river of North Carolina, a region that even today retains the darkness and beauty that it had two hundred years ago.

The period of "Lusty Wind for Carolina" is the second decade of the 18th century, after the British victory in the War of the Spanish Succession. Queen Anne was a supine woman, but the lords of trade and plantation felt the tide of fortune and they grasped at the luring promise of a rich trade with the American colonies. Obstacles in the way of that dream were the pirate crews that lurked in the West Indies channels and along the banks that bar the Carolina coast.

But other dreams than wealth moved Robert Fountaine to seek a grant on the Cape Fear. And there were other barriers in the path of young David Moray who joined Fountaine's company in settling the shores of that darkly-named river. Hardship and loneliness, the clash of political factions, struggles with Indian bands and pirate crews—all these are the background of his turbulent love affair with the beautiful Gabrielle Fountaine, daughter of the colony's founder.

A great deal of information has gone into the writing of this novel. The author has ransacked journals, records, and documents of the period and has traversed all the varied scenes of her novel's action. The result is an historical romance that for all its rich hues and headlong narrative is rooted solidly in historic fact. It is a woman's novel, and it should be a very successful one, but a man can read it with some excitement too.

Stories of Dulcie Offer More Humor

"DULCIE AND HER DONKEY," by Jack Bechdolt and Decie Merwin. [Dutton, $1.50.]

Dulcie wears the hoops and pantalets of a century ago, but she's as informal and lively as any modern 6 year old in socks and sunsuit. As in her first venture into literature, this second book of short stories about Dulcie is written in lilting prose and with delightful humor.

A book about America which every American will treasure

HOW WE ACQUIRED OUR NATIONAL TERRITORY
by
Robert R. McCormick

The land you live in—how did it grow from a handful of primitive settlements to world power? This book tells the story of the settlement of the various sections and regions which were drawn together to form the United States.

It provides a refreshing insight into the fundamental spirit which has made this country great. Compact—it can be read in an evening. Forthright—it can be reviewed with profit again and again. Inspiring, sound in scholarship, packed with little known fact.

Benny Strong Established as Walnut Room Favorite

Band's Novelty Numbers Score a Decided Hit

By Will Davidson.

Frances King.
[Blechman Photo.]

It always is fun to watch some one make good in show business. Especially if that some one is sincere and pleasant and in love with his work.

We press table habitues have had a lot of fun watching Benny Strong establish himself as one of the top favorites in the Bismarck hotel's band group, for two main reasons. Benny is the sort of entertainer and band leader who makes listening to him a very fine pastime. And he's the sort of boy you enjoy personally. A right guy, in other words.

For a lot of years Benny has been doing all right in show business. As has been chronicled here before, he started out as an emcee and singing entertainer. The country club circuit saw a lot of him. Then he was persuaded to front a band. He made a go of it and became popular in the southern states.

His signing with the Bismarck last spring was his first Chicago break as a bandleader, and it was a big break, for Benny, and for the Bismarck. He has solidified himself with the Walnut room clientele, and made what surely must be a permanent place for himself in the hotel's music plans.

At present Benny and his group are starring in the Walnut room floor revue. Always ready with novelty numbers that are great fun, the band now is offering a particularly choice one—an old time quartet skit featuring the band's new and lovely singer, Adrienne. It is built around the old song, "Everybody's Doing It," and everybody's applauding it.

Benny plays superb background music for the dancing of Helene and Hayes, newcomers to the Bismarck. This team is handsome and amiable, altho not letter perfect in their lifts. Their jitterbug interpolations in a Paderewski minuet are the big audience pleasers.

Martin Barnett, the silent, cigaret producing magician, is back, and as popular with Walnut room crowds as ever. How the man maintains his knack, working all day in a war plant as he does, is his best mystery.

DANCER

Audrey Hoveler is one of the three sisters included in Winnie Hoveler's dancing line, now the outstanding feature of entertainment in the Pan American cafe of the Hotel La Salle.

Little Adrienne, the singer, is a taffy blonde from Rockford. She can dance [see her do the old strut with Benny] and play the piano.

Most spectacular opening of the coming week will be the formal introduction of the fall season in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel Saturday. Always a highlight of the autumn, the celebration this year will feature a Dorothy Hild revue starring Frank Payne, the popular impersonator who is generally known as "Mr. Everybody." The Libonati Trio, musical and dancing stars, and Myrtyl and Pacaud, whose billing "Rhapsody in Diamonds" gives me no information whatsoever as to their specialty, are the other acts.

Miss Hild will present her line of girls in "Autumn Nocturne," featuring Myrtyl and Pacaud; a novelty arrangement of "Dance with the Dollie"; a routine called "Color Moods;" and an elaborate bridal parade again featuring Myrtyl and Pacaud. Emil Vandas' orchestra continues its popular music, with vocals by Trudy Marsh.

On Friday night the Drake will finally bid a regretful adios to Connie Russell, and welcome Harry Noble and Frances King, the piano and song team that was scheduled to appear there some time ago.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Bert Allerton, one of Chicago's really top contributions to the magic fraternity, is taking a month's holiday from his Pump room entertainment tasks, and is spending it to the delight of guests in the Hotel Nicollet, Minneapolis. He'll be back late in November . . . Once more you can hear Rita sing, and Pauline Jamieson play in Le Petit Gourmet, after 10:30 p. m.

Mario and Floria, the unusual dance team, are a hit in Boston . . . and Talia, the dancing darling, is ditto at New York's Maisonette . . . Glen Gray has broken all Duke Ellington's records for the Boulevard room of the Stevens . . . Joanne Jennings is singing and George Kirsoff doing his flaming dagger dance in the Sarong now. . . . The Kurtis marionettes are the second act in the new Blackhawk floor show—Maurice and Maryea holding the star spot, with Chuck Foster's band headlined. . . Hank Sieman, ventriloquist, and Dorothy Crowley, vocalist, have been added to the Pan American revue at the Hotel La Salle. Winnie Hoveler's dancers remain as the room's headline feature, and Donny Kaye's orchestra supplies the music.

Al Fuller, who ranks with the country's best press and advertising men, has an unusual and clever promotion stunt to his credit. It consists of a series of little ads featuring Fritz Hagner, the astute and genial head waiter of the Empire room in the Palmer House. They all stress the importance of making early reservations for Empire room tables, and in eye catching sketches illustrate the fact that Fritz is no carpenter, and can't make extra tables for parties that show up late without reservation; that he's no Sampson and can't bulge the walls; that no matter how many he disappoints he won't spoil the fun for those who came early by putting tables on the dance floor; and so on. These little cards go out in all hotel correspondence. It's a rare idea to feature a headwaiter, but Fritz is the sort of headwaiter you like to feature, and Al's the sort of guy who would think of an unusual and effective stunt. Al, incidentally, is waging his most important campaign right now—to recoup the strength he lost in that serious illness.

If you still think you can harmonize on "Sweet Adeline" go over to the Civic Opera House next Sunday afternoon at 2:15 and listen to the national stars of The Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. Groups from all over the country will be there, and you'll have fun. The boys—and some girls, too—really know how to harmonize. One group I'd like to hear would be from Warsaw—the Barber Poles. Heaven knows I dropped enough on one member, a jockey known as the Gallop Pole.

Drama Notes

"Oklahoma!" starts its 50th week at the Erlanger with a change of cast, as Ivan Kirov takes over the role of Curly in the dream ballet from Scott Merrill, who joins the New York troupe. The musical will be a year old Nov. 15, but unless you want to wait until November, 1945, to see it, better hurry up with those reservations. The inexorable closing date for this engagement is Jan. 6, and the management expects to be sold out by Thanksgiving.

"The Student Prince" opens its annual engagement tonight, this time with a cast including Laurel Hurley, Alexander Gray, and Detmar Poppen, with James Raymond new as the prince. The Romberg operetta has been around for more than 20 years, but its popularity grows rather than diminishes. After one of its recent Chicago engagements, the theater manager said he hated to see it go. He said such nice people came to see it.

"Sleep No More" will be the Civic theater's next candidate for playgoing patronage, opening Friday night, Nov. 3. This is a farce by Lee Loeb and Arthur Strawn, which Clyde Elliott has been presenting on tour, with a brief glimpse of Broadway.

"Ice Follies of 1945," opening at the Chicago Arena Nov. 3 would like to remind you that it has lots of comedians in its ninth edition. Eddie Shipstad and Oscar Johnson have a new sketch called "The Colonel and the Lady," while Frick and Frack are back, along with Heinie Brock, Rasmussen and Cameron, and the Miltons. The production stays thru Nov. 19.

Just the other day, John Van Druten was writing a piece saying "It's a long time between ideas," but less prolific playwrights will find him hard to believe. At the moment, Mr. Van Druten is keeping New York's 45th Street well lighted in what theater folk are calling the Van Druten block. His new play, "I Remember Mama," just opened next door but one to "The Voice of the Turtle." And his newer play, still without a title, is locked in the desk of Alfred de Liagre Jr., who hasn't decided yet whether to stage it this season or next. But he has decided on a special Thanksgiving Day matinée for our company of the "Turtle," at the Selwyn. This will be in addition to the regular Wednesday and Saturday afternoon performances. Tickets thru Nov. 25 go on sale at the box office tomorrow.

The Goodman theater announces an extra performance of "Accent on Youth" this evening, closing the engagement. Chekhov's "The Sea Gull" is scheduled to open Nov. 2. Meanwhile, the 18th season of the children's theater opened yesterday with "Hiawatha," which will play Saturday afternoons at 2:30, with a performance at 10:30 the morning of Nov. 25 and Sunday afternoon performances Dec. 3 and 19 at 3 o'clock. Charlotte Charpenning dramatized and directed the play.

Homer Curran was in town last week, commuting between California and his hit show, "Song of Norway," on Broadway. He says he and Gilbert Miller are serious about reviving "Lady Windermere's Fan," with Ina Claire, Constance Collier, and Anita Louise. Stewart Chaney would do the settings.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

MEMOS from your Spotlighter's notebook:

Last Saturday Harry Maule, editor of Random House, was in town, very busy talking over a proposed history of the Santa Fe railroad with the author commissioned to do it. . . . He is very excited about the material, thinks it is going to be one of those Americana items that turn out to be a succulent Americanape, so popular with literary diners. . . . He brought news of Sinclair Lewis, busy at work on his new novel, 60,000 words of which are now in the Random House safes. . . . A letter recently received by your Spotlighter from Mr. L. says: "I'm working night and day on a long novel; have been since April, and shall be till next April."

Harry Maule brought news also of another Random author hard at work—Mignon G. Eberhart, who used to live in Chicago, but now also lives in New York. . . . Recently the editors of Colliers, who were going to run a serial by her, had a beautiful front cover run off with the announcement of "A new serial by Mignie C. Eaberhart" [as I remember it]. . . . "Look at this," they said at a luncheon party in her honor, "how we're featuring you." . . . She took one horrified look at the misspelling, and obligingly went into what is elegantly known as an emotional tail spin. . . . Giant guffaws brought her out of it immediately. . . . Great kidders, that crowd. . . . They had gone to a lot of trouble to prove to her how much they liked her.

A Really Colorful Play.

Maude Phelps Hutchins, the many talented wife of Robert Maynard Hutchins, has an amusing short play in "New Directions," published a week or so ago. . . . It's about Astrolabe, the unrecorded son of Heloise and Abelard, and his judgment in blue heaven before God and a galaxy of angels. . . . Light effects are indicated in shades of blue from lightning to purple. . . . The red of passion comes into the conversation, as extracts from the love letters are read. . . . Mrs. Hutchins has proved her brilliance as a sculptor, a painter, a master of the flowing line in drawing, and now as a molder of words.

Hangover Soup.

In a book about sophisticated food, by Illes Brody, called "On the Tip of My Tongue," there is, believe it or not, a recipe for a "hangover" soup, so complicated to make that only if the good wife could be persuaded to have it ready after a big night, or some canned soup manufacturer to bottle it, would it be feasible. . . . Mr. Brody delicately puts it: "Drunks, instead of eating the usual scrambled eggs and coffee after a spree and before they stagger off to bed, should eat a hot bowl of soup." . . . He also gives a recipe for a "dish to soothe the strained vocal cords" and calls it Soup a la Cantatrice. . . . They both sound epically unappetizing. . . . And speaking of cook books, there's a new edition of "The Working Girl Must Eat," by Hazel Young, just out, and a whole volume devoted to some 600 recipes for the staff of life, called "The Bread Tray," by Louis P. de Gouy. . . . No cracks, please, about the recipes living up to his name. . . . Dorothy Thompson writes a lyric foreword in which she sings: "In it [homemade bread] one feels the sun of wheat fields; one smells the freshness of earth; one savors the fragrant sweetness of honey; it brings a message of friendly labor—the labor of men on the soil, under the sun, and of a competent good tempered woman, serene in her own kitchen." . . . Well, that sounds a wee bit like a literary popover to me.

Louis Adamic, author of "The Native's Return," and many stirring books about the relationship of the foreign born to their American home, is to be general editor of a series of books on the great and varied groups of aliens who have poured into America and become an integral and nourishing part of our life. . . . "The Peoples of America Series" it is to be called. . . . Each book will tell the story of the home background and history of the immigrants, and carry the chronicle forward to the present.

My friend, Sgt. Hobert Douglas Skidmore, author of "Valley of the Sky," whose delightful letter I shared with you last week, has a twin brother, Lt. Hubert S. Skidmore. . . . Lt. Skidmore is the husband of Maritta Wolff, author of "Whistle Stop."

Some Charming Spots.

Susanne Suba, our very talented fellow Chicagoan, who draws such delightful illustrations for children's books like "The Elegant Elephant," by Russell McCracken [who is her husband, Lt. "Bill" McCracken], and makes so many of those "spots" in the New Yorker, has gathered "Spots by Suba" together in a gay little Christmas booklet warranted to charm.

Jesse Stuart, now a lieutenant, who was at Great Lakes for some time, and who made such a memorable impression at the Book and Author bond rally at Orchestra hall last June, is now stationed in Washington. . . . His wife and his 2 year old daughter, Jessica Jane, are with him. . . . From his new volume of poetry, "Album of Destiny," the Ladies Home Journal is going to print one poem each month for a year—the first time such a thing has happened to a poet, so far as I know.

Story Told of Girl Who Feared Life

"THEY DARE NOT GO A-HUNTING," by Dorothea Cornwall. [Dodd, Mead, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan.

There is actually no interest in stalking the deer in this engrossing story, but there is many a good description of the fight a woman waged against fear. She dared not step beyond her front door, and thereby hangs the plot.

Dorothea Cornwell.

Julia Greer was underprivileged. Not that she lacked any of the comforts, for she lived in a fine old house and was surrounded by luxuries and by the loving care of a mother who wouldn't let her out of her sight. She was protected so violently that she was a hot house plant, never exposed to rain nor sun.

The family doctor determined she should have her chance, and the first step was a trip to the hairdressers, where her long black locks were cut off, and a stylish hairdo changed her whole point of view. Then she met some childhood friends in the corner drug store who hardly knew her, and finally they decided to show her around, and she found that being out in the world was a happy experience.

Julia is an introvert thru training and inheritance. And it took a good bit of living to make her see the light. Mike, a likeable red haired guy, accomplishes the impossible, however, and altho Julia sinks back into the stupid, heartbreaking contemplations of her own lethargic life, she is ultimately forced to see her mistakes and to try to do better.

The plot for this story, which, by the way, won the Red Book-Dodd Mead $10,000 prize, is fragile at first glance. But actually it bears connotations of considerable weight. Its moral is that forgetfulness of self solves most people's problems. And it demonstrates a victory over fear that is character building.

Finely and sensitively written, this is a woman's book of penetrating charm.

California Hills Form Background of Strong Story

"BLAZE ALLAN," by Lillian Bos Ross. [Morrow, $2.50.]

For 20 years Blaze Allan grew up in the solitude of the Santa Lucia mountains, in California's Big Sur coastal region. She had never seen a road, let alone a sidewalk or a town. But she had grown strong within herself—a strength that came from the nature she loved so ardently, from her father and mother, Zande and Hannah. The hard work of the ranch, the strict life, dominated by Zande, left her only vaguely aware of any limitations until Stephen Janson spoke to her that day on the trail.

Stephen, a courteous, strong young Norwegian stranger to the Big Sur, started a war with those first friendly words. It was Blaze's war with herself and her family; her war for independence. At the center of it stood Stephen, and in agitated concentric circles around him moved her family and his, the neighbors of the ranch country.

"Blaze Allan" is another of Lillian Bos Ross' strong and forthright novels, filled with the sights, and sounds, and smells of the country and the life the author knows so well. Not the equal of "The Stranger," which was the rousing story of Zande and Hannah Allan, it is rich reading nevertheless.

WILL DAVIDSON.

Book Postponed.

Alfred A. Knopf announces that "Seeing the Invisible," by G. G. Hawley, has been postponed to Jan. 15, 1945.

Are we about to make the costliest human blunder of all time?

BOOKS have a way of making history. Publication of Common Sense, Das Kapital and Mein Kampf brought about changes the end of which no living man will ever see. In just that way THE ROAD TO SERFDOM has begun to tower over other books of its time. It seems destined to unleash a controversy that may shake America as it has already shaken England.

No other book in years has been so bitterly attacked or so warmly praised. And yet the author has only suggested that this is a time to stop, look and listen. The democratic world, he warns, is about to make the greatest mistake in history.

Some people, in haste, have misunderstood Mr. Hayek's conclusions. Others, for reasons of their own, have chosen to distort them. What he has written, with the burning clarity and sincerity of one who has sighted a danger which others have not yet seen, is that the democracies, out of a blind faith in social planning, are about to travel the bloody road of the dictatorships. It is no accident, he points out, that men like Mussolini, Laval, Quisling, Hitler, even our own Huey Long, all began as socialists or social planners.

One may disagree with Mr. Hayek, but he cannot be dismissed or disregarded. His voice is the sober voice of history. If we, the American people, turn our backs on his startling but reasoned warning we shall deserve the shambles that may result from all our well-meant planning. At all bookstores. $2.75

Pageant of Scientists in America

"MEN OF SCIENCE IN AMERICA: The Role of Science in the Growth of Our Country," by Bernard Jaffe. [Simon & Schuster, $3.75.]

Reviewed by Arthur Bergholz.

Science is an integral — along with the economic, political, and cultural — dimension of a people's way of life. It is not something apart from social influences. The scientist, as a member of society, is subject to the same social pressures and movements as are his fellow men.

This is the theme of Jaffe's absorbing history of science in the United States. With a richness of detail and illuminating comment he shows that the American scientist, from the very beginning, was a part of the nation's social structure and natural environment.

There is a deep inner logic in this reciprocity of the scientist and his environment which has the color and breadth of a great symphony. When the colonists came to a virginal land, it was the task of the scientist to explore the fauna and flora not only for the purposes of science, but also to adapt them to the needs of the people in their new home.

Scientists, for example, conducted experiments in soil and plants for tobacco growing, and sought ways of brewing beer from corn. From their careful observations came abundant material which helped lay the ground for the great systematizer, Linnaeus. Out of 210 species of mammals and 790 species of birds in Linnaeus' great work, 78 and 260 respectively came from observations of American naturalists.

After the work of the naturalists had aided our agrarian culture, the task of the scientists was to aid in the activities of trade and manufacture. In this the first great pivotal figure was Benjamin Franklin. Thru his perceptive understanding and his own contributions, he inspired the scientists to work closer to the roots of theory. Out of this influence came a scientific spirit which acquired great range and depth as the country grew. It is with these subsequent achievements that the major part of Jaffe's work is concerned.

The author chooses central figures in the various sciences to represent our scientific development. As the story of men like Benjamin Thompson [1753-1814], Joseph Henry [1797-1878], Willard Gibbs [1839-1903], and Albert Michelson [1852-1931] unfolds, the reader gets an impressive picture of the interplay of American science with social and cultural values.

It is difficult to telescope into a brief review the interest and excitement of "Men of Science in America." There is a strong temptation to share with the reader glimpses of vivid episodes and brilliant achievements. But it remains for the reader to discover, thru his own reading of Jaffe's book, how vital and meaningful the progress of American science is, and how interesting its story can be.

In his able foreword George Sarton remarks: "The book he [Jaffe] has written is the very kind to awaken scientific vocations and to give intelligent and ambitious young men—the potential leaders of tomorrow—the enthusiasm and tenacity which are the conditions of victory. I hope it will strengthen in every reader the love of science; that is, the love of controllable truth and the dislike of error and superstition, without weakening his feelings of reverence, of humility, and charity, without which all the rest is as nothing."

Pacific Naval War.

"Battle Report: Pearl Harbor to Coral Sea," a record of our naval warfare in the Pacific, taken from official sources, is said to be a full and frank account, with much information never before made public. It is to be published on Dec. 7 for the Council on Books in War Time by Farrar & Rinehart as a nonprofit enterprise.

THE MURDER CHART

By Drexel Drake.

ENTRY.	PERFORMANCE.	PAY-OFF.
"PANIC," by Helen McCloy. [Morrow, $2.]	Felix Mulholland died the night before he expected to turn over to army intelligence a new "unbreakable" field cipher. His niece and secretary, Alison Tracey, had terrifying experiences in a secluded summer cottage before she was able to decode a message that exposed Mulholland's murderer.	Mystery readers with an appetite for wrestling with cryptography will find this story a field day of enjoyment. The author does some serious work with cipher making, and also provides eerie atmosphere for her tale.
"DEATH COMES AS THE END," by Agatha Christie. [Dodd, Mead, $2.]	Imhotep, Egyptian land owner of 3,000 years ago, brought a new woman into his household of numerous grown children and relations. Domestic tranquility soon gave way to greed and deception, causing hatreds, suspicions, and leading to a tragedy of murders that found explanation in a dramatic climax.	The author has produced an ambitious tale of tragic love in the ancient world, done in the manner of the fable and the parable. Chockful of mysterious death and jealous alliances.
"THE DARK STREET," by Peter Cheyney. [Dodd, Mead, $2.]	The Nazis operated a honeycomb of intrigue and murder in London to thwart British espionage in occupied France. That preceded the invasion. But British secret agents matched the hazardous chess game play for play, with corresponding ruthlessness, and with a final dazzling checkmate.	This story is gripping and exciting in every respect. Written in terse style that matches the unrelenting harshness and cruelty of the action. Sparkling plot and characterization make this a polished thriller.
"DEATH ON THE PAMPAS," by Clement Wood. [Mystery House, $2.]	Lal Reed, girl agent of United States department of state, and Nigel Gernon, of British espionage, brave terrors of jungles and sinister schemes of Nazi agents in stalking murderous leaders of axis intrigue in Argentina.	Story is stiffly melodramatic and beyond realm of reality, but author does prolific job inventing exciting episodes and thrills. Result is diverting pastime.

Revised Dictionary of Politics Issued

"A DICTIONARY OF AMERICAN POLITICS," edited by Edward Conrad Smith and Arnold John Zurcher. [Barnes & Noble, $3.] !

Twenty years have added many names and subjects to those listed by Dr. Smith in his 1924 "Dictionary of American Politics," which he wrote alone. This time he has a fellow editor-writer and a dozen contributors. In the 150,000 words of the present book are many more definitions than were in the 170,000 words of 1924. Nearly every old item is condensed and all the thumbnail biographies have been dropped. The "Dictionary" has established its usefulness, and the inevitable dominance of political issues in the nation's thinking for the next few years makes this new edition especially welcome.

Notes of the Theater

Judging by the reviews, Herman Shumlin missed when he chose "The Visitor" for New York production. That is, missed at the box office. But he already had sold the movie rights to Warners for $150,000 against a ceiling price of $300,000.

"Good Night Ladies" has chosen New Year's Eve to make its bow on Broadway, with Skeets Gallagher, Max Hoffman Jr., and Marlo Dwyer still in the cast, but with James Ellison newly signed to co-star with Gallagher. It was back in February, 1942, that the revision of the old Hopwood farce tried its luck in California, little knowing it was to descend on Chicago and steal the long run record with 100 weeks at the Blackstone.

People who can't forget Eddie Dowling in "The Time of Your Life" will be interested to know that he plans to produce a four character play by Tennessee Williams called "The Glass Menagerie," which tells a worried mother's problems in marrying off her crippled daughter. Mr. Dowling will direct, and would like to appear in it with Laurette Taylor and Julie Haydon.

"Pick Up Girl" will close its New York engagement Saturday night, and will not tour. This leaves the 48th Street theater dark until the Nov. 1 arrival of "Harvey," with Frank Fay and Josephine Hull.

"Kind Lady," by Edward Chodorov from the story by Hugh Walpole, will open the University of Chicago dramatic season at Mandel hall Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30. Jere C. Mickel will direct.

Starting today, "Kiss and Tell" will play Sunday matinées at the Studebaker, but will omit Wednesday matinées. Three of its troupe, including Jimmy Dunne, the Dexter, have left to join an overseas unit of the same show. The others are Carmelita Pope, an understudy, and Dick Dyson, stage manager and general understudy. Caddell Burroughs is the new Dexter, and Kirk Brown is now playing Mr. Pringle, doubling as stage manager.

Ruth Chatterton has bought a play called "Windy Hill," by Patsy Ruth Miller, who used to be a movie actress. She hopes to get it ready for rehearsal in about a month.

"Horses Are Like That," a comedy by Alford Van Ronkel, is reported to have a speculative eye on Chicago, depending on how it gets along in Detroit.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery.

AFTER the murder, when all but the corpse are assembled in the library, it is customary [in standard detective stories] for the sleuth to turn eyes of cold steel on that frail, furtive woman in the corner, who looks like one of the cyanide ladies drawn by Charles Addams, and say: "Now, Mrs. Hastings-Hadley, why were you, at 3:13 a. m., with a black lace shawl over your night dress, stealing noiselessly down stairs, with a pointed knife in your hand?"

Experienced readers know what the answer will be: "I—I— could not sleep. I came down to get a—book."

She is telling the truth, of course, as you very well know, for the real murderer never looks like a Charles Addams cyanide lady. And as for the "pointed knife," it is merely a paper cutter, because in houses like that the millionaire host never would get the pages of his books cut unless sleepless guests did the chore for him.

That is the kind of house I don't want to live in, or even spend a night in. I want every bedroom to contain a library, or every library to contain a bed. In my own ménage the distance from bed to books is three or four steps, and I can reach the top shelves without standing on a chair.

So when I am sleepless, as I was last night, the remedy is at hand. And for additional zest in the treatment I play a little game which I invented. Either I choose a book by touch, with my eyes closed, or else before getting out of bed decide that I will take the second red book on the third shelf [or some such whim-born formula], then open it at random and read.

In an emergency, of course, I am not too scrupulous to cheat. In fact, I always give myself a second chance if the first one leads to Henry James or the poetry of Wordsworth. Not that I am a Wordsworth hater—I'm a Wordsworth gourmet, and I am grateful to Walter Pater for saying how fine it would be if only the best of the poems had reached the printer, and adding: "How perfect would have been the little treasury, shut between the covers of how thin a book!"

This time there was no need to cheat. The second red book on the third shelf proved to be Henry Thoreau's "Walden." I spent hours rereading, not straight thru, but tasting here and there, sometimes closing my eyes to let a single sentence repeat itself—such a sentence, for example, as this:

> The mass of men lead lives of quiet desperation.

Or a phrase like this:

> . . . tall, arrowy white pines . . .

Or a proud boasting:

> I once had a sparrow alight on my shoulder . . . and I felt more distinguished than I should have been by any epaulet I could have worn.

And by a rare stroke of luck Thoreau and I arrived together at a sunrise, mine being the red solar disk pushing up out of Lake Michigan, over the top of Lincoln Park, Thoreau's over Walden, and the last paragraph I read was:

> I never assisted the sun materially in his rising, but, doubt not, it was of the last importance only to be present at it . . .

Thoreau retired to his bookshelf then, I to deep and beneficial sleep for a little while.

A letter from Frank L. Beals, president of the Boswell club, points with pride to the fact that Robert M. Hutchins, recent recipient of the Boswell institute's honorary degree, Frustrationis Doctor, has invited the club to "set up in the University [of Chicago] as a college." The club will think it over.

The same mail brought a note from a lady whose mysterious signature is "Moustique"—which is French for mosquito, if I remember. She complains that radio funny men, and some writers, take the best gags of wits like Mark Twain and F. P. A. and Dorothy Parker and use them without identifying the source, and then try to make up for it by pinning illustrious names on their own poor efforts. Moustique made a jingle of it:

For Mrs. Parker I feel pity;
That's the reason for this ditty.
She's a victim all the time
Of two separate kinds of crime.
They take her stuff and give no credit,
Never a line like, "Dotty said it";
But the worst harm that they do her
Is what they attribute to her.

Book Shows Winston as Global Man

"WINSTON CHURCHILL IN THE MIRROR," by René Kraus. [Dutton, $2.75.]

Reviewed by John Abbot Clark.

If there is any living person fully entitled to allude quite casually, even carelessly, to this reeling, pock marked planet as "One World," that person is the Right Honorable Winston Churchill. The Young Whelp of the Transvaal, who grew up to be the Old Lion of No. 10 Downing street—and points east, west, south, and north—has been everywhere and seen everything. As Ring Lardner, parodying Odd McIntyre, might have put it: "One word description of Winston Churchill — Global."

This Churchill cavalcade of cartoons and photographs will be an indispensable record for America's fast growing body of lookers and comic strippers, and a welcome supplementary volume for those fogies of all ages now beginning to be laughingly referred to as the reading public.

René Kraus, one of the better recent biographers of Churchill, has done an excellent job of compilation, and his brief but adequate running commentary, tho condescendingly kittenish at times, should prove very helpful, especially to younger, progressively educated readers, many of whom, no doubt, associate the Boer war with Hitler and Chamberlain rather than with Churchill.

But getting back on the plane of adult education, we can hardly imagine any admirer of Churchill, or any halfway serious student of our own times, not wanting to own this book, which, incidentally, is inscribed to Mr. John Bull, as subtle a touch, we swear, as dedicating a "Life of Shakespeare" to the Bard of Avon.

This Fellow Smith Needs Squelching

"LOST IN THE HORSE LATITUDES," by H. Allen Smith. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]

Reviewed by Walter Simmons.

This is a warning to people who frequent book stores, and it concerns a disreputable person who calls himself H. Allen Smith.

Avoid this man. Shun his books, which you will find displayed in large stacks. Smith does not have the right attitude toward things and people. He is disrespectful to many of the great men of our time. There should be a law against such ruffians—meaning Smith, of course.

One time he wrote a book called "Low Man on a Totem Pole." Thousands of people bought it, merely to find out what the title meant. They are still wondering. The book itself was a collection of coarse and ribald jests about well known people. It wasn't even a serious work; hundreds of thousands of people, in fact, laughed themselves silly over it.

This would have taught many writers a good lesson, but not the vulgarian Smith. He wrote another book and called it "Life in a Putty Knife Factory." It was ignored by serious scholars. But again the lowbrows bought it. Again they laughed and laughed. But, to give the Smith person due credit, they did not laugh quite so loudly as before.

Now this man has compounded his other crimes by spawning a third book. It is called "Lost in the Horse Latitudes." Upon examination it turns out to be largely a scandalous, obstreperous, and irreverent assembly of gossip, gags, and possible canards about the geniuses who make our motion pictures in Hollywood.

It is well known that those in Hollywood high places are people of great breeding, culture, and charm, noted for their modesty and lack of ostentation. Truly, it is a terrible thing that these shrinking folk should be subjected to the gibes of the offensive man Smith. The pain of this thought is multiplied a hundredfold by the realization that again the unthinking multitude will guffaw and roll on the floor helplessly.

Some Pipsqueak Observations of Convent School

"CONVENT BOARDING SCHOOL," by Virginia Arville Kenny. [Sheed & Ward, $2.]

Reviewed by Maureen Daly.

This book is a collection of pleasantly pipsqueak observations of a child of 11 who was reared and educated in a convent boarding school. In her last years of college, Authoress Virginia Kenny brought out her 6th grade essays about life in a convent boarding school—her schoolmates, her teachers, her family, and what she was taught in class—and made them into a book. And the result is exactly a collection of 6th grade essays made into a book—with just the right amount of honest memory to keep it from being ingratiatingly naive.

As a child Miss Kenny was evidently much pampered and loved, and her accounts of the sisters in the convent, a forbidden midnight snack, her grandmother dear and her lame friend, Genevieve, have a certain pouting simplicity about them. Her chapters about mothers, her favorite ring, the saints and the school janitor ring with a kind of clap-hands gladness that is sometimes appealing. It is a one purpose book written in two syllable words and its total appeal will depend, not on whether you are interested in convent boarding schools, but on whether or not you like children.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

IN THE forefront of American cultural tradition are eight flute players, whatever the circumstance may mean. They were Charles Brockden Brown, our first professional novelist; Wilson and Audubon, the naturalists; Irving, Cooper, and Poe, three of our first four classic men of letters; Thomas Cole, the wandering portrait painter, and Joseph Rodman Drake, the poet. The flute was the universal instrument of the generation that succeeded the American Revolution and, incidentally, it was the foundation of the Astor family fortunes. John Jacob Astor, the German immigrant who inaugurated the line in this country, landed at Baltimore in 1784 with $25 in his pocket and seven flutes to sell. The fur business came later.

And all this information I have found in a single footnote in "The World of Washington Irving" [Dutton], the most fascinating panorama of our literature since Van Wyck Brooks' preceding volume in his cumulative history of literary America.

Treasure in Footnotes.

Nobody uses footnotes more happily than Mr. Brooks. Others have praised his books on other counts, and will continue to do so. Let me celebrate the peculiar charm of his footnotes; they are an anthology in themselves, a body of illustrative material and comment that miscellaneous-minded readers will find delightful. What a book columnist he would have made if he had not decided to be our most distinguished literary historian! For instance:

Brillat-Savarin, the gastronomist, a refugee from the French revolution, once played in the orchestra of a New York theater. James Fenimore Cooper had a classmate at college who was so courtly in language that he always said "Mr. Julius Caesar" and "Mr. Homer." Richardson's "Pamela" was the first novel ever to appear in America; it was reprinted by Franklin in 1744. The inventor of the cocktail is believed to have been the original of Cooper's Betsy Flanagan, in "The Spy," an innkeeper of Westchester county, New York. James Macpherson, the forger, who claimed to have translated Ossian, spent two years in Pensacola as secretary to the British general in command there; some of his Gaelic manuscripts are thought to have been lost in Florida. The original of Cooper's Natty Bumppo, hero of the Leatherstocking Tales, was almost certainly Daniel Boone.

John Pendleton Kennedy, the early American writer, gave Thackeray much of the information about Virginia that the English novelist used in "The Virginians," and is thought to have written one of the chapters of the book. William Gilmore Simms, the southern novelist, edited a revised version of "Mother Goose" in his last days, which remained in manuscript at the time of his death. Franz Schubert's last letter, written from his deathbed, implored a friend to bring him something by Cooper to read "in this desperate condition." Lafayette, laying a cornerstone in Brooklyn, lifted the 5 year old Walt Whitman over a heap of stones and gave him a kiss. George Keats, brother of the poet, once lived with Audubon in Kentucky and later became a lumber merchant in Louisville.

If I had been less generous than Mr. Brooks I might have got a dozen columns out of the above paragraphs, but I am more anxious to give you some idea of the entertainment and pleasure you will find in this very agreeable volume. And these are only a selection of curiosities from the footnotes, those annoying little pedantries that careless readers usually ignore. The main stream of the narrative, of course, is even more delightful.

[Come to think of it, there is no rule against footnotes in a newspaper, is there, Mr. Babcock? It might be pleasant—if the printer will assist—to see one in this department.*]

Murder of a Bibliophile.

"All Fall Down" [Crime Club] is the title of L. A. G. Strong's latest novel, the first detective story by this well known British writer, I think, and all bibliophiles will have to add it to their shelves. The odd title has reference to a fall of books. Under a great heap of them, his own treasures, was found the body of Matthew Baildon, an unpleasant old bounder who treated his wife and daughter abominably. The background of the tale thruout is bibliomaniac and bizarre; one suspects Mr. Strong of being a collector himself, or perhaps he lives next door to one. His portrait of the unsavory old bibliotaph is an interesting addition to the rogue's gallery of book collectors. I thought the story skidded a bit in its last stages, but all detective stories skid a bit in their last stages—nearly all. When some genius discovers a way to make the last pages of a detective story as absorbing as the first pages something new and important will have been added.

However, this is an engaging tale, particularly well written and sparkling with character sketches in Mr. Strong's best manner. He is a poet, and a detective story by a poet is always an event. Possibly only poets should be allowed to write detective stories. I have always wished that Elinor Wylie, who read them with relish, had been inspired to write one. We might have had from her a masterpiece comparable to "The Man Who Was Thursday," by G. K. Chesterton, another great poet who, probing the mystery of poetry, discovered the poetry of mystery.

How Humor Backfires.

My comment on the eleventh President of the United States, incorrectly called Leonidas Polk by Charles and Mary Beard in the first edition of their "Basic History of the United States," stirred up more interest in that old gentleman than I had thought was possible. Quite a lot of helpful, friendly readers rushed to my assistance to explain that he was James Knox Polk, not Sylvester or Anatole, as I had been bold enough to suggest in my paragraph about the error. My own fault, of course; I should have remembered that, to be on the safe side, satire should always be underlined—and I hope this will be a lesson to me.

One reader, F. R. Liddil, principal of the Douglas Public school, who correctly understood my mild attempt at humor, points out that in spite of the Beards' three errors in the narrative, and one in the index, Polk's name is correctly printed in the Table of Presidents, which is consigned to the appendix. True enough; I have just checked it in my own copy. I can't imagine how that happened—unless the table was prepared for them by a secretary.

JAMES GRAY REVIEWS "OF SMILING PEACE," BY STEFAN HEYM

ROMAN AGE IS SURVEYED BY WILL DURANT

Drama Shown in Elements of the Era

"CAESAR AND CHRIST," by Will Durant. [Simon & Schuster, $5.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher.

Will Durant, whose "story of Philosophy" brought that hitherto somewhat abstruse subject into the lives of literally millions of readers, set himself as a life work, long before he did that popular book, the task of writing the story of civilization, of studying mankind for the benefit of man—fulfilling Alexander Pope's injunction that "the proper study of mankind is man." Using the outline technique, but enlarging the outline to include details of everyday life, political, economic, and social, Mr. Durant is now engaged in his life work.

To date he has done three volumes: "Our Oriental Heritage" [1935], "The Life of Greece" [1939], and now "Caesar and Christ," a panorama of the years between 500 B. C. and A. D. 325, with an introduction on the Etruscan origins of the Roman civilization from 800 to 500 B. C. In 672 mammoth pages Mr. Durant brings to life the most dramatic span of time thru the lives of its leaders and a marshalling of the known facts of the public, private, and cultural lives of the periods.

"Caesar and Christ" of the title are used metonymically, "Caesar" to denote the whole Roman empire. As Mr. Durant describes it: "The rise of Rome from a crossroads town to world mastery, its achievement of two centuries of security and peace from the Crimea to Gibraltar, and from the Euphrates to Hadrian's Wall, its spread of classic civilization over the Mediterranean and western European world, its struggle to preserve its ordered realm from a surrounding sea of barbarians, its long slow crumbling, and its catastrophic collapse into darkness and chaos—this is surely the greatest drama ever played by man."

"Christ" is used to denote "that other drama which began when Caesar and Christ stood face to face in Pilate's court, and continued until a handful of hunted Christians had grown by time and patience, and thru persecution and terror, to be first the allies, then the masters, and at last the heirs, of the greatest empire in history." Those two dramas are played in the pages of "Caesar and Christ," the vast Roman panorama occupying all but a hundred pages of the narrative.

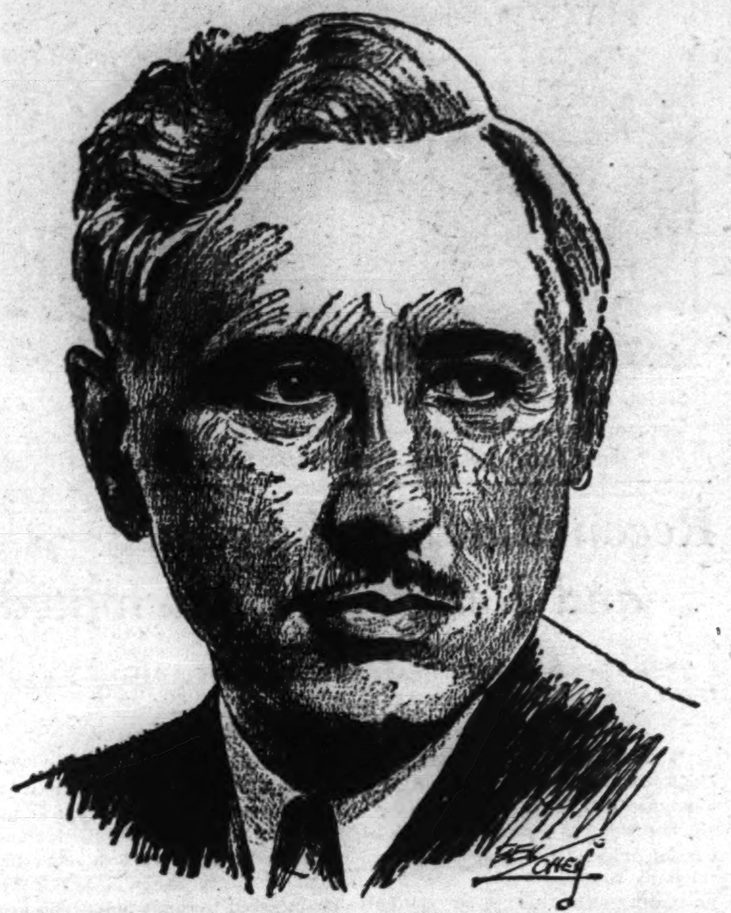
Mr. Durant treats the advent of Christ as history, and sees in it no divine supernaturalism. He suggests that the resurrection might have been a physical revival of the body removed from the cross before actual death. He emphasizes Christ's teaching of the ancient laws of Judaism.

To readers who believe in the divinity of Christ as a person or in the divinity of his message apart from his person, the section on the life of Christ and the spread of the Christian faith will seem a chilly picture of a flaming fervor which, whether the reader feels that it was divine fire or not, was a transcendent passion of mankind. Mr. Durant, who has treated the Roman rise and fall as a manifestation of political, social, economic forces, treats the rise of Christianity as another historic phenomenon with different ingredients, but does not emphasize its most predominant ingredient, the fanatic power of faith.

"Caesar and Christ" is a volume complete within itself, but one more illuminated panel in Mr. Durant's planned vast panorama of civilization.



Sketch of Will Durant, author of "Caesar and Christ," a popular history of the Roman era, reviewed today by Fanny Butcher.

Dramatic Novel Has North African Invasion Setting

"OF SMILING PEACE," by Stefan Heym. [Little, Brown, $2.50.]

Reviewed by James Gray.

The American landings in Africa offer the background for Stefan Heym's second novel, "Of Smiling Peace." In an atmosphere surcharged with intrigue, our innocently exuberant soldiers fight and conquer not merely the Nazis, but also the Vichy collaborationists. The reptilian elusiveness of the latter present problems in international diplomacy which momentarily baffle the straightforward, hard hitting forces of democracy. But in the end the venal French Fascists, the German militarists, and their precious collection of professional spies have intrigued themselves into disaster. The strength of American arms, supported by the disinterestedness of American purposes, has triumphed over the vicious confusion of North African affairs.

Stefan Heym.

Stefan Heym shows the skill of the born narrator in giving a vigorous dramatic pattern to the conflicts of this greatly involved struggle. His central figure is a man, not unlike himself, who has escaped from the chaos of Europe to become an American citizen and a soldier in our army. Bert Wolff, an intelligence officer, has singled out a certain Maj. Liszt of the German forces in North Africa as his own arch-enemy, the embodiment of all the corrupted philosophy that the war is being fought to destroy. The novel becomes a kind of duel between these two men, the European whose ideals have been refreshed by contact with America and the complete Nazi who expects to inherit the earth once it has been conquered by brutality and ruthlessness.

Both men come vividly to life. Wolff is deeply and movingly concerned with abstract values. Liszt, the arrogant Junker, is basically a coward and a bully. Yet he is convinced that he has a right to make any betrayal so that he may survive and enter into his kingdom as a superman. "Of Smiling Peace" has all the excitement of the novel of flight and escape. Again and again Wolff has all but trapped Liszt. Several times with the aid of an infatuated and fatalistic mistress, of a Vichy official to whom the simultaneous betrayal of both sides is a delicate and fascinating art, or of the political underworld, he makes his way thru the American lines. But finally they close upon him with the firm pressure of disinterested justice.

Combining the interests of the novel of ideas with those of a glittering narrative by E. Phillips Oppenheim, "Of Smiling Peace" plunges thru many scenes of stimulating melodrama to its satisfying intellectual conclusion.

Story for Youth of Welsh in America

"MOUNT DELIGHTFUL," by Eleanor Youmans. [Bobbs-Merrill, $1.75.]

Here is an excellent addition to the shelf of juvenile books that develop appreciation of pioneer immigrants to the United States from the old world. Mrs. Youmans is able to write realistically of the experience of Welsh settlers because her grandmother, Eleanor Evans, came over to Ohio in 1832. This book, in which the heroine is 12 year old Ellen Evans, is largely the story of that grandmother's childhood adventures with a cheese press, rattlesnakes and a shepherd puppy, Taffy.

Brogan Writes of American Character Understandingly

"THE AMERICAN CHARACTER," by D. W. Brogan. [Knopf, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle.

This is the finest analysis of the American character any Englishman has written. It does not have the huge intentions of Lord Bryce's work, nor does it include the historical and documentary material of that earlier work. It is a short, summarizing, terse description of what made an American personality. I have a feeling that Lord Bryce was never as familiar with Americans, with American books, and places, and types, and hopes, and motives, and ideals, as Mr. Brogan. This is not to question the latter's knowledge of American history, which is profound, and, in conversation, spontaneous. I can testify that this is true, for a few years ago Mr. Brogan was one of my history tutors at Oxford.

D. W. Brogan.

There is only one thing more irritating than meeting an Englishman who doesn't know the difference between "deadbeat" and "down-beat," and that is meeting an Englishman who does. There aren't many. Mr. Brogan is one. He is one of the few Englishmen who knows the American small town. He is one of the few who realizes that this country is not peopled merely by inferior Englishmen. I once read a letter in the London Times, written by an Englishman just back from America [I think he must have pushed as far west as Boston's Back Bay]. The letter said that he was "glad to see that Americans of the better sort, that is, Americans of English descent," were sympathetic to England. Mr. Brogan could have set his fellow-countryman right about that, and about many, many things.

The book is not English propaganda. It is a precise account of our development into a distinct kind of human individual by a historian who knows an immense amount about us, and who happens to be an Englishman.

Brogan's chapter called "America Is Made" is the finest brief story of the influences on our history I have read. He is especially good on the Civil war. He also has great insight into the purpose of the American educational system, so often casually looked at by foreigners and then at once denounced as inferior in every particular to European systems.

I hope Americans read this book not only because it is firm and often amusing in content, but also because it does show that English understading of America 's possible, however infrequent. I bet Mr. Brogan could define "whistle bait," if he had a chance. [I know American professors who can't.] And I bet he'd like the chance, too.

French Author Gibes at Those Who Collaborate

"IMAGINARY INTERVIEWS," by André Gide. Translated by Malcolm Cowley. [Knopf, $2.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil.

Aside from its value as a series of critical essays on contemporary literature, this book has a special interest which probably would not be divined by any one not well acquainted with French writers of the present day and the situation in which they were placed by the German occupation.

Fortunately for the ordinary reader, this special interest is revealed in an introduction and notes by the translator. Gide, one of the great literary personages of his time and strictly a non-collaborationist, discovered that even in Vichy France political judgments could be published if presented in the guise of literary criticism. Hence this book is a critical commentary in which apparently guileless literary conversation masks some sharp blows against Naziism and the policy of collaboration.

It must be confessed however, that I would never have guessed the existence of Gide's hidden feelings if Mr. Cowley had not pointed them out. Take for example the allusion to two letters written by Ernest Renan to the German author, David Friedrich Strauss, just before and after the French defeat in the Franco-Prussian war. The first was friendly, even conciliatory, to the Germans; the second defiant and "filled with polished insults." Few American readers, even tho they were acquainted with both writers, would know how the letters differed.

But Gide's French readers knew the difference—to them the inference was unmistakable: Frenchmen, particularly French writers, should not truckle to the German conqueror.

One of the "Interviews" is a discussion of "The New American Novelists," and it is interesting to note that while Gide had some good things to say of them—and not all of the writers mentioned are "new"—he feels that Dashiell Hammett wastes his talent in detective fiction, a talent which, he says, "can be compared only with the best in Hemingway." But this essay is fragmentary and quite limited in scope; it leads one to believe that Gide is not overly familiar with our present day literature.

Best of all is the concluding essay, which is not an "Interview," but an eye witness account of the liberation of Tunis, sharp, clear, and full of feeling.

Reading this book, one feels, more than ever, that the writers and thinkers who have kept their sense of values can, if they will, play an important part in the new world which we expect to arise from the ashes of the war.

Spirited Stores of Combat at Sea

"SEA DUTY," by Jacland Marmur. [Holt, $1.]

Most of the material for the 13 spirited, well written sea stories in this little volume was gathered by the author while with units of the American Pacific battle fleet during the last two years as correspondent for a magazine. A dozen of the tales are about the gallantry and efficiency of Yankee naval fighters against the Japs. For good measure, and perhaps for contrast, he tosses in a 13th—about the unlucky "victory" of the British fleet off Jutland in World War I. The author, who spent many years at sea before the present war, has done much of his writing while on blue water. These stories are among the best of this war's crop of naval narratives.

Service Men Have Own Idea of What They Want to Read

By Harry Hansen.

NEW YORK.

THE public has been getting a good look at the books of the Armed Services editions recently, in library exhibits, and approves them mightily. These paper bound books contain the newest reading, chosen by a committee of the Council on Books in War Time, printed at government expense, and sent to the men at the front in batches of thousands. Starting with first editions of 50,000 copies, the new editions now are often 100,000 per title. The committee on selection has been trying to pick the cream of the new books, as well as some older titles, but it has been trying to avoid trash. Yet it has had two setbacks. The first came when the boys abroad conveyed their desire to read westerns. Exposed only to the shelling of Tarawa and the machine gunning of Palav, they wanted some real western riding and shooting by the constabulary.

Now comes another request. The boys have been getting a large variety of reading, but much of it is not to their liking. The other day a hurry call came from Washington: "The boys want sex stories!" They are deprived of the society of women; they have only pin-up girls to look at and old anecdotes by braggarts to remember. They would like to read good, lively sex stories. But we have almost none. We have a number of highly disillusioning stories about women, but very few that can be described as dealing with sex. What the boys really want is romance.

Why Not Ship Everything?

The committee is a little bit disturbed by the turn of affairs. If its judgment is not necessary, then its services seem needless, too. Why not just ship all the books there are and be done with it? The American public absorbs everything, pulps, trash, good and bad writing. The boys in the army and navy are a cross-section of the public — the youthful public. But the members of the committee still cling to the hope that some books are better than others and that they can choose the better ones for the boys.

In the meantime they are working on book lists for the OWI, which intends to publish translations of American books for distribution in Europe. These books are to be taken from current publications, to show America as it is. They will not be books written merely to describe the United States, but works like Carl Van Doren's "Benjamin Franklin," Sherrod's "Tarawa," Catherine Drinker Bowen's "Yankee from Olympus," and Stettinius' "Lend-Lease." Such books were often published in European countries before the war, though their circulation was limited to purchasers. The OWI will distribute them widely.

Millions Read Victory.

The United States has a magazine called Victory which goes to the fighting forces. It reprints articles from current magazines. I am told that it has the incredible circulation of 9,000,000 copies, but have not yet been able to verify this. This gives you some idea of where all that paper goes that the government uses these days. I hear that a recent article by Amy Porter on roses, which was printed in Collier's with some startling plates in four colors, is to be reprinted in Victory.

D. W. Brogan, author of "The American Character," which Alfred A. Knopf publishes tomorrow, left for London last week after completing a documentary film based on his book. He has been working with the British war office, being much too alert and active to let his principal job as professor of political science at Cambridge university keep him in ivy covered halls. He is in his early 40s. A longer book, "The English People," published a few seasons ago, is filled with bright, critical observations and decidedly worth reading, now that British-American temperamental differences are evident again.

Film Better than Book.

It is the general opinion here that Hollywood has greatly improved on Vera Caspary's mystery story, "Laura," in the film version. It was unveiled at a preview Monday night in the private theater of 20th Century-Fox, which, altho located in the company's immense office and warehouse building on W. 56th st., is decorated in the best flamboyant tradition of Balaban & Katz. Present were Clifford Webb and a great number of editors and writers, some of whom have profited greatly from the films. On the same day there was a cocktail party given for Kathleen Winsor by the Macmillan company and another by Jean Muir for Henrietta Buckmaster. At this writing neither of the novels, "Forever Amber" and "Deep River," has been bought by motion picture companies.

Reunion in the Reprints.

Bennett Cerf tells me that no changes are contemplated in the routine of administration of Grosset & Dunlap, by its new owners, which now include the Book of the Month club, Random House, Harper & Brothers, and Scribner's. The association of the Book of the Month club and Random House in this purchase brings together again two men who began their careers in the reprint business—Harry Scherman of the former and Robert Haas of the latter. This has delighted both. Mr. Haas helped start the Book of the Month club and then withdrew and bought an interest in Random House. Mr. Cerf said: "This has given Bob Haas a new lease on life. He is as happy as a boy about it." Just how this deal was swung to its present owners is still a mystery to me, in view of the millions ready to bid for it. As Mr. Cerf says: "It's a long story, maybe some day I'll tell you about it."

Reconciliation of Science and Religion Is Attempted

"THE BONE AND THE STAR," by Dorothy Donnelly. [Sheed & Ward, $2.25.]

Reviewed by the Rev. J. R. Perkins.

Mrs. Donnelly who, a dozen years ago, won a major prize in the Avery Hopwood essay contest, here attempts to bridge the abyss between pietistic nescience and learned presumption. And she comes as near doing so as any one who has been bold enough to try to bind together two well-nigh antipodal fields of thought. Like most writers who have tried to reconcile religious fundamentalism and scientific materialism, she will hardly be praised by either group, but she will be welcomed by multitudes who are religious minded and who, confronted by the hard and cold facts of science, are searching for God behind all phenomena.

Mrs. Donnelly faces frankly the basic factors in the theory of the evolution of man and sets to work to reconcile geological time with theological beliefs largely grounded in creative periods of 24 hours each. Of course, the time scale in theology, predicated on biblical literalism, is a sleeping lion until aroused and the author has been bold enough to prod him. So prodded, this lion may roar again, just as he did way down in Dayton, Tenn. But Mrs. Donnelly's art is so finished and soothing that she may have the old fellow eating out of her hand.

She accepts, in a way, science's Pithecanthropus instead of Genesis' Adam, for she says, "Possibly Adam is just the poetic name for Pithecanthropus," and in so saying she is more interesting—and perhaps convincing—than if she had said that the name, "Adam" is simply a generic term for man.

Anyhow, Mrs. Donnelly steps right out and finds an abyss between men and apes even tho they belch and defecate alike. Both reach for the stars, but the ape confuses stars with bananas, while man is stirred to wonder and, finally, awe. So when men and apes look upward there is an eternal difference between what they see. The ape reaches for a banana to fill his belly; Adam reached for an apple—or was it Eve?—to fill his mind. One plucked fruit to satisfy his hunger; the other to become as a god, for the apple hung on the tree of knowledge.

So, in luminous paragraphs, often rich in beauty despite the prosy subject, the author weaves her pattern of life, finding God in that far off beginning, and that man's immemorial search for Him explains all history, including science itself.

Here is a book closely packed with information, for the author has made almost microscopic investigation of the best—and the worst—in the theory of man's origin and evolution. And in the long story of the ascent of the race, Mrs. Donnelly never loses sight of man's need of, and hunger for, the Father.

Thru myth and legend and dogma; thru test tube and microscope and telescope; at crude altars and before richly decorated ones in great cathedrals, man, so the author labors to prove, has kept at his great quest while the ape, thru a period even longer, has blinked at the universe and doesn't know it is in one.

Flyers Will Say These Tales Are 'The Way It Was'

"AIR GUNNER," by Sergeants Bud Hutton and Andy Rooney. [Farrar and Rinehart, $2.50.]

"FIRST OF THE MANY," by Capt. John R. [Tex] McCrary and David E. Scherman. [Simon and Schuster, $3.75.]

Reviewed by Walter Simmons.

A crippled Fortress, damaged over Germany, reached England, but was too badly shot up to land conventionally. Its crew of 10 therefore jumped. Four of them landed together in a rural district and tramped to a nearby farmhouse.

They were met by a little old lady. "I've been expecting you," she told the airmen, who included Staff Sgt. Edward Roddy of Chicago. "Won't you come in?"

They did, and found a table linen laden with hard boiled eggs, toast, marmalade, coffee—even a bottle of whisky. After the hungry men had finished, their curiosity became overwhelming and they asked how their hostess had known they were coming.

"I dreamed last night," said the little old lady simply, "that a Flying Fortress crashed near here and four men came to the door. I knew you would be tired and hungry, so naturally I fixed up a little lunch."

"First of the Many" [the title refers to the original officers and men of the 8th air force in England] possesses the same excellent qualities. Handsomely illustrated with Mr. Scherman's photography, it tells the sometimes heartbreaking story of the men who made the first daylight raids on Germany, and what happened to them.

Here are two books that the men who have been there can page thru and say: "Yes, that's just the way it was."

Ben Tillman Was Product of His Time

"PITCHFORK BEN TILLMAN, SOUTH CAROLINIAN," by Francis Butler Simkins. [Louisiana State University Press, $4.50.]

Reviewed by Avery Craven.

Pitchfork Ben Tillman was one of the most colorful men who ever sat in the United States senate. He came up from South Carolina in the troubled 1890s to chastise the Republican majority, to preach Negro inferiority, and to use language in public debate such as had not been heard in Washington since the days of Thaddeus Stevens.

Tillman was ugly, crude, and noisy. He was, in fact, everything that conflicted with the usual conception of the southern statesman. The contrast with Wade Hampton, whom he pushed out of office, could hardly have been more extreme. Charleston and Beaufort hated him. Northern members were inclined to ignore him. Yet he stayed in office until his death in 1918 and, without greatly altering his ways, won a real place for himself in the senate and the respect of his colleagues.

Tillman's story is basic to any understanding of the south since the Civil war, and the great merit of Simkins' biography is that he understands the man as a normal product of his time and his locality. The overthrow of reconstruction rule in South Carolina was accomplished under aristocratic leadership.

That leadership represented a minority. It cared little for the rural people and their agriculture. Tillman became their voice of protest and his methods were those necessary for the building of a new political machine which would serve the majority.

Tillman rose because the people could understand him and because his efforts to establish Clemson and Winthrop colleges, to keep the Negro out of politics, and to solve the liquor problem, were in keeping with their interests. He became a political dictator because the situation required it and he stayed in power because a stratified society could always be divided.

The strength and the weakness of Tillman reveal the tragedy and the curious complexity of southern problems as they are not revealed in the life of any other man. Northerners would do well to read his biography.

This Horse Had a Personality, His Story Shows

"JUMPER," by Nicholas Kalashnikoff. [Scribners, $2.50.]

Jumper was a superb Siberian colt, with the blood of an English stallion in his veins, and he grew up to be an almost miraculous animal, filled with a love of man and with a wisdom and personality rarely found, even in a horse.

Nicholas Kalashnikoff.

Author Kalashnikoff tells the story from Jumper's standpoint, and avoids remarkably well the pitfalls of over sentimentalization that mark such a method. The story traces Jumper's career as a war horse and his final, triumphant return to the old farm. It is a warm story, filled with motion and rich in the color and feel of Russia. It is a true story, told by one of Jumper's many military masters, and based on an unusual record which was kept by each man who came into possession of the horse. They will liken this book to Will James' "Smoky," and they'll not be far wrong, altho James still has no peer as a teller of horse stories.

The story of a Yankee in petticoats who captured an unwilling Rebel's love

Black Dawn

THIS is the story of that strange period in American history when the wounds of the Civil War had to be healed . . . and a stalwart group of young Northern women set out to heal them. Geraldine Winslow was one of those women.

Spirited, lively, determined, she put aside her social position, her fashionable clothes, an attractive marriage proposal—even her safe and comfortable home—to travel South and teach the newly-freed Negroes. There, she bravely and stubbornly withstood humiliation and the hatred of the defeated Southerners, till the threat of the ominous Ku Klux Klan forced her to accept protection from a man she hated but couldn't help loving.

Theda Kenyon has created a host of fascinating characters and situations in this sensitive novel of the Reconstruction period, picturing both sides of a stirring American saga that has never been fully told.

Pre-War Sparkle Is Missing as Opera Opens Chicago Season

By Thalia.

Last Monday the Chicago Opera opened its season with as big an audience as the Civic Opera house has ever housed. There wasn't a crevice unoccupied. There was, despite the warmth of the evening, much ermine draped on feminine shoulders. Even a few white ties leaped conspicuously into the limelight, altho since Pearl Harbor they are rarely met. Orchids adorned many a shoulder and coyly grew out of more than one topknot.

There was thunderous applause, out of sheer happiness at having opera back in town, and for the gallantry of the Don Jose who sang thru his laryngitis, and for the Carmen whose low notes sounded, so one enthusiast put it, as tho she were bravely recovering from an attack. There was such a jam in the bar that traffic in and out was for moments at a standstill. There was every promise of a fabulously successful opera season—with six performances completely sold out before opening night.

But somehow the old pre-war fizz and sparkle, the bubbles in the social champagne weren't there. The boxholders and their guests might just as well be sitting in the balcony, so far as being seen and admired is concerned, for there is now no traditional "diamond horseshoe" as it was cleverly contrived by early opera house designers to offer the extra added attraction of a social show window. Over half of the main floor occupants were in street clothes, many out of conviction that the war releases them from the demands of "dressing."

The old Auditorium theater was, of course, the perfect housing for opera spectacularly, a gracious background for the traditional fripperies of opera-going. For the opera in those days Chicago made its most successful sartorial efforts, wore her most spectacular jewels, and helped give opera-goers two handsome shows for their money. The opera season was a challenge to the most exclusive dressmakers, furriers, jewelers, and beauty shops in town, as well as to the ladies themselves.

In those days the opera opened early in November, usually the first Monday, and lasted until the end of January. By November the Chicago winter has settled into every one's blood enough for the winter wardrobe to be planned. This year's mid-October opening, especially before the St. Luke's fashion show has helped crystalize in chic Chicagoans' minds what is going to be worn, helped the war keep this year's first night at opera from being the sartorial prophesy it used to be.

About that most alluring fashion show your Thalia will have to tell you next week because, such are the exigencies of a great metropolitan Sunday newspaper's time schedule, this column had to be written before the show took place Wednesday afternoon and evening. But I can tell you now how it all started 18 years ago. Mrs. Walter Wolf and Mrs. Frank Hibbard, chairman and co-chairman of the always brilliantly successful show, had been in Europe that summer, Mrs. Hibbard in Cannes, Mrs. Wolf in Deauville. Patou, the famous French coutourier, had made a feature that year of showing his collection with fashionable models during the luncheon and tea hours at the famous French resorts. Mrs. Wolf and Mrs. Hibbard both came home with enthusiasm for a Chicago fashion show to raise money for their favorite charity.

Speaking of raising money for one's favorite charity, the members of the Chicago Arden Shore association are as adept at it as any group in town. They give each year a huge charity ball—this year they call it a party, not a ball. They cleverly wheedle some corporation into being its sponsor [contribute all the expenses], collect countless articles of beauty and value from leading shopkeepers, which they auction or raffle at the party and thus pile up the funds for the maintenance of the very fine work which they do at the Arden Shore camp in Lake Bluff, where they furnish a fortnight's vacation to 500 children and their mothers during the summer, and in the winter care completely for 50 underprivileged and undernourished boys, providing them with a home, clothing, education and health. This year their party is going to be held Saturday at the Drake hotel. Last week they had a luncheon for the 50 hard working members of the committee, at which ace-high surprises for the "Ace-Hi" party were announced.

The English Speaking union, as well as the opera and the symphony, which is a vital part of the lives of all Chicago music lovers, inaugurated its season last week. Harold Butler, director of British information services in the United States, spoke at the opening luncheon at the Blackstone hotel on life in England today. He told his audience that the number of historic buildings razed or hopelessly damaged is far greater in England than in either France or Italy. One notices the lack of paint almost more than anything else, he said, for everything looks shabby, dusty, drab. There is no such thing as domestic help, and the mechanics of living are complicated by having to stand in line for everything from food to postage stamps. Eating has become "frightfully dull," he averred. But, he concluded, the people are all cheerful, "a bit tired, but surprisingly healthy."

The modern art enthusiasts in our town had an exciting week-end as hosts to the greatest of the contemporary French exponents of pure color—Fernand Leger. On Saturday he gave a lecture at the Arts club under the auspices of the School of Design, was present at an exhibition of his paintings, was guest of honor at a smart Sunday afternoon reception, and supped quietly with friends he had made in Paris.

M. Leger drew as large a crowd as has ever packed the long lounge of the club. He spoke in French and with a wit which was not lost on many of his audience, altho most of them had to wait for the summarized translation, which John P. Nef of the University of Chicago made, to be certain of M. Leger's message. Color, M. Leger says, is as indispensable for life as are fire and water. Pure color is an independent force and the new conception of color has permitted art to be liberated, to become a plastic force, he declared.

Fernand Leger is credited with having, by his use of pure color,

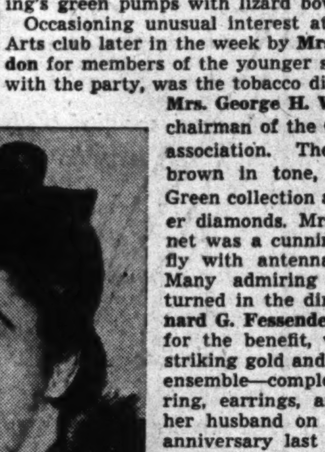
Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

A Victorian picture brought up to date was presented by Mrs. Henry Hafer at the Kenwood Social Service club's "Lucky 13 Cocktail party" at the Racquet club recently. The skirt of her burnt orange wool cocktail, or afterdark suit, was of today's fashionable short length; the blouse, of black crepe completely covered in black beading, had a low boat shaped neckline and the briefest of puffed sleeves. High about her throat was that latest of fashion whimsies, the dog collar, in this case a narrow black velvet band, and on her head was the most aristocratic and charming of hats, a lovely black one with a slightly upturned brim, worn at a tilting angle across her head. The black folds of material that trimmed the hat were lined with burnt orange. She carried the jacket to the suit across one arm.

Indian summer was in the air when the benefit committee of the Chicago Arden Shore association met at the Drake hotel the other day to talk over final plans for the association's "Ace-Hi" party next Saturday at the Drake. As a salute to the sunny day, the long luncheon table in the Regency room was panelled in oak leaves and clusters of bittersweet, broken at intervals by arrangements of red hot pokers, oriental lanterns, button chrysanthemums, and yellow daisies.



Mrs. Arnold W. Kirkeby.

A chorus of covetous murmurs went up as Mrs. Arnold Kirkeby arose after luncheon and slipped over her beige suit a sumptuous three-quarter length coat of honey-toned stone marten. The little hat tilted over her forehead was a miniature homberg of beige felt, banded in brown and twinkling rhinestones. Pre-luncheon conversation pieces were the long cuffed gloves of green lizard and the lavish bag which matched them which had been designed for Mrs. Thomas J. Fleming, social chairman of the organization, by a French modiste. The green skins in the tremendous pouch bag had been gathered into a large lizard-covered ring at the top, and even the over-sized mirror which the bag held was backed in lizard. A simple copper crepe gown showed off to advantage these unusual accessories and Mrs. Fleming's green pumps with lizard bows.

Occasioning unusual interest at a tea given at the Arts club later in the week by Mrs. George L. Plamondon for members of the younger set who are assisting with the party, was the tobacco diamond ring worn by Mrs. George H. Williamson, honorary chairman of the Chicago Arden Shore association. The diamond, actually brown in tone, is from the Hetty Green collection and is set with smaller diamonds. Mrs. Williamson's bonnet was a cunning black felt butterfly with antennae swirling upward. Many admiring glances also were turned in the direction of Mrs. Maynard G. Fessenden, general chairman for the benefit, who was wearing a striking gold and ruby costume jewel ensemble—complete with bracelet, ring, earrings, and pin—the gift of her husband on their 15th wedding anniversary last Monday. Mrs. Fessenden's black satin gown was complemented with a satin hat plumed with turquoise. Mrs. Fessenden was assisted in pouring at the tea by Mrs. George White Traver, president of the senior board of Arden Shore, who wore a mustard wool jacket over a harmonizing gray wool dress. Her chapeau was a matching circle of gray wool.

Stoles stole the show as a fur accessory in the St. Luke's annual display of fashions last Wednesday. One of the loveliest ones was made of precious platina fox, carried wound around one arm by Mrs. Nicholas Galitzine, with a long, dark dinner costume. Another was the handsome silver fox one worn by Mrs. Franklin G. Clement with a dark blue dinner gown.

Cameo Salon Plans Gay '80s Party

By Irene Steyskal

Chicago, like many another swiftly growing and changing city, has her street of magnificent ghosts. Still an echo in the memory of the old timers is the roll of the Kimball broughams down Prairie avenue—broughams drawn by blooded, dock-tailed horses, their silver studded harness flashing and jingling. Still an echo are the waltz strains of Johnny Hand's orchestra in the faded ivory and gold drawing rooms, in the polished cherry ballrooms hung with crystal chandelier, where General Phil Sheridan whirled the ladies dizzily around and around, always in one direction—for never had the popular hero of Five Forks learned to reverse his steps.

Casting about for new ideas for meetings this season, moving spirits of the Cameo salon have hit upon a plan to return to the "millionaires' row" of yesteryear and evoke from its past a golden hour of music and dancing and even revive in costume the pictorial elegance of laces and satins and ostrich plumes.

Mr. and Mrs. John Grant now own the handsome old three story, 16-room house at 2640 Prairie avenue and will open it to the salon of artists and art patrons for the fall opening on Saturday night, Nov. 4. Mayor and Mrs. Kelly have accepted an invitation to attend. Borrowing from Miss Herma Clark of THE TRIBUNE, the evening is to be named for her column, "When Chicago Was Young." Miss Clark will attend the party in a costume reminiscent of the Elegant Eighties.

Mrs. Edward J. Kelly.

Miss Florence Dibbell Bartlett, art patron and lecturer at the Art institute, and Grace Bush of Los Angeles, author and pianologist, will appear as belles of the Gay Nineties. Both Mr. and Mrs. Herman C. Lammers will be in costume. Mrs. Lammers is president of the Chicago Beautiful association.

It is reported that a wave of enthusiasm has spread thruout the salon's 100 members, all artists or art patrons, and they are searching the old highboy and attic chest for ancestral finery to wear that evening. Mrs. H. McClellan Hess, founder of the group and its president, has an 1830 costume in which she will appear as Peggy O'Neill, the "gorgeous hussy" of Washington and Georgetown society during Andrew Jackson's Presidential tenure. Mr. Hess will assume the role of P. T. Barnum as master of ceremonies.

Mrs. William Ragland [Edith Mason] will dress in one of her costumes from her La Scala opera days, and May Barron will appear as one of her favorite characters in opera.

Chauncy Olcott will return in the person of Clyde Bassler to sing "My Wild Irish Rose." Carmen Lewis will be the gypsy Carmen, singing her lilting "Habanera," and Pansy Jacobs, as Terresa Carenno, will play the Hungarian rhapsody. If Rudolph Ganz, whose reputation as a wit almost equals his fame as composer, conductor and pianist, plans a fancy dress make-up, he has guarded the secret, but he is enlisted as a speaker. Some are predicting that Louis Rousseau, tenor formerly with the Opera Comique in Paris, will steal the show with his Chevalier Des Grieux costume. His contribution to the program will be an aria from "Manon."

Others of the company will revive among other old songs, "The Last Rose of Summer," "Bonnie Sweet Bessie," "A Bird in a Gilded Cage," and "After the Ball."

There will be a midnight supper, and dancing later to the polkas and waltzes that were the hit tunes of 'way back when.

Mrs. Lammers' Chicago Beautiful association is giving a tea tomorrow in the Chicago Galleries for three Chicago artists—Adam Emery Albright, Frank Pey-

Fresh from the Hills . . . . Santa Claus Man

By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

STEP right up, children, and shake hands with Santa Claus. Yes, kiddies, here's a big jovial Santa Claus, even if you do find him putting wood into the outdoor fireplace or puttering around among the iris. If you are skeptical about the reality of a summer time chimney climber, just ask any one in the vicinity of Allerton, Wayne County, Ia., where you can find "the man they call Santa Claus." Matter-of-factly, you'll be told:

"Go out the Allerton-Clio road, turn to the right after you cross the railroad where Vic Lovett's car got hit by a train last year, and turn in at the second house."

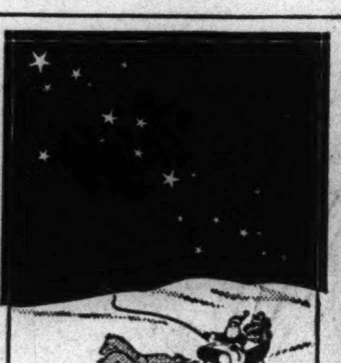
The trip is well worth while, particularly if you are getting along in years. Because Walter Orville De Silva, the man who has played Santa Claus in his church so long he bears that name the year around, certainly knows how to get the most out of life. Probably he's never even realized it, but Mr. De Silva, at 75, has worked out a formula that can be an inspiration to any one.

You might say that Mr. De Silva has retired, because he has rented out his farm land. But he's just about the busiest fellow you ever saw. At last he has had time to do something he had been "laying off" to do for many years. He sat himself down and memorized one hundred James Whitcomb Riley poems. Now he's in great demand as a speaker at men's clubs and church affairs thruout a dozen nearby counties. He's even gone as far south as Carthage, Mo., to recite Mr. Riley's poems.



A black, red and silver cutter.

During the last winter, when Iowa's mud roads [one of which passes his home] kept Mr. De Silva from getting around much, he decided he would try his hand at making up some poetry of his own. He wrote a whole bookful, mainly about his farm, and the old pine tree, and his family, modestly calling his verses "homespun rhymes." It's not bad poetry! In fact, when Mr. De Silva recites it himself it's darned good! And he meets a lot of interesting people.

However, the De Silvas don't have to sit around longing for a "lecture engagement" in order to see faces besides their own! They scarcely have time to get the floor of their cunning little Santa Claus house swept before company comes pouring in. Incidentally, when they built the house they said: "Why bother with a front door? Everybody comes in at the back door anyhow!" So the house is known far and wide as the "House with One Door!" and folks came from miles around to see it. And that's just one of many attractions which the De Silvas have arranged to make folks want to come see them. Cut out letters along the driveway spell out the word "Welcome," and the first thing that meets the visitors' eyes on the broad green lawn is a big outdoor fireplace, complete with oven. It has ashes in it, and pieces of half-burned wood, to show that it is ready to start frying hamburgers at the drop of a match. In a circle about the fireplace are enough chairs and benches to seat 30 people, at least, and a table stands handy to hold picnic suppers.

When any organization for miles around plans a picnic, it's sure to be held at the De Silva farm. And everybody's happy, including the De Silvas, who have thoughtfully provided entertainment for their guests.

Back of the De Silva "House with One Door" is a big collection of dinner bells which recall the old days when one of these bells was standard equipment for every farmhouse. Picnickers are allowed to ring the bells to their hearts' content. Each bell is stoutly attached to its own post, just as in the old days. Then they are rigged in series, so that several may be rung at one time by some stout rope pulling. The result is a silver tongued clanging that can be heard for miles. The De Silvas prove that each New Year's eve. They ring the bells for 15 minutes. Then they get phone calls from people as far as three miles away saying the bells were clearly heard.

In addition to ringing the bells, it's entertaining to hear Mr. De Silva tell the story of each one, and, incidentally, the story of the family to whom it belonged. One belonged to the O. G. Allen home, which was across the road from the De Silva homestead. Another belonged to the Parsons home, a mile across the fields. Another belonged to Billy Lawson, who loaned Mr. De Silva's father the seed corn for his first planting after the prairie sod was broken. Another bell saved two lives. Mr. De Silva tells the story:

A 3 year old boy fell in a well. His father went down after him, clinging to a rope. The rope broke, leaving both man and boy struggling in 25 feet of water. The child's mother ran to the dinner bell, ringing it with loud, uneven strokes that shouted panic in every clang. From every direction, neighbors came on foot and on horseback, and both man and boy were saved.

"Lordee!" says Mr. De Silva. "We knew the voices of our neighbors' bells just as you'd know the voice of your best friend if you heard it on the telephone!"

Two bells have come from the small town of Allerton, the old firebell, and the one that rang atop the first little schoolhouse. And so the collection goes, each a relic of the past.

If sufficiently urged, Mr. De Silva will play Westminster Chimes on the bells. Even tho it takes, as he says, "considerable bobbin' around."

If more sprightly music is desired, you can play your own tune on the near-by row of cowbells, that are tuned to ascending and descending scales. They are less spectacular than the dinner bells, but they can be a lot of fun for a picnic crowd. And if you just like to ring bells, without rhyme or reason, the De Silvas have other bells, ranging from elephant bells to sheep bells that you may ring as long as your patient companions can endure the noise.

The sleighbells which Mr. De Silva uses on his yearly appearance as Santa Claus hang in the barn. Near them is the black, red, and silver cutter in which he rides if it happens to be a White Christmas. And don't let yourself be rushed for time when you go into that barn, It's a private museum. Hundreds of pieces of pioneer household and farm equipment have been assembled for the amusement of visitors. Here is real Americana, and Mr. De Silva makes an excellent guide, explaining everything. Even the folding bustle.

Most important item in the collection is the sword carried by the first American of the De Silva family, Joseph De Silva. Joseph was a 14 year old boy, the son of a wealthy family, when he was kidnaped from Fouchal, Madeira Islands, by British seamen and forced to work aboard ship in virtual slavery. Finally, when the ship was anchored in the middle of the Delaware river, so the records run, young Joseph jumped overboard and swam to shore. He was befriended by the Bloomfield family, and by the time the Revolutionary war began the young Spaniard was a full-fledged American, with an old score to settle with his kidnapers. He enlisted at Woodbridge, Middlesex County, N. J., and performed such meritorious service for his adopted country that he was personally thanked by Gen. Washington. Joseph's descendants treasure the note he wrote after that visit. With characteristic frankness he wrote that he had been very greatly disappointed. He had expected to find Gen. Washington a very handsome man, but instead he found the general's face unpleasantly pitted, as if by smallpox.

Joseph's loyalty to his country established a precedent for all De Silvas. In every war of our nation, the name has been on the army rolls. Now, Mr. and Mrs. De Silva have five grandsons, one granddaughter, and two grandsons-in-law in uniform.

Next to the sword, Mr. De Silva's choicest exhibit is a big millwheel brought to southern Iowa in a caravan of covered wagons that came in from Kentucky in 1840. Descendants of those pioneers, who brought a miller, doctor, mechanic, and blacksmith with them, are now leading citizens of the community. In order that the millwheel might be saved for posterity, it was given to Mr. De Silva.

The remainder of the exhibit, from carpet stretcher to side saddle, came mainly from the De Silva homestead, which stood where the picnic table now stands. Our host was just 15 months old when his parents brought him and his 12 older brothers and sisters from Dodgeville, Wis., in a pair of ox-drawn covered wagons. It took 42 days to make the trip. [In an automobile, it takes 11 hours.] The pioneer family arrived on May 10, 1870, and on May 11 the father and a dozen of his children were starting to put in the corn crop. The prairie sod was broken into chunks by a breaking plow. Then the children came along with hammers, hatchets, and mauls, to break up the tough, root tangled chunks. At regular intervals, they counted out 10 grains of precious borrowed corn and planted them with this chant:

One for the blackbird, two for the crow,
Three for the cutworm, and four to grow.
Six for the varmints, four for you.
That's what Dad said, and our Dad knew!

"This," says Mr. De Silva, indicating the rolling hills along this Iowa-Missouri line, "was the Garden of Eden!"

However, there's no country-going-to-the-dogs stuff in Mr. De Silva's talk. That's one of the qualities that make him such an inspiring character. This has always been a great country, he says, and it's going to be even better!

"Lordee!" says Mr. De Silva. "In a lifetime, I've seen the country go from sailboats to submarines, from oxen to airplanes, from cradle to combine, from dinner bell to radio. I hope I live to see what's coming next!"

revolutionized much of pragmatic art — advertising, window displays, even home decoration, as well as the art of painting. He would have liked, he said, to revolutionize Paris in 1937. He suggested that 300,000 unemployed be hired to paint all the walls of Paris in pure color, under his direction. But, he admitted, he got nowhere. He later did try the experiment in a small working class quarter in Washington, and every one liked it.

M. Leger's abstract film, "Ballet Mechanique," was shown, with a short film of objects in motion by Maholy-Nagy, director of the institute, and two films which created a great furore in Paris in 1924—a surrealist film by the painter Salvador Dali [with an eyeball cutting incident that brought forth both gasps and titters from the audience] and a Dada film made by the painter Picabia and the photographer Man Ray. The "Ballet Mechanique" was first presented in Chicago, and in America, I feel sure, to the members of the Arts club. The music by Georges Antheil was given with the film on a historic evening a decade or so ago.

Mrs. Walter Paepcke and her husband, who are patrons of the School of Design, bought one of the largest and handsomest of the Leger canvases from the exhibit. It will hang in their Lake Shore dr. apartment, which has been refurbished as a background for the collection of modern paintings which she is making. Her friends admired the newly tea chest papered walls for the first time Sunday afternoon when she invited them to meet M. Leger.

One of the painter's oldest Chicago friends is Miss Alice Roullier, who, on Friday, had a private showing of the work of two Chicago artists, Rifka Angel, who has been painting in Hawaii, and Everett McNear, who has done a group of interesting "Mississippi Valley" pictures. Many of Chicago's elite assembled after the first afternoon concert of the symphony to admire them.

When the symphony season begins, Friday becomes a very busy day for many Chicagoans. The English Speaking union is having regular after-concert teas, the Cordon club offers regular hospitality, often the Arts club has a tea to open an exhibit, and it is the favorite day for private gettings together. This year the simple meetings of old friends seems to take on new zest, as if, in our natural uncertainties about what the morrow may bring, we must cling tenaciously to the certainty of old contacts.

Philanthropic Club to Hold Session Here

The welfare of physically handicapped children will receive foremost attention at gatherings of three philanthropically minded organizations this week and next. For the first time in its 23 years of existence, the National Society for Crippled Children has chosen Chicago as its convention city, and delegates from some 40 states will be assembling Monday, Oct. 30, for a three day meeting at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The annual luncheon meeting of the Outing Association for Crippled Children has been set for noon Friday at the Standard club, and on Wednesday night and Thursday the Women of the Rotary Club of Chicago will hold a rummage and white elephant sale to benefit the members' best loved charity, that of rehabilitation of crippled children.

With such pre-war items as a portable typewriter, Brussels lace, and billiard equipment among the myriad of donated articles, business promises to be brisk at the Rotary women's bazar, which is to be held at the Congress hotel. Mrs. Sarkis Nahigian, president of the club, is assisting the chairman, Mrs. Martin Graettinger, with arrangements and among the many members lending their services are Mrs. Adolph Krock and Mrs. Frank Fulton. Doors will be open from 7 until 9 Wednesday night, and from 9 until 5 o'clock Thursday.

The hostess committee to the National Society for Crippled Children has planned an informal supper party next Sunday evening for guests and delegates to the convention at the Edgewater Beach, and the International Society for Welfare of the Crippled will entertain at a luncheon for the assemblage at 12:15 o'clock Monday in the hotel's Marine dining room. Consuls stationed in Chicago and their wives and the heads of local foreign societies are among the many additional guests the International society has invited to the latter affair, at which the program theme will be "rehabilitation around the world."

At 4:30 Monday afternoon, the Illinois Association for the Crippled, host society at the meeting, will give a tea in the Michigan room for convention guests. At that time Mrs. George H. Williamson, wife of the Illinois society's president, will be assisted in receiving by Miss Thecla Doniat, Mrs. William S. Turner, Mrs. Edward L. Compere, Mrs. Howard A. Emig, Mrs. Drennan Slater, and Mrs. Will H. Wade.

Still another convention highlight will be a banquet Tuesday night, which will bring as speaker Col. Howard A. Rusk, chief of the convalescent training division for army air forces. Following his talk on "Rehabilitation in War and in Peace," Janice Porter, formerly with the Civic Opera company, and Pauline Bywaters of the concert stage, will be presented in a musical program.

Col. E. W. Palmer of Kingsport, Tenn., president of the National society, will conduct the various convention sessions, and will address the Sunday night preliminary assembly. Mrs. Williamson and Miss Doniat are co-chairmen for the Sunday night supper, and among those on the assisting committee are Mrs. Howard L. Willett, Mrs. Margaret Pope Hovey, Mrs. Frank M. Padden, Miss Frances E. Schmidt, and Mrs. Byron V. Kanaly. Mrs. Hovey and Mrs. Thomas R. Ponton are in charge of the Monday luncheon.

Mrs. Babette Jennings, director of social service and outgoing department of the Children's Memorial hospital, will be the guest speaker at the annual luncheon meeting of the Outing Association for Crippled Children. There also will be a report by the president, Mrs. Barthold J. Strauss, concerning the 44th year's activities of the organization, whose major interest is the conducting of a summer camp for children with orthopedic handicaps. The association has just purchased a 38 acre camp site at Oconomowoc, Wis. Its founder, Mrs. Emma S. Haskell, recently retired after serving the group as leader for 42 years.

THE Room That Grew

H. M. Lloyd, Decorator, John A. Colby & Sons, who designed the room described here.

Already the chintz cushions on the sofa by the fire have a slightly tumbled, used look. Visitors to the Town House stroll into this large living room. So comfortable, they murmur happily, and settle down to take it all in. Soon they are practically rooted, they wish they could start right in living there.

What is the room like?—to have such attraction. To begin, it is composed of Provencal, Chinese and English pieces, all old designs, all characterful, slightly venerable looking. But, there is also a new black leather armchair, as gleaming and poised as an opera hat.

What a chop-suey, you say, how can it have style or unity? Well, it has both. There, of course, is where the art of creating a scene comes in.

And the scene is of a family about its hearth, in the midst of its numerous family treasures. Casual glances flick fondly over the many pieces endeared to them by warm, living associations. Personal selection, personal association, personal significance enrich the room with a glow of intimacy.

From his gargantuan brown stuffed chair near the fireplace the Master, occupied with pipe and newspaper, scarcely needs move to get more tobacco from the low butler's tray table they picked up that summer at Tunbridge Wells.

Within his range of gaze are other personalized things. The cock-fight chair, the old porcelain lamps, the small Provencal commode they found in France. The inherited painting of an ancestor's horse, hanging above the mantel. The bunting horn vases of brown walnut on the mantel, that keep the horse company.

Memory pieces of a world cruise include the Chinese teakwood Chippendale tables, the urn-shaped lamp of carved pine, and the curio cabinet of fruitwood, lined in Chinese brocade, which holds the Mistress' collection of turquoises.

The Sheraton plant table, fluffily a-green, and the Sheraton chair in which the Mistress sits are both from her girlhood home. The stately Adam secretary in antique pine, duplicates one in a great house in London. It was made after a year of diplomatic quest of permission to copy.

It is home, this room.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Oct. 13, 1896.

Dear Julia: You'll be glad when this campaign is over, won't you, since I can't seem to keep politics out of my letters. Will is in the thick of it, attending committee meetings and helping to write literature for distribution. He is elated by the letter Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul has recently allowed to be published in reply to questions as to his stand. Will calls it the most memorable document of the campaign and coming, as it does, from one of the ablest churchmen of the Roman Catholic faith it will have great influence with voters. He leaves no doubt as to his position, for he begins: "I stand by the platform of the Republican party and the candidate of the Republican convention. I am opposed to the platform and the Presidential candidate of the Democratic convention." With this as a basis, the writer of this remarkable letter proceeds to explain why he takes this position. First he denounces the Democratic platform as a menace to social order and for its threat to the integrity of the courts of justice.

Jules Lumbard.

"The palladium of American liberties," he writes, "is the Supreme court at Washington, the counterpart of which, in majesty and power, to enforce absolute justice does not exist among the nations of Christendom." And he proceeds to wither with his scorn the party which would make this court responsive to the passing whims of political parties.

He warns against the arraying of class against class. "No other meaning," he says, "can be given to the appeals to 'the common people'; 'to labor'; 'to the poor and down-trodden'; and the denunciations against 'plutocrats' and 'corporations,' 'money-grabbers' and 'bankers.' But let them beware," says the archbishop; "they are lighting torches which, borne in the hands of reckless men, may light up, in this country, the lurid fires of a Commune."

THE TRIBUNE, in commenting on this letter, urges other members of the clergy to let their voices be heard as courageously. A number of our Protestant ministers, together with the Jewish and independent leaders, have done this some time ago.

Oct. 16.

I find this half-finished letter in my desk and will finish and send it. Still politics! "Teddy" Roosevelt, police commissioner of New York, "nimrod of the west," as he is called, addressed a massmeeting at the Coliseum last night which was almost like a revival. The 13,000 people who made up the audience were swayed by the singing of national songs to a pitch of enthusiasm almost like that aroused by hymns and exhortations in church. Over and hour and a half was spent in singing campaign songs, with the audience joining in.

Jules Lumbard, old time singer of Civil war songs, not only sang "America" but announced that, after having been a Democrat for years, he intended to vote for McKinley as he "loved his country more than his party" What a grand old man Lumbard looked, with his long white hair reaching to his shoulders! Many who had not seen him for a long time had thought he was not living and were so surprised at his appearance on the platform! His leaving the Democratic party will have influence, too. John M. Hubbard, assistant postmaster, and a great basso—for years a member of the Lumbard quartet—sang "Old Shady," a favorite Negro song of the Civil war. He made it so touching I saw many weep. The song is one of deep pathos. An old Negro, born and reared in slavery, suddenly realizes that he is now a free man, and he shouts "Hail, mighty day!" the refrain of the song. Will was deeply affected, as the memories of the war stirred in his mind. Robert T. Lincoln and "Teddy" Roosevelt both made good speeches, but it was Lumbard and Hubbard who really made the greatest impression.

And now I must close. Write me soon. Lovingly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

The Lumbard brothers sang songs of the Union during the Civil war, especially giving wings to the songs of George F. Root. "Old Shady" [author unknown] was a special favorite, not known to this generation.

Another program of unusual interest is that announced by the First District Past Presidents club of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs. The group, which is headed by Mrs. G. H. Nippert, will lunch at 1 o'clock Monday, Oct. 30, in the Hotel Sherman Crystal ballroom, after which Neppie Melton and an assisting trio composed of Carol Hinchcliffe, Orpha Dearbeyne, and Betty Ray will give a singing and dancing recital based on American Indian folklore. The program will be mounted against a background of Indian rug designs, pottery, and Kachina figurines, which symbolize the ancient gods of southwestern Pueblo tribes.

The club will have as its special guests that day Mrs. David C. Slagle, district president; Mrs. Clarence G. Goodwin, member of the National Federation board and parliamentarian for the state organization, and Mrs. Fred R. Lufkin, editor of Illinois Clubwoman.

In the receiving line with Mrs. Nippert at the party will be the members of her staff—Mrs. Gately, Mrs. Rudolph J. Baumell, Mrs. William C. Bryan, Mrs. B. Frank Buttsback, Mrs. Frank G. Koehne, Mrs. George E. Q. Johnson, and Mrs. Paul Marek.

The Chicago branch of the American Association of University Women will give its attention to one of the widely-discussed issues of these times when it assembles at 7:45 o'clock Thursday night in the Woodrow Wilson room at International Relations center, 84 E. Randolph st. "Racial and Minority Problems in Post-war America" is the subject to be discussed. Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCulloch will be the group's guests that evening, and Mr. McCulloch, who is an attorney and the director of the Mullenbach Industrial institute, will speak. Mrs. George F. Bradfield, vice president and program chairman of the club, will have charge of the meeting.

Florida Resort Popularity Due to Mrs. Palmer

By Rose Cour.

SARASOTA, FLA.

In this section of the state if you ask a native, who discovered Florida, he is apt to tell you that Mrs. Potter Palmer did. Of course Ponce de Leon is credited with the discovery of Florida in 1513, altho Karl A. Bickel, former president of the United Press, in his writings claims that Amerigo Vespucci visited the gulf coast of Florida as early as 1497.

So far as most Sarasotans are concerned, however, the coming of the Palmer family in 1911 was just about the most important event in the history of Florida. In fact, one bright youngster, putting two and two together, not long ago asked his mother if the palm trees which grow rampart everywhere on Florida's coast, were named for the Palmers.

When the late Mrs. Palmer arrived most of the gulf coast was virtually a jungle, and Sarasota, which now has a year round population of close to 12,000, was a village of 500. While she is given credit, and deservedly, not only for "discovering" Sarasota but for much of its development into one of the most popular winter resorts in the country, another attempt to "boom" this section was made as early as 1883.

At that time a group of families from Edinburgh, Scotland, settled here. They had purchased large tracts of land, sight unseen, from a real estate brochure. The leader of the company was Col. John Hamilton Gillespie, son of Lord John Hamilton Gillespie, famous golfer of Moffett. Col. Gillespie is credited with bringing golf to the United States. In 1886 he laid out and built a nine hole course on his own property in Sarasota and in 1888 built another course for the village of Sarasota. This latter course is said to be the first golf course in the United States.

The jungle had reclaimed it before the Palmers came, and no vestige of it remains. The section that was once the links is well built up and is now the site of the Sarasota county court house, the Atlantic Coastline station, Sarasota Terrace hotel, the Christian Science church, and numerous other buildings.

Col. Gillespie became an American citizen but went back to Scotland during the first World war and fought with a Scotch regiment. He died within recent years and is buried in Sarasota. Several of the descendants of the Scotch colony still live here, including John Browning and his sister, Mrs. Helen B. Johnston. Their father, the late Alex Browning, wrote the only history that has ever been written of the Scotch settlement at Sarasota. The one known member of the original colony is Miss Nellie Lawrie of Chicago. Miss Lawrie spends much of the year at Sarasota.

With Mrs. Palmer came other prominent Chicagoans as well as members of her own family. Capt. and Mrs. Warren F. Purdy of Chicago visited here in 1911 on their honeymoon, and, like Mrs. Palmer, fell so deeply in love with Sarasota that they purchased land immediately and built a house. From that time they spent much of each year at Sarasota until they finally became year round residents. The late Capt. Purdy was with the Illinois naval reserve for many years. One of their sons, Lt. Comdr. Frederick Warren Purdy, was lost on the destroyer Strong when it was sunk in the Pacific last year. In this connection he was awarded, posthumously, the silver star medal.

Lt. Comdr. Purdy's brother, Richard S. Purdy, is a master sergeant in the A. A. F. in India, and his sister, Betty, is in France with one of the clubmobile groups of the Red Cross.

The senior Mrs. Purdy was president of the Players, Sarasota's famous little theater, for several years, and still takes an active part in its affairs. Like the Palmer family, the Purdys are now in their fourth generation in Sarasota.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Currier of Lake Forest, have an attractive home on one of the keys, Treasure Island, which fronts on the Gulf of Mexico and back on Sarasota bay. Mrs. George A. Seaverns, Mrs. Currier's sister, also of Lake Forest, has a home at Nokomis, which is close to Treasure Island.

Other Chicagoans who have homes at Sarasota are Mr. and Mrs. James Fentress, Mrs. Frank Cary, and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Heyl Cary, whose home is on St. Arnold's Key. Mrs. Edson Keith has an attractive home on West Prospect. Her son, Lt. Comdr. Frederick W. Keith, and his wife live on Tyler dr., Lido Beach, when he can be at home. Several Chicagoans have homes in McClellan park, including Mr. and Mrs. R. Malcolm Whitelaw, Mrs. D. A. K. Steele, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ferguson of Winnetka. Mrs. Frank Binz and her daughter, Miss Elsa, live at Sapphire Shores, while Mr. and Mrs. Frank Binz Jr. have a home at Indian Beach. They have two sons in the service.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Somerville also have a home at Indian Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Ewing of Lake Forest have one of the picturesque houses at Crescent Beach on Siesta Key, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Whitney are at Long Boat Key. Mrs. Whitney was formerly Lora Colvin of Evanston. Walter H. Bonnell of Lake Bluff and his sisters, Miss Mabel and Miss Elizabeth Bonnell, have a home at Indian Beach. Miss Eva Pope of Chicago is now a year 'round resident and has a house fronting on Sarasota bay on Gulf Stream av.

Another Chicago family in its fourth generation at Sarasota is that of Mrs. William J. Vanderkloot of Lake Bluff whose cottage also is at Indian Beach. Her son, Billy, is with the R. A. F. and has been the pilot on almost every trip Prime Minister Churchill has made since the war began.

Chicago-Sarasotans were saddened within recent months by the deaths of two of their number, Mrs. Robert Hemingway and Robert S. Givins. Mrs. Hemingway will be better remembered by Chicagoans as Mrs. Calvin S. Smith and was for many years president of the Women's Friendly Aid society.

Mr. and Mrs. Givins came to Sarasota in 1914 and built a handsome house on Bay Island. Mr. Givins was prominent in yachting circles and was vice commodore of the Sarasota Yacht club. He gave his own yacht to the coast guard at the outbreak of the war and became an active member of the coast guard reserve. He received the rank of lieutenant [j. g.] in the coast guard reserve and was one of the original organizers of the coast guard auxiliary flotillas of the gulf coast area.

[Have you some household help that lightens labor or conserves on materials? Is there some comfort you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. Sam H., Chicago—When I'm caught out in a rain without rubbers and am wearing smooth leather shoes I clean them and then give them a very light coating of castor oil. Then I use my shoe trees and let them dry at room temperature. After they are dry I give them a light coating of wax. [As a matter of fact I apply ordinary floor wax, sparingly, to my smooth leathered dress or street shoes after I have polished them, just to give them a little longer life.]

Mrs. George S., Indianapolis, Ind.—In the fall my husband keeps on hand an old auto tire which he wired to end of a light pole. He's dragged this over the grass fires of our neighbors on numerous occasions. It will check yards of blaze in a surprising short time, and, of course, he keeps moving tire quickly so it won't catch fire.

• • •

Mrs. Ken L., Lansing, Mich.—To clean any wood that is badly soiled I follow the advice of an expert on wood refinishing and upkeep and make up the following mixture: 1 quart of water, 1 tablespoonful of turpentine and 3 tablespoonfuls of boiled linseed oil. I wash the wood with a soft cloth wet with this solution, and keep solution hot in a double boiler as I use it. Then I polish with dry cloth.

D. A. R. to Hold Annual Benefit Next Saturday

Mrs. W. J. Hoppe.
[Moffett Photo.]

Other years have seen the finest furs, expensive frocks, and handsome accessories paraded at the annual benefit style show and card party of Chicago chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. This year it is a different picture that will be presented, but one in harmony with the martial spirit of the times and reflecting the patriotic interests of the society. Military uniforms, both men's and women's, will take the spotlight at the D. A. R benefit next Saturday afternoon in the Grand ballroom of the Drake hotel.

Mrs. William J. Hoppe is serving as general chairman of the party, and Mrs. Franklin M. Miller is chairman of the style show. The chapter's young pages, headed by Miss Elizabeth Dunn, will be on hand to serve as an ushers' corps. This year's printed program will carry an outline of the large scale war service of the society and its other patriotic activities, and recorded in it will be the names of members and member's relatives in military service.

Presiding as hostess will be the chapter regent, Mrs. Herbert J. Maass. Mrs. William J. Seinwerth will have charge of card table arrangements and other assisting committees will be headed by Mrs. Edward M. Briggs, Miss Theodore Cox, Mrs. Thomas W. Morrow, Miss Grace Houston, Miss Jane Okeson, Mrs. Herbert J. Windsor, Mrs. Cornelius Peeples, Mrs. August C. Churchill, Miss Florence Deneen, Mrs. Fred G. Campbell, and Mrs. Alonzo Newton Benn.

Money raised by means of the annual party is contributed to the National society for its special projects. This year the proceeds will go into a war fund which will finance the building of permanent libraries at government hospitals.

The campaigning spirit of the national election seems to have developed an offshoot in the Illinois D. A. R., for, altho the terms of present office holders continue until the annual state conference in March, the names of two candidates for state regent already have been placed before the society. Kaskaskia and Glencoe chapters have nominated Mrs. Ivor Jeffreys and Illini chapter at Ottawa have presented Mrs. Frederick A. Sapp's name.

Her backers point to Mrs. Jeffrey's 22 years of active D. A. R. service in the Illinois society. As the first state chairman of Red Cross, she organized 62 Red Cross units in Illinois chapters. She was state chairman of the society's National Historic magazine, and has served on the national D. A. R. house and reception committees. She has just retired from the office of state vice regent. Mrs. Jeffreys assisted in organizing the Glencoe chapter, with which she is now actively associated, and served as regent, vice regent, and as chairman of numerous committees in Kaskaskia chapter. In the Chicago area she served as chairman of Americanism and as chairman of court naturalization ceremonies.

Mrs. Sapp, now state registrar of the society, also has been state vice regent and has headed several state committees. She is a past president of the Illinois State Officers' club. Mrs. Sapp twice has been regent of her chapter and has been director and registrar thru four administrations. An active Red Cross worker, Mrs. Sapp served as director of the Ottawa chapter and also as registrar for surgical dressings work. She is associated with several other patriotic organizations, among them the Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America and Daughters of Colonial Wars, which she has served in both national and state office.

Clubs to Study the Issues of Fall Elections

With women's vote likely to be in the majority for the first time at this crucial period in the country's history, many organizations are giving serious thought to the responsibility of the franchise, and meetings to prepare members and other citizens for informed balloting are becoming more numerous as the election nears. Two large clubs, the Woman's City Club of Chicago and the Chicago Woman's Aid, have such programs scheduled for this week.

It is the local political scene to which the Woman's City club gives its attention. The first of two joint meetings with the men's City Club of Chicago, a 12:15 o'clock luncheon, will be held tomorrow at the Hotel La Salle, when Joseph Tuohy, Democratic candidate for the office of Cook county state's attorney will speak. On the following Monday John T. Dempsey, the Republican candidate, will address the second joint gathering at the same hour and place.

The women will reassemble at 2 o'clock in the lounge of their suite in the Fine Arts building for the first of a series of study sessions on county institutions. Tomorrow's subject will be the Juvenile Detention home, and Francis D. Scully, superintendent of that institution, will talk on "Delinquency and the Public."

A special morning meeting Tuesday at the Chicago Woman's Aid will consider "Issues of the Coming Election." Mrs. Raymond S. Simons of the League of Women Voters will speak. At a noon breakfast following, Ira Latimer will give a talk on "The Problem of Rising Anti-Semitism."

Dr. Frederick L. Schuman, former faculty member of the University of Chicago and now Woodrow Wilson professor of government at Williams college, will appear before the Aid at a current events breakfast Friday to discuss "American Foreign Policy at the Crossroads." Dr. Schuman is the author of several books on both European and American foreign policy and he has participated frequently in the University of Chicago round table, Town Meeting of the Air, and other radio forums.

3 Fine Water Color Shows Now on View

By Eleanor Jewett.

Three brilliant water color exhibitions opened last week. A tremendously strong show is that at the Ackermann Galleries, 408 S. Michigan av., where recent water colors by Vladimir Pavlosky are on view. These are chiefly paintings of the sea and fishing boats altho several fine autumn and winter landscapes imperatively command attention. One cannot fail to think of Winslow Homer and John Whorf in reviewing the exhibit, for Pavlosky is as subtle, as vigorous and as great a technician as the two, but, even in thinking of them, the spell of Pavlosky's personal and individual approach to a subject, loved by all three, stands firmly, complete in its own strength.

This is one of those exhibits not to be missed by any one who relishes forceful, dominant painting and scenes smacking of salt wind and the sea. One of the most beautiful of the paintings is of swamp land under a stormy sky, fine bird country; another is of a great ship run up on the shore for repairs; and a third of fishermen at sea. The exhibit will run thru October.

A block south of the Ackermann Galleries, at the Findlay Galleries, Van Buren st. and Michigan av., is the brilliant exhibit of water colors by Eliot O'Hara. Never was the versatility of water color demonstrated more clearly. Pavlosky and O'Hara are both great painters, both use the same medium, and their results are as far apart as the poles. O'Hara paints with lush, rich, running color, flaming and subtle at once. His shades have a hundred nuances. Orange merges into gold, yellow, and the soft velvet of cream; blue goes from cobalt to sapphire; browns, grays, red, rose—each color is a happy excuse for a lightning play upon the tints that develop from it and are absorbed into it. Subject is of importance to the artist, but color is his plaything, his joy and his challenge.

The water colors of O'Hara take one nearly around the globe. He has set foot in many countries and sketched in all of them. The most beautiful painting, to my mind, is a picture from Maine—"Tide Pool, Goose Rocks Beach." A flight of gulls people the deserted beach where the handling of water is a delight to the soul. The subtlety and mounting wonder with which O'Hara plays upon the color and character of the water, that in the pool and that in the ocean beyond, is beyond description. The beauty of the flying, settling birds is unspeakably lovely and the setting of sky and air is exactly, exquisitely right. This is a picture of which one's eyes can never drink their fill.

Another beautiful water color is from Brazil, "The Corcovado from Leblon," a magnificent painting with the figure of Christ rising like a shaft from the summit of a bare mountain top. Here again color is the essence of the picture, "Downtown Pittsburgh" is another subtle and inspired piece of painting, with gradations of color that are tantalizing in their swift, sure change. "Desert Plants," a memory of Arizona, is another brilliant effort and "Waikiki at Sunset" is still another. In fact there is practically no end to the paintings in this group that catch the eye and hold the attention. It is one of the shows the reviewer hates to turn his back on.

The exhibit continues thru October, and, in the larger gallery at Findlay's, is the superb and exciting exhibition of landscapes and Maine coast scenes by Emile Gruppe, reviewed last week. The two together make an exhibit not to be missed.

The third water color exhibit is that of recent work by Myrtle E. Frankovitz at the Esquire theater, E. Oak st. Miss Frankovitz is one of our better known Chicago artists whose handling of water color gives infinite satisfaction. Her color is warm and rich, her sense of composition excellent and the variety of subject matter she finds congenial brings the world to her palette. The delicacy of her color and its emotional quality are two factors in the success of her work. She is a gifted craftsman. Her painting is sure, no fumbling nor rough edges. Her exhibit is very delightful, a pleasant spot to visit. Among the most charming of the water colors are "Petunias," "San Miguel," "Hillside in Taxco," "On the Skokie," "Red Roofs," and "Evening Shadows." The exhibit will run thru Saturday and is well worth seeing.

Rifka Angel is showing a sparkling group of gouaches at the Roullier Art Galleries, 410 S. Michigan av., where, in the larger gallery, Edward McNear is responsible for the attractive group of Mississippi valley paintings. Mr. McNear's exhibit, after seeing Rifka Angel's passionately colorful work, is in the nature of applying a poltice to a geyser, but nevertheless the exhibits do complement each other and each is well worth seeing.

Rifka Angel has been living in Hawaii for a number of years, only illness brought her back to New York and only war conditions prevent her return to Hawaii, a place that suits her temperament and art perfectly. She shows in her exhibit the far-reaching influence which the tropics have had upon her. The paintings are like so many jewels, gleaming and glittering from every facet. Her paintings of flowers are exotic, decorative, beautiful. Her island portraits, chiefly of young women, are delicious as well as sensitive. The rhythm in the dancing figures of the three girls in a field of yellow grain is alive and vital. One feels it, as one feels the sweep of the ballet. A snow scene, done in this country, comes as a contrast to the Hawaiian warmth and color, but it is beautifully handled and one of the nicest things in the show.

Edward McNear affords a vivid contrast in technique and palette to the Angel paintings. His colors are calm, cool, and self-possessed. His compositions are clear cut and calculated. Even his cubist figure is more of a mathematical problem ably solved than a modern work. The paintings are extremely likeable, tho one's mind rather than one's heart is busiest in the affair. As demonstrations of excellent craftsmanship and a thoro knowledge of understatement in color, the McNear landscapes go unchallenged. They are different from much of the painting being done today, approaching nearest perhaps to Shealer and Dale Nichols in their antiseptic quality, but are very acceptable—in fact, charming; their difference is enough to make them a vogue.

The Chicago Galleries, 215 N. Michigan av., are showing paintings by Adam Emory Albright, Charles W. Dahlgreen, and Frank C. Peyraud thru October. It is the strongest show in town, bar none, and is a stunning reminder that Chicago painters, young or old, are artists of infinite resource, originality and power. The combined ages of the three painters total 249 years, but any one seeing their exhibit will set them down as young years, not old.

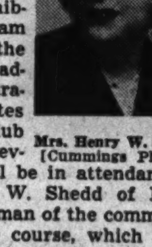
Garden Club to Conduct 7th Judging School

The Garden Club of Illinois will conduct its seventh judging school Tuesday and Wednesday at the Palmer House. Designed primarily for flower show exhibitors and judges of exhibits, the program is open to the public, and advance registration indicates that garden club members of several states will be in attendance.



Mrs. Henry W. Shedd.

Mrs. Henry W. Shedd of River Forest is chairman of the committee presenting the course, which is in conformity with standards set up by the National Council of State Garden Clubs, thereby entitling those completing the program to credits toward a national judging certificate. Mrs. Edward Haase is co-chairman, and other members of the committee in charge include Mrs. Raymond Knotts of Berwyn, immediate past president, Mrs. L. T. Warren of Elmhurst, Mrs. Howard L. Storch of Wilmette, Mrs. Kenath Sponsel of Chicago, Mrs. Ralph M. Kroscher of Elmhurst, Mrs. Mabel Johnson Fuller of Riverside, Mrs. Bertha L. Downes of Downers Grove, and Mrs. Charles Novak of River Forest.

The school will be opened at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday with a talk by Mrs. O. W. Dynes on "Presenting the Successful Flower Show." Mrs. Dynes for 14 years has been general chairman of the club's Chicago Flower show. At 10:30, Prof. L. C. Grove, assistant extension horticulturist of the Iowa State College of Agriculture, will lecture on "Fundamental Material Every Horticulturist Should Know." The afternoon program will be devoted to "Judging Artistic Exhibits," with Mrs. Hazel Peckinpaugh Dunlop of Detroit, Mich., in charge, and examinations—which are optional—are to be held Wednesday. The president, Miss Elizabeth Howland, will conduct the various sessions.

At a ceremony recently in the Lebanon, Ind., home of the bride's father, Ben M. Scifres, Miss Phyllis Hull Scifres became the bride of Arthur Hobart Nethercot Jr., son of Prof. and Mrs. Nethercot of Evanston. Miss Mary Louise Scifres was her sister's only attendant. Mr. Nethercot's brother, William, served as best man. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony after which Mr. Nethercot and his bride left for a wedding trip. They will make their home temporarily in Chicago. Mrs. Nethercot is a student at Northwestern university, from which her bridegroom received his degree last spring.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

Dude Ranches Preparing for Busy Season

TUCSON, ARIZ.—The "see America first" boys out in this country have coined a post-war travel slogan, "come to see the desert now; in 50 years there won't be any." Which seems to suggest that there are no unmixed blessings.

Early in the summer British Ambassador Halifax paid Arizona a visit. The spacious aridity of the nation's fifth largest state reminded him, he said, of Egypt and India, in both of which lands the Briton has helped make history.

"Water in Arizona," said Halifax, "like water on the Sahara, is as precious as gold."

"Dearer," replied Arizona's governor. "Water on the desert is life."

The securing of adequate water for this high and dry state has always been a matter of prime concern to Arizonans, and many a political battle has been fought by various factions, each of which has promised water salvation in a different fashion. Armchair engineers here are as plentiful as are armchair military strategists at the Union League club.

It is likely that some four million acre feet will be available for irrigation not long after the war. Farmers and future farmers are cheerful at the prospect; chambers of commerce are gloating over industrial possibilities; but some tourist promotion folk are worried over what may happen if all Arizona becomes a humid garden plot.

Most of the ranches spread out within a hundred mile radius of the Old Pueblo are again preparing for busy seasons. Between ceilings on the beef they sell and ration points on the beef they buy back to feed their guests, some ranch operators feel a bit harried. But as one of them stated recently, "All the government has done is to make us keep books, so now we know where we're at."

Desert resorts—The Arizona Inn, the El Conquistador, the Rancho Nezhone—are all being refurnished and restaffed preparatory to the winter season. At the Nezhone, Owner-Operator Leonie Boutall is currently installing new Spanish style furniture, and announces that the swimming pool, barbecue pit, stables, and semi-tropical garden will be ready for the opening this week.

Opening this week also is Howard Miller's Wild Horse ranch, which has recently had to contend with a wild mountain lion as well as its horses. Most mountain lions have been hunted out of this part of the country in the last few years, and until recently it was widely believed that the solitary lion which has been livening the nights in the Tucson mountains with his nocturnal depredations, was in fact a former pet which belonged to a Chicagoan, Charles H. Bruning, who runs the C. Bar B. ranch. The lion was recently shot and killed by a filling station operator down by Cortaro.

Back at Rancho De Los Lomas, on the Gates Pass road above Dawson's crossing, are Mrs. Albert Keep and her sister, Mrs. Francis Langdon Hubbard of Hubbard Woods. With Mrs. Keep are her three children, Alice, Sandra, and Lindsay; and with Mrs. Hubbard are her two children, Carol and Scott. They were at the ranch until May of last year, and hastened back early this year. Also at Los Lomas are Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Peppermann of Chicago, whose daughter, Grace, is at the University of Arizona, and Miss Helen Ernst of Chicago.

The man power shortage has caught up with Mrs. Baxter McLean, who, with Sgt. McLean, owns and operates the Silver Bell ranch. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leonard Hollis of Chicago, Mrs. McLean has added the churning of butter and the grading of eggs to her list of accomplishments. She also keeps the pigs, tends the stock, cares for the horses, supervises in the kitchen, and generally rules the roost with a strong and able hand. She is also adding to her holdings, having acquired an additional 55 acres of sudan grass pasture across Silver Bell road in the direction of the Catalinas.

Mrs. McLean is a noble example of American womanhood, holding the fort while the lord and master goes off to wars, and sometimes doing a better job than hubby did. She is particularly proud of her prowess with the pigs, Pat, Mustard, and Mike by name, altho admitting that if some ranch guest this winter wants to relieve her of feeding them, she will only object for a little while.

Rollin Read's Hacienda del Sol, a modern ranch hotel in the Catalina foothills, has just been opened for the season. Mr. Read during the summer added a putting course and shuffleboard courts, and the comfortable and pleasant ranch is ready for its complement of winter guests.

In answer to the plaint of his guests that "we'd like to sit in the sun, and out of the wind" genial host Bill Allen at Kenyon ranch, down Tubac way, has completed a 36 by 24 foot enclosed patio near his main ranch house. Built of "dobe brick" by Mr. Allen and a Mexican peon.

Have Reservation Before You Start to St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Fla. [Special].—Altho inquiries for winter visitor accommodations are setting an all-time record, the chamber of commerce here is not encouraging pleasure seekers and vacationists to come to the Sunshine City this winter. Every effort will be made, however, by the chamber of commerce to provide living facilities for arrivals not in essential war work, and who, for reasons of health or other factors, require a warm climate during the winter months. It is recognized that many persons who have wintered here over a period of years will want to return, and they are being advised to obtain definite hotel or apartment reservations as far in advance as possible.

This winter, for the first time since the war started, two de luxe seasonable hotels which have been used by service men will be open to civilian guests. Opening dates are set for mid-December.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	4 diamonds	Pass
5 clubs	Pass	6 spades	Pass
7 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of clubs.

I write about today's hand in the belief that confession is good for the soul. The experience herein recorded, touched me deeply at the time, because I was so anxious to impress my partner, who had upheld his end of the deal with great distinction. In good traditional spirit I sat South, and North was W. Somerset Maugham, who a short time prior to the incident had consented to act as master of ceremonies for my new book.

He opened with one heart and despite the lack of a fit, I elected to make an immediate jump shift because the hand possessed a distinct slam aroma. He naturally rebid the hearts and I decided to bid four diamonds as a stepping stone, intending all the time to play the hand at spades, whether partner supported them or not. His five club bid was well chosen and was an obvious eye bid. It could hardly be interpreted as trying to find a new place to play the hand at this late stage. This enabled me to jump to a slam in spades and Mr. Maugham, on the strength of the king of diamonds, elected to contract for a grand slam, a bid which I admire.

The opening lead was the queen of clubs and on the surface the hand appeared to be a lay down. I elected to ruff one diamond in dummy with the ten of spades, a plan which would fail only if the diamonds were divided six-one. When this proved to be the case, the second diamond was ruffed and I was down one to the accompaniment from Mr. Maugham of "Nice try, partner." Even if he wrote bad novels I'd have to like him. I don't know whether he noticed at the time that I could have made the hand, but even if he had, I'm sure he would have made the same comment.

Actually I don't like the way I played it. A better plan would have been to win with the king of clubs, play ace of hearts, and ruff a heart. Enter dummy with the ten of spades and ruff another heart. If the king falls all is over. If it fails to drop, the trumps are tested and if they are three-two another heart can be ruffed and the king must fall. If not, then by leading out the top trumps, a double squeeze will result. West will have to hold hearts, East, diamonds, and therefore no one will be able to guard clubs. I have reason to thank fate that this was only rubber bridge and no championship was at stake.

Geographic Society to Open Season on Tuesday

The Geographic Society of Chicago will open its season of monthly meetings in Orchestra hall Tuesday night with a color film and lecture program by Ben East of Grand Rapids, Mich. With the coöperation of the United States fish and wild life service, shortly before the outbreak of the war Mr. East had 22 days ashore on the lonely, fog-bound Pribilofs in the Bering sea, and in his travelog, "Alaska's Treasure Islands," he will show his pictures and talk on the great fur seal herds that annually yield a 3 million dollar harvest of pelts; of the fabulous seabird colonies, the reindeer and blue fox and other wild animals, and of the life of the Aleut Indians on St. Paul Island. This will be a return visit for Mr. East, who gave a lecture before the society last year. The program will be at 8:15 o'clock.

Those Boys Need You

BUY WAR BONDS!

Combat Sugar Shortage with Fruit Desserts

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

We aren't going to have all the sugar we'd like until the war is over. Homemakers should face that fact and use sugar stingily. Americans have the biggest sweet teeth in the world. We've long overdone our fondness for rich desserts, throwing our diets out of balance and our waistlines out of shape. We hate to admit this, and we aren't exactly happy about eating less cake and pie, but the bald truth is that a sugar shortage will do us all some good.

There's really no better dessert, from a dietary standpoint [and from a flavor standpoint, too, if we didn't all have sugar spoiled palates] than fresh fruit. Fresh fruit, unadorned, unsweetened, served in its own natural shape, sliced, or diced. An apple or a pear, or a cluster of grapes is a perfect dessert.

If you can accompany the fruit with a small piece of cheese, you'll have the dessert preferred by 99 per cent of gourmets. A soft cheese may be spread on apple or pear slices, a firm cheese eaten with them. Cream cheese, blue cheese, Edam and other cheddar types, camembert, and brie are favorite dessert cheeses. They're high in points, of course, but cheese is a rich food, and a very small portion is all one wants after a meal.

Salted peanuts with raw apple or pear taste awfully good after dinner, too. Peanuts again are a high calorie food, so should be eaten sparingly after a full meal. If the meal has been light, however, a larger portion of peanuts may be enjoyed.

Dates or figs might be placed on the fruit plate with the fresh fruit. They are naturally sweet and often satisfy that craving for a sweet finish to dinner.

Jonathan apples are in season now, and they're among the finest of apples for eating raw. Bright red of skin, full of juice and flavor, the Jonathan is a perfect dessert.

The pear season is on, with juicy Anjous and long necked russet Boscs among favorite varieties.

Grapes come green, red tinged, and purple these days. A favorite dessert grape is the Morocco, large, sweet, juicy, purple skinned variety. In fancy fruit markets you can get Moroccos almost as big as plums.

Apples, grapes, fresh prunes, and Michigan pears are in the moderate priced class. Some of the other fruits are rather expensive, but a wonderful treat when you can afford to buy them. Melons are expensive, but delicious. Persimmons and pomegranates are coming into season, but these are always expensive fruits, and not to be found in every market. Grapefruit will soon be of better quality and lower price.

Buttons are the special details of these autumn fashions. Both models make up equally well in woolen, crepe, or velveteen, and they're semi-tailored dresses which are suitable for both office and social occasions.

The two-piece dress uses a contrasting collar at the V neckline and closes the contour jacket with three costume jewelry buttons. The skirt recalls those treasures of pre-war fashions, plaits, by using a few modest ones in the trim skirt.

The one-piece frock has princess lines buttoned from neckline to hem. Contrasting bows, or two made of the dress material, are used at the sweetheart neckline. If you choose, omit the bows and use costume jewelry clips.

Curtains Add Pretty Note to Cottage Rooms

By Edith Weigle.

There are some windows that look prettier with simple, tie-back curtains than with more elaborate draperies. Cottage bedrooms, for example, are more suited to dotted Swiss voile, organdy, net, or marquisette than are more formal interiors in larger, costlier homes.

A room done simply with washable cotton rugs, furniture of maple or birch, and with walls hung in paper of cheerful, small design just naturally calls for a window treatment that is attractive, but not expensive. In the drapery department of the stores you'll see a number of curtain styles manufactured with these rooms in mind.

One Chicago store, for example, is showing very good looking, long low panel curtains in an unusually large, open, square mesh that would be charming in a bedroom or informal dining room. They measure 35 by 75 inches, are $2.95 each, and come in ivory, green, bright yellow, pink, or blue.

At another store are perennially popular ruffled ecru net curtains of the Priscilla type. Those are tie-back, of course, and measure 54 by 90 inches, being extra wide and extra long. They are well made and of good quality and are priced around $14.

Some of the daintiest bedroom or kitchen curtains we've come across are of crisp white organdy, made perfectly plain, with a little border trimming of yellow tufted fringe, set on at intervals. In white with yellow trim, 35 by 46 inches, these were only $2.65 a pair. Longer, with red trim, measuring 36 by 63 inches, they were $3.15. Long, full, embroidered organdy curtains are always beautiful at a bedroom window. A pair at the same store had graceful, large scale embroidery as a border design, measured 54 by 90 inches and was priced at $13.95. Several similar styles were in slightly varying lengths and at other prices.

Gay little blue baskets of yellow and red flowers appeared in horizontal rows on inexpensive white cotton net curtains, trimmed in blue. Suitable for a dining nook, the kitchen, or bathroom, they measured 24 by 54 inches and were only $3.35 a pair.

For a longer window were some ruffled curtains with a small blue flower pattern, made with ruffled sides and a narrow ruffled valance. These were around $5 a set.

And for the kitchen some of the smartest cotton curtains we've seen have tiny, narrow stripes in green, or red, or brown on white, and are of the tie-back, ruffled variety. A pair of sash curtains comes with them and the set is $5.50.

Fashions

Turbans are one of the most entrancing types of millinery. Whether they are high or low, there is something about their smooth, snug wrap and flattering drape that makes them a universal favorite. This season's clever draping and new jewel trimmings, combined with handsome jewel toned materials, make them a signal success.

A turban of fuchsia wool knit fabric of velvety smoothness has a twisted front drape under an unusual bumper which is trimmed with two bands of metallic braid and varicolored stones set above and below.

Another interesting color combination is that of royal blue and fuchsia, which combine in the drape of the center model. A delicate floral spray of ruby and green stones accents the blue twist at the hair line.

The exotic touch is given the two toned green and gold turban at bottom, with its unusual high front drape, by the use of a wide metallic band running thru the center of the hat. Ruby stones and a ruby and gold clip are caught in the center front just below the draping detail.

Tax on High Hats.

At one time North Carolina owners of high hats ["beavers" or "bee-guns"] paid an annual tax of $4 to the state for the privilege. Gold headed canes paid a similar levy.

Grandmothers Club to Hold Halloween Party

It's a misapprehension if the small fry think Halloween pranks and festivities are their exclusive province. The Grandmothers Club of Chicago has a gala celebration planned for next Saturday night, with dancing, music and traditional games on the program, and typical Halloween fare, including cider and doughnuts, on the menu. It is to be a costume party, and there will be prizes for the best make-up. The celebration will be held in the Morrison hotel. The local organization, which claims a membership of close to 900, is affiliated with the National Grandmothers club. Mrs. Rose Dyvig is the Chicago club's president.

We are frankly an enthusiast for blended face powder. Properly blended, tho. You can't very well mix your own; it takes special skill to choose the tints that do exactly the right flattering things for your coloring, and it's not at all easy to achieve perfect evenness of color.

The right face powder is one that tones in exquisitely with the color of your skin. If your powder is a fraction of a shade too light, too dark, too pink, too creamy, too yellow, it's going to be obvious, and your make-up is not suave.

There are women who have no difficulty at all in finding a shade that is unobtrusive and therefore flattering. But the human skin is more full of color variations than you ever dreamed, and there are thousands and thousands of women who would be far more satisfied with the final effect of their make-up if they took the pains to have a powder blended to match perfectly the subtle nuances of their natural skin tones.

One house that makes fine textured, top quality face powder has trained girls who can do this for you. They can spot the dirty gray tone—and don't think our skins don't have that—that needs to be camouflaged. They'll put a dash of gray into the powder but they'll put in more of another, more flattering tone, that is the perfect match of the natural, more flattering tones that are in the skin as well. You may have a pearly tone in your skin that your usual powder obscures completely. This the skilful powder blender can emphasize in the powder she blends especially for you.

The right powder, over the right foundation, can cover a multitude of skin tint discords. And finding the right powder shade is one of the most important of all beauty tricks.

After all, the facial canvas on which you apply such color accents, as rouge, lipstick, and eye shadow, must itself be flawless as to tint if you want your finished make-up to be as flattering as possible with your hair, eyes, and general complexion type. Skilfully blended powder, mixed to match all the color variations in your skin, can often be the magic that makes that canvas precisely right.

Youth Presents Parents with 10 Conduct Rules

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Parents are not the only ones who think about the relationship that exists between them and their children. And adults are not the only persons who are concerned about the unfortunate things that have befallen young people, and the way in which they have shocked this country during the war.

Teen-age boys and girls have met in groups at various times to take stock of delinquency and its causes. Altho the community at large failed youth in this crisis—but is now mending its ways—home is the place every one finally scrutinized in looking for causes. The following 10 commandments for parents were not thought up by me, but were written and adopted by the Chicago Youth congress:

1. Make a friend of your child; take him into your confidence; be his buddy, not his policeman.

2. Show your child the right way by example.

3. Make it your business to know the whereabouts of your child at all times, but don't allow him to feel "haunted" or "guilty."

4. If a child errs, it is chiefly because he has never been shown the right way; hence, don't punish him to excess, but show him where he has faltered; show him the right way with kindness.

5. Disciplinary action should not be shifted from one parent to the other, as exemplified by the commonly heard phrase, "Just wait until your father comes home!"

6. Don't give your child the impression that he is a nuisance when adults are present. Make him feel that he is a vital member of the family unit, and that you are counting on him to fulfill his obligations as such.

7. It is the duty of every father to explain to his teen-aged boy the facts of life and his debt to society as a man. It is likewise the duty of every mother to explain to her adolescent daughters the fundamental truths about life.

8. Keep the doors of your home open to your child's friends. Make his home his castle. If his home life is wholesome and enjoyable, he will not seek the haven of poolrooms and cheap movie houses that attract others.

9. Encourage church attendance. Here he will find many attractions awaiting him, such as clubs, dances, parties, and at the same time he will acquire a code of morals and ethics that are extremely vital in regard to his present and future relations with children.

10. Instill within your child a love for his country. See that his energies are utilized in Red Cross work, scrap collecting, bond selling, and other patriotic movements.

Run over these 10 "articles" one by one. You could very easily—couldn't you?—visualize their being the outcome of a conference of adults, wise parents, or psychological counsellors. But to many persons it will come as a surprise that children really crave some of these things. There are many parents who, I am sure, agree with all these provisions, but would tend to believe that some of them would have to be forced on a young growing up son or daughter; or even that an attempt to put them into practice would meet with antagonism. Among these might be commandments number 3 and 9.

Also, if your reaction happens to be that here are children holding their parents up to an ideal [and why shouldn't they, since we from babyhood are the persons they not only do but want to look up to?]. Read article 6:

"Make him [your child] feel that he is a vital member of the family unit, and that you are counting on him to fulfill his obligations."

Some of our teen-age boys had not graduated from high school before they were living and fighting as men. They don't want to be treated as children, have everything done for them, and not be expected to measure up to anything at all.

The nightly rite of cleansing face and neck is delightful IF you choose a cleansing cream that is luxurious - feeling as well as efficient in removing grime from the pores. And this is one of the BIG advantages of making the Angelus Cremes from the House of LOUIS PHILIPPE your cleansing-cream BUY-LINES. Neither the DRY SKIN Creme (for skins that are overly-dry or have a tendency to wrinkle) nor the ALL-PURPOSE Creme (for normal skins) has the heaviness that makes many creams unpleasant to use. On the contrary — DRY SKIN Creme has the consistency of rich, country cream . . . and the ALL-PURPOSE Creme is as fluffy as whipped cream! High Colors, Glitter Accent Blotta Clothes

By Rea Seeger.

The dusky gleam of gold embroidery and sequins with dull black wool or crepe in dresses, costumes, and dress parade clothes vie with the brilliant clash of high pink and black—in the Anthony Blotta winter collection designed for gala occasions. These are the costumes for theater, late dinners in town, cocktail parties, and Sunday night suppers. And while most of the models are those with street length skirts there are enough floor length affairs to prove that the longer length costumes are returning to fashion.

Blotta has a definite flair for costumes of the dress parade manner. Ensembles are detailed with an infinite variety of decorative motifs: braid, embroidery, tassels, fringe, suave drapery, flattering neck lines, and silhouettes that dramatize.

Even narrow belts of the same material as the dress combine to make all costumes smooth examples of the dressmaker's art. His jacket dresses are of paramount importance, because they always look like a costume, not the hurriedly combined twosome of skirt topped with an extra packet, but finished and studied ensembles of jacket with the just right skirt.

This winter, with more than the usual festive parties scheduled thru the next three months, ensembles with the discreet glitter and flicker of sequins or shimmering embroidery are rapidly becoming more popular. Slim, distinguished black ensembles are highlighted with the flash of shoulder trim in sequins or paillettes.

Sleeves attain a new interest because of the glitter of gold or silver braid or embroidery around the cuffs, near the shoulders, along the opening in front, or across the back. Linings, too, assume a new importance because of the exciting swish of taffeta or the brilliant bold contrast of silk or satin. Huge plaids and wide striped lining materials also are sensationally effective against the dull black wool exteriors.

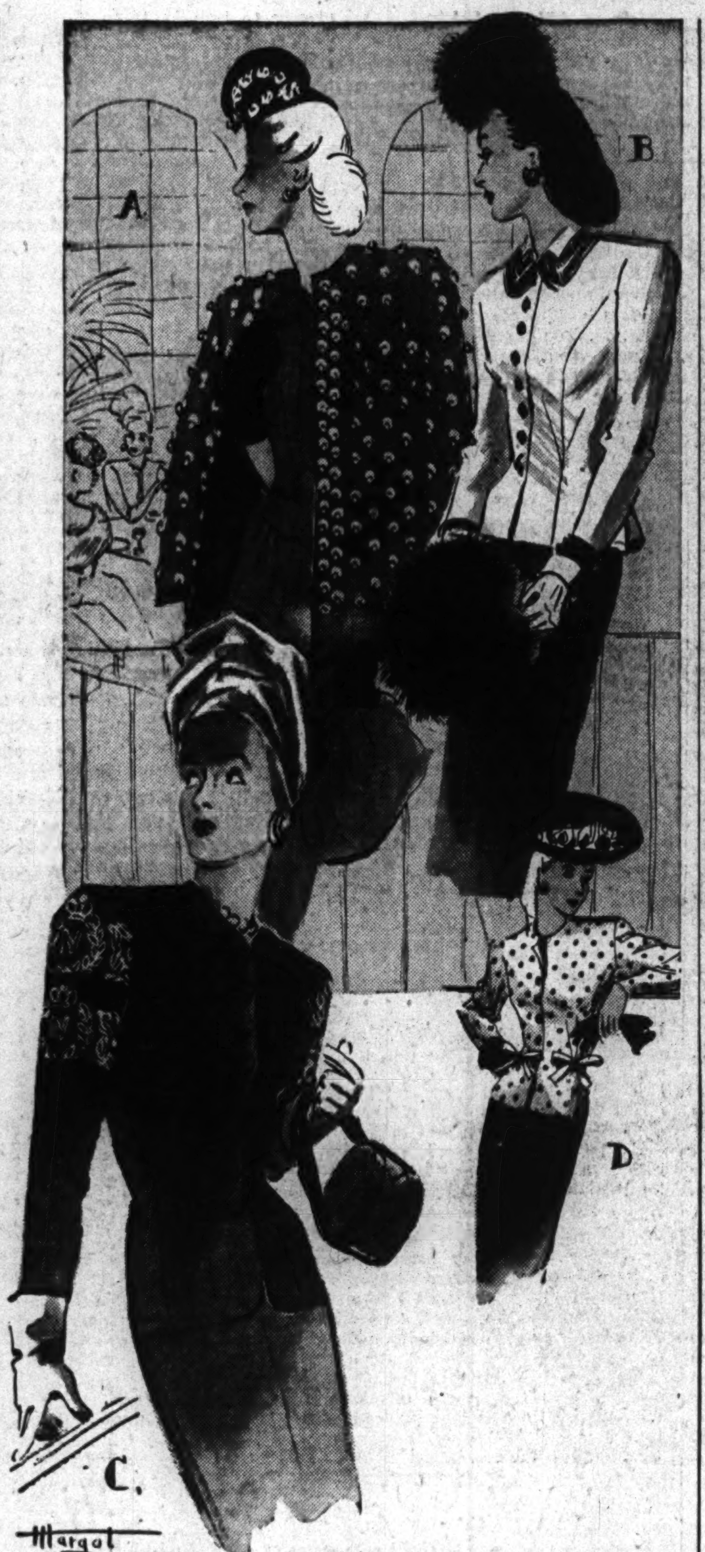
If the gold and black combines seem a bit quiet to you try the vivid, high pinks combined with black. Blotta does them to a perfection seldom equaled by any other dress designer. You will find jackets that fit smooth and snug, like the basque bodice of a dress, in this bright, gay pink, or short jackets detailed with black contrasts along cuffs, collar, or in chest motifs.

Again, linings of the pink jackets proclaim the spirited appeal of high pink as the rather startling inside story.

The Anthony Blotta collection of winter dinner and evening clothes is featured in the smart shops and stores of Chicago, and the models are seldom duplicated in the various shops. But these definitely American creations are easily recognized, not only by the label but by the distinctive Blotta manner. [Sketched are four individual costumes, the four that appeared in the famous St. Luke's fashion show during the last week here in Chicago. All will be found in a Chicago store. For further information call Sup. 0200.]



A . . . Hip length evening jacket is teamed with short, simple, black crepe dinner dress. Jacket glitter is achieved by gold sequins. • B . . . Wool costume consists of high pink jacket, trimmed with black on cuffs and collar, and slim black skirt. • C . . . Famous black wool suit features Napoleonic motif embroidered in gold on sleeves. • D . . . High pink wool jacket studded in black tops slim black wool skirt. Tailored bows simulate jacket pockets.

Lady of the House

Over the Teacups.

You are placing a tray of cups when your small son races into the kitchen like a tiny whirlwind. The crash echoes in some far pottery.

No doubt enough table-ware is broken every year in the United States to keep several factories hustling to replace it. Cups are the most vulnerable, altho they were among the first forms created by the potter. Man could and did eat with his fingers but he couldn't drink that way. Hence the drinking vessel.

When the modern lady of the house goes out to buy a "set of new dishes" she may choose from a wealth of beautiful forms and patterns. Yet much of the beauty and quality of American and imported china belongs to past ages, dating back at least 1500 years B. C.

In the ruins of Egypt were found porcelains made from fine sand in blue, green, purple, yellow; oxide of copper being used to produce the tints. Several centuries prior Assyrians were making pottery bearing the names of monarchs of the period. Greeks, too, had a large part in the history of pottery, and we long have given credit to the Chinese as the originators of fine porcelain.

Tho the making of poterie has become mechanized and no longer requires all the old skills at the hands of the potter manipulating the shapeless lump of clay on the "throwing wheel," there still is a world of romance in its production. There goes into the fragile teacup from which you sip your Oolong the dust of granite mountains ground to powder thru millions of years, bones of prehistoric animals, hard flints, and commoner clays.

There are interesting tales of incident and intrigue. The English potter, John Astbury, [whose brother married a Miss Wedgwood, aunt of Josiah Wedgwood] one day saw a hostler trying to cure a horse by blowing into its eyes powder from a red hot flint stone. He decided the powder might be more usefully and sensibly employed; and experiment showed it was a valuable substance for making pottery.

About this time the brothers Elers from Nüremberg, at work in Burslem, English home of the pottery trade, discovered how to glaze ordinary pottery with salt. By pretending to be an idiot Astbury got into their works and discovered their secret. . . . Many more such tales—but our tea is getting cold!

Old Mother.

She came and went, a gray, bent figure there;
"A sort of no-account," she said, but where
Her footsteps lingered, one found hope and cheer,
'Twas easing just to feel her presence near.

She came and went so unobtrusively!
Pain lessened where her fingers touched, tho she Remarked, "There seems so little I can do."
Yet, when she smiled, it warmed one's spirit thru.

So valiantly her shoulders, brave and staid,
Have borne the heavy burdens on them laid!
Such healing and dear magic, thru the years,
Have comforted and quelled young hurts and fears.

They, with scant time her weary steps to save,
Were heedless, often, of the much she gave.
Nor asked reward, save only she might live
For dear ones' need of her, and give and give.

Speak words of love and praise—O, do not wait
Until the priceless tribute be too late.
When God shall lean to give her spirit wings,
It will be vain to tender precious things.

HARRIET CHANDLER.

Service.

Four boys are gone from our street,
With fame, or shame, or death to meet.
Four boys have left along our row.
Four striplings now their manhood show.

Four mothers smile along our lane
With pride, with faith, in grief or pain.
Four fathers' eyes with hope replete,
Shed strength when parents' gazes meet.

Four stars have risen on our way,
Their beams undimmed by night or day.
Four service flags their tales unfold.
Four stars—and one of them is gold.

CHARLOTTE ALVORD MCMAHON.

Peace.

If peace could make a scythe-like sweep
Of every land and people;
If all arrangements could be made
Like building a church steeple;
Then how long would the dicker last?
How long could man be trusted?
Long as the steeple points the way
And the small church is dusted.

Many Uses for Rayon.

Rayon goods for civilians are not plentiful this fall. Rayon is needed to make chutes for fragmentation bombs, for bullet-proof cloth, balloon cloth, and tow ropes for glider planes.
